AMERICAN SOCIOLOGICAL SOCIETY

AN EXHIBIT OF SOCIOLOGICAL MATERIALS

Arranged for the annual meeting of the American Sociological Society and held at the Congress Hotel, in Chicago, December 28-30, 1936

The exhibit of research and instructional materials aims, first, to demonstrate the degree of progress made in the schematization and graphic presentation of the results of sociological research and, second, to bring to the attention of those interested in teaching or popularizing sociological principles concrete materials available for this purpose. Since the exhibit is intended to familiarize sociologists not merely with the trend of research but with well established and generally accepted conclusions as well, materials previously published, as well as those recently obtained, have been included.

Popularized displays, technical studies of general or local nature, and special devices used in teaching and research make up the exhibit. Maps, charts, graphs, diagrams, photographs, drawings, dioramas, balopticons, and a few types of apparatus are demonstrated. Departments of sociology, as groups, individual faculty members of colleges and universities, research institutes, philanthropic institutions, and government agencies have contributed to the exhibit. Materials on population and social pathology abound, but cultural groups, the social institutions, and collective behavior are also well represented.

The collection, selection, and arrangement of materials are the result of the combined effort of W. L. Bailey, J. H. S. Bossard, T. D. Eliot, E. G. Payne, F. M. Vreeland, and M. H. Krout, chairman.
