Job Description:

Hiram College seeks a sociologist who is an enthusiastic educator and scholar for the position of Visiting Assistant Professor of Sociology with required specialty areas in crime and social inequality. A Ph.D.-level candidate is preferred; ABD will be considered.

Hiram College, established in 1850 as the Western Reserve Eclectic Institute, is a nationally respected private residential liberal arts college located 30 miles from Cleveland in the historic Western Reserve region of Ohio. At Hiram, close student-faculty interaction and innovation is routine. The College's distinctive academic calendar, the Hiram Plan, offers students the opportunity each semester for a 3-week intensive course, study abroad/away program, internship or research experience.

The successful candidate will demonstrate excellent undergraduate teaching and mentoring skills and have a desire to participate in the liberal arts education of students at Hiram College. An ideal candidate will contribute strong sociology coursework in crime/deviance, social inequality (including race and ethnicity, social class, gender, etc.), and research methods. She/he will demonstrate a passion to design and implement a multidisciplinary crime and justice major. The standard teaching load at Hiram College is 22-24 semester hours. All faculty members teach and mentor students outside the classroom. The department will expect the new faculty member to develop relationships with agencies to create a pipeline for internships.

Hiram College is an equal opportunity employer committed to excellence through diversity. Diverse applicants are encouraged to apply.

Please submit a cover letter; a statement of teaching philosophy and evidence of teaching excellence; a research statement; a brief description of vision for a multidisciplinary crime and justice program with disciplines including but not limited to sociology, philosophy and political science; and a Curriculum Vitae to HR@Hiram.edu. Three letters of recommendation should be sent directly to HR@Hiram.edu. Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled.

Job Description:

We are searching for a post-doctoral scholar trained in one or more of the following fields: population health, demography of aging, and neurocognitive sciences, with a strong statistical training interested in interdisciplinary research on health using big data. The research will take place at the Carolina Population Center in close collaboration with a biodemographer and medical sociologist, Yang C. Yang, and a social epidemiologist, Allison Aiello, alongside a team of scholars, researchers, and doctoral students in public health, sociology, quantitative psychology, neurology and biostatistics at both UNC and Duke University Medical Center. Our group uses a life course approach to social determinants of chronic diseases of aging and the underlying biological mechanisms. Our current NIA funded R01 project focuses on modeling age trajectories of cognitive decline and Alzheimer's Disease (AD) related dementia and sex disparities, and interplay of social and biological pathways that generate and sustain AD disparities. A significant portion of the work will focus on the integration of five large-scale NIH longitudinal cohort studies, testing of biomarkers of immune function, and statistical analyses. The work is highly innovative in research design and will have the potential for translational and policy impact for aging populations in the US and globally. Additionally, there will be ample opportunities for connecting with a wider network of scholars and career development. The initial term of appointment is one year, with possible reappointment. A PhD or equivalent in sociology (health, aging and the life course), epidemiology, demography, neuropsychology, biopsychology, or related discipline with strong quantitative training is required.

Job Description:

The Institute at Brown for Environment and Society (IBES) invites applications for a Visiting Assistant Professor in Environmental Studies. While disciplinary field is open, we are looking for a social scientist to teach a departmental methods course* in the Fall of 2018 and two additional environmental studies courses per year based on the applicant's strengths. The methods course teaches our third year students how to write a research proposal and will ideally train them in both quantitative and qualitative methods with a focus on integrating social and natural sciences. Candidates with strengths in either qualitative or quantitative methods will be considered. The position involves two distinct roles: (1) conducting a varied portfolio of teaching activities, including undergraduate environmental studies courses, student advising and senior thesis mentoring; and (2) conducting research and publishing in relevant fields. It is expected that the course load will be 3 courses per academic year, with preference given to those who can teach courses that contribute to a new Environment and Inequality Track in addition to the methods course. This position is paid a full 12 months per year and salary support from grants and contracts is not required. The successful applicant may act as a Principal Investigator on proposals.

This course provides an introduction to a wide range of research approaches in the social and environmental sciences. We will cover the epistemological and theoretical foundations of various research approaches and discuss implications of these foundations for what research questions are answerable and what evidence one can bring to bear to answer such questions. By the end of the semester, students will be able to write a clear and answerable research question, and know what methods are appropriate to use to answer such a question.*

Qualifications

We are particularly interested in candidates with demonstrated excellence or potential in teaching; those with experience working collaboratively across disciplines; and those who have engaged in activities promoting diversity. Applicants must have a Ph.D. at the time of commencing work. The start date can be July 1 or Sept. 1, 2018.

Employer Description:

Application Instructions

All candidates should submit: (1) a teaching statement, (2) a research statement, (3) a curriculum vitae, (4) a cover letter describing their interest in the position, and if available (5) copies of teaching evaluations and course syllabi. Candidates should have three letters of reference sent at the time of the application. Submissions will be considered on a rolling basis beginning June 15th and we will continue to accept applications until the position is filled. Send materials to: <http://apply.interfolio.com/50923>

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

Brown University is committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive academic global community; as an EEO/AA employer, Brown considers applicants for employment without regard to, and does not discriminate on the basis of, gender, race, protected veteran status, disability, or any other legally protected status.

Job Description:

Company Description:

Founded in 1919, AUC moved to a new 270-acre state-of-the-art campus in New Cairo in 2008. The University also operates in its historic downtown facilities, offering cultural events, graduate classes, and continuing education. Student housing is available in New Cairo. Among the premier universities in the region, AUC is Middle States accredited; its Engineering programs are accredited by ABET, its Chemistry program is accredited by the Canadian Society for Chemistry, and the School of Business is accredited by AACSB, AMBA and EQUIS. The AUC Libraries contain the largest English-language research collection in the region and are an active and integral part of the University's pursuit of excellence in all academic and scholarly programs. AUC is an English-medium institution; eighty-five percent of the students are Egyptian and the rest include students from nearly ninety countries, principally from the Middle East, Africa and North America. Faculty salary and rank are based on qualifications and professional experience. According to AUC policies and procedures, all faculty are entitled to generous benefits.

Job Description:

The American University in Cairo (AUC) is pleased to announce the continuation of its program of Core Teaching Fellowships, intended for recent PhD graduates. Successful applicants will be appointed, for a three year term, as Core Curriculum Teaching Fellows with the rank of Visiting Assistant Professor. The primary responsibility of the Core Fellows will be to teach Scientific Thinking to students in the Core Curriculum Freshman Program. The course focuses on building student skills in critical thinking, the scientific method, research methods and quantitative reasoning. Fellows will also have the opportunity to teach additional courses in their own or related disciplines. While at AUC, fellows will have access to apply for AUC's generous travel (and other) grants in support of their research, and of course to observe, work in and learn about one of the most fascinating countries in the world, Egypt.

Requirements:

One or more Fellows will be appointed in fall 2018, depending on needs. Candidates in any of the following disciplines are welcome to apply:

Archaeology; Astronomy; Biology; Chemistry; Economics; Egyptology; Geology; History and Philosophy of Science; Mathematics; Physics; Psychology; Sociology.

Normally, applicants for Core Curriculum Fellowships will have received their PhD degree within three calendar years of the date of application. In exceptional cases ABD's will be considered. Teaching experience is an asset, but not required.

Additional Information:

Review of candidates will begin immediately; applications will be accepted until positions are filled.

Application Instructions:

All applicants must submit the following documents through the online system:

a) an updated CV; b) a letter of interest; c) a completed AUC Personnel Information Form (PIF); and d) List names and contact information of at least three references familiar with your professional background to be sent to odus@aucegypt.edu.

Job Description:

NATIONAL UNIVERSITY OF SINGAPORE, ASSISTANT PROFESSOR POSITION, TO BEGIN IN JULY 2019

Successful candidates must have

- A Ph.D. in Sociology from an internationally acclaimed institution at the time of appointment.
- Advanced skills on a wide range of quantitative methods although the substantive fields of specialization are open.
- A strong track record and promising trajectory in research and publication.
- Excellent communication skills and dedication to academic teaching excellence and collegiality.

A leading global university centred in Asia, the National University of Singapore is a leader of scientific and social scientific research in the city-state of Singapore. Its transformative education includes a broad-based curriculum underscored by multi-disciplinary courses and cross-faculty enrichment, as well as special programmes which allow students to realise their potential. Over 30,000 students from 100 countries further enrich the community with their diverse social and cultural perspectives, making campus life vibrant and exciting.

The Department of Sociology offers Bachelor's, Master's and Doctoral degrees in Social Sciences and contributes to interdisciplinary programmes in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. The Department stands among the top sociology departments in Asia, and specializes in sociological and anthropological research on Asian societies. We have about forty faculty members in diverse fields such as family, demography, stratification, medical sociology, comparative-historical sociology, socio-cultural anthropology, and cultural studies. The Department attracts graduate students internationally and we have a rapidly developing postgraduate programme in which students have the option to complete a Ph.D. in either Sociology or Anthropology. (<http://www.fas.nus.edu.sg/soc/>)

The university emphasizes excellence in both teaching and research, with internationally competitive salaries and opportunities for substantial research funding. The successful candidate is also expected to supervise graduate students at the Masters and Ph.D. level. As the university's medium of instruction is English, applicants must exhibit a high level of English-competency.

Applications should include a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, a research and teaching statement and names and contact details for three references, plus the application form (duly completed - http://www.fas.nus.edu.sg/soc/documents/news-and-events/job_appln.doc). Please submit your application in a single PDF file and do not include any writing samples.

Send applications to:

Chair, Search Committee
c/o Ms Jane Ong at socjob@nus.edu.sg.

Applications will be reviewed starting 15 July 2018. Early applications are encouraged so as to get full consideration by the committee. Only short-listed candidates will be notified.

Job Description:

The Department of Sociology invites applications for Director of the Center for Social Science Instruction (CSSI). We seek to hire a Director who runs the CSSI and teaches three or four classes per year. The primary coursework will focus on statistical computing and data analysis. The director supervises a number of senior theses (SOC 492) and independent study courses each year (SOC 400), especially for students in the Sociology Bachelor of Science program. The Director oversees two Sociology Department computer labs. The director provides statistical computing consultation to Sociology Majors, Sociology faculty, and other members of the College of Humanities and Social Science. The Director is responsible for a variety of other administrative roles. This is a 10.5 month appointment. It is not on the tenure track, but will be based on a 4-year continuing contract. The Director does not have research responsibilities. We seek candidates, however, with interest or background in the pursuit of external funding through federal or private agencies.

Successful candidates will excel at instruction and have a solid background in statistical computing and quantitative methods in a social science context. We welcome applicants who are familiar with and sensitive to serving students from diverse backgrounds. Western Washington University is located in Bellingham, Washington (approximate population 80,000) located 60 miles south of Vancouver, British Columbia, and 90 miles north of Seattle. Approximately 15,000 students attend the University; about 94% of these students are undergraduates; students of color represent 25% of the campus population. For more information about our department, please visit our website: <http://www.wwu.edu/depts/soc/>. For more information about WWU, please see <http://www.wwu.edu/>. Job Description:

Working Title Visiting: Assistant Professor of Sociology

Position Number: F0174

Appointment Type: Full Time

Purpose of Position: The Department of Sociology, Social Work, and Anthropology at Christopher Newport University invites applications for the position of Visiting Assistant Professor in Sociology, effective August 2018. This position is a two-year, full-time, non-tenure-track appointment with a nominal teaching load of 4-4. The successful candidate will regularly teach the department's upper-level, required course in sociological theory, and other elective courses in the candidate's area of specialization. Preference will be given to candidates with experience teaching sociological theory, and expertise in women's and gender studies. This position may carry additional responsibilities in lower division courses in support of the sociology major and the liberal learning core. Demonstrated excellence in teaching and potential for scholarly research are required. The Ph.D. in Sociology or a closely related field is required for appointment at the rank of Visiting Assistant Professor. Individuals who are ABD and will not hold the Ph.D. by the time of appointment and/or possess a master's degree in a related field may be considered for appointment at the rank of Visiting Instructor. Phi Beta Kappa membership is highly desirable.

Departmental Information: The Department of Sociology, Social Work, and Anthropology at Christopher Newport University is composed of 16 full-time faculty, and offers majors in Sociology and Social Work, as well as concentrations in Criminology and Anthropology. Our goal is to develop students into critical thinkers, readers, and writers who go on to become global citizens with compassion, communicative skills, and knowledge to help others. In new faculty we always seek excellent teaching, promising scholarship, supportive collegiality, and the ability to inspire passion for research in our students. Candidates wishing to know more about the department and its academic programs are invited to visit <http://cnu.edu/academics/departments/sswa/>.

Faculty Information: CNU is committed to outstanding teaching and learning, undergraduate education, and the liberal studies core; the University is seeking to shelter a Phi Beta Kappa chapter. The Fall 2017 freshman class of 1,290 students was selected from over 7,000 admission applications, and presented average high school GPA and SAT scores of 3.8 and 1210, respectively. Capital improvements (approaching $1 billion) on the beautiful, 260-acre campus, located between historic Colonial Williamsburg and the ocean resort of Virginia Beach, integrate the University's liberal arts vision, nurturing mind, body, and spirit. These include the state-of-the-art Triple Library; three new academic buildings including a newly opened integrated science building; the Freeman Center athletic complex; and the I.M. Pei-designed Ferguson Center for the Arts, which brings to Virginia the finest performing artists in the world. Our faculty enjoy an atmosphere of collegiality and mutual respect that rewards outstanding teaching and fosters active intellectual and creative engagement. Christopher Newport University is committed to ensuring that all people are welcomed, honored and fully engaged in the life of our academic community. We recruit exceptional and diverse faculty and encourage applications from individuals who are underrepresented in their profession. Faculty are productive scholars and researchers, supported by professional development funds. Faculty and administrators regularly consult and collaborate as the University works to sustain a culture of scholarly inquiry, informed debate, and civic action that enriches students, faculty, and the surrounding community. The result is a supportive and cohesive academic setting in which the University cultivates and carries forward its mission. Competitive salary with excellent health and retirement benefits and a well-designed family leave policy further enhance the CNU workplace. Job Description:

The Department of Sociology and Human Services, Fort Lewis College, Durango, Colorado, invites applicants for an Assistant/Associate Professor in Sociology to begin in the Fall 2018 term. This is a full-time, tenure track position starting mid-August 2018. Duties include teaching 12 credit hours per semester with a possibility for a research release of one course per year, scholarship, and service.

Minimum Qualifications:

A Ph.D. in Sociology is required. All applicants should be prepared to teach both lower-division and upper-division courses in sociology. Candidates should be broadly trained with a specific ability to teach courses in critical criminology, international migration, and social inequality. Additionally, candidates should demonstrate ability to teach courses in the areas of ethnography, race/ethnicity, and Latin American studies. Experience in study abroad programs and bilingual teaching preferred.

About the Department:

The department houses three majors: Sociology and Human Services, Border and Languages, and Criminology and Justice Studies. The curriculum emphasizes a strong commitment to teaching and progressive social change, with the majority of our courses examining the relationship between the theoretical and experiential aspects of social borders. Because of the department's strong commitment to action and theory, students are required to engage in a community internship program with academic research component. The department has a diverse offering of courses highlighting: sociology of education; deviance; global social and economic justice; criminology and justice; border issues; comparative Latino and Native American issues; race and ethnicity; gender and sexuality; medical sociology; theory; environmental sociology; and sociolinguistics.

Application Procedure:

Applicants should send 1) a letter of application; 2) curriculum vitae; 3) a statement of teaching philosophy; and 4) contact information for 3 professional references.

Application materials should be emailed (with applicant's name as file name) to Dr. Keri Brandt, chair of the Search Committee: brandt_k@fortlewis.edu. Applications received by May 25, 2018 will receive full consideration. The position will be open until filled. Please direct all questions and inquiries about the position to Dr. Keri Brandt. Official transcripts required of semi-finalists.

Employer Description:

About Fort Lewis College and Durango

Fort Lewis College is Colorado's public liberal arts college, offering baccalaureate degree programs in the arts, humanities, social sciences and natural sciences as well as professional programs in applied sciences, teacher education, and business administration. The college has a diverse student body with an enrollment of about 3,000 of which 36% are Native American, and 8% Hispano.

The campus is located on a mesa top at the foothills of the San Juan Mountains as it converges with the desert Southwest. The College contributes directly to the cultural and economic vitality of the area. Durango is the hub of Southwestern Colorado, situated in a beautiful mountain valley with nearby peaks reaching 14,000+ feet. A mild four-season climate allows numerous opportunities for skiing, fishing, biking, golfing, etc. With an area population of 45,000, Durango is cosmopolitan for its size and is served by major airlines with direct connections to Denver, Phoenix, and Dallas. It is 3.5 hours driving distance from Albuquerque, N.M.

Fort Lewis College does not discriminate on the basis of race, age, color, religion, national origin, gender, disability, sexual orientation, political beliefs, or veteran status. Accordingly, equal opportunity for employment, admission, and education shall be extended to all persons. The College shall promote equal opportunity, equal treatment, and affirmative action efforts to increase the diversity of students, faculty, and staff. People from under-represented groups are encouraged to apply.

Job Description:

St. Louis College of Pharmacy

St. Louis College of Pharmacy invites applications for a full-time position in psychology or sociology at the Assistant/Associate Professor rank starting Fall 2018 or later. This is a tenure track, academic year position. Have you considered lending your teaching and research talents to a unique, independent pharmacy school with a long history of tightly integrating liberal arts and the sciences into its pharmacy curriculum?

Founded in 1864, we are one of the oldest and largest colleges of pharmacy in the nation with one of the most academically gifted student bodies in the Midwest. The College is an inclusive, supportive and enriching environment for growth, learning and leadership that prepares our students to positively impact patients and society. We are focusing on being globally prominent in pharmacy and health care education and collaborative research. We provide an exceptional work environment, great benefits, amazing facilities in the center of a premier medical campus, and are recognized as a "Great College to Work For".

*You will have an opportunity to teach introduction to psychology or sociology, research methods, health psychology. There are opportunities to create elective courses appropriate for health-related bachelor programs and contribute toward the development of new degrees.

*You will contribute research in psychology or sociology and/or the scholarship of teaching and learning in healthcare psychology. We provide modest start-up funds. Preference will be given for candidates with proven experience and success mentoring undergraduate students in research.

*You will provide service to the College through academic advising of students, advising of undergraduate student organizations, participating in professional organizations, and serving on Departmental, School of Arts & Sciences, and College-wide committees.

To succeed in this role you will need:

*A Ph.D. in Psychology or Sociology with a specialty in health psychology or medical sociology.

*Experience teaching (which can include graduate teaching assistantships) a variety of psychology or sociology courses or at the undergraduate level including courses in psychology, sociology, research methods, health psychology, medical sociology or other topics.

*Promise of assuming an active and sustained research agenda in teaching and learning, and/or the candidate's area of specialty.

*Experience with interdisciplinary or collaborative research and an existing record of published scholarship in psychology or sociology or other related discipline.

*Demonstrated support for diversity and inclusion; the ability to incorporate diversity, cultural competency or social justice into teaching, research or service is desired. Willingness to teach in an ability-based education model using active, student-centered learning is desired.

*Participation in professional and scholarly societies and develop working relationships with public and private funding agencies. Keep an active research and scholarly agenda striving toward a national and international reputation.

*Strong interpersonal skills coupled with outstanding communication skills and the ability to work harmoniously with a team committed to excellence.

*Willingness to support and participate in programmatic assessment.
