Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Public Policy , Collective Behavior/Social Movements

Salary Range: $30,000 - $39,999

Job Description:

Scholars Strategy Network Regional Postdoctoral Fellowship

The Scholars Strategy Network is creating a two-year Regional Postdoctoral Fellowship to support young scholars that are engaged in research and action to improve public policy and strengthen democracy. Each Fellow will be based at a university in one of SSN's regional chapters. Up to four fellowships will be available for the inaugural 2017-19 cohort.

Objectives

SSN Regional Postdoctoral Fellows will work to help academics maximize their impact on local, state, and national policy debates. Successful Fellows will build a web of relationships, transforming regional SSN chapters into powerful public policy research hubs that insert research, evidence, and ideas into state policy debates. Fellows will further this goal by:

- Meeting with current and prospective SSN scholar members to learn about their areas of expertise and interest;
- Working with scholars to prepare two-page SSN briefs that clearly convey their research to non-academic audiences;
- Meeting with policymakers, civic leaders, and journalists to learn about their interests, policy goals, and research questions;

- Creating opportunities for scholars to engage in the policy process by matching them to opportunities and helping non-academic stakeholders collaborate and build relationships with scholars;
- Organizing at least one significant group project that synthesizes research and scholarly perspectives in response to a request from a non-academic stakeholder;
- Helping local policymakers, journalists, civic leaders, and member scholars access the expertise of the national network by connecting them to out-of-state scholars and, as appropriate, arranging visits, State House or City Hall briefings, and university talks.

In addition, SSN Regional Postdoctoral Fellows will be expected to allot fifty percent of their time to their own policy-relevant research and will learn how to become active players in the policy arena. Each Fellow's research should enrich the policy landscape in a way that is useful to, and guided by, local stakeholders and practitioners. This research can be a continuation of the Fellow's doctoral work or represent a new project that can be completed within the two-year post-doctoral appointment.

Eligibility

SSN Regional Postdoctoral Fellowships are open to applicants from all disciplines who have completed their PhD within the past year and are prepared to work for two years starting immediately. Applications are encouraged from soon-to-be or recent PhDs with experience or a strong interest in public policy, practical research, and community or state-level organizing.

Fellows must be willing to be year-round residents of the community where their appointment is based for the duration of their two-year fellowship.

Ideal candidates will be persons dedicated to SSN's mission and able to grasp how to make use of SSN's structure as a voluntary, federated network of member scholars. Because SSN's national office is based in Cambridge, Massachusetts, Postdoctoral Fellows destined to be based in SSN regional chapters must show evidence that they are self-starters able to work independently and manage several projects simultaneously. In addition, strong candidates must be able to translate research findings into clear language for public audiences and feel comfortable actively reaching out to a diverse group of external stakeholders. Candidates should have a knowledge of legislative and other government processes.

Program Information

Length of Fellowship: In this launch phase, the SSN Regional Postdoctoral Fellowships will last for two years, starting in August 2017 and running through June 2019.

Affiliation: Fellows will be affiliated with one of the four following SSN regional chapters and their corresponding institutions: Atlanta SSN, Tennessee SSN (Nashville or Knoxville), Confluence SSN (St. Louis, MO), or Research Triangle SSN (Durham, NC).

Compensation: The SSN Regional Postdoctoral Fellowship will carry a salary of $30k to $40k a year, depending on the Fellow's experience. Compensation will also include health benefits, a modest travel allowance for approved travel to conferences, and coverage of other work related expenses.

Supervision: The Fellow will report for chapter-related duties to the co-leaders of their base chapter, and will also report to SSN's national Director of Policy and Organizing.

Training: At the start and throughout the program, each cohort of Fellows will be supported with additional resources and training to help them achieve the goals described above. Fellows will learn how to become active players in public policy arenas by creating research and relationships for maximum policy impact and by organizing other chapter member scholars for the same purposes.

At the outset of the program, each cohort will spend a week with the SSN national team in Cambridge, MA. Fellows will learn the key roles of the SSN staff, the type of services available to member scholars, and tools for supporting their chapters. This will also be an opportunity for Fellows to meet and discuss their research with Theda Skocpol, SSN Director and Victor S. Thomas Professor of Government and Sociology at Harvard University.

In the fall, Fellows will participate in an SSN policy engagement training to learn how to effectively deliver evidence and ideas to policymakers and civic organizations. Fellows will also go through SSN's media training and receive instruction from SSN's national communications team on how a scholar can use the media to disseminate research and analysis to the public.

Finally, Fellows will participate in SSN's National Leadership Retreat, where they will get a chance to learn from SSN chapter leaders, staff, and steering committee, including academic steering committee members Theda Skocpol, Jacob Hacker, Lawrence Jacobs, Suzanne Mettler, and Amy Fried. Fellows will also have an opportunity to present their own research and SSN work.

Mentorship: SSN chapter co-leaders will connect their Fellow with a mentor from that chapter who has interest and expertise in the Fellow's research area. A Fellow's research mentor can come from any of the colleges and universities with faculty members involved in the relevant SSN chapter. The research mentor (supported by the SSN national team) will help the Fellow write about research findings and prepare related materials in ways that can have a policy impact. In return for sustained engagement with the Fellow, research mentors will have the choice of receiving either a modest stipend or a small grant to help support joint research with the Fellow.

How to Apply

The application process includes six components: a statement of interest, a resume, an abstract of the PhD dissertation and clear evidence of its expected date, a description of the research proposed for the fellowship period, a publishable opinion piece, and two letters of recommendation.

- Statement of Interest: In 500 words or less, please detail your interest, background, and qualifications for the SSN Regional Postdoctoral Fellowship.
- Resume: Provide a curriculum vitae of no more than five pages.
- Dissertation Abstract and Date for the PhD: Provide the abstract and table of contents of your doctoral dissertation and (if the PhD is not yet awarded) include a letter from your advisor about the expected date for the degree.
- Description of Proposed Research: In 1000 words or less, describe the research project you would like to undertake during the two-year fellowship, how you plan to incorporate feedback from non-academic stakeholders, and in what ways you anticipate doing outreach about your work during and after completion of the project.
- Opinion Piece: In 650 words or less, write a jargon-free opinion piece using your research to comment on a current event or area of public interest. If you have already published such a piece, you may submit that.
- Two Letters of Recommendation: Provide two letters of recommendation that speak to your ability to be successful in this program. Ideally, one letter should be from an academic supervisor and another from a supervisor or peer outside of academia or from an academic who has such experience.

Timing: Applications will be accepted as they arrive and offers made as soon as the right candidates appear.

To Apply: Send your application with the above noted materials to Paola Maynard-Moll, pao@scholars.org and use "SSN Regional Postdoctoral Fellowship – Your Name" in the subject line.

Institution: Social Science Research Council
Department: Human Resources

Region: Northeast

Title: Anxieties of Democracy Program Director

Position/Rank: Sociological Practice/Applied/Other: Director

Tenure/Tenure Track:

Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Political Sociology , Political Economy

Salary Range: Negotiable

Interfolio Submission Link:

Job Description:

Summary

The SSRC seeks a Program Director for the Anxieties of Democracy program. The Program Director will oversee focused working groups, a grants program, and a range of outreach and public engagement activities dedicated to addressing how to make democracies govern more effectively.

Description

The Social Science Research Council (SSRC) is an independent, international, nonprofit organization devoted to the advancement of interdisciplinary research in the social sciences through a wide variety of workshops and conferences, fellowships and grants, summer training institutes, scholarly exchanges, research, and publications. For more information, please visit our website: <http://www.ssrc.org>.

The SSRC invites applications for the position of Program Director for the Anxieties of Democracy program. The program is motivated by a deep concern about whether the core institutions of representative democracies—elections, mass media, political parties, interest groups, social movements, and, especially, legislatures—that connect citizens and civil society to the political system can capably address large problems in the public interest. The program includes both a particular focus on US democracy and a global perspective on established democracies across world regions. With the support of the William and Flora Hewlett Foundation, the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation, and others, the Anxieties of Democracy program aims to mobilize existing research; promote new research; publish and disseminate findings; forge pathways for bringing this knowledge to policy, media, and public audiences; and provide opportunities for new generations of social scientists to address how to make democracies govern more effectively. It pursues these goals through a set of topically focused working groups, a grants program, and a range of outreach and public engagement activities. This position is for three years and is potentially renewable.

Qualifications

The best-qualified candidates will have a PhD in one of the social sciences or a closely related field and demonstrated achievements as a researcher. Recent PhDs may apply, but competitive candidates should demonstrate experience in program or project administration, collaborative work, the organization of events, connection and outreach to practitioners, and supervision of staff. Ability to communicate effectively is crucial, and experience engaging both researchers and nonacademic constituencies, including funders and policymakers, is critical. Familiarity with grants administration and budgeting is desirable. Candidates must demonstrate their ability to work collaboratively and to manage multiple priorities and projects effectively.

Responsibilities

The Program Director will:

- Manage the continued development and implementation of the Anxieties of Democracy program, including the development of funding proposals to support program activities;
- With the program's Advisory Committee and the SSRC president, establish substantive program directions, facilitate strategic planning, and conduct oversight of program activities; engage with program funders and produce reports on program progress;
- Oversee planning for upcoming events, including conferences, workshops, and other meetings, as well as manage program budgets;
- Oversee the process and quality of publications emerging from the program as well as its online and social media presence;
- Facilitate connections between scholars and relevant policy and media communities in order to maximize the possibilities of shaping broader public debate on how to improve the problem-solving capacities of representative democratic institutions;
- Oversee a small-scale grants program on Negotiating Agreement in Congress;
- Liaise and coordinate with SSRC colleagues and various organizational partners on aspects of program implementation; and
- Handle additional responsibilities and projects as directed, depending on interest and capacity.

Terms, Salary and Benefits

Annual salary will be commensurate with experience. Comprehensive benefits include health, dental, vision, disability, life, and gym reimbursement; outstanding pension plan and tax savings programs; generous vacation and sick leave; and more. Provisions are made for professional staff to continue their development as social scientists while at the Council.

Application Information

For further information or to apply, please send a cover letter that includes your thoughts on how the Anxieties of Democracy program might next proceed, a curriculum vitae, one writing sample, and the names of at least three professional colleagues who can serve as references to applications@ssrc.org. Please put "Anxieties of Democracy PD" in the subject line. Applications will be accepted until the position has been filled but should be received by May 1, 2017, for priority consideration.

The Social Science Research Council is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Job 12840: Lecturer in Public Policy Studies

Date Position is Available: Fall 2017

Application Deadline:

Listing Active: 4/19/2017 to 5/19/2017

Institution: University of Chicago
Department: Social Sciences Collegiate Division

Region: Midwest

Title: Lecturer in Public Policy Studies

Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Lecturer

Tenure/Tenure Track: Not Tenure Track

Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Public Policy

Salary Range: Negotiable

Interfolio Submission Link:

Job Description:

The College at the University of Chicago invites applications for a full-time Lecturer in Public Policy Studies, a dynamic, multidisciplinary major grounded in the social sciences, with substantial inputs from economics, sociology, political science, and law, among other disciplines. The major recognizes that public issues are not neatly confined within traditional disciplinary boundaries, and that individuals possessing a broad range of social scientific understanding, quantitative expertise, and communication skills are well placed to contribute to improved public policies. In Public Policy Studies, students are involved in direct, street-level contact with policy problems, ensuring that the academic speculations are well-informed and connected to objective conditions.

The Lecturer will be expected to contribute to the Public Policy Studies major by developing coursework that contributes to the Public Policy Studies core and elective curriculum, mentoring individual undergraduate theses, assisting in program administration, and building learning experiences that engage students with relevant professional communities. In addition, the Lecturer will be responsible for overseeing the BA thesis process for over 100 fourth-year students, which entails hiring, training, and supervising graduate student preceptors; curricular development for the BA seminar; and the awarding of special honors.

Preference will be given to candidates who demonstrate a desire and ability to teach Policy Implementation, a key component of our core curriculum—particularly those candidates with scholarly expertise in the sociology of organizations and/or program or policy implementation expertise. In addition, preference will be given to candidates with experience related to teaching undergraduate practicum courses (those courses that involve student field research in service of a government or community-based client).

The position is a three-year, renewable appointment to begin on September 1, 2017, and comes with a teaching commitment of six courses per year. The successful candidate will have a PhD or terminal degree in the social sciences or law, research publications, and a proven record of teaching excellence and mentoring in at least one field relevant to public policy. Practitioner experience is also highly valued for this position.

To apply for this position, please submit an application through the University of Chicago's Academic Career Opportunities website: <https://academiccareers.uchicago.edu>, select requisition # 03321, and upload 1) a letter of application; 2) a current curriculum vitae; 3) teaching statement that describes prior teaching experience, pedagogical approaches, expertise in public policy studies, and experience mentoring undergraduate students; 4) sample syllabi; 5) teaching evaluations; 6) two published or unpublished research papers; and 7) names and contact information for three references.

Application deadline: May 19, 2017. Only complete applications will be considered.

The University of Chicago is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Disabled/Veterans Employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national or ethnic origin, age, status as an individual with a disability, protected veteran status, genetic information, or other protected classes under the law. Job Description:

The Department of Sociology at Columbia University invites applications for the position of Postdoctoral Research Scholar/Lecturer for a period of one year. Renewal for the 2018-2019 academic year is possible, contingent on satisfactory performance. The position start date is September 1st, 2017. The Department is seeking outstanding applicants with demonstrated excellence in research, writing, and teaching. Ph.D. in sociology is required. The degree must have been awarded between July 1, 2014 and June 30, 2017. Salary is $70,000 per year. In addition to conducting his/her own research, the Postdoctoral Research Scholar/Lecturer will teach one course per semester in the Department of Sociology's Masters Program and will work with the Director of the M.A. Program in advising students. The M.A. program is specifically focused on qualitative sociological research in urban settings. Preference will be given to candidates with expertise in this specific field and/or methods.

All applications must be made through Columbia University's Recruitment of Academic Personnel System (RAPS). Please upload the following required materials: cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, teaching evaluations, writing sample (only one sample equivalent to a single journal article, book chapter, or dissertation chapter. The writing sample may be published or unpublished. It must be in English. The maximum length is 25 pages), and names and addresses of 3 references. RAPS will accommodate uploads of maximum two (2) megabytes in size per document.

Before uploading documents, applicants first will be asked to input a name and valid email address for each reference provider. The application to this position requires a minimum of three (3) references. The applicant may enable RAPS to generate an automatic email to the reference provider, politely requesting a letter of reference and offering a secure link to the RAPS website where a letter can be uploaded quickly and easily. Wherever possible, letters should be uploaded in the online system.

After completing the "Provide References" screens, the applicant will come to the "Attach Documents" screen and be asked to upload into RAPS the required application materials listed above. The completion of the application process in RAPS is indicated by a confirmation number, which the applicant should retain.

- Use available data and knowledge of religious movements to update estimates of the size and demographic characteristics of religious groups in each country
- Compile and analyze data comparing results over time and across countries
- Develop research designs that are appropriate to project goals
- Stay abreast of research related to global religion trends

Writing and Communication (30%)

- Write in-depth analyses for research reports
- Respond to external requests for information
- Present research findings at academic conferences and to other religion research audiences

Project Planning and Management (10%)

- Allocate resources and staff time to best meet project objectives
- Map out steps in projects
- Set and adhere to deadlines and deliverables
- Keep colleagues and senior staff informed

Education/Training/Experience

- Social science Ph.D. in sociology, economics, demography, political science, or other related field
- Proven experience in undertaking research involving demographic data analysis, including using Stata, R, Excel and other statistical software
- Mastery of multiple regression analysis and familiarity and experience with a range of statistical techniques
- Highly desirable training: coursework and experience using demographic methods
- Expertise in topics that could be the focus of future global religion reports is desirable

Knowledge and Skill Requirements:

- Ability to analyze large datasets, including facility using syntax commands to carefully document analysis using log files
- Editorial judgment and strong verbal and written communications skills
- Ability to balance numerous projects simultaneously
- Attention to detail, including exacting standards to maintain accuracy and impartiality in all work products
- Demonstrated skills assisting with project development and management
- Ability to work collaboratively and collegially with staff from the religion team, as well as with staff from other Pew Research Center projects and outside organizations
- Ability to balance multiple projects and meet tight deadlines while ensuring accuracy in data management, fact checking and research
- Ability to take a leadership role in helping manage the work of colleagues and train staff when needed

Application Procedure

Applicant should apply online and include a cover letter (indicating where you learned of the opening) with salary expectations.

The Pew Research Center is an equal opportunity employer, committed to a diverse and inclusive workplace. Job Description:

There is an emerging need for focused and rigorous research on evaluating the impact that Information and Communication Technologies (ICTs) have on the society, while at the same time evaluating the societal influence in shaping ICTs. This requires multi-dimensional and inter-disciplinary perspectives that can analyse and interpret these changes within their social, political and global contexts.

The Centre for IT and Society at IIT-Delhi, seeks to tackle this by bringing together competent researchers in the areas of anthropology, sociology, media studies, economics, policy, psychology and other similar fields and create research opportunities for both partnership and engagement with the Computer Science and Design researchers at the institute. By deconstructing the complex web of information technologies and its impact on the civic as well as the everyday lives of people, the centre also aspires to provide policymakers, technocrats, not for profit organisations, multinational corporations, entrepreneurs, the general public and other such stakeholders a clearer sense of the levers that connect various social dimensions with how IT and related services evolve in the South Asian and the global context. The Centre is also instrumental in designing a cutting edge B. Tech programme in IT and Social Sciences.

We are looking for tenure-track faculty in Sociology with the following areas of focus: Digital Sociology/Ethnography, Computational Sociology, Society and Computing, Economic Sociology, Social Network Analysis, Digital and Social Media, Internet Governance and Policy, Mobile Health, Education, Media Sociology etc.

We seek candidates having a PhD from a top Institution in India or abroad, preferably having post-doc experience and a strong publication record in relevant areas. Scholars with training in Sociology are preferred. Candidates who are conducting research relevant to the centre's theme and having the capability to independently drive a research program, and provide innovation and quality teaching at both the undergraduate and graduate levels are welcome to apply.

The faculty in the centre, besides pursuing research, are also expected to offer innovative courses. An interdisciplinary undergraduate program is also being planned in which new faculty members would be involved. The centre has plans to offer specialised Master's and PhD programs in the near future.

For applying: Applications are processed regularly. Next deadline: August 31st 2017. For further queries please contact shriramv@iiitd.ac.in or faculty-applications@iiitd.ac.in

Further information can also be had from www.iiitd.ac.in/careers/faculty/2016

Technical Seminar: On a mutually convenient date; often when the candidate is visiting India. E-seminar is also a possibility.

Interaction with Selection Committee: Held regularly every few months. Interaction over Skype is also possible.

Employer Description:

IIIT-Delhi (Indraprastha Institute of Information Technology, www.iiitd.ac.in) is an Autonomous Institute created by Govt. of Delhi with a mission to become a world class R&D led Institution in IT and interdisciplinary areas. It offers one of the most vibrant and exciting academic environments in India and is an ideal place for a young researcher who wishes to work in India in these exciting times. With strong research groups and associated centres in areas like Security, Biometrics, Mobile Computing, Data Management, AI, Computational Biology, the Institute is seeking to expand into areas such as IT and Society as well.

IIIT Delhi emphasises on research, innovation and development to create impact through published papers, reports, projects, and technology development. It strongly focuses on graduate education through the PhD program (attracting over 100 PhD scholars in the past six years). It also extends significant support for initial career development through an initiation research grant, support for international conference travel, professional society membership, and encouragement of continuing collaborations with foreign partner institutions (with options for short-term leave support). It has implemented systems of yearly appraisal / feedback and a tenure process to help faculty members aim high and create an institute whose reputation is benchmarked against international standards. Hence, all faculty members are expected to pursue research leading to publications in journals of repute and high impact, and engage in sponsored projects and collaborations. Strong support is provided for research and the teaching load is light. IIIT-Delhi currently has around 60 faculty members, most of whom have their PhDs from top universities around the world. IIIT-Delhi is located within the academic belt of New Delhi, alongside other research institutes of international reputation. The institute is well connected with the city via the New Delhi international airport, railways and an efficient domestic metro service.

Job Description:

The Vera Institute of Justice uses research and evidence to build and improve justice systems that ensure fairness, promote safety, and strengthen communities. We work with others who share our vision to tackle the most pressing injustices of our day—from mass deportations, racial disparities, and the loss of public trust in law enforcement to the unmet needs of the vulnerable, the marginalized, and those harmed by crime and violence. Vera has offices in New York City, Washington, DC, Los Angeles, and New Orleans, and its projects and reform initiatives, typically conducted in partnership with local, state, or national officials, are located across the United States and around the world. Vera is an equal opportunity employer with a commitment to diversity in the workplace.

Vera is seeking an experienced social science researcher to lead its immigration and justice research as center director of research for the Center on Immigration and Justice (CIJ). The successful candidate will have a passion for justice, experience designing and conducting research, extensive knowledge of issues related to immigration, a background in quantitative research methods, and managerial experience.

Responsibilities

The center director of research for CIJ will report to Vera's Vice President and Research Director and work closely with the CIJ director and Vera's broader leadership team to shape Vera's research on issues at the intersection of immigration and the justice system. The center director of research will be responsible for maintaining and strengthening the breadth and quality of CIJ's research. They are also responsible for developing new projects and supporting Vera's public efforts to leverage its knowledge and skills. The center director of research will oversee grant reporting and analysis of administrative data, train and mentor other researchers, manage multiple research projects, prepare and deliver presentations and reports to funders, and write competitive grant proposals, research briefs and academic publications.

Qualifications

- A Ph.D. in sociology, geography, anthropology, criminal justice, criminology, public policy, or a related discipline with at least 5 years relevant work experience. Exceptional candidates with a Master's degree and extensive experience will also be considered.
- Strong interpersonal, collaborative, managerial, staff-development, and leadership skills and the flexibility necessary for working in a fast-paced and complex organization.
- A track record of successful proposal writing for federal solicitations and/or foundation grants.
- Research project management experience and a commitment to teamwork.
- Experience designing evaluation research studies.
- Advanced skills in qualitative and quantitative research methods, including a combination of:
 - Use of statistical analysis software (e.g. R, STATA, SPSS) to conduct multivariate quantitative analyses
 - Managing administrative datasets
 - Survey construction and data analysis
 - Experience with qualitative interview techniques and data analysis
- Excellent written and oral communication skills for research and non-research audiences.
- Commitment to immigration and justice system reform.
- A track record of published research.
- Spanish language proficiency is highly desirable.

Please note that this position requires government security clearance. That clearance is restricted to U.S. citizens and citizens of countries that are party to collective defense agreements with the US. The list of those countries is here: <http://www.state.gov/s/l/treaty/collectivedefense/index.htm>. An additional clearance requirement is residence in the U.S. for at least three of the last five years before being hired

Salary

$115,000 to $150,000 depending on experience and qualifications, plus excellent benefits.

How to apply

Please submit a cover letter and comprehensive CV. Online submission in PDF format is preferred.

However, if necessary, materials may be mailed or faxed to:

ATTN: Human Resources / CIJ Center Director of Research Recruitment

Vera Institute of Justice

Job Description:

Williams College. The Department of Anthropology and Sociology invites applications for the position as a regular (tenure-track) assistant professor in sociology beginning July 1, 2018. The department has a unique interdisciplinary focus [see: www.williams.edu/anthsoc] that emphasizes innovative empirically grounded humanistic work, including ethnography, historical comparative sociology, visual methods, discourse analysis and other qualitative traditions. The department is particularly interested in candidates who can teach a broad range of courses that complement current curricular offerings. Areas of scholarly inquiry are open, with a particular interest in candidates whose research agenda includes: the intersections of work, culture, and the economy; law; education; medical sociology; migration and citizenship; social movements; race and inequality, and/or whose research has a regional or comparative focus on Africa, Latin America or the EU. The Ph.D. should be in hand by the date of appointment. The teaching load is four semester courses per year plus a January course every other year. We welcome applications from members of groups traditionally underrepresented in the field, and applicants are encouraged to state in their cover letter how they will enhance the diversity of offerings and educational experiences in the department if hired.

Application deadline: September 1, 2017. Early applications (materials received before July 15) will receive consideration for interviews at the ASA meeting in August or, for those who are unable to travel to Montreal, via Skype. These preliminary interviews are important in the selection of final candidates. For initial application, submit only curriculum vitae and detailed cover letter outlining research and teaching interests. All materials should be addressed to: Chair of the Search Committee, Department of Anthropology and Sociology and must be submitted through Interfolio. Follow this link to apply for the position: <https://apply.interfolio.com/40974>. Fax and e-mail applications will not be accepted. All offers of employment are contingent upon completion of a background check. Further information is available here: <http://dean-faculty.williams.edu/prospective-faculty/background-check-policy/>.

Employer Description:

Williams College is a coeducational liberal arts institution located in the Berkshire Hills of western Massachusetts.
