Job Description:

Rice University. The Department of Sociology at Rice University (Houston, Texas), invites applications for a tenured position at the Associate or Full Professor level to begin July 2024. We are conducting an open-area search, seeking applicants who broadly overlap with existing departmental strengths in inequality and culture. We encourage applicants to visit the department’s website (http://sociology.rice.edu/) to learn more about our scholarship and remarkable commitment to diversity, equity, inclusion, and anti-racism at all levels. Rice University is a private, comprehensive research university located in the heart of the dynamic Museum District in Houston, Texas, the most diverse city in the country.

The candidate selected will be expected to teach undergraduate and graduate courses, perform research in their specialized area and contribute to departmental and university service. Therefore, applicants should demonstrate excellence in scholarship, teaching, and service. Rice is a Research I private institution with PhD and postdoctoral fellowship programs, competitive salaries, and outstanding undergraduate and graduate students. To apply, please submit the following materials electronically using the link provided below: (1) letter of application, (2) research statement, (3) teaching statement, (4) curriculum vitae, (5) two recent samples of published work, and (6) a statement on contributions to diversity, equity, inclusion, and anti-racism. Successful candidates must have a PhD in Sociology or a related field. Semi-finalists will be asked to arrange for letters of reference to be submitted electronically later in the search process. We will begin reviewing applications on October 13th.

If you have any questions, please direct them to SociJobSearch@rice.edu. Please include SOCI Hire in the subject line of the email message. Rice University is an Equal Opportunity Employer with commitment to diversity at all levels, and considers for employment qualified applicants without regard to race, color, religion, age, sexual orientation, gender identity, national or ethnic origin, genetic information, disability or protected veteran status. Job 19301: Lecturer I - Environmental Sociology

Date Position is Available: Fall 2024

Application Deadline:

Listing Active: 8/1/2023 to 8/31/2023

Institution: University of Michigan-Ann Arbor
Department: Department of Sociology
Region: Midwest
Title: Lecturer I - Environmental Sociology
Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Lecturer
Tenure/Tenure Track: Not Tenure Track

Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Environmental Sociology
Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:

LEO Lecturer I – Environmental Sociology

How to Apply

A cover letter is required for consideration for this position and should be attached as the first page of your CV. The cover letter should address your specific interest in the position and outline skills and experience that directly relate to this position. We also require a diversity statement (maximum one page) that includes a discussion of demonstrated or planned activities regarding diversity, equity, and inclusion in teaching and mentoring. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled.

Job Summary

The Department of Sociology at the University of Michigan is one of the premier sociology departments in the world. The goals of the undergraduate program are to instruct students about the value of recognizing and understanding the influence of social environments on individual outcomes and behaviors, to help them acquire different ways of thinking about the social world, and to provide theoretical and empirical frameworks for understanding social institutions and processes of social change. A major hallmark of the department’s curriculum is the opportunities we provide our students to connect their classroom work to practical experience.

The Sociology Department is searching for a full-time lecturer to teach courses on topics related to the Sociology of the Environment. In particular, we are looking for classes in any of the following areas: Environmental Racism and Environmental Justice, Cities and the Environment, Social Movements and the Environment, Health and the Environment, the Environment and Society, Inequality, Politics, and the Environment, the Sociology of the Climate Crisis, among others. Such courses will also contribute to our Sociology of Heath & Medicine and Law, Justice, Social Change curriculum. The lecturer should also be prepared to contribute to our introductory curriculum by regularly teaching Introduction to Sociology (a large lecture class of ~300 students).

The lecturer will teach three courses in both the Fall 2024 and Winter 2025 semesters. This position is renewable indefinitely, contingent on performance and funding. After eight semesters of appointment and a successful major review, Lecturer Is move to a Lecturer II title, receiving a significant salary boost and a multi-year contract with presumption of reappointment.

Criteria for renewal are continued curricular need, quality of classroom teaching, participation in curriculum development and program activities with classroom teaching receiving the greatest weight. Summer teaching assignments are occasionally available and come with additional compensation.

Responsibilities

The position will teach three courses in Fall 2024 and three courses in Winter 2025, developed in consultation with the Associate Chair and the Director of Undergraduate Studies.

In addition to teaching responsibilities, the instructor will oversee any course Graduate Student Instructor(s), if applicable; hold office hours for students; do course planning and grading; and provide appropriate syllabus and course materials electronically.

The lecturer will also work with the staff in the Undergraduate Office to plan one extracurricular event each semester geared towards our undergraduate students majoring in Sociology with a subplan in Law, Justice, and Social Change. This may involve bringing guest speakers to come to campus (who might also speak in classes, if appropriate), alumni panels, discussions about applying to graduate degree programs, etc.

Required Qualifications

- Ph.D. in Sociology or a related field
- Experience teaching courses in Environmental Sociology
- The successful candidate must have cutting edge and contemporary knowledge and experience in teaching in the field.

Background Screening

The University of Michigan conducts background checks on all job candidates upon acceptance of a contingent offer and may use a third party administrator to conduct background checks. Background checks will be performed in compliance with the Fair Credit Reporting Act.

Union Affiliation

This position is covered under the collective bargaining agreement between the U-M and the Lecturers Employee Organization, AFL-CIO, which contains and settles all matters with respect to wages, benefits, hours and other terms and conditions of employment.

Mission Statement

The mission of the University of Michigan is to serve the people of Michigan and the world through preeminence in creating, communicating, preserving and applying knowledge, art, and academic values, and in developing leaders and citizens who will challenge the present and enrich the future. The University of Michigan is committed to foster learning, creativity and productivity, and to support the vigorous exchange of ideas and information, not only in the classroom but in the workplace by:

- Creating a work environment in which people treat each other with respect and dignity, regardless of roles, responsibilities or differences.
- Providing support, direction and resources enabling us to accomplish the responsibilities of our jobs and to reach the goals that are set for professional and personal growth.

Selection Process

Review of candidates will continue until the position is filled. Only complete application packets will be reviewed. The hiring decision will be announced within fourteen (14) days after opening has been filled.

Job Description:

The Environmental Studies Program at Washington and Lee University invites applications for a tenure stream faculty position at the Assistant or Associate Professor level. We seek an interdisciplinary teacher-scholar who will build upon our existing strengths, contribute to program leadership, and inspire students to action for environmental progress. Applicants from a broad range of academic areas are encouraged to apply, particularly candidates whose work addresses applied environmental problem-solving. Example areas of specialty include (but are not limited to) policy development, stakeholder engagement, environmental innovation, sustainable development, engaged citizenship, community action, renewable energy, sustainable food systems, or resource valuation. Candidates should highlight how they would utilize the university’s regional setting and/or travel abroad course opportunities to support place-based and experiential learning. The ideal candidate will be a collaborative, dynamic, student-focused teacher-scholar committed to high-quality undergraduate education, mentorship, and scholarship.

To achieve our mission as a liberal arts college, the Environmental Studies Program strives to foster an inclusive campus and to advance diverse perspectives within the program and its curriculum. We are committed to preparing our students for engaged environmental citizenship by creating an educational community that is rich with cultural, social, and intellectual diversity. In keeping with the University Strategic Plan, we welcome applications from underrepresented minority candidates and members of other communities that are traditionally underrepresented in academia.

Washington and Lee is a top-ranked, private institution in Lexington, Virginia where we integrate the rigorous inquiry and critical thinking of a liberal arts curriculum with nationally accredited undergraduate programs in business and journalism, and a graduate School of Law. Our graduates, mentored by a faculty of teacher-scholars, are ready to make a meaningful impact wherever they go in the world. Our historic campus, situated in the beautiful Shenandoah Valley, is home to a vibrant, welcoming community.

We respectfully acknowledge that Washington and Lee University exists on the homelands of the Yesa and their descendants, among them the Monacan people.

Qualifications

A PhD is required by the time of appointment with relevant graduate coursework, and teaching experience is highly desirable.
Application Instructions

Review of applications will begin 30 September 2023 and continue until the position is filled. Candidates should submit:

- a C.V.
- a letter of application summarizing current and future scholarship, teaching interests and experience, and demonstrating the ability to work with a diverse student population
- names and contact information for three references (confidential letters of reference will be requested for semifinalists later in the search process)

All materials should be submitted via Interfolio at http://apply.interfolio.com/128531.

Job Description:

The Strategy & Innovation Department at the Boston University Questrom School of Business invites applications for a tenure track Assistant Professor in Strategy & Innovation, with an emphasis on Corporate Strategy or Governance. Pending Provost budgetary approval, this position will begin July 1, 2024 for the Fall semester at Boston University.

The S&I Department places particular emphasis on the study of innovation and strategy in different kinds of organizations and the role of technological change in creating new industries and shaping existing ones. Prospective candidates must demonstrate the ability to produce original and innovative scholarly work of the highest possible quality and impact; a PhD degree in business, management, or other closely-related areas from a research university is required.

We believe that the cultural and social diversity of our faculty, staff, and students is vitally important to the distinction and excellence of our research and academic programs. BU has redoubled its commitment to more fully embody its founding principles, and we welcome new colleagues who have interest in joining us in this project. To that end, we are especially eager to have join our ranks a colleague who supports our institutional commitment to ensuring that BU is an inclusive, equitable, and diverse institution.

Special consideration will be given to applicants whose research focuses on areas of strategic emphasis for the Questrom School of Business (such as health and life sciences, digital technologies, and sustainability and social impact), and who can contribute to building the department’s capabilities in strategic management, entrepreneurship, sustainability, and global business.
Interested applicants should send (a) a current curriculum vitae, (b) at least one recent scholarly article and/or job market paper, and (c) three letters of recommendation by October 1, 2023 directly to strategy@bu.edu.

We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Assistant/Associate Professor, Academic Positions: Associate Professor, Academic Positions: Assistant Professor

Tenure/Tenure Track: Tenure Track

Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Open to All Specialty Areas

Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:

The Department of Sociology, Anthropology, and Public Health (SAPH) at the University of Maryland, Baltimore County (UMBC) invites applications for a full-time (9-month), tenure-track faculty position at the advanced Assistant or Associate Professor level. Applicants must have a PhD in Sociology or related field by the time of application and should demonstrate a track record of independent research with the potential for external funding. Additionally, applicants should demonstrate experience teaching students at the undergraduate and/or graduate levels. The area of specialization is open. Preference will be given to applicants whose research and teaching specializations complement departmental areas and that engage with social inequality and social scientific methods. The position will have a standard teaching load of 4 sociology courses per year. Preference will be given to applicants who will contribute to the core curricula in the undergraduate program in sociology and master’s program in applied sociology. In addition to the core, this position will contribute undergraduate and graduate elective courses, with the potential for new preparations in the applicant’s area of expertise. Finally, preference will be given to applicants who demonstrate an active commitment to the inclusion of underserved, underrepresented, and/or marginalized populations in their research, teaching, mentoring, and/or service.

Applicants should include (1) a 2-3 page letter of interest that summarizes the applicant’s research portfolio and experience teaching and mentoring students; (2) a current CV; (3) a statement detailing how the applicant has actively contributed to diversity, equity, inclusion, and/or accessibility, and how they will further these objectives at UMBC and/or in the profession; (4) two samples of published or unpublished research (first-authored preferred); and (5) the names and contact information for three references. Please submit all application materials via Interfolio (http://apply.interfolio.com/125317). The review of applications begins on October 1, 2023. All application materials should be submitted by this date for best consideration. For questions, please contact the hiring committee chair, Dr. Aubrey Jackson Soller at aubrey@umbc.edu or the department manager, Ms. Cathy McDonnell at cat@umbc.edu.

Employer Description:

The SAPH Department is dynamic, diverse, and interdisciplinary with strengths in health and aging; gender, inequality, and diversity; and applied social science research methods. It includes three undergraduate programs (Sociology, Anthropology, and Public Health); a master’s program in Applied Sociology; and a departmental research Center for Health, Equity, and Aging (CHEA). The Department also contributes to multiple other undergraduate, masters, and doctoral programs based on faculty interest and expertise. These include programs in Public Policy; Gerontology; Language, Literacy, and Culture; Gender, Women’s, and Sexuality Studies; and Community Leadership. Numerous opportunities also exist for collaborations with faculty from these and other departments across campus, including affiliate faculty appointments. Our faculty, Department, and UMBC are strongly committed to diversity, equity, and inclusion as seen in several initiatives including our Eminent Scholar Mentoring Program for new faculty, community-based faculty groups, faculty advancement workshops, family support plans, dual career resources, and postdoctoral fellowships. UMBC also promotes faculty success through various internal research and teaching awards including potential summer research funding, additional course releases, and department mentoring, as well as through internal grants for preliminary research studies and curriculum development. The Department is aided by UMBC’s Center for Social Science Scholarship (CS3), which provides research and grant support, hosts training, promotes campus and community events, and helps connect faculty to policy makers. Additionally, the UMBC Faculty Development Center (FDC) provides professional guidance and workshops for teaching.

UMBC is classified by the Carnegie Foundation as a Very High Research Activity University (R1). UMBC is located in the dynamic Baltimore-Washington, DC corridor with direct access to Interstate 95, public transit access to Washington, DC and Baltimore, and is in close proximity to the Baltimore-Washington International (BWI) airport. UMBC is a Minority Serving Institution, is proud of the national and international diversity of its student body of 14,000 students (approximately 46% minority race/ethnicity), and is strongly committed to attracting an equally diverse applicant pool for this position. Historically underrepresented, excluded, or marginalized groups (e.g., racial/ethnic/sexual minorities), women, veterans, and individuals with disabilities are encouraged to apply. UMBC is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. As an institution that receives federal financial assistance, UMBC adheres to Title IX and does not discriminate on the basis of sex. Information about Title IX and contact information for the Title IX Coordinator is available at: https://oei.umbc.edu/. Salary and benefits are competitive.

Job Description:

The Munk School of Global Affairs & Public Policy in the Faculty of Arts & Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time tenure stream position in the area of Global India. The appointment will be at the rank of Associate Professor or Professor, with an expected start date of July 1, 2024, or shortly thereafter. The successful candidate may be appointed as the endowed Munk Chair in Global India for a five-year term.

Applicants must have earned a Ph.D. in any social sciences or humanities field and have demonstrated expertise relating to Global India, with a clearly demonstrated exceptional record of excellence in research and teaching. The Munk School seeks a scholar whose research and teaching interests complement and enhance one or more of our existing strengths, which include the Future of Democratic Societies, the Changing World Order, the Political Economy of Innovation, and the Digital World. Candidates will have an established international reputation and will be expected to sustain and lead innovative and independent research at the highest international level and to maintain an outstanding, competitive, externally funded research program. The Committee especially welcomes candidates whose work focuses on the global role of India and South Asia within the political economy of innovation, and the role of democratic societies, justice, and foreign relations.

Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by a record of sustained high-impact contributions and publications in top-ranked disciplinary and/or field-relevant academic journals or academic presses, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, distinguished awards and accolades, other noteworthy activities that contribute to the visibility and prominence of the field, as well as strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be demonstrated through teaching accomplishments, through the teaching dossier submitted as part of the application including a teaching statement, sample course materials, teaching evaluations, and through endorsements of teaching in the letters of reference.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.
The successful candidate will teach undergraduate and graduate courses, including in the Munk School’s professional graduate programs (the Master of Global Affairs and the Master of Public Policy) to students from a wide range of academic backgrounds and interests and may also expand teaching capacity in the Asian Institute. The successful candidate will have experience or demonstrable interest in a professional school and/or in an interdisciplinary environment.

Salary and rank will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

For more information about the Munk School of Global Affairs & Public Policy at the University of Toronto St. George campus, please visit our home page at https://munkschool.utoronto.ca/.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; curriculum vitae; writing sample; teaching dossier (including a teaching statement and sample course materials and teaching evaluations); and a research statement outlining current and future research interests. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover topics such as (but not limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto’s recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each after an application is submitted (this happens overnight). Applicants remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date. More details on the automatic reference letter collection, including timelines, are available in the candidate FAQ.

Submission guidelines can be found at http://uoft.me/how-to-apply. Your CV and cover letter should be uploaded into the dedicated fields. Please combine additional application materials into one or two files in the PDF/MS Word format. If you have any questions about this position, please contact munkschool.academic@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by September 11, 2023.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Diversity Statement

The University of Toronto embraces Diversity and is building a culture of belonging that increases our capacity to effectively address and serve the interests of our global community. We strongly encourage applications from Indigenous Peoples, Black and racialized persons, women, persons with disabilities, and people of diverse sexual and gender identities. We value applicants who have demonstrated a commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion and recognize that diverse perspectives, experiences, and expertise are essential to strengthening our academic mission.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see http://uoft.me/UP.

Accessibility Statement

The University strives to be an equitable and inclusive community, and proactively seeks to increase diversity among its community members. Our values regarding equity and diversity are linked with our unwavering commitment to excellence in the pursuit of our academic mission. The University is committed to the principles of the Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act (AODA). As such, we strive to make our recruitment, assessment and selection processes as accessible as possible and provide accommodations as required for applicants with disabilities. If you require any accommodations at any point during the application and hiring process, please contact uoft.careers@utoronto.ca.

Employer Description:

The University of Utah, a Research-1 institution and member of the Association of American Universities, is the flagship of the Utah System of Higher Education. It enrolls approximately 25,000 undergraduate and 8,000 graduate students. The Sociology department awards the BA/BS in Sociology, BA/BS in Criminology, Master of Statistics, and PhD degrees. Academic Analytics recently ranked the department first among 207 U.S. sociology departments in the number of articles published per faculty member. The University of Utah is located in Salt Lake City, a metropolitan area of 1.3 million people that offers unparalleled opportunities for outdoor recreation, with world-class hiking and multiple ski resorts within minutes from campus and eight national parks within hours of the city. Salt Lake City is home to a major international airport with direct flights to major U.S. cities and international locations such as Amsterdam, London, Mexico City, and Paris. In 2022, the Human Rights Campaign scored Salt Lake City a perfect 100 on its Municipal Equality Index (www.hrc.org/resources/mei-2022-see-your-cities-scores).

EEO/Non-Discrimination Information

The University of Utah and Department of Sociology value candidates who have experience working in settings with students, staff, faculty and patients from diverse backgrounds and possess a strong commitment to improving access to higher education, employment opportunities, and quality healthcare for historically underrepresented groups. We strive to recruit faculty who will enhance our diversity and uphold our commitment to fostering equity, diversity, and inclusion. We recognize that a diverse faculty benefits and enriches the educational experiences of the entire campus and community.

Individuals from historically underrepresented groups, such as persons of color, women, and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply. Veterans’ preference is extended to qualified applicants, upon request and consistent with University policy and Utah state law. Upon request, reasonable accommodations in the application process will be provided to individuals with disabilities.

The University of Utah is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer and educator: University policies prohibit discrimination on the basis of race, national origin, color, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, religion, age, status as a person with a disability, or veteran status. To inquire further about the University's nondiscrimination and affirmative action policies, or to request an accommodation in the application process, contact the University's Office of Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action, and Title IX at (801) 581-8365 or oeo@utah.edu.

Job 19311: Assistant Professor of Sociology - Housing/Homelessness

Date Position is Available: Fall 2024

Application Deadline:

Listing Active: 7/31/2023 to 8/30/2023

Institution: University of Washington
Department: Department of Sociology

Region: Northwest

Title: Assistant Professor of Sociology - Housing/Homelessness

Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Assistant Professor

Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:

The Department of Sociology at the University of Washington invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor specializing in the study of housing and/or homelessness. Positive factors for consideration include, but are not limited to: a promising record of scholarly accomplishment; research interests that complement other areas of departmental and university strength; promise of effective undergraduate teaching and graduate training; and potential for engagement with professional, university, and community life. All University of Washington faculty engage in teaching, research, and service.

The Department of Sociology is located on the Seattle campus of the University of Washington. We are a collaborative and generous scholarly community with an outstanding track record of mentoring junior scholars and a strong commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. Both our undergraduate and graduate student bodies include many first-generation students, immigrants, and people of color. Members of the department are involved in numerous successful cross-department and interdisciplinary initiatives and research activities, and we have durable ties to the Department of Law, Societies and Justice, the West Coast Poverty Center, UW’s NIH-funded center for population studies (CSDE), the Center for Statistics and the Social Sciences, the eScience Institute, UW’s Population Health Initiative, the College of the Environment, the Department of Real Estate, the Jackson School of International Studies, the QUAL Initiative, the Department of Statistics, and the Schools of Nursing, Medicine, and Public Health.

Washington State Law requires that this ad list a binding salary range. The base salary range for this position will be $9650 - $13500 per month on a 9-month basis ($86,850 - $121,500 annually), commensurate with experience and qualifications, or as mandated by a U.S. Department of Labor prevailing wage determination.

The position will begin on September 16, 2024, and is full time with a 9-month service period.
Qualifications
Applicants must have a Ph.D., or foreign equivalent, in sociology or closely related field by the start of the appointment.

Application Instructions
Both the University of Washington and the Department of Sociology are committed to creating a community that embraces and benefits from the diversity of its faculty, staff and students. Successful applicants should be able to thrive in and contribute to this environment. Therefore, application materials must include a separate statement that describes how you will contribute to creating an inclusive, equitable and diverse department.

Complete applications will include: 1) curriculum vita; 2) cover letter; 3) a description of research experience and plans; 4) a statement of teaching, including a description of teaching approach and evidence of teaching effectiveness; 5) a statement of contributions to diversity, equity, and inclusion; and 6) at least two samples of recent scholarly work. Candidates selected during the initial round of review will be contacted to provide a list of three professional references.

Job 19312: Assistant Professor of Sociology - Environmental Inequality/Climate Change

Date Position is Available: Fall 2024

Application Deadline:

Listing Active: 7/31/2023 to 10/29/2023

Institution: University of Washington

Department: Department of Sociology

Region: Northwest

Title: Assistant Professor of Sociology - Environmental Inequality/Climate Change

Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Assistant Professor

Tenure/Tenure Track: Tenure Track

Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Environmental Sociology, Other Program/Area

Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:

The Department of Sociology at the University of Washington invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor specializing in the study of environmental inequality and/or climate change. Positive factors for consideration include, but are not limited to: a promising record of scholarly accomplishment; research interests that complement other areas of departmental and university strength; promise of effective undergraduate teaching and graduate training; and potential for engagement with professional, university, and community life. All University of Washington faculty engage in teaching, research, and service.

The Department of Sociology is located on the Seattle campus of the University of Washington. We are a collaborative and generous scholarly community with an outstanding track record of mentoring junior scholars and a strong commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. Both our undergraduate and graduate student bodies include many first-generation students, immigrants, and people of color. Members of the department are involved in numerous successful cross-department and interdisciplinary initiatives and research activities, and we have durable ties to the Department of Law, Societies and Justice, the West Coast Poverty Center, UW’s NIH-funded center for population studies (CSDE), the Center for Statistics and the Social Sciences, the eScience Institute, UW’s Population Health Initiative, the College of the Environment, the Department of Real Estate, the Jackson School of International Studies, the QUAL Initiative, the Department of Statistics, and the Schools of Nursing, Medicine, and Public Health.

Washington State Law requires that this ad list a binding salary range. The base salary range for this position will be $9650 - $13500 per month on a 9-month basis ($86,850 - $121,500 annually), commensurate with experience and qualifications, or as mandated by a U.S. Department of Labor prevailing wage determination.

The position will begin on September 16, 2024, and is full time with a 9-month service period.
Qualifications
Applicants must have a Ph.D., or foreign equivalent, in sociology or closely related field by the start of the appointment.

Application Instructions
Both the University of Washington and the Department of Sociology are committed to creating a community that embraces and benefits from the diversity of its faculty, staff and students. Successful applicants should be able to thrive in and contribute to this environment. Therefore, application materials must include a separate statement that describes how you will contribute to creating an inclusive, equitable and diverse department.

Complete applications will include: 1) curriculum vita; 2) cover letter; 3) a description of research experience and plans; 4) a statement of teaching, including a description of teaching approach and evidence of teaching effectiveness; 5) a statement of contributions to diversity, equity, and inclusion; and 6) at least two samples of recent scholarly work. Candidates selected during the initial round of review will be contacted to provide a list of three professional references. All application material should be submitted to http://apply.interfolio.com/128619. Review of applications will begin on October 16, 2023. However, the position will remain open, and applications may be considered, until the position is filled.

Questions about the search should be sent to: Fatema Mookhtar, Administrator, Department of Sociology, fatemakm@uw.edu.

Job 19297: BRIDGS Postdoctoral Research Scholar

Date Position is Available: Fall 2024

Application Deadline:

Listing Active: 7/28/2023 to 8/27/2023

Institution: Arizona State University-Tempe
Department: School of Social and Family Dynamics
Region: All US Regions
Title: BRIDGS Postdoctoral Research Scholar
Position/Rank: Fellowships/Post-docs: Post-doctoral
Tenure/Tenure Track: Not Tenure Track

Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Education, Law and Society
Salary Range: $60,000 - $69,999

Job Description:

T. Denny Sanford School of Social and Family Dynamics (SSFD) at Arizona State University (ASU) invites applications for a postdoctoral research scholar with interest in guns in society, broadly defined. The successful candidate will work with Prof. Jennifer Carlson in the BRIDGS Center: Bringing Research & Innovation into the Debate on Guns in Society. The anticipated start date is September 1, 2024, with potential flexibility. This is a 12-month, benefits-eligible position that is renewable for up to five years upon successful demonstration of academic productivity. The salary is commensurate with experience.

Applications are encouraged from individuals who are interested in a position combining grant development, independent and collaborative research, data infrastructure management, programming/event coordination, and public outreach. The postdoc should bring (1) research experience related to guns in society; (2) demonstrated methodological training; (3) strong conceptualization and writing skills; (4) stellar organizational skills; and (5) an interest in building a collaborative environment centered on gun studies.

Research experience on guns may include (but is not limited to) the culture and politics of armed self-defense; gun violence and gun trauma; guns, identity, and inequality; gun markets, the gun industry, and gun trade; social movement mobilization surrounding gun rights and/or gun control; comparative/transnational approaches to guns in society; the intersection of guns, conservation, and environmental justice; and related topics grounded in social science approaches. Especially welcomed are approaches oriented toward bridging divides within the gun debate, unearthing new opportunities for conversation, and (re)framing the terms of the gun debate in ways that serve the interests of the broader public, especially in Arizona. Note that this is an opportunity to play a pivotal role in developing a center uniquely focused on social science approaches to guns in a state with a dynamic and trend-setting terrain with respect to guns in society.

Essential Duties

- Grant Development
- Data Infrastructure Development
- Data Analysis & Dissemination of Results (Manuscript Preparation/Conference Presentations)
- Community Outreach
Programming/Event Coordination
Other Duties as Assigned

Minimum Qualifications
- Doctorate in sociology, political science, criminology, anthropology, linguistics, economics, communications, psychology, history or related field by the effective date of appointment start date
- Demonstrated background/interests in social science approaches to guns, broadly defined.
- Analytic skills in qualitative or quantitative methods, including familiarity with data analysis software as appropriate.
- Evidence of independent scholarship and team collaboration, strong interpersonal communication skills, and outstanding academic writing skills
- Demonstrated commitment to inclusive excellence and to the ASU Charter.

Desired Qualifications
- Experience with collaborative grant-writing
- Prior first-author publication experience at peer-reviewed journals
- Experience with programming/event coordination
- Experience with outreach (such as with media, policymakers or the interested public)

To Apply
Initial review of applications will begin on September 9, 2023, and continue every week thereafter until the position is filled. Applications will be accepted through Interfolio, at http://apply.interfolio.com/128684. Please submit the following:

1. Current Curriculum Vitae
2. A cover letter including (1) your research interests, (2) previous training and experience in research on relevant substantive topics, (3) competence and experiences in the minimum/desired qualifications
3. Name and contact information of three references
4. Two representative publications

Inquiries can be directed to Dr. Jennifer Carlson at jenniferdawncarlson@asu.edu

Job 19266: Research Scientist

Date Position is Available: Fall 2023

Application Deadline:

Listing Active: 7/28/2023 to 8/27/2023

Institution: CNA
Department: Organizations, Roles and Missions
Region: East
Title: Research Scientist

Position/Rank: Sociological Practice/Applied/Other: Researcher, Open

Tenure/Tenure Track: Not Applicable

Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Organizations, Formal and Complex, Military Sociology

Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:

PRIMARY PURPOSE

The Operational Warfighting division is seeking a Research Scientist. This role will sit on the Organizations, Roles and Missions team and will provide specific technical/scientific expertise to projects. Our ideal candidate will be familiar with military structure and working in a military organization. He/She will be experienced in qualitative and quantitative research methods, organizational design theory, executing assessments and evaluations (ideally in organization design and structures) and have working knowledge of data visualization techniques.

The Organizations, Roles, and Missions team helps military organizations transform their structures and processes for greater effectiveness. Operating within a federally funded research and development center allows us to blend the tactics of management consulting with a deep understanding of the mission and access to performance data. We employ innovative methods like design thinking, wargaming and network analysis to meet the unique needs of military organizations.

CNA fosters an inclusive culture that values diverse backgrounds and perspectives. Our flexible and engaging work environment encourages iterative and creative collaboration at every stage of the problem-solving process. Our employees are committed to helping clients develop effective solutions to better manage their programs through scientific, data-driven approaches. We are looking for creative and innovative individuals to help carry out our mission.
JOB DESCRIPTION AND/OR DUTIES

1. Routinely produces analysis on structured and unstructured problems that meets CNA’s quality standards with limited direction and general supervision. Demonstrates ability to develop and apply creative and innovative analytic solutions to complex problems with assistance/support from more senior staff. Shows the ability to synthesize analytic results into a broader context. Can lead complex analytic projects with supervision. Begins to make connections and synthesize ideas across multiple, related studies.

2. Develops and maintains deep, specific institutional knowledge and expertise of primary clients/sponsors; their culture, organization, and issues. Uses that knowledge to support training & mentoring of new staff, to support on-going work, and to support development and shaping of new work for existing clients/ sponsors.

3. Balances responsiveness to guidance with independent action. Contributes productively and harmoniously to the work of others; treats everyone respectfully, professionally and fairly. Independently identifies opportunities for collaboration within team, division, and operating unit. Supports supervisor’s initiatives and helps make vision a reality. Recognizes and acknowledges contributions from subordinates.

4. Supports business development efforts and/or marketing activities by interacting with CNA managers and current clients/sponsors on securing follow on work (e.g., small grants, or above core projects), expanding or developing new ideas for future projects, and occasionally working with potential clients/sponsors on developing new project ideas. Occasionally serves as internal reviewer of technical proposals.

5. Interacts regularly and independently with clients/sponsors and related parties. Typical interactions are at the "peer equivalent" level, but some level of interaction at senior level. Can effectively represent CNA as an organization.

6. Influences decisions by sponsors/ clients; provide sponsors/clients with implementable recommendations. Occasionally supports efforts to enhance CNA’s reputation via publishing and outreach activities.

7. Demonstrates strong and effective communications skills, to include ability to summarize and synthesize larger pieces of work into effective executive summaries/executive briefings. Can effectively present work to more senior and larger audiences. Effectively communicates with & engages colleagues at all levels of the organization.

8. Works under limited direction and general supervision from division management. Can lead projects of low to medium size and/or complexity, as well as significant tasks on large or more complex projects. Effectively manages all aspects of assigned projects, to include delivery of high-quality analytic products on-time, and on-budget.

9. Plays a supporting role in the mentoring and training of new staff individually or as a member of a project team. Regularly demonstrates initiative in pursuing improvements in the quality of our projects and analytic products. Participates in corporate initiatives when asked to do so, and makes contributions to initiatives focused on making CNA a better place to work.

10. Performs other duties as assigned.
JOB REQUIREMENTS

1. Education: Minimum Master’s degree in an organization design or management related-field, social sciences, cognitive science, behavioral sciences. PhD preferred. PMP certification a plus. Certification as Organization Design Professional (CODP) a plus.

2. Experience: Typical minimum requirements 5+ years of experience in research and analysis. Experience with design thinking strongly desired

3. Skills:
   - Application of qualitative and quantitative research methods
   - Organizational design theory
   - Assessments and evaluations (ideally in organization design and structures)
   - Working knowledge of data visualization techniques
   - Ability to work on progressively more difficult projects/analyses, including directing portions of large research projects or small to medium projects under general supervision
   - Ability to operate independently and proactively in the execution of assignments
   - Ability to work in a multi-disciplinary environment
   - Strong critical thinking skills
   - Strong planning and organizational skill
   - Excellent interpersonal skills
   - Strong and effective oral and written communication skills
   - Ability to interact directly and effectively with clients and influence their decisions

4. Other: Ability to obtain and maintain a Secret clearance.

5. Remote/Hybrid Work Eligibility: This position is eligible for telecommuting or hybrid work arrangements at the discretion of the Supervisor. Employees may be required to work at CNA headquarters or other work locations resulting in changes to the scheduled telecommuting or hybrid work arrangements.

Employer Description:

CNA is a nonprofit research and analysis organization dedicated to the safety and security of the nation. It operates the Center for Naval Analyses — the only Federally Funded Research and Development Center (FFRDC) serving the Department of the Navy — as well as the Institute for Public Research.

CNA is dedicated to developing actionable solutions to complex problems of national importance. With nearly 700 scientists, analysts and professional staff, CNA takes a real-world approach to gathering data. Its one-of-a-kind field program places analysts on carriers and military bases, in squad rooms and crisis centers, working side-by-side with operators and decision-makers around the world.

CNA supports naval operations, fleet readiness and great power competition. Its non-defense research portfolio includes criminal justice, homeland security and data management.

Job Description:

Director of Africana Studies and Associate (or higher) Professor of Sociology, Anthropology and Criminal Justice
Department of Sociology, Anthropology, and Criminal Justice
Rutgers University- Camden, New Jersey

The Department of Sociology, Anthropology, and Criminal Justice at Rutgers University – Camden invites applications for an Associate professor (or higher) of Sociology, Anthropology or Criminal Justice, beginning Spring 2024. A Ph.D. in anthropology, sociology or a closely related field at the time of appointment is required. The position carries a 1-1 teaching load along with Directorship of the Africana Studies program (https://africanastudies.camden.rutgers.edu/). We seek an Africanist with a strong publication record that may focus on any aspect of the African continent, an active research agenda with the potential to secure external funding, and a commitment to effective teaching. The department seeks faculty with experience or interest in developing courses with civic engagement and experiential learning components.

The direction of Africana Studies involves stewardship of the program’s major and minor. Primary responsibilities include recruiting and mentoring Africana students, managing curricular offerings, coordinating programming, allocating budgetary resources, and collaborating with other units in order to enrich the intellectual and cultural life of the campus. The program is especially interested in a candidate with previous administrative experience or an eagerness to assume administrative duties.

Interested applicants should send a CV, a cover letter describing their research agenda and teaching philosophy, name and contact information for three references and a diversity statement. The diversity statement should specifically address how the applicant has demonstrated commitment to advancing diversity and inclusiveness in scholarship and teaching and how their background and experiences have prepared them to positively impact Rutgers-Camden’s ethnically, culturally, and socioeconomically diverse student community. Applicants should also discuss their activities and/or future goals to promote an inclusive and equitable environment that values diversity. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until a suitable candidate is found.
Questions related to recruitment of this position can be directed to Dr. Laura Napolitano, Chair of the Department of Sociology, Anthropology and Criminal Justice, via email at laura.napolitano@rutgers.edu. For information about the department and its programs, see http://sociology.camden.rutgers.edu/.

It is university policy to provide equal employment opportunity to all its employees and applicants for employment regardless of their race, creed, color, national origin, age, ancestry, nationality, marital or domestic partnership or civil union status, sex, pregnancy, gender identity or expression, disability status, liability for military service, protected veteran status, affectional or sexual orientation, atypical cellular or blood trait, genetic information (including the refusal to submit to genetic testing), or any other category protected by law. As an institution, we value diversity of background and opinion and prohibit discrimination or harassment on the basis of any legally protected class in the areas of hiring, recruitment, promotion, transfer, demotion, training, compensation, pay, fringe benefits, layoff, termination or any other terms and conditions of employment. Job Description:

The Munk School of Global Affairs & Public Policy in the Faculty of Arts & Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time tenure stream position in the area of International Relations and International Security. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor, with an expected start date of July 1, 2024, or shortly thereafter. Applicants must have earned a PhD degree in any relevant Social Science field by the time of appointment or shortly thereafter, with a clearly demonstrated record of research and teaching excellence in the area of International Relations and International Security. The position is open to a range of disciplines including but not limited to information studies, communications, sociology, political science, area studies, and law. We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and enhance our existing departmental strengths. The Munk School of Global Affairs & Public Policy is home to the Citizen Lab, an interdisciplinary laboratory based at the Munk School focusing on advanced research and development at the intersection of digital media, global security, and human rights. We are particularly interested in applicants whose research integrates with the Citizen Lab’s resources, existing areas of research, and global network.

Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence which can be demonstrated by a record of top-ranked disciplinary and/or field-relevant academic journals or academic presses, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, awards and accolades, other noteworthy activities that contribute to the visibility and prominence of the field, as well as strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent research at the highest international level, and to establish an outstanding research program, competitive, and externally funded research program. The successful candidate will teach undergraduate and graduate courses, including in the Munk School’s professional graduate programs (the Master of Global Affairs and the Master of Public Policy) to students from a wide range of academic backgrounds and interests. The successful candidate will have experience or demonstrable interest in a professional school and/or in an interdisciplinary environment.

Candidates must provide evidence of excellence in teaching which will be provided through teaching accomplishments, through the teaching dossier submitted as part of the application including a teaching statement, sample course materials, teaching evaluations, or other evidence of superior performance in teaching-related activities submitted as part of the application, and through strong endorsements of teaching in the letters of reference. Other teaching-related activities can include performance as a teaching assistant or course instructor, experience leading successful workshops or seminars, student mentorship, or excellent conference presentations or posters.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment demonstrated through the application materials.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

For more information about the Munk School of Global Affairs & Public Policy at the University of Toronto St. George campus, please visit our home page at https://munkschool.utoronto.ca/.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter; curriculum vitae; writing sample; teaching dossier (including a teaching statement and sample course materials and teaching evaluations); and a research statement outlining current and future research interests. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1-2 page statement of contributions to equity and diversity, which might cover topics such as (but not limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto’s recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each after an application is submitted (this happens overnight). Applicants remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date.

Submission guidelines can be found at http://uoft.me/how-to-apply. Your CV and cover letter should be uploaded into the dedicated fields. Please combine additional application materials into one or two files in the PDF/MS Word format. If you have any questions about this position, please contact munkschool.academic@utoronto.ca. More details on the automatic reference letter collection, including timelines, are available in the candidate FAQ.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by September 7, 2023.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Diversity Statement

The University of Toronto embraces Diversity and is building a culture of belonging that increases our capacity to effectively address and serve the interests of our global community. We strongly encourage applications from Indigenous Peoples, Black and racialized persons, women, persons with disabilities, and people of diverse sexual and gender identities. We value applicants who have demonstrated a commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion and recognize that diverse perspectives, experiences, and expertise are essential to strengthening our academic mission.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see http://uoft.me/UP.

Accessibility Statement

The University strives to be an equitable and inclusive community, and proactively seeks to increase diversity among its community members. Our values regarding equity and diversity are linked with our unwavering commitment to excellence in the pursuit of our academic mission. The University is committed to the principles of the Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act (AODA). As such, we strive to make our recruitment, assessment and selection processes as accessible as possible and provide accommodations as required for applicants with disabilities.

If you require any accommodations at any point during the application and hiring process, please contact uoft.careers@utoronto.ca.

Salary Range: Negotiable
Submission Link: https://go.wisc.edu/88pa9f

Job Description:

The Department of Sociology at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, in partnership with the Center for Law, Society, and Justice (CLSJ), invites applications for a tenure-track position at the assistant professor rank specializing in Criminology or Law and Society beginning in August, 2024. The successful candidate will have a tenure home in the Department of Sociology, will teach in Sociology and CLSJ (including a gateway course for CLSJ) and will mentor undergraduate and graduate students, engage in scholarly research, and participate in University and professional service. The successful candidate will be committed to the undergraduate as well as the graduate mission, and will contribute to an inclusive, fair, and equitable environment that fosters engagement and a sense of belonging for faculty, staff, students and members of the broader community.

The successful candidate will have a tenure home in the Department of Sociology, will teach and mentor undergraduate and graduate students, engage in scholarly research, and participate in University and professional service. The successful candidate, as a member of the College of Letters & Science, will proactively contribute to, support, and advance the College’s commitment to diversity among all aspects of their teaching, research, and service.

Successful candidates will have a record of or demonstrate potential for:
- Excellence in scholarly research. Areas of focus may include racial inequity, criminal legal institutions, sociology of law, or similar;
- Excellence in teaching, and a commitment to the undergraduate as well as the graduate mission;
- Experience with fostering or the ability to foster an inclusive and equity-centered teaching, learning, departmental, and research environment where all can thrive.

Employer Description:

The College of Letters & Science is committed to creating an inclusive environment in which all of us - students, staff, and faculty - can thrive. Ours is a community in which we all are welcome. Most importantly, we strive to build a community in which all of us feel a great sense of belonging.

There is no excellence without diversity in all its forms; diverse teams are more creative and successful than homogeneous ones. We are better when we are diverse and when we acknowledge, celebrate and honor our diversity. In acknowledging and honoring our diversity, we also assume a responsibility to support and stand up for each other.

Diversity and inclusion are primary values for the Department of Sociology and the Center for Law Society and Justice, as well as other units on campus and are integral to achieving our strategic goals. We seek a diverse set of faculty candidates with an awareness of and commitment to the principles of diversity and inclusion across all spectrums.

22. University of Zurich

Job 19264: Postdoctoral researcher in social / occupational / organisational mobility using advanced (network) methods

Date Position is Available: Fall 2023
Application Deadline:
Listing Active: 7/28/2023 to 8/27/2023
Institution: University of Zurich
Department: Sociology
Region: Europe
Title: Postdoctoral researcher in social / occupational / organisational mobility using advanced (network) methods
Position/Rank: Fellowships/Post-docs: Post-doctoral, Fellowships/Post-docs: All
Tenure/Tenure Track: Not Applicable
Salary Range: $90,000 - $99,999
Submission Link:

Job Description:

The prospective position holder's main responsibility is to conduct research with a high degree of flexibility. The type of mobility to be studied (inter-generational, occupational change over the life course, or job mobility), the context (country and/or industry), and the aim (understanding individual mobility, understanding contextual variation on mobility, segregation dynamics etc.) will be determined by the motivation and strengths of the position holder. Conducted research should somehow relate to the conceptual / methodological approach underlying the project.

Researchers interested in working on methodological developments in this area are equally encouraged to apply.

The main responsibilities of the position holder are:

- Write and publish research articles in leading journals.
- Engage with the research group, develop, and exchange ideas, in particular supporting PhD students.
- Present at international conferences etc.

Your profile:

- A proactive, collaborative, and creative mindset.
PhD (or close to completion) in a social science such as Sociology, Economics, Network Science, Social Statistics, or related fields. Demonstrated ability or potential to publish research in reputable journals.

Excellent quantitative skills and willingness to develop expertise in specialised statistical methodology. Experience in using statistical software such as R, Python, or Stata and willingness to work in R.

Excellent English language skills, both written and spoken. Speaking German is NOT required for the position.

Your application should contain all of the following five documents:

- A motivation letter including your interests, strengths, and skills (max 2 pages).
- Your CV (including name and contact details of two referees).
- An outline of your research interests (max 2 pages).
- Two writing samples of your best work (published papers, pre-prints, or thesis chapters, to be judged solely on content and not on publications status).

Your most relevant degree certificates and grade transcripts (usually the most recent degree).

Employer Description:

The Department of Sociology at the University of Zurich looks back on more than 50 years of active research and teaching. It is one of the leading empirically oriented institutes in Switzerland and Europe. The basic understanding is based on theory-driven empirical social research with a strong focus on quantitative methods.

The position is part of a 5-year project funded by the Swiss national science foundation. The project is led by Prof. Per Block and focuses on understanding how individuals move between jobs and occupations over the life-course and between generations. The project uses statistical methods inspired by the modelling of social networks to gain new insights into emergent structures in mobility. As such, it combines approaches from social stratification, social mobility research, and network methodology. The conceptual and methodological approach is briefly outlined in this paper: tinyurl.com/5c7mbmaw. The approach will be applied to diverse areas during the project. One example is tinyurl.com/2jbw2e6f.

We offer:

- A stimulating, dynamic and supportive research environment.
- Very competitive salary and excellent working conditions.
- A large degree of leeway for creativity, planning, and development of ideas and projects. A motivated and friendly team atmosphere designed to create great research and facilitate personal development.
- The possibility to work with a certain degree of flexibility (in terms of time and place). High quality of life in Zurich.
- The position is initially limited to three years, with the possibility of extension upon successful funding acquisition.

Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:

Two Tenure-Track Assistant Professor Positions

George Mason University’s Department of Criminology, Law and Society invites applicants for two full-time tenure-track Assistant Professor positions to start in August 2024.

About George Mason University:

George Mason University (“Mason”) is Virginia’s largest public research university and has one of the nation’s most diverse student populations. We are a doctoral research university designated by the Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education as an institution of “highest research activity” (R1). The Criminology, Law and Society Department and Mason are committed to achieving excellence and diversity among their faculty and staff. We encourage candidates to apply who will enrich Mason’s intellectual and culturally inclusive environment. We strongly value being an equal-opportunity employer.

About the Department of Criminology, Law and Society:

The Department of Criminology, Law and Society is a top-ranked, award-winning, multidisciplinary unit that offers degrees at the bachelor’s, master’s, and doctoral levels. We are ranked #10 in doctoral programs in criminology by US News and World Report (#1 in Virginia), and serve around 1,300 undergraduate majors. Our graduate program balances theory, empirical research, and policy applications. Our undergraduate program has concentrations in law and society, criminal justice, and homeland security. The department embraces a wide range of methodological approaches and scholarship that contribute to a fairer, more socially just, and effective criminal legal system. More information on the department, its award-winning faculty, and its research centers and labs is available at https://cls.gmu.edu/
Responsibilities:

- Maintaining an active research agenda;
- Teaching courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels (a 2-2 teaching load is standard);
- Mentoring and supervising graduate student research; and
- Providing service to the department, college and university by participation on faculty committees.

Required Qualifications:

- PhD in a relevant field (or approaching finishing);
- Committed to teaching in a multidisciplinary environment and working with a diverse student population; and
- Successful candidates should also demonstrate promise in scholarly research and are expected to be publishing in peer-reviewed outlets at a rate appropriate for eventual promotion and tenure at a doctoral-level program within our discipline.

Preferred Qualifications:

- Active research agenda in any area(s) of criminology, criminal justice, and law and society. However, special preference will be given to those with a research agenda related to race and ethnicity in crime and justice, gender-based violence, extremism/terrorism, law and psychology, corrections, or critical criminology;
- A record of peer-reviewed journal articles and/or books; and Demonstrated excellence in teaching.

Special Instructions to Applicants

The review of applications will begin on September 15, 2023, and continue until the position is filled. Applicants must apply online at https://jobs.gmu.edu/ for position number F8851z; complete the faculty application; and attach a cover letter, C.V., a list of three professional references with contact information, and up to two representative research articles or manuscripts. Candidates are encouraged to include a diversity statement in their cover letter. In addition, three letters of reference may be requested later in the search process.

Inquiries about the position can be addressed to the Search Committee Chair, Prof. David Wilson (dwilsonb@gmu.edu).

George Mason University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer, committed to promoting inclusion and equity in its community. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, age, disability or veteran status, or any characteristic protected by law.

Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Assistant/Associate Professor
Tenure/Tenure Track: Tenure Track
Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Open to All Specialty Areas
Salary Range: $120,000 - $129,999

Job Description:

Description

The Robert F. Wagner Graduate School of Public Service at New York University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant (or early Associate) faculty position, with appointment to begin September 1, 2024. Applicants should have at least two to three years of post-doctoral research experience; a demonstrated record of publications and research excellence in their field; and a Ph.D. in a relevant domain.

NYU Wagner is a multidisciplinary school that prepares public service leaders to translate ideas into actions that have an effective and lasting impact on the public good. Wagner’s nearly 40 full-time faculty members are trained in a wide variety of disciplines and share a commitment to addressing issues of public importance in their teaching and research. Wagner faculty members collaborate with other schools and departments across the university, including the Departments of Politics, Economics, and Sociology; School of Law; Stern School of Business; Tandon School of Engineering; and the College of Global Public Health.

Successful candidates will teach in any of our Master’s degree programs and will demonstrate a research interest in one or more of the following areas: public policy, public and nonprofit management, health policy and management, financial management and urban planning, both globally and domestically. We seek faculty candidates who have a commitment to, and experience or evidence of the potential for success in teaching a diverse population of students, including first generation students, students from diverse racial and ethnic groups, and international students.

In compliance with NYC’s Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary range for this position is $120,000 - $225,000.

Qualifications
A Ph.D. in a social science discipline, public policy, public and nonprofit management, public affairs, urban planning or a related field, completed prior to 2022.

Application Instructions

Candidates should submit:

- a cover letter,
- curriculum vitae,
- two completed research papers or completed representative sections of a book manuscript, and
- a brief statement describing their approach to teaching and research agenda – with strong encouragement to include how they address issues of equity, diversity, and inclusion in their teaching and/or research.

(Three letters of recommendation will be required at the final stage.)

Full consideration will be given to applications received by September 29, 2023; we will continue to accept applications until the position is filled. Early applications are encouraged.

Employer Description:

NYU’s Robert F. Wagner Graduate School of Public Service prepares public service leaders to translate ideas into actions that have an effective and lasting impact on the public good. Our faculty’s research changes the way people frame, understand, and act on important public issues. We provide our students with critical skills, access to all that New York City has to offer, and a deep understanding of context surrounding public service challenges—which they use to improve cities and communities across the globe.

Since 1938, NYU Wagner has been educating the world’s future public service leaders. We offer a Master of Public Administration in Public & Nonprofit Management & Policy, Master of Public Administration in Health Policy & Management, Master of Urban Planning, Master of Health Administration, Master of Science in Public Policy, Executive Master of Public Administration, and PhD in Public Administration.

Job Description:

The Department of Sociology at Trinity College invites applications for a tenure-track position with employment beginning July 1, 2024. We seek a broadly trained applicant who can analyze a diverse, stratified, and swiftly changing world—particularly in relation to transformations occurring in the realms of social class, urban life, migration, deviance, and/or environmental and climate justice. The successful applicant must possess and demonstrate a strong critical interdisciplinary focus and potential for becoming an exceptional scholar and teacher. The candidate will teach the Department’s required introductory sociology, stratification, and electives in their areas of interest.

Trinity is a nonsectarian liberal arts college located in, and deeply engaged with, Connecticut’s capital city of Hartford. Our 2,200 students come from all socio-economic, racial, religious, and ethnic backgrounds across the US, and 17 percent are international. Candidates should have a strong commitment to undergraduate and interdisciplinary teaching in a liberal arts context, and a well-articulated plan for sustained research.

Candidates must be legally authorized to work in the United States. In particular, applicants who require an H-1B visa cannot be considered, and applicants who require sponsorship for visas other than the H-1B visa will be required to pay all costs associated with visa applications.

Applicants for non-tenure-track, temporary positions who require sponsorship for visas other than an H-1B visa will be required to pay all costs associated with visa applications.

Ph.D. is required by date of appointment. The teaching load is 5 courses per year, but new faculty teach only 4 courses per year for the first two years. In addition, tenure-track faculty receive a pre-tenure semester research leave, and subsequent semester leaves every fourth year.

To ensure full consideration please submit online a letter of interest describing qualifications, CV, sample course syllabi, writing sample, statement of teaching and research, and contact information for three individuals who will provide letters of reference. Please direct any questions to Johnny E. Williams, Chair of the Sociology Department. Consideration of applications will begin October 16, 2023.

Position description

The Department of African American Studies at the University of California, Berkeley seeks a tenure-track Assistant Professor whose work demonstrates prior or potential contributions to the study of the Afterlives of Slavery. The Department of African American Studies is an intellectual community committed to producing, refining and advancing knowledge of Black people in the United States, the Caribbean, Latin America, Europe and Africa. A key component of our mission is to interrogate the meanings and dimensions of slavery and colonialism, and their continuing political, social and cultural implications.

Our faculty is drawn from disciplines as diverse as cultural studies, linguistics, literature, history, sociology, performance, and creative writing. We are united by a relentless commitment to pushing the boundaries of knowledge through excellence in scholarship and pedagogy that are at once interdisciplinary and innovative.

The Afterlives of Slavery has been described as entrenched patterns of unequal distribution of social goods established during the practice of racialized chattel slavery, which now manifest in the pervasive endangerment and devaluation of black people's lives, and stagnant disparities between black and non-black (especially white) populations in health, wealth, and the exercise of political power. Applicants' work should therefore investigate and produce knowledge of how the histories of racialized chattel slavery inform, constitute, or persist in, the present. This may include analyzing cultural representation and practices, epistemologies structuring the knowledge of philosophies, social formations, politics and policies.

We are interested in applicants whose research and teaching articulate a clear methodological approach, whether grounded in a distinct discipline or in interdisciplinary practice. Successful candidates for academic positions in the African American Studies Department and Social Sciences Division of Letters and Science will demonstrate evidence of a commitment to advancing equity, inclusion, and belonging in the realms of research, teaching and service. We seek applicants working in and across fields and disciplines including but not limited to: history, literatures of the African Diaspora, anthropology, geography, performance studies, visual culture studies, black feminist theory, queer cultural studies, and critical media studies. We strongly encourage applications from candidates taking a transnational and/or area studies approach, especially those studying of the Caribbean.

The department is committed to addressing the family needs of faculty, including dual career couples and single parents. We are also interested in candidates who have had non-traditional career paths or who have taken time off for family reasons, or who have achieved excellence in careers outside academia. Qualifications

Basic qualifications (required at time of application)

A PhD or equivalent degree, or enrolled in PhD or equivalent international degree-granting program at the time of application.
Preferred qualifications

Successful applicants are expected to develop a nationally recognized program and collaborate across disciplines to develop research initiatives related to Afterlives of Slavery, African American Studies. Candidates should demonstrate evidence of strong research productivity, potential for securing extramural funding, and a commitment to excellence in teaching and mentoring of undergraduates, graduate students, and post-docs. We are seeking applicants whose primary research and teaching theorizes and explores the afterlives of slavery in the humanities and social sciences. We are particularly interested in scholars with a commitment and track record of promoting diversity, equity and inclusion in the realms of research, teaching and/or service. Applicants with a PhD in Black Studies are also strongly encouraged to apply.

Job Description:

The Department of Sociology in the Faculty of Arts & Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time tenure stream appointment in the area of the sociological study of science and technology. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor, with an expected start date of July 1, 2024.

Candidates must have earned a Ph.D. degree in Sociology or a closely related field by the time of appointment, or shortly thereafter, with a demonstrated record of excellence in sociological research and teaching. We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and enhance our existing departmental strengths. The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent sociological research at the highest international level and to establish an outstanding, competitive, and externally funded research program.

Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence, which can be demonstrated by a record of publications in top-ranked and field-relevant peer-reviewed journals in Sociology and/or academic presses and/or forthcoming publications meeting high international standards in the discipline, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, awards and accolades, and strong endorsements from referees of high standing.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be provided through teaching accomplishments relevant to Sociology, the teaching dossier (with required materials outlined below) submitted as part of the application, as well as strong letters of reference.

Candidates are also expected to show evidence of a commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment through the application materials.

The academic appointment and teaching responsibilities will be at the University’s downtown Toronto (St. George) campus. The University of Toronto offers the opportunity to conduct research, teach, and live in a highly diverse and cosmopolitan city, with exceptional cultural offerings and one of the highest standards of living in the world. The University offers a large number of intellectual resources; the successful candidate will have the opportunity to interact with colleagues at many different research units, including the Schwartz Reisman Institute For Technology and Society.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking on the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter describing current and future research interests; a current curriculum vitae; a recent writing sample; and a teaching dossier.
that includes a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations. We seek candidates who value diversity and whose research, teaching and service bear out our commitment to equity and inclusion. Candidates are therefore also asked to submit a 1 to 2-page statement of contributions to EDI, which might cover topics such as (but not limited to): research or teaching that incorporates a focus on underrepresented communities, the development of inclusive pedagogies, or the mentoring of students from underrepresented groups.

Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto’s recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each after an application is submitted (this happens overnight). Applicants remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date. More details on the automatic reference letter collection, including timelines, are available in the FAQ.

Submission guidelines can be found at http://uoft.me/how-to-apply. Your CV and cover letter should be uploaded into the dedicated fields. If you have any questions about this position, please contact Tina Colomvakos at tina.colomvakos@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including reference letters, must be received by September 18, 2023.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Diversity Statement

The University of Toronto embraces Diversity and is building a culture of belonging that increases our capacity to effectively address and serve the interests of our global community. We strongly encourage applications from Indigenous Peoples, Black and racialized persons, women, persons with disabilities, and people of diverse sexual and gender identities. We value applicants who have demonstrated a commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion and recognize that diverse perspectives, experiences, and expertise are essential to strengthening our academic mission.

As part of your application, you will be asked to complete a brief Diversity Survey. This survey is voluntary. Any information directly related to you is confidential and cannot be accessed by search committees or human resources staff. Results will be aggregated for institutional planning purposes. For more information, please see http://uoft.me/UP.

Accessibility Statement

The University strives to be an equitable and inclusive community, and proactively seeks to increase diversity among its community members. Our values regarding equity and diversity are linked with our unwavering commitment to excellence in the pursuit of our academic mission.

The University is committed to the principles of the Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act (AODA). As such, we strive to make our recruitment, assessment and selection processes as accessible as possible and provide accommodations as required for applicants with disabilities.

If you require any accommodations at any point during the application and hiring process, please contact uoft.careers@utoronto.ca.

McMaster University prides itself on a strong culture of excellence in research, teaching, and community outreach. It is consistently ranked among the top 10% of universities globally, including in the Times Education World Rankings and the Academic Ranking of World Universities (AWRU).

The DeGroote School of Business operates at two campuses, the McMaster University main campus in Hamilton, Ontario and in nearby Burlington, Ontario, housing the MBA and executive programs. The successful incumbent is expected to contribute to the Commmitment to Inclusive Excellence

The diversity of our workforce is at the core of our innovation and creativity and strengthens our excellence in research, teaching, and community outreach. In keeping with its Statement on Building an Inclusive Community with a Shared Purpose, McMaster University strives to embody the values of respect, collaboration, and diversity, and has a strong commitment to employment equity. The University seeks qualified candidates who share our commitment to equity and inclusion, who will contribute to the diversification of ideas and perspectives, and especially welcomes applications from First Nations, Métis and Inuit peoples, members of racialized communities (“visible minorities”), persons with disabilities, women, and persons who identify as 2S/LGBTQ+.

We invite all applicants to complete a brief Diversity Survey, which takes approximately two minutes to complete. All questions are voluntary, with an option to decline to answer. All information collected is confidential and will be used to support efforts to broaden the diversity of the applicant pool and to promote a fair, equitable and inclusive talent acquisition process. Inquiries about the Diversity Survey may be directed to hr.empequity@mcmaster.ca.

Job applicants requiring accommodation to participate in the hiring process should contact the Office of the Dean of Business at dsbeo@mcmaster.ca to communicate accommodation needs.

How to Apply

Please apply online via the McMaster Academic Careers website: https://hr.mcmaster.ca/careers/, (Faculty Postings, Job 52277), addressing your application documents to:

Dr. Rick D. Hackett, Chair, Human Resources & Management, DeGroote School of Business, McMaster University, 1280 Main Street West, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada LMS 4M4.

Please submit the following materials:

• A cover letter with a curriculum vitae describing the impact that career interruptions have had on your research productivity, if applicable (including a statement regarding Canadian citizenship/permanent resident status (see below)).

• A statement describing your primary research interests, accomplishments, and program, and their alignment with the field of human resources management (HRM). Please include a selection of your most significant research work (published articles or working papers).

• A statement of teaching interests and their alignment with the field of human resources management. It should include a description of your teaching philosophy and evidence of your potential to be an effective teacher. Teaching evaluations are not required.

• A statement describing any contributions made or planned in relation to advancing equity, diversity and inclusion or inclusive excellence in teaching, research, or service within higher education, community-based or other professional settings. (2-page maximum)

• Letters of reference are not required and will not be reviewed at the application stage. The Department will request letters of recommendation from 3-5 referees at later stages of the search process.

Review of applications will begin on February 20, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. All applicants will receive an online confirmation of receipt of their application; however, only short-listed applicants will be contacted for interviews.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens and permanent residents will be given priority.

To comply with the Government of Canada’s reporting requirements, the University is obliged to gather information about applicants’ status as either Permanent Residents of Canada or Canadian citizens. Applicants need not identify their country of origin or current citizenship; however, all applications must include one of the following statements:

• Yes, I am a citizen or permanent resident of Canada

• No, I am not a citizen or permanent resident of Canada

Vaccination Policy Statement

The University is committed to providing and maintaining healthy and safe working and learning environments for all employees, students, volunteers and visitors. The University’s Vaccination Policy-COVID-19 Requirements for Employees and Students (the “Vaccination Policy”), requires all McMaster community members, including employees, accessing a McMaster campus or facility in person to be fully vaccinated or to have received an exemption from the University for a valid human rights ground. While the Policy will be currently paused, this Policy may resume quickly and on short notice, as informed by public health authorities.
health advice and direction. As a result, failure to achieve and maintain fully vaccinated status or an approved human rights-based exemption may result in termination of employment. This is a term and condition of employment. The University will continue to follow the guidance of public health organizations to define fully vaccinated status.

Hybrid Work Language

To ensure an ongoing and vibrant University community that meets the needs of our students, staff and faculty and supports the University mission, ability to work on-site continues to be a requirement for most University positions. The University is supportive of exploring flexible work arrangements that effectively balance operational needs and employee interests.

Job 19268: Assistant Professor in Sociological Criminology: Racialization, Crime and Social Control

Date Position is Available: Summer 2023

Application Deadline:

Listing Active: 7/26/2023 to 8/25/2023

Institution: University of Guelph
Department: Department of Sociology and Anthropology
Region: Canada

Title: Assistant Professor in Sociological Criminology: Racialization, Crime and Social Control
Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Assistant Professor
Tenure/Tenure Track: Tenure Track
Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Other Program/Area

Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:

The Department of Sociology and Anthropology at the University of Guelph invites applications from Black and/or Indigenous scholars for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor.

The Department seeks applicants with teaching interests in the area of racialization, crime and social control, and an active, clearly articulated international, comparative, and/or domestic research agenda that critically engages this area. This position will support the Department’s contribution to the undergraduate program in Criminal Justice and Public Policy (CJPP) and the graduate program in Criminology and Criminal Justice Policy (CCJP).

The successful candidate will teach four courses in the CJPP and CCJP programs. Possible courses include: Crime and Criminal Justice (SOC*1500); Criminological Theory (SOC*2700); Law and Society (SOC*3490); Youth Justice (SOC*3710); Courts and Society (SOC*3730); Corrections and Penology (SOC*3740); Police in Society (SOC*3750); Violence and Society (SOC*4010); Advanced Topics in Criminology (SOC*4030); Advanced Topics in Criminal Justice (SOC*4200). The successful candidate will also be given the opportunity to develop new courses in their area of specialization.

The successful candidate will hold a PhD or be ABD in Sociology, Criminology, or a related discipline, with a record of excellence in teaching and research commensurate with their experience. Applicants must demonstrate a willingness and ability to contribute to the mentoring of undergraduate and graduate students, to the Department’s collegial and collaborative intellectual community, to the revitalization of the CCJP course-based Master’s program, and to College and University goals and priorities of indigenization, equity, diversity, and inclusion.

This tenure-track faculty position is part of the University of Guelph’s Black and Indigenous Hiring Initiative. Launched in June 2022, the Black and Indigenous Hiring Initiative (BIHI) calls for hiring fifteen or more Black and Indigenous faculty and four or more Black and Indigenous professional staff across the University of Guelph during the next three years. The faculty and staff positions will be filled in areas that support the advancement of Black and Indigenous academic excellence and the University of Guelph’s commitments to inclusion, anti-racism, indigenization, and decolonization.

The University of Guelph seeks qualified individuals who identify as persons of Black African or Caribbean descent and/or Indigenous (First Nation, Inuit, Métis, Native American, Alaskan Native, or Native Hawaiian). Applicants will be asked to self-identify through the Applicant Tracking Questionnaire (ATQ) facilitated by Diversity and Human Rights. Applicants who self-identify as Indigenous on the ATQ will be asked to confirm their Indigenous citizenship/membership and/or ancestral and kinship connections to a recognized and inherent Indigenous nation, community, treaty, land claim, territory or region through a confidential follow-up process facilitated by Indigenous Initiatives.

The anticipated start date is July 1, 2024.

The Department of Sociology and Anthropology, a dynamic multi-disciplinary department comprised of 28 faculty members, offers undergraduate degrees in Anthropology and in Sociology, and graduate degrees in Anthropology (MA) and in Sociology (MA, PhD). We also offer, in collaboration with the Department of Political Science, a BA in Criminal Justice and Public Policy, and an MA in Criminology and Criminal Justice Policy. The Department participates in other interdisciplinary programs such as Development Studies, One Health, and Indigenous Environmental Science and Practice. The College of Social and Applied Human Sciences, which houses the Department of Sociology and Anthropology, is a national and international leader in promoting community engagement in research, teaching, and learning. The Department and the College support and welcome community engaged scholarship activities.

We acknowledge the burden often placed on Black and Indigenous scholars with regards to equity, diversity, and inclusion in workplaces, and the challenges inherent to engaging in work that runs counter to entrenched paradigms. We also acknowledge the ways in which holding non-traditional research programs, conducting community-engaged research, holding traditional knowledge, community relationships, etc., can adversely impact researchers with respect to conventional measures of academic excellence. The Department of Sociology and Anthropology values diversity and inclusivity, and is committed to developing and maintaining a culture that is positive, collegial, and respectful of all members.

The University of Guelph is the third largest employer in Guelph, a city of approximately 130,000 people, located about an hour drive west of Toronto, Ontario. University of Guelph is a top-ranked comprehensive university in Canada with an enrolment of over 30,000 undergraduate and graduate students across over 40 academic units. Institution: University of Guelph
Department: Department of Sociology and Anthropology
Region: Canada

Title: Assistant Professor of Critical Race Studies
Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Assistant Professor
Tenure/Tenure Track: Tenure Track

Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Other Program/Area

Salary Range: Negotiable

Submission Link: https://www.uoguelph.ca/facultyjobs/postings/ad23-43.shtml

Job Description:

The Department of Sociology and Anthropology at the University of Guelph invites applications from Black scholars specializing in Critical Race Studies for a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor level.

The position is housed in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology and is core to the Black Canadian Studies minor, a new program that was launched in Fall 2022. The responsibilities of the successful candidate will be split evenly between Sociology/Anthropology and the Black Canadian Studies minor.

We seek applicants with expertise in Critical Race Studies, with an emphasis on Critical Race Theory. A focus on Black Canadian Studies is an asset. This position builds on the Department’s strengths in inequality, diversity, gender, and social justice. The Department welcomes applicants who can contribute to our graduate and undergraduate programs in one or more of the following broad areas: Identities and Social Inclusion; Environment, Food and Communities; Work and Organization; and, Crime and Social Control.

The successful candidate will teach two courses in the Black Canadian Studies minor and two courses in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology. In addition to teaching responsibilities, the successful candidate is expected to maintain a robust research and publishing agenda, and to participate in service work in Sociology and Anthropology and in Black Canadian Studies.

The successful candidate will hold a PhD in Anthropology, Sociology, or a related discipline at the time of appointment, with a record of excellence in teaching and research commensurate with their experience, and the potential to attract graduate students. The search committee will consider applicants whose dissertation work is nearing completion. In such cases, applicants should indicate in their cover letter how close they are to completion.

The anticipated start date is July 1, 2024.

This tenure-track faculty position is part of the University of Guelph’s Black and Indigenous Hiring Initiative. Launched in June 2022, the Black and Indigenous Hiring Initiative (BIHI) calls for hiring fifteen or more Black and Indigenous faculty and four or more Black and Indigenous professional staff across the University of Guelph during the next three years. The faculty and staff positions will be filled in areas that support the advancement of Black and Indigenous academic excellence and the University of Guelph’s commitments to inclusion, anti-racism, indigenization, and decolonization.

The University of Guelph seeks qualified individuals who identify as persons of Black African or Caribbean descent. Applicants will be asked to self-identify through the Applicant Tracking Questionnaire (ATQ) facilitated by Diversity and Human Rights. Applicants who self-identify as Indigenous on the ATQ will be asked to confirm their Indigenous citizenship-membership and/or ancestral and kinship connections to a recognized and inherent Indigenous nation, community, treaty, land claim, territory or region through a confidential follow-up process facilitated by Indigenous Initiatives.

The Department of Sociology and Anthropology, a dynamic multi-disciplinary department comprised of 28 faculty members, offers undergraduate degrees in Anthropology and in Sociology, and graduate degrees in Anthropology (MA) and in Sociology (MA, PhD). We offer, in collaboration with the Department of Political Science, a BA in Criminal Justice and Public Policy, and an MA in Criminology and Criminal Justice Policy. The Department also participates in other interdisciplinary programs such as Development Studies, One Health, and Indigenous Environmental Science and Practice. The College of Social and Applied Human Sciences, which houses the Department of Sociology and Anthropology, is a national and international leader in promoting community engagement in research, teaching, and learning. The Department and the College support and welcome community-engaged scholarship activities.

We acknowledge the burden often placed on Black scholars with regards to equity, diversity, and inclusion in workplaces, and the challenges inherent to engaging in work that runs counter to entrenched paradigms. We also acknowledge the ways in which holding non-traditional research programs, conducting community-engaged research, holding traditional knowledge, community relationships, etc., can adversely impact researchers with respect to conventional measures of academic excellence. The Department of Sociology and Anthropology values diversity and inclusivity, and is committed to developing and maintaining a culture that is positive, collegial, and respectful of all members.

The University of Guelph is the third largest employer in Guelph, a city of approximately 130,000 people, located about an hour drive west of Toronto, Ontario. University of Guelph is a top-ranked comprehensive university in Canada with an enrolment of over 30,000 undergraduate and graduate students across over 40 academic units. The University is known for its commitment to student learning, innovative research, and collaboration with world-class partners. It is a unique place, with transformative research and teaching and a distinctive campus culture. People who learn and work here are shaped and inspired by a shared purpose: To Improve Life. Reflecting that shared purpose in every experience connected to our university positions us to create positive change, here and around the world. Our university community shares a profound sense of social responsibility, a drive for international development, and an obligation to address global issues.

Application Process

Assessment of applications will begin on September 29, 2023 and will continue until the position is filled. Interested applicants should submit the following materials (as a single PDF file): (1) a cover letter; (2) a curriculum vitae; (3) a teaching dossier; (4) a research statement; and (5) the names and contact information of three referees. Applications should be sent to the attention of:

Title: Assistant Professor in Management
Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Assistant Professor
Tenure/Tenure Track: Tenure Track
Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Other Program/Area
Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:

Department of Management

Assistant Professor in Management
(Human Resource Management)

Salary is competitive with Departments at our peer institutions worldwide.

Salary is no less than £61,466 per annum and the salary scale can be found on the LSE website

In addition this post will attract a significant market salary supplement which reflects current market conditions.

The Department of Management plays a central role in the LSE, a global, single-faculty, social science university located in the heart of London. The Department's faculty and research strength is centred in employment relations and human resource management, organisational behaviour, managerial economics and strategy, information systems and innovation, marketing, and operations management. The Department's faculty members are engaged in research and scholarly activity across LSE, through research centres such as the Centre for Economic Performance, the Behavioural Lab for Research and Teaching, and interdisciplinary Institutes. The Department's own portfolio of degrees includes the BSc Management, a two-year Masters in Management, and specialist one-year masters programmes.
The post holder will contribute to the intellectual life of the School through conducting and publishing outstanding quality research, engaging in high quality teaching as instructed by the Head of Department, and participating in the School and wider Department activities.

The Department of Management at LSE seeks to hire an outstanding Assistant Professor who will strengthen our internationally renowned, innovative, and publicly engaged faculty. Applications will be considered from candidates who investigate HRM foundational domains (e.g., diversity, equality, and inclusion, learning and development, performance management, retention, rewards, staffing, voice, wellbeing), or areas, such as international and comparative employment relations, strategic HRM, corporate social responsibility, HR analytics, emerging technologies and the future of work, from multidisciplinary or interdisciplinary perspectives.

Successful applicants will have a PhD or be close to completing a PhD by the post start date in a social science discipline and/or an interdisciplinary field relevant to human resource management. You will have a track record of internationally excellent publications, or a trajectory for achieving this, as well as a well-developed strategy for future outstanding research that has the potential to result in world-leading publications in top journals. You will also have a demonstrable ability to teach on undergraduate, postgraduate, or executive programmes in management.

The other criteria that will be used when shortlisting for this post can be found on the person specification, which is attached to this vacancy on the LSE’s online recruitment system.

In addition to a competitive salary the benefits that come with this job include an occupational pension scheme, a research incentive scheme with personal reward options, generous research leave (sabbatical) entitlement, a collegial faculty environment and excellent support, training, and development opportunities.

For further information about the post, please see the how to apply document, job description and the person specification.

To apply, please go to www.jobs.lse.ac.uk. If you have any technical queries with applying on the online system, please use the “contact us” links at the bottom of the LSE Jobs page. Should you have any queries about the role, please email dom.facultyaffairs@lse.ac.uk

The closing date for receipt of applications is 31 August 2023 (23.59 UK time). We are unable to accept any late applications.

Employer Description:

The Department of Management is a world class centre for education and research in business and management. At the heart of LSE’s academic community in central London, we are ranked #3 in the world for business and management.

Our location within a world-class social science institution at the heart of a leading global city makes us unique among other management and business schools. This position gives us the unparalleled capability to deliver research and education which advance the frontiers of understanding in management through an integrated view of the economic, psychological, social, political and technological contexts in which people, teams, organisations and markets operate worldwide.

Job 19261: IDEAL Provostial Fellows for Studies in Race and Ethnicity

Date: Tuesday, August 1, 2023
36. Stanford University

Job Description:

Stanford University, in conjunction with its IDEAL initiative, is pleased to announce that it is seeking to appoint four to five early career fellows engaged in the study of race and ethnicity. The purpose of this program is to support the work of early-career researchers, who will lead the next generation of scholarship in race and ethnicity and whose work will point the way forward for reshaping race relations in America. Fellowships may be in any of the seven schools in the University (Business, Doerr School of Sustainability, Education, Engineering, Humanities & Sciences, Law, Medicine).

Applicants will be asked to identify the school or department that aligns with the field of their Ph.D. The selected fellows will be assigned a faculty mentor from their home department or school and will have the opportunity to be involved with the other early career fellows and Stanford faculty in a variety of activities. Informally, they will be invited to lunches and dinners to meet with other Stanford faculty who share their interests. They also will be invited to engage with the intellectual programming offered by the African and African-American Studies program, the Center for Comparative Studies in Race and Ethnicity and the Martin Luther King Research and Education Institute.

The early career fellows will have an opportunity each year to teach one course that will be cross-listed in the curricula of the Center for Comparative Studies in Race and Ethnicity and/or the African and African American Studies program. This course may be taught by the fellow or the fellow may team-teach a course with another member of the Stanford faculty. The fellows also will be involved in the organization of a major conference that brings to Stanford scholars who are at the forefront of scholarship in the study of race and ethnicity.

Criteria: Scholars interested in any field of study are accepted. Early career fellows should have received their terminal degree (PhD, JD, MFA, EdD, DSW, etc.) prior to the start of the fellowship. Selection criteria include the originality and quality of the research, as well as demonstrated potential for intellectual achievement. The term of these fellowships is three years, with a start date of September 1, 2024. To be eligible for an early career fellowship, a candidate must have received their terminal degree no earlier than September 1, 2021.

Applicants for early career fellowships should submit their applications electronically and include a cover letter (detailing the candidate’s interest in the position), curriculum vitae, a statement of research interests, a statement of teaching interests, samples of written work, and three letters of recommendation (provide contact information for each and a system generated request will be delivered to each referee). In these materials, please include how your interests would be advanced by a fellowship, needs for laboratory access or special equipment, etc.

The deadline for receiving applications for early career fellowships is November 1, 2023. No application will be accepted after the deadline. Applications will not be accepted by email.

Inquiries about this program can be directed to facultydevelopment@stanford.edu. Please include “IDEAL Provostial Fellows” in the subject line.

Additional details about the fellowship program can be found at https://facultydevelopment.stanford.edu/ideal-provostial-fellows/about-program.

More information about Stanford’s IDEAL initiative is available at https://ideal.stanford.edu/.

Employer Description:
Stanford is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. Stanford welcomes applications from all who would bring additional dimensions to the University’s research, teaching and clinical missions. Consistent with its obligations under the law, the University will provide reasonable accommodation to any employee with a disability who requires accommodation to perform the essential functions of his or her job.

Position Description

Founded in 2022, the Department of Race, Diaspora, and Indigeneity (RDI) is home to an interdisciplinary group of scholars whose work engages the conceptual pillars of the unit. RDI is housed in the Social Sciences at the University but is committed to working across the social sciences, humanities, sciences, professional schools, and the arts to build a truly interdisciplinary, outward-facing department. RDI values community-engaged and informed work. We offer a robust undergraduate curriculum (including a major and a minor) and are preparing to launch a doctoral certificate. We plan to have PhD program in place within five years. The University has made a deep commitment to the Department, including authorization to search for thirteen tenure-track colleagues over the next several years.

The Cluster Hire in Indigenous Studies

The Department of Race, Diaspora, and Indigeneity at the University of Chicago invites applications for a cluster hire of Assistant/Associate/Full professors whose research and teaching focus is Indigenous Studies. We anticipate making multiple appointments to start on or after July 1, 2024. Applicants with PhDs in Indigenous or Native Studies and those with appropriate training in other fields are encouraged to apply. The methodological approach is open. We are eager to hire scholars who see the prospect of working in an interdisciplinary Department that engages Indigeneity in tandem with race and diaspora as exciting and productive for their research and scholarship. We hope to hire colleagues working locally and globally, including at least one colleague in this cluster whose work connects with Indigenous communities in Chicago and the Midwest and others who work further afield, including the Americas, the Caribbean, Eurasia, Africa, Oceania, and the Pacific. Potential thematic focus areas include, but are by no means limited to, creative and critical approaches to Indigeneity; anti/de-colonization movements; the relationship between Blackness and Indigeneity; land, dispossession, and property; sovereignty and Indigenous political thought; science studies; art and visual culture; migration and Indigeneity; settler colonialism; environmental justice and injustice; Indigenous epistemologies and methodologies; penal legal systems; tribal law, federal Indian law, and Indigeneity in international law; gender, sexuality and Indigeneity; and global and/or comparative approaches.

Qualifications

Terminal Degree in hand by the start of the appointment in a relevant field. We welcome applications from scholars trained in all disciplines in the social sciences, humanities, sciences, professional schools, and the arts and those trained in interdisciplinary departments or programs.

Application Instructions

Applicants must apply online at the University of Chicago's Interfolio website at apply.interfolio.com/128026 and include: 1) a cover letter, 2) a curriculum vitae, 3) a research statement in which you state your intellectual vision and trajectory, including a brief description of any public-facing work you have done and that you may hope to do in the future, 4) a teaching statement, which includes what you hope to accomplish as a teacher and mentor in the classroom and beyond as well as your vision of diversity, equity, and inclusion, 5) writing sample which is either a published piece from a book, edited volume or journal, or if unpublished, a work or pieces that is no more than 10,000 words, and 6) Provide a list of three references that may be contacted at a later date. Consideration of applications will begin on September 1, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled or the search is ended. For candidates advancing in the search, you may be required to submit additional materials.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

All University departments and institutes are charged with building a faculty from a diversity of backgrounds and with diverse viewpoints; with cultivating an inclusive community that values freedom of expression; and with welcoming and supporting all their members.

We seek a diverse pool of applicants who wish to join an academic community that places the highest value on rigorous inquiry and encourages diverse perspectives, experiences, groups of individuals, and ideas to inform and stimulate intellectual challenge, engagement, and exchange. The University’s Statements on Diversity are at https://provost.uchicago.edu/statements-diversity.

The University of Chicago is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Disabled/Veterans Employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national or ethnic origin, age, status as an individual with a disability, protected veteran status, genetic information, or other protected classes under the law. For additional information please see the University’s Notice of Nondiscrimination.

Job seekers in need of a reasonable accommodation to complete the application process should call 773-834-3988 or email equalopportunity@uchicago.edu with their request.

Job 19265: Assistant Professor - Demography/Population Studies

Date Position is Available: Fall 2024

Application Deadline:

Listing Active: 7/25/2023 to 9/23/2023

Institution: University of Minnesota-Twin Cities
Department: Department of Sociology
Region: Midwest
Title: Assistant Professor - Demography/Population Studies
Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Assistant Professor
Tenure/Tenure Track: Tenure Track
Salary Range: Negotiable

Employer-Provided Job Description:

The Department of Sociology in the College of Liberal Arts and the Institute for Social Research and Data Innovation (ISRDI) at the University of Minnesota invite applications for a full-time faculty position beginning Fall Semester 2024 (August 26, 2024). We will consider applicants with a wide range of research interests in demography/population studies, but we are especially seeking scholars whose research focuses on (a) the social and demographic consequences of climate change and/or (b) human-environment interactions. Special consideration may also be given to candidates prepared to teach courses on migration. We are particularly eager to receive applications from candidates from historically underrepresented groups, knowing that diversity enriches the academic experience of students, faculty, and the wider university community.

The successful candidate will be expected to contribute to the interdisciplinary research, teaching, and service missions of both ISRDI and the Department of Sociology. ISRDI houses the Minnesota Population Center, the Life Course Center, the renowned IPUMS collection of data infrastructure projects, and the Minnesota Research Data Center. ISRDI is a vibrant and highly interdisciplinary institute that draws scholars and students from more than two dozen academic departments; that has two formal pre- and postdoctoral training programs (in population studies and population health); that hosts a variety of cross-disciplinary collaborative research projects; and that features a large portfolio of external funding for population research, training, and infrastructure.

The person appointed to this position would be a full-time faculty member in the Department of Sociology, with a tenure home in the College of Liberal Arts; that is, this is not a split or joint appointment. However, half of the person’s teaching and service effort would be at ISRDI. The Department of Sociology and ISRDI have a successful history of working together to ensure the success and efficiency of this type of appointment.

The University of Minnesota provides equal access and opportunity without regard to race, color, creed, religion, national origin, gender, age, marital status, disability, public assistance status, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity, or gender expression. The Department of Sociology and ISRDI support the work-life balance of their faculty and staff and have a history of accommodating dual academic career couples. We welcome applications from individuals who may have had nontraditional career paths, or who may have taken time off for family reasons, or who have achieved excellence in careers outside of academia. The University offers excellent and affordable health care and retirement benefits. Appointment will be at the rank of tenure-track assistant professor. Salary is competitive.
Our new colleague will be expected to maintain an active program of scholarly research; develop and teach undergraduate and graduate courses under the Department of Sociology’s 2-1 teaching load; mentor graduate students; and contribute service to the department and ISRDI, the college, the university, and the profession that is appropriate for the rank of assistant professor. The Department of Sociology and ISRDI are committed to the success of our new colleague. The successful candidate will join a vibrant intellectual environment, receive mentoring and support from senior faculty in the department as well as senior faculty and research staff at ISRDI, have access to resources for conducting research and pursing grants, get teaching support, and receive clear expectations and transparency on the pathway to tenure.

Tenured and Tenure-Track Faculty

Tenured and tenure-track faculty constitute the core faculty of each of the campus or collegiate units. It is expected that they teach, engage in research/scholarship and perform service/outreach as defined in the Regents’ Policy on Faculty Tenure, Section 7.11 General Criteria and the unit’s 7.12 Statement.

You may view the Standards for Promotion and Tenure for the Department of Sociology online.

Access the Workload Principles and Guidelines for Regular Faculty in the College of Liberal Arts at the CLA Neighborhood.

Required Qualifications

A Ph.D. in Sociology or related field is required. Candidates will be evaluated according to a) the overall quality of their academic preparation including their training in population studies and demographic techniques, b) the merit of their scholarly work and evidence of their research ability particularly as it relates to the social/demographic consequences of climate change and human-environment interactions, c) commitment to high-quality classroom instruction and student mentoring, d) the strength of recommendations once requested, and e) departmental/ISRDI priorities. A successful candidate’s dossier will demonstrate a clear commitment to (and ideally, experience with) teaching, mentoring, and advising a diverse student body that includes students of color and those from a wide range of socioeconomic and cultural backgrounds.

How To Apply

Applications must be submitted online. Select 'External Candidates' and enter Job ID 356679 (numbers only) in the search field to locate the opening.

To be considered for this position please click on 'Apply for this Posting' and follow the instructions. You will have an opportunity to complete an online application for the position and attach materials related to your candidacy, including 1) a cover letter and 2) curriculum vitae (CV). We also ask you to include: 3) at least two samples of written work; 4) evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., course evaluations, awards, etc.) or a commitment to teaching; and 5) names and contact information for three references.

PLEASE NOTE: After completing the online application and submitting your cover letter and CV, you can upload additional documents by logging back in and accessing your 'MyJob Applications' page. All materials should be uploaded by September 15, 2023.

The search committee will begin reviewing applications on a rolling basis beginning in September 2023 and continuing until the position is filled; thus, qualified applicants are encouraged to upload their application materials as soon as possible. The position will remain open until filled. Applications received after September 15 may or may not be reviewed.

Additional materials, including three letters of recommendation, will be requested from some candidates at a later stage of the review process.

If you have questions about the position, please contact Professor Claire Kamp Dush via e-mail at kampdush@umn.edu.

For questions about your application or the application process, please contact Elizabeth Cronin, Communications Coordinator, at ecronin@umn.edu.

Job Description:

The Department of Sociology at the University of Notre Dame invites applications for an open rank (tenure-track or tenured) position set to begin in the fall of 2024.

We seek a candidate who studies the effects of technology on society. We are particularly interested in scholars who conduct empirical work informed by sociological theory on the implications of technology for inequalities in the areas of racial-ethnicity, the criminal justice system, health, labor markets, education, politics, media, and other areas. We have a preference for candidates who use computational methods and/or analyze “big data” in their research, but other methodological approaches are welcome. Sociology will be the home department for the position, but the position will also bring an affiliation with Notre Dame's Technology Ethics Center (ND TEC). ND TEC develops and supports multi-disciplinary research on questions related to the impact of technology on humanity and convenes global thought leaders to develop ethical and legal frameworks that keep pace with technological developments.

This position is one of several new positions across different disciplines that will be affiliated with the University's major new investments in technology ethics and data science. Qualified applicants should be eager to teach courses on topics that support ND TEC's mission, along with other courses aligned with the candidate’s substantive interests.

Review of applications will begin on September 15th, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled. Please submit a letter of application, CV, at least three letters of reference, a research statement, a teaching statement, course evaluations (if available), and writing samples at apply.interfolio.com/127139. Send questions to Prof. David Gibson (dgibson1@nd.edu).
Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

The University of Notre Dame seeks to attract, develop, and retain the highest quality faculty, staff and administration. The University is an Equal Opportunity Employer, and is committed to building a culturally diverse workplace. We strongly encourage applications from female and minority candidates and those candidates attracted to a university with a Catholic identity. Moreover, Notre Dame prohibits discrimination against veterans or disabled qualified individuals, and requires affirmative action by covered contractors to employ and advance veterans and qualified individuals with disabilities in compliance with 41 CFR 60-741.5(a) and 41 CFR 60-300.5(a).

Job Description:

* Candidates who have already been accepted/enrolled in one of the master’s degree programs or are eligible to waive the master’s degree requirement may apply and be approved to start the TL1 prior to July 2024.

 Rolling deadline until all slots are filled.

About: The TL1 Postdoctoral Program in Clinical Research, Biomedical Informatics, and Health Equity is a National Research Service Award (NRSA) funded training program comprising participating degree programs at the University of Chicago, Rush University, and Loyola University Chicago. The program will prepare postdoctoral trainees with clinical (MD, DNP, PharmD, DMD/DDS, etc.) or research degrees (PhD) with the skills to conduct independent and collaborative research that will transform the science and practice of medicine, improve clinical practice and health outcomes, and advance health toward health equity.

Trainees can be based at any ITM institution and will select one of three training pathways based on their research interests and training needs: 1) Clinical Research Pathway, 2) Medical Informatics Pathway, or 3) Public Health Pathway. Depending on the selected pathway, trainees will enroll in one of the approved master’s programs listed in this RFA. Applicants who already have a research degree or equivalent training in one of the training pathways may request to have the master’s degree requirement waived as part of the TL1 application process. See Program Activities for more information.

Who should apply?

1. MD clinical fellows based at an ITM institution (UChicago, Rush, IIT, Loyola, NorthShore, or Advocate) who are interested in full-time research training. These might be fellows currently in research years of their ACGME training or finishing their ACGME training.

2. Candidates with other doctoral level professional degrees (DNP, PharmD, DDS/DMD, etc.) at an ITM institution who are interested in research training. Candidates with an MD who have not yet begun residency are also eligible.

3. PhD recipients committed to careers in clinical or translational research with an emphasis on advancing health toward health equity. Candidates may apply externally or from an ITM institution.

4. Prospective applicants who fall outside these categories should contact the program team to determine if they are eligible to apply.

5. Applicants who are from underrepresented racial and ethnic groups, who have disabilities, and/or who are from disadvantaged backgrounds are strongly encouraged to apply. Learn more here.

Applicants do not need to have prior training or research experience in health equity or health disparities, but should describe how their TL1 training will (1) enhance their research and career goals and (2) how their research goals would help advance health equity.

MD candidates will need commitment letter from a unit leader (Fellowship Director/Section Chief/Department Chair) who is able to attest to institutional commitment for the candidate. This letter must confirm the following: 1). The section/department will take necessary steps to transition fellow to an Advanced Clinical Fellow (or their institution’s equivalent) position by the start date of the TL1 appointment; 2). The section/department will cover the difference between the NRSA stipend provided by the TL1 grant, allocated according to years of experience, and the fellow’s stipend level set by their institution’s GME office; and 3). If awarded the TL1, the fellow will have 80% protected time based on a 40 hour work week during the appointment period for research and training activities.

PhD candidates will need to demonstrate a commitment to clinical and/or translational research in their application.

Most internal candidates have a primary mentor who should prepare one of the letters of recommendation for the application. External candidates who have not identified a primary mentor at an ITM institution should suggest potential faculty mentors in their statement.

Candidates with clinical doctoral degrees other than an MD/DO, such as a PharmD, DNP, or DDS/DMD, should discuss with their department at their home institution about other eligibility criteria that they must meet prior to being appointed (i.e. must they have a particular appointment/position at the institution in order to receive a TL1 fellowship?)

Additional Eligibility criteria: All candidates must be U.S. citizens or permanent residents and have completed a professional doctoral degree (MD, DO, PharmD, DNP, DDS/DMD, etc.) or research degree (PhD) at the time of appointment. Students completing a doctoral degree may apply so long as they have completed all doctoral degree requirements by the TL1 appointment start date. Dual degree recipients such as MD/PhDs are also welcome to apply.

Junior faculty are not eligible to apply.

Funding: It is expected that most fellows will complete at least two years of postdoctoral training. Fellows who only need one year of funding because they are already partway through postdoctoral training or have already begun coursework for one of the approved master’s degrees are also welcome to apply.

Fellowships pay a stipend based on NRSA stipend levels for postdoctoral fellows. For MD fellows, the NIH stipend is supplemented by funds from the home department in order to match the fellowship stipend level set by their institution’s GME office and/or section.
The fellowship also provides funds to cover tuition and fees for one of the master’s programs described below and a modest amount of funds to cover training related expenses such as attendance at a national conference, poster printing, software, etc. The fellowship includes funds to offset health insurance expenses for the recipient fellow but does not provide coverage for vision, dental, or the fellow's family/spouse.

Please note that trainees are allowed a maximum of three years of NRSA support at the postdoctoral level.

All candidates will use the application form found here.

Employer Description:

Program Activities

1. Participate in research and/or research training activities full-time, although MD fellows may continue to do some limited clinical work (~20% time) during their appointment.
2. Trainees will select a primary training pathway: Clinical Research, Biomedical Informatics, or Public Health. Depending on the selected training pathway, the trainee will enroll in one of the approved master’s programs, described above. In most cases, coursework will be completed over two years. Trainees who wish to waive out of particular courses or degree requirements because they have prior training in these areas should describe their prior training experience in the application and suggest an alternative plan for coursework/training. After receiving conditional acceptance to the TL1 program, trainees will be required to apply separately to the selected master’s program in a timely manner, if not already enrolled. Trainees are strongly encouraged to take elective courses, when possible, in the other tracks.
3. Trainee will identify and work with a primary mentor in his/her research field at any ITM institution to conduct a mentored research project. Please note that an appropriate research mentor does not need to be from the trainee’s clinical discipline. Appropriate primary mentors include mid or senior level faculty with a track record of publications, grant funding, and mentoring. Trainee and primary mentor will work together to establish an interdisciplinary mentorship team that may include mentors from across the ITM.
4. As the aim of the TL1 is to enhance trainees’ potential to develop into productive, independent researchers in clinical and translational science, it is highly encouraged that with the support of their faculty mentor, trainees apply for an F32 postdoctoral Individual National Research Service Award or another individual award at an appropriate time during their appointment period. Plans for any such applications should be described in the TL1 proposal.
5. All trainees, regardless of institution will attend regularly and present once per appointment year in the Outcomes Research Workshop (ORW), which occurs weekly on Wednesdays from 8:30-9:30 and will take place over zoom. In lieu of ORW once per month, the TL1 program will hold a TL1 check in with fellows and faculty.
6. Most trainees will be expected to participate in the Summer Program in Outcomes Research Training (SPORT) in part or in full, depending on prior training and the trainee’s master’s coursework. Hybrid participation will be possible for fellows based outside UChicago and payment will be covered by the TL1.
7. Trainees must participate in a writing workshop. Some writing workshops are built into the existing master’s programs, like the MSCR program at Rush. Options at UChicago include the summer Research Proposal Development Workshop that is a part of SPORT, the Career Award Writing Workshop, or ENGL 13000/33000 Academic and Professional Writing, a credit course offered through the English Department that may be available as an elective in some programs.
8. Trainees attend the annual Association for Clinical and Translational Science (ACTS) conference once per appointment year. Fellows who have completed at least one year of prior postdoctoral training are required to submit an abstract. Funds will be provided through the grant to support travel to this conference.
9. Participate in ITM programming approximately once per quarter by attending the ITM TRIO studio, the ITM Grand Rounds, and/or the Community Grand Rounds. More information about these activities will be provided at the start of the fellowship.
10. Team Science Online Learning Modules: Trainees must complete four modules found here.
11. Training in the Responsible Conduct of Research: All trainees must complete in person RCR training during postdoctoral research training. Two examples of approved RCR training include the ITM’s RCR summer course and the Essentials of Patient Oriented Research winter course. Trainees must also complete two online trainings:
   a. CITI training in Human Subjects Protection
   b. Good Clinical Practice training through NIH

Reporting requirements

1. Trainees must submit quarterly learning plans to TL1 administrator. Trainees must review and obtain comments from their primary mentor at the bottom of the form.
2. Trainees must abide by all NIH/NRSA reporting requirements including reporting funding on all publications and presentations and submitting all journal articles to the PubMed Central database in accordance with the NIH public access policy.
3. At the start of the first year of the TL1 appointment, trainees must sign an NIH payback service agreement, which states that “Postdoctoral Kirschstein-NRSA recipients will incur a payback obligation only during the initial 12 months of the postdoctoral Kirschstein-NRSA support” and that the fellow agrees to engage in 12 months of health-related research, health-related research training, or health-related teaching after completion of the first 12 months of postdoctoral NRSA support. More information on the payback agreement can be found here.
4. While in the program trainees agree to submit information as needed to the program administrator on an annual basis for progress reports and future renewal applications. Trainees agree to complete all necessary paperwork in a prompt and timely manner.
5. Trainees must complete an annual TL1 alumni survey and provide the training program administrator an updated CV, as requested, once per year after completing the program for program evaluation purposes.

Application

Applications are currently being accepted for a start date in summer of 2024.

To be reviewed in the first round of applications, please submit an application by August 1, 2023. We may have spots remaining after this date, so contact the program team if you plan on submitting an application after this date.

We are accepting applications from:

- Candidates requesting two years of support for postdoctoral training.
- Candidates requesting one year of support for postdoctoral training who have already completed 1 or more years of postdoctoral research training. Fellows requesting only one year of support who have not already started one of the approved master’s degree program will be expected to complete all coursework within one year. (Note: the UChicago MPH requires more than one year of coursework.)

Applications will start being reviewed in November 2022 and will continue being accepted until all positions are filled. Please also note the deadline for each of the approved master’s degrees listed below. You must also apply to the master’s degree separately to facilitate enrollment by the appropriate deadline. If the deadline has passed, you may contact the program team to discuss options or may submit your application for consideration in 2023. You may contact the program team to confirm if there are still positions available before you apply.

Candidates must submit their materials through the online form found here.

Application materials include:

1. CV

2. Personal statement describing career goals, research interests, and how the training program will help the candidate reach these goals. Maximum of 1800 words.
   a. Applicants may also describe how prior coursework may be duplicative of training in chosen master’s degree and request a waiver for these courses.
   b. Applicants should describe how their research goals already align with the ITM and TL1’s goal of advancing health equity, and/or how TL1 training will help the trainee align their research with these goals.
   c. External candidates who do not yet have a primary mentor at an ITM institution should also list faculty with whom they are interested in working.
   d. Plans for any F32 or individual awards should be described in the personal statement.

3. Two letters of recommendation. One letter should be from the trainee’s proposed primary mentor (if applying internally from an ITM institution). This letter should include a justification of why the faculty member is an appropriate research mentor for the candidate, including a description of the mentor’s record of publications, grant funding, and mentoring. At least one of the other two letters should be from a faculty who can speak to the candidate’s ability or promise in clinical and/or translational research.

4. Undergraduate and graduate (PhD, MD, etc.) transcripts. Unofficial transcripts are preferred at this stage for application processing and should be uploaded directly to the application system. Official transcripts may be requested at a later date.

5. Letter of commitment from unit leader (fellowship director, section chief, or department chair) who is able to attest to institutional commitment for candidate (MDs only): This letter should include the following commitments: 1). The section/department will take necessary steps to transition fellow to an Advanced Clinical Fellow position by the start date of the TL1 appointment; 2). The section/department will cover the difference between the stipend provided by the TL1 grant, allocated according to years of experience, and the fellow’s stipend level set by the GME office; and 3). If awarded the TL1, the fellow will have 80% protected time during the appointment period for research and training activities.

6. Job market paper and/or first author publications (required for PhD candidates; optional for MDs): All PhD applicants must submit a job market paper and/or other first author publications. Candidates may submit up to three papers in their application, combined as one PDF. MD applicants are welcome to submit writing samples but this is not required.

Applications will be reviewed by the TL1 program directors and steering committee. Candidates in consideration for a fellowship position will be invited to interview, either in person or over the phone.

Job 19250: Post-Doctoral Research Fellow

Date Position is Available: Fall 2023

Application Deadline:

Listing Active: 7/20/2023 to 8/19/2023

Institution: Swarthmore College
Department: Dept of Sociology & Anthropology
Region: Northeast
Title: Post-Doctoral Research Fellow
Position/Rank: Fellowships/Post-docs: Post-doctoral
Tenure/Tenure Track: Not Applicable

Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Urban Sociology
Salary Range: $60,000 - $69,999

Job Description:

The post-doctoral research fellow will work with Daniel Laurison, Associate Professor of Sociology, to set up and run a new social science research lab, tentatively called the Class, Inequality, and American Democracy Lab. The lab is part of Swarthmore College’s Lang Center for Civic and Social Responsibility, and includes undergraduate students, graduate student researchers from other institutions, and community-based researchers. Our main stream of research is on economic and racial inequalities in political engagement and participation in the US; we are currently wrapping up and analyzing interviews with over 250 poor/low-income/working-class people from across the state of Pennsylvania, and from all major racial groups. Other current and future projects include an analysis of the career trajectories and demographics of American national-level campaign professionals, an examination of the places and conditions where political engagement and participation are highest among lower-income/working-class people, and a project looking at how the race of a city’s mayor matters for voting rates among that city’s residents. The Lab will also expand to include other Swarthmore faculty. The ideal candidate will have extensive experience in low-income/working-class communities, research interests in political sociology and racial and class inequalities, and a commitment to producing research that can speak to both scholarly and public audiences. The position is for up to three years, contingent on satisfactory review, and is in-person at Swarthmore College in Swarthmore, PA (near Philadelphia). Start date is flexible, September 2023 – January 2024.

Essential Responsibilities

- Contribute to ongoing and new research projects related to class and racial inequality in American democracy (60%). Specifically:
  - Participate in the analysis of in-depth interviews with poor and working-class Pennsylvanians.
  - Manage the process of collecting feedback from interviewees about our findings
  - Collaborate on developing and implementing future projects related to the Lab’s themes.
  - Contribute to both scholarly and public-facing writing about our findings.
  - Work on your own ongoing projects.
- Work with Lab Director Daniel Laurison to manage all aspects of the new Class, Inequality, and American Democracy Lab (30%), including:
  - Supervise and support undergraduate and graduate students, and community-based researchers.
- Coordinate speaker series/brown-bag lunches and other lab events.
- Other tasks as needed.
- Work on grant proposals to support the ongoing operation of the Lab (10%).

Supervisory Responsibilities

- Shared responsibility for supervising part-time (undergraduate & graduate) student researchers
- Shared responsibility for supervising part-time community-based researchers

Who you are:

- Excellent writing, research and communication skills.
- Excellent organizational and interpersonal skills.
- Demonstrated ability to:
  - Work independently with minimal supervision.
  - Set priorities and effectively manage time and resources.
  - Be a constructive and cooperative member of a team.
  - Positively influence colleagues and develop collaborative relationships with a wide range of people, including people outside academia.

What you bring:

Required Qualifications

- PhD in sociology or related field, completed or expected by January 2024
- Experience in conducting research (qualitative and/or quantitative) related to class and/or racial inequality and/or political engagement and participation.

Preferred Qualifications

- A track record of scholarly publication and/or public-facing writing
- Experience participating in or managing collaborative research projects
- Connection to/experience with low-income/working class communities
- An interest specifically in class inequalities in political participation/engagement
- Experience with or interest in community-engaged research (or related)
- Skills in social network analysis and/or advanced quantitative methods, especially using R

What You Will Get:

You'll work at one of the world's most renowned liberal arts Colleges, with incredible benefits, a stunning 420-acre campus and collaborative work environment. Come join a team of passionate, creative people who work hard and have fun supporting the College students, faculty, and staff.

If you are excited about this role, we want to hear from you! For full consideration, submit applications including a writing sample, resume, and cover letter with pay expectations.

Employer Description:

Swarthmore College is a highly selective liberal arts college located in the suburbs of Philadelphia, whose mission combines academic rigor with social responsibility. Swarthmore has a strong institutional commitment to inclusive excellence and nondiscrimination in its educational program and employment practices and encourages candidates who will further advance the goal of fostering a diverse and inclusive community. As one of the nation’s finest institutions of higher learning, Swarthmore College is global in outlook and draws students from around the nation and world. About Vassar College
Vassar is a highly selective, coeducational liberal arts college of about 2400 undergraduate students, located in the Hudson Valley, seventy-five miles north of New York City. Vassar stands upon the homelands of the Munsee Lenape. The College is located in Poughkeepsie, home to a culturally diverse community, and benefits from convenient commuter rail access to New York City. Vassar faculty are committed teachers/scholars who bring research and creative discovery to life for students in classrooms, labs, and studios and in individually-mentored projects. They teach broadly in the curricula of their departments, advise students, and serve on college-wide and departmental committees. The College maintains a generous leave policy, provides strong support for research, and encourages multidisciplinary approaches to teaching.

Position Introduction

The Department of Sociology at Vassar College invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Sociology beginning August 2024.

AA Statement

Vassar College is deeply committed to increasing the diversity of the campus community and the curriculum, and to promoting an environment of equality, inclusion, and respect for difference. Candidates who can contribute to this goal through their teaching, research, advising, and other activities are encouraged to identify their strengths and experiences in this area. The College is an Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action employer, and especially welcomes applications from veterans, women, individuals with disabilities, and members of racial, ethnic, and other groups whose underrepresentation in the American professoriate has been severe and longstanding.

Position Description

The Department of Sociology seeks candidates in the field of critical criminology. Specializations of particular interest include corporate crime, environmental crime, human rights law, and/or prison studies. The teaching load at Vassar College is 2-2, plus one flexible unit that can be fulfilled with senior thesis and/or independent study supervision. The candidate's responsibilities will include teaching three courses in their field of expertise and staffing one of the Department's core courses (Introductory Sociology, Modern Social Theory, Research Methods). The ideal candidate will have multidisciplinary research experience and an ability to support one of the college's multidisciplinary programs. A PhD in Sociology is required and must be in hand by time of appointment.

How to Apply

Please submit your application online at https://employment.vassar.edu/postings/3229

Candidates should submit:

-A letter of application
-CV
-A statement of teaching philosophy and evidence of teaching experience
-A statement of current research
-A statement highlighting contributions to or future plans for promoting diversity and inclusion through teaching, research, and other involvements (additional information can be found at https://offices.vassar.edu/dean-of-the-faculty/positions/candidate-diversity-statement/)
-Graduate transcript (an unofficial copy is acceptable for initial application)
-Three letters of recommendation

Information about the department and its faculty can be obtained from the department web site. Please address any questions to the chair of the department, Prof. Light Carruyo (licarruyo@vassar.edu). Review of applications will begin on September 30, 2023, and continue until the position has been filled. There is no guarantee that applications received after this date will be considered.

COMMITMENT TO EQUITY AND DIVERSITY

McGill University is committed to equity and diversity within its community and values academic rigour and excellence. We welcome and encourage applications from racialized persons/visible minorities, women, Indigenous persons, persons with disabilities, ethnic minorities, and persons of minority sexual orientations and gender identities, as well as from all qualified candidates with the skills and knowledge to engage productively with diverse communities.

At McGill, research that reflects diverse intellectual traditions, methodologies, and modes of dissemination and translation is valued and encouraged. Candidates are invited to demonstrate their research impact both within and across academic disciplines and in other sectors, such as government, communities, or industry.

McGill further recognizes and fairly considers the impact of leaves (e.g., family care or health-related) that may contribute to career interruptions or slowdowns. Candidates are encouraged to signal any leave that affected productivity, or that may have had an effect on their career path. This information will be considered to ensure the equitable assessment of the candidate’s record.

McGill implements an employment equity program and encourages members of designated equity groups to self-identify. It further seeks to ensure the equitable treatment and full inclusion of persons with disabilities by striving for the implementation of universal design principles transversally, across all facets of the University community, and through accommodation policies and procedures. Persons with disabilities who anticipate needing accommodations for any part of the application process may contact, in confidence, this email.

All qualified applicants are encouraged to apply; however, in accordance with Canadian immigration requirements, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Poste de professeure ou professeur – Méthodes de recherche qualitatives (avec spécialisation en inégalité, diversité et stratification) - Professeure adjointe ou professeur adjoint

Description du poste:

Le Département de sociologie lance un appel à candidatures pour un poste de professeure adjointe ou de professeur adjoint menant à la permanence, à compter du 1er août 2024. Les candidatures exceptionnellement qualifiées peuvent être considérées au niveaux agrégé.

Nous recherchons des personnes possédant de solides compétences de recherche qualitatives (par exemple, l'ethnographique, les entretiens, l'analyse discursive), démontrées par l'application de méthodes de recherche qualitatives à des questions importantes sur l'inégalité, la diversité et la stratification. La personne retenue devra être en mesure d'enseigner les méthodes de recherche qualitatives au niveau du premier cycle et/ou deuxième cycle. Nous cherchons à renforcer le corps professoral quant au fond qui s'intéresse par l'inégalité, la diversité et la stratification.

Pour plus d'informations sur notre département, visitez notre site Web à l'adresse www.mcgill.ca/sociology.

Tâches:

Recherche; enseignement et encadrement d’étudiants; services à la communauté

Qualifications et exigences académiques

1) doctorat en sociologie, ou dans un champ connexe (incluant les candidats qui auront complété le doctorat au moment de l’embauche);

2) solide dossier de publications en voie de constitution et programme indépendant de recherche;

3) une expérience d’enseignement (p.ex. charge de cours ou auxiliariat d’enseignement) constitue un atout.

L’Université McGill est une université de langue anglaise où la plupart des activités d'enseignement et de recherche se déroulent en anglais, ce qui nécessite une communication en anglais, tant à l'oral qu'à l'écrit. En outre, l'Université McGill est située dans la province de Québec, où la langue officielle est le français. Par conséquent, la connaissance du français et/ou l'engagement à atteindre et à maintenir cette compétence sont considérés comme des atouts.

ENGAGEMENT EN MATIÈRE D’ÉQUITÉ ET DE DIVERSITÉ

L’Université McGill est une institution de langue anglaise dans laquelle la majorité des activités d’enseignement et de recherche s’effectuent en langue anglaise, rendant essentielle l’utilisation de l’anglais pour la communication orale et écrite.

L’Université McGill s’engage fermement à respecter les principes d’équité et de diversité au sein de sa communauté, tout en valorisant la rigueur et l’excellence académiques. Elle accueille favorablement les demandes d’emploi des personnes racisées et des minorités visibles, des femmes, des personnes autochtones, des personnes en situation de handicap, des minorités ethniques, des personnes de toute orientation sexuelle et identité de genre, ainsi que toute personne possédant les aptitudes et les connaissances nécessaires pour interagir au sein de groupes diversifiés.

McGill valorise et encourage la recherche qui reflète des traditions intellectuelles, des méthodologies ainsi que des modes de communication et de traduction diversifiés. Les personnes candidates sont invitées à démontrer la portée de leur recherche, aussi bien au sein de leur champ universitaire que dans un contexte interdisciplinaire, notamment dans les secteurs gouvernemental, communautaire et industriel.

En outre, McGill reconnaît et prend équitablement en considération l’incidence des congés (p. ex., obligations familiales ou congés pour raisons de santé), qui peuvent entraîner des interruptions ou des ralentissements de carrière. Quiconque pose sa candidature est encouragé à signaler tout congé ayant eu une incidence sur son rendement et pouvant avoir modifié son parcours de carrière. Ces renseignements seront pris en compte aux fins d’évaluation équitable du dossier.

L’Université McGill dispose d’un programme d’équité en matière d’emploi et invite les membres des groupes visés à indiquer leur appartenance à ces derniers dans leur dossier de candidature. Elle tient également à s’assurer que les personnes en situation de handicap reçoivent un traitement équitable et puissent pleinement s’intégrer à la vie universitaire en ayant à cœur de mettre en œuvre les principes de conception universelle dans toutes les sphères d’activité de l’Université, conformément aux politiques et procédures relatives aux aménagements. Les personnes en situation de handicap qui pourraient avoir besoin de certains aménagements pour soumettre leur candidature sont invitées à communiquer en toute confidentialité par courriel accessibilityrequest.hr@mcgill.ca.

Nous encourageons tous les candidats qualifiés à postuler; veuillez noter que conformément aux exigences de l’immigration canadienne, la priorité sera toutefois accordée aux personnes détenant la citoyenneté canadienne ainsi que le statut de la résidence permanente.

Job Description:

STANFORD UNIVERSITY
GRADUATE SCHOOL OF BUSINESS
Faculty Positions in Organizational Behavior

The Graduate School of Business seeks to hire tenure-track faculty in macro-organizational behavior beginning September 1, 2024. Applicants should possess a strong research background and an interest in the study of organizations and organizational behavior broadly defined, and the ability to teach effectively in both MBA and PhD programs. The search is open to all ranks for candidates with a macro-OB orientation. Applicants should have at least two to three years of post-PhD research experience; a demonstrated record of publications and research excellence in their field; and a Ph.D. in a relevant domain.

Applicants should submit their applications electronically by visiting the web site http://www.gsb.stanford.edu/recruiting. For an application to be considered complete, all applicants must submit a CV, a job market paper and arrange for three letters of recommendation to be submitted. The application deadline is October 1, 2023, but candidates are strongly encouraged to submit as soon as possible. For questions regarding the application process, please send an email to faculty_recruiter@gsb.stanford.edu.

The expected base pay range for this position is:

- Associate Professor: $230,000 - $285,000
- Full Professor: $325,000 - $410,000
Stanford University has provided a pay range representing its good faith estimate of what the university reasonably expects to pay for the position. The pay offered to the selected candidate will be determined based on factors including (but not limited to) the experience and qualifications of the selected candidate including years since terminal degree, training, and field or discipline; departmental budget availability; internal equity; and external market pay for comparable jobs.

Consistent with its obligations under the law, the University will provide reasonable accommodation to any employee with a disability who requires accommodation to perform the essential functions of his or her job. Stanford is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. Stanford welcomes applications from all who would bring additional dimensions to the University’s research, teaching, and clinical missions.

Employer Description:
Stanford's Graduate School of Business has built a global reputation based on its immersive and innovative management programs. We provide students a transformative leadership experience, pushing the boundaries of knowledge with faculty research, and offering a portfolio of entrepreneurial and non-degree programs that deliver global impact like no other. We are committed to advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion in service of our mission of developing innovative, principled, and insightful leaders who change lives, change organizations, and change the world. We invite you to be part of this mission.

Region: Midwest
Title: Associate/Full Professor of Organizational Studies
Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Associate Professor, Academic Positions: Full Professor
Tenure/Tenure Track: Tenure Track
Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Social Organization, Social Organization
Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:

ORGANIZATIONAL STUDIES. The Interdisciplinary Program in Organizational Studies at the University of Michigan solicits applications for a tenured (associate or full) professor with a micro-organizational focus to begin August 26, 2024. Organizational Studies is a small (approximately 100 majors), highly selective undergraduate program in the arts and sciences. While psychologists are particularly welcome, we seek applications from a wide range of disciplinary and interdisciplinary backgrounds in the social sciences and professional fields. Candidates must demonstrate excellence in research related to organizational theory and behavior, broadly defined, and be able to teach within our Organizations and Individuals cluster. The application deadline is September 15, 2023.

Applications should include a cover letter, CV, research statement, up to three writing samples, teaching statement, and diversity statement. The Program is especially interested in candidates who have demonstrated commitment, through their research, teaching, and/or service, to building a diverse and equitable academic community. We will contact you in the event that we require references or other materials.

Please follow this link to our website <http://apply.interfolio.com/127745>, where you will be able to access the application. For questions, email Orgstudies.Faculty.Search@umich.edu.

Offers for this appointment are contingent on successful completion of a background screening. The University of Michigan is supportive of the needs of dual career couples and is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. Women and members of minority groups are encouraged to apply.

Employer Description:
The mission of the University of Michigan is to serve the people of Michigan and the world through preeminence in creating, communicating, preserving and applying knowledge, art, and academic values, and in developing leaders and citizens who will challenge the present and enrich the future.

Job 19241: Assistant or Associate Professor of Sociology

Date Position is Available: Fall 2024

Application Deadline:

Listing Active: 7/17/2023 to 9/15/2023

Institution: Washington University in St. Louis
Department: Department of Sociology
Region: Midwest
Title: Assistant or Associate Professor of Sociology
Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Assistant/Associate Professor
Tenure/Tenure Track: Tenure Track
Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Racial and Ethnic Relations, Urban Sociology
Salary Range: Negotiable
Submission Link: http://apply.interfolio.com/128201

Job Description:

The Department of Sociology at Washington University in St. Louis invites applications for two tenure-track assistant professor or tenured associate professor positions focused on social inequality, broadly conceived. We are especially interested in candidates who, as part of their research program, will contribute to the development of an ambitious multi-method project to examine inequality in and beyond the St. Louis region.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in sociology or related field, or else complete all requirements for the Ph.D. by July 1, 2024, along with an active research agenda and a commitment to excellent teaching. Candidates for the rank of associate professor should have an outstanding teaching, service, and publication record commensurate with tenure at that rank. Duties include research for scholarly publication, teaching, student advising, and participation in department and university service. Diversity and Inclusion are core values at Washington University, and we seek to create inclusive classrooms and environments in which a diverse array of students can learn and thrive. Washington University and the Department of Sociology especially encourage applications from women and members of underrepresented and minority groups. Salary, teaching requirements, and research support will be highly competitive.

The search committee will consider applications until the search is closed, but applications should be received by September 15, 2023, to ensure full consideration. Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statement of research and teaching interests, names and contact information for three references, and two writing samples. Applications and supporting materials should be submitted electronically via Interfolio (http://apply.interfolio.com/128201).

If applicants have questions about the application process, they should contact Opal Anderson at opal@wustl.edu or call the department at 314-935-8660.

Employment eligibility verification required upon hire.
Employer Description:

This employer offers benefits to all regular full-time and part-time benefits-eligible employees and their spouses, dependents, and domestic partners. Washington University in St. Louis is committed to the principles and practices of equal employment opportunity and especially encourages applications by those underrepresented in their academic fields. It is the University’s policy to recruit, hire, train, and promote persons in all job titles without regard to race, color, age, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, protected veteran status, disability, or genetic information.

Each year Washington University publishes a Safety and Security brochure that details what to do and whom to contact in an emergency. This report also publishes the federally required annual security and fire safety reports, containing campus crime and fire statistics as well as key university policies and procedures. Job 19242: Assistant Professor

Application Deadline:

Listing Active: 7/14/2023 to 10/12/2023

Institution: Hamline University
Department: Department of Social Justice and Social Change
Region: Midwest
Title: Assistant Professor

Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Assistant Professor
Tenure/Tenure Track: Tenure Track

Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Open to All Specialty Areas, Open to All Specialty Areas
Salary Range: Negotiable

Submission Link: https://hamline.wd5.myworkdayjobs.com/Faculty_Career_Site

Job Description:

The Department of Social Justice and Social Change at Hamline University is seeking a tenure-track Assistant Professor. A PhD in Sociology, Anthropology, or a related social science field is required. Those with a PhD in African American Studies, Indigenous Studies, or Women’s & Gender Studies are particularly encouraged to apply. ABD applicants with an expected defense date by August 31st, 2024 will also be considered. The area of specialization is open, but the ideal candidate’s teaching and research will engage meaningfully with both empirical and normative questions of social justice. Tenure-track faculty typically teach six courses per academic year, with a one course reduction during the first year. Ideal candidates will be ready to teach a First Year Seminar, an Introductory course in Social Justice, as well as one or more specific to one’s area of expertise.

The department seeks a candidate whose work is engaged with both the empirical (what is) and the normative (what should be). We seek a candidate whose work is community-engaged and concerned with real-world application. The department is committed to fostering an environment in which all members are supported and feel empowered to achieve their teaching and scholarship goals. We are also looking for a candidate whose work engages questions interdisciplinarily. Each of these elements should characterize both the teaching and research of candidates for consideration.

Further, ideal candidates for consideration will have:

- Demonstrated commitment to teaching excellence;
- Demonstrated commitment to supporting students from diverse backgrounds;
- Willingness to engage in and mentor students through research and internships;
- The ability to teach a range of required courses, including our introductory course, Social Justice and Social Change, and elective course offerings in their areas of expertise;
- Evidence of an active scholarship and research agenda;
- The desire to meaningfully contribute to the college and university community.

Screening of applications begins on September 23, 2023 and will continue until the position is filled. Questions may be addressed to Dr. Ryan Jerome LeCount, Department Chair at 651-523-2153 or rlecount01@hamline.edu.

Employer Description:
Founded in 1854, Hamline was the first university in Minnesota and among the first coeducational institutions in the nation. Hamline University provides a world-class education for undergraduate and graduate students. Our faculty, staff, and students cultivate an ethic of civic responsibility, social justice, and inclusive leadership and service.

Hamline University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. Hamline University does not discriminate on the basis of race; color; religion; creed; sex; sexual orientation; gender identity; gender expression; national origin; marital status; familial status; status with regard to public assistance; membership or activity in a local human rights commission; disability; age; protected veteran status; or any other status protected by applicable law in its education or employment programs or activities. The University will provide reasonable accommodations to qualified individuals with disabilities.

Hamline University is located in the heart of the culturally vibrant Minneapolis-Saint Paul metropolitan area. The College of Liberal Arts, together with Hamline’s School of Business, serves approximately 1,825 undergraduate students. The University’s mission is to create a diverse and collaborative community of learners dedicated to the development of students’ knowledge, values, and skills for successful lives of leadership, scholarship, and service.

The Department is strongly committed to building a diverse and inclusive educational environment, which is in full accord with the value that Hamline University places on its commitments to diversity, equity, and inclusion. Our student body is comprised of a substantial number of diverse student groups, specifically students of color, first generation college students, and students with immigrant/refugee backgrounds.

Position description

The Department of Sociology at the University of California, Berkeley seeks applications for a tenure-track, Assistant Professor faculty position. This hire is part of a multi-year hiring initiative to hire scholars dedicated to advancing knowledge on Understanding (Non)Citizenship.

Successful candidates' scholarship must speak to and advance the goals of the “Understanding (Non)Citizenship” initiative at the University of California, Berkeley, which aims to hire an interdisciplinary cluster of faculty on this topic over two years. The cluster tackles three overarching themes: issues of justice, fairness and equality as related to (non)citizenship; the determinants and content of (non)citizenship; and the consequences of (non)citizenship. The cluster considers citizenship broadly, as a legal, social and cultural status that combines civil, political and social rights with a sense of identity, encompassing those who lack formal citizenship but also those who experience “second-class” citizenship through differential rights and treatment. Fully understanding (non)citizenship requires an interdisciplinary approach: claims for citizenship and equality are invariably normative, while the consequences and drivers of (non)citizenship must be studied empirically to understand change and effects. For this reason, this innovative cluster of faculty hiring will bring together diverse units in the social sciences, humanities and professional schools across UC-Berkeley. Faculty hired through the Understanding (Non)Citizenship cluster will hold positions in Philosophy, Political Science, Public Policy, Sociology and Law. In 2023-24, the Department of Sociology and Goldman School of Public Policy will both conduct separate Assistant Professor searches for the “Understanding (Non)Citizenship” cluster initiative.

The Department of Sociology and the Division of Social Sciences recognize the intrinsic relationship between diversity and excellence in all our endeavors. We embrace open and equitable access to opportunities for learning and development as our obligation and goal. We seek candidates who demonstrate a commitment to advancing diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging through their research, teaching, and/or service. UC Berkeley is committed to upholding the university's principles of community so that every individual can be successful in a healthy, welcoming, and safe environment. Additional information about programs and resources supporting the advancement of diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging is available at:

- https://ls.berkeley.edu/about/diversity-equity-and-inclusion
- https://ls.berkeley.edu/ls-divisions/social-sciences/diversity-equity-and-inclusion
- https://sociology.berkeley.edu/diversity-equity-and-inclusion

Considering the significant disruptions caused by the Covid-19 pandemic, particularly for disadvantaged groups, in our evaluation of applicants, dips in productivity in otherwise strong records occurring with the onset of the pandemic will be evaluated with the context of the pandemic in mind.

The department is committed to addressing the family needs of faculty, including dual career couples and single parents, as well as candidates who have had non-traditional career paths or who have taken time off for family reasons. For information about potential relocation to Berkeley, or career needs of accompanying partners and spouses, please visit: http://ofew.berkeley.edu/new-faculty.

60. Amherst College

Job 19231: Assistant Professor in Sociology

Date Position is Available: Summer 2024

Application Deadline:

Listing Active: 7/13/2023 to 8/12/2023

Institution: Amherst College
Department: Dept of Sociology & Anthroplogy
Region: Northeast
Title: Assistant Professor in Sociology
Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Assistant Professor
Tenure/Tenure Track: Tenure Track

Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Quantitative Methodology
Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:

The Department of Anthropology and Sociology at Amherst College invites applications for a full-time, tenure track position at the rank of assistant professor in sociology, beginning on July 1, 2024. The area of specialization is quantitative and mixed methods. We are especially interested in candidates whose research draws on innovative methodologies and is well-grounded in sociological theory. The research focus area is open. The successful candidate will be expected to maintain an active research agenda and regularly engage in the life of the department, college, and broader discipline, and to teach sociological research methods, as well as creative courses in their own substantive areas of expertise, and to work closely with students on research. The teaching load is two courses per semester, in addition to advising senior honors theses. The college offers robust annual support for research and travel. After successful completion of their third-year review, tenure-track faculty at the college receive one year of sabbatical at full pay in order to advance their research agenda.

Amherst College is one of the most diverse liberal arts colleges in the country. Nearly half of our students identify as domestic students of color, and another 11 percent are international, with non-U.S. citizenship; 16 percent are the first members of their families to attend college. Amherst is committed to providing financial aid that meets 100 percent of every student’s demonstrated need, and nearly 60 percent of our students receive financial aid. Our expectation is that the successful candidate will excel at teaching and mentoring students who are broadly diverse with regard to race, ethnicity, socioeconomic status, gender, nationality, sexual identity, disability/ability, and religion.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in sociology in hand by the start of the appointment. Candidates are asked to apply electronically to https://apply.interfolio.com/127118. Please include in the application a cover letter that addresses research and teaching interests, curriculum vitae, writing sample (fifteen to thirty pages), teaching statement, and an item that gives us a sense of you as a teacher (e.g., syllabus, assignment, etc.), as well as the names and contact information for three references who we can ask to provide letters of recommendation (candidates need not upload letters at this time, the submission will be complete even if it says “pending letters”). Applications will be reviewed beginning on September 18, 2023, and continue until the position is filled. Questions may be directed to Professor Hannah Holleman, at hholleman@amherst.edu.

Employer Description:

Amherst is a member of a Five College Consortium with the University of Massachusetts-Amherst, Mount Holyoke College, Hampshire College, and Smith College, which offers a broad array of opportunities for intellectual community and engagement. More information for prospective candidates about Amherst College is available here: https://www.amherst.edu/academiclife/provost_dean_faculty/faculty_hiring/for-candidates.
Amherst College is an equal opportunity employer and encourages persons of all genders, persons of color, and persons with disabilities to apply. The college is committed to enriching its educational experience and its culture through the diversity of its faculty, administration, and staff.

Job 19234: Postdoctoral Fellow

Date Position is Available: Fall 2024

Application Deadline:

Listing Active: 7/13/2023 to 10/11/2023

Institution: Indiana University-Bloomington
Department: Center for Research on Race and Ethnicity in Society
Region: Midwest

Title: Postdoctoral Fellow
Position/Rank: Fellowships/Post-docs: Post-doctoral
Tenure/Tenure Track: Not Tenure Track

Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Racial and Ethnic Relations

Salary Range: $50,000 - $59,999

Job Description:

The Center for Research on Race and Ethnicity in Society (CRRES) at Indiana University, Bloomington, invites applications for up to two CRRES Postdoctoral Fellowships. These fellowships provide support to scholars studying race and ethnicity from a broad range of fields in the social sciences and humanities, including education, criminal justice, environmental studies, international studies (e.g., climate, human rights, and development), gender/sexualities, public health, and media (e.g., consumer culture, game design, film, social media activism, and sports media). We are particularly interested in candidates whose research intersects with African American and African Diaspora Studies, Native and Indigenous Studies, Latino Studies, Asian American Studies, African Studies, Latin American Studies, and/or Global Indigenous Studies. Fellows will be placed in one of IU’s sixteen degree granting schools, and are expected to pursue research activities associated with their primary area of work, as demonstrated by conference presentations and published works. CRRES fellowships are designed to advance the careers of new scholars by providing opportunities to research, teach, and connect with mentors and with faculty in host departments. Strong applicants will demonstrate evidence of scholarly potential that will make them competitive for tenure-track appointments at Indiana University and other research universities.

Terms of Agreement Fellows are expected to pursue research, teach one course during each year of residency, and participate in CRRES as well as host department activities and seminars. This two-year position begins on August 1, 2024 and ends on May 31, 2026, at a 10-month annual salary of $51,500. Postdoctoral fellows will also receive Indiana University health benefits and $3,000 each year in research support.

Application Process We invite applications from qualified candidates at the beginning of their academic careers who do not yet hold tenure-track academic positions. Applicants must have a Ph.D. in hand or a letter from the chair of their dissertation committee confirming the timeline for completion and filing by June 30, 2024. Applicants should submit a (1) cover letter; (2) CV; (3) research statement describing dissertation project, work in progress, plans for publication, and professional goals; (4) teaching statement; (5) writing sample; (6) diversity statement highlighting contributions to diversity by way of scholarship, pedagogy, and/or community engagement; and (7) three letters of reference. Applications should be submitted online at: <https://indiana.peopleadmin.com/postings/19298>. Cover letters should be addressed to: Prof. Sylvia Martinez, Search Committee Chair, Center for Research on Race and Ethnicity in Society, Indiana University, Schuessler Institute for Social Research, 1022 E.

Third Street, Bloomington, IN 47405. Queries should be sent to crres@indiana.edu. Applications received by October 5, 2023 at 12:00 pm EST will receive full consideration. Information about the Center can be found at: http://crres.indiana.edu.

Indiana University is an equal employment and Affirmative Action Employer and a provider of ADA services. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, ethnicity, color, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, genetic information, marital status, national origin, disability status, or protected veteran status. Indiana University does not discriminate on the basis of sex in its educational programs and activities, including employment and admission, as required by Title IX. Questions or complaints regarding Title IX may be referred to the U.S. Department of Education Office for Civil Rights or the university Title IX Coordinator. Title: Assistant Professor of Sociology
Tenure/Tenure Track: Tenure Track

Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Racial and Ethnic Relations, Latina/o Sociology

Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:

The University of Oregon, Department of Sociology, aims to hire a sociologist of race and ethnicity whose work focuses on Latinx populations. Beyond a required focus in race/ethnicity and Latinx populations, we welcome applicants using a variety of methodologies and with strengths in additional subfields. The Assistant Professor is expected to continue an active and innovative research program that directly engages Latinx sociology. The ideal candidate will hold a demonstrated record of rigorous scholarship, commitment to mentoring underrepresented students and to inclusive teaching, and contributions to professional and/or community service.

This position is one of six new tenure track faculty positions being filled as part of the College of Arts and Sciences’ Latinx Cluster Hire (LCH). The LCH aims to increase faculty diversity, innovative research, and culturally relevant curriculum and mentorship through increased engagement and collaboration across the UO campus and in partnership with the Latinx Studies Program on issues of race and racism, access and equity, and social, cultural, and political debates pertinent to Chicanx, Latinx/e, and Latin American Studies. More information about the LCH can be found at https://careers.uoregon.edu/en-us/job/531915/assistant-professor-in-sociology.

The Department of Sociology is a vibrant community featuring leading scholars within sociology and related interdisciplinary fields. Faculty have expertise in a range of theories and methods, underscoring our commitment to training our students in the many tools within the sociological toolkit. Program strengths include the sociology of race, gender, environment, health, culture, and political & economic sociology. The successful candidate will have opportunities to connect with other units on campus such as the Department of Indigenous, Race, and Ethnic Studies (IRES), Latinx Studies, and the Center for Latino and Latin American Studies (CLLAS).

The Department of Sociology respects the rights, dignity, and worth of all members of our department and university community, including students, staff, faculty, the community where we live and work, and the communities that we research and study. As Sociologists, we are bound by the standards encompassed within the ASA Code of Ethics, and our department agrees that we wish to use this standard to guide our behavior. We are committed to nurturing a learning and working environment that respects differences in culture, age, gender, race, ethnicity, physical and mental disability, sexual orientation, and religious affiliation. More information about our department can be found at: https://sociology.uoregon.edu/
Applications can be submitted at https://careers.uoregon.edu/en-us/job/531915/assistant-professor-in-sociology. The application process requires candidates to submit the following:

- current CV
  - cover letter (3 page limit; discusses research agenda and teaching philosophy)
  - a statement of contributions to (and future plans to advance) diversity, equity, and inclusion (1 page limit)
  - up to two writing samples (each one not to exceed 40 pages)
  - three reference letters

Minimum requirements at the time of appointment include completion of a PhD from an accredited institution in Sociology or related field in advance of the job start date. The due date for applications is September 15, 2023.

The University of Oregon is an equal opportunity, affirmative action institution committed to cultural diversity and compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act. The University encourages all qualified individuals to apply and does not discriminate on the basis of any protected status, including veteran or disability status.

Minimum Requirements for application:

- Ph.D. in Sociology, Latinx/Chicanx Studies, Ethnic Studies, or related field in advance of the job start date
- Record of research in the fields of race/ethnicity and Latinx sociology
- Established record of (or evidence of potential for) teaching in the fields of race/ethnicity and Latinx sociology

Professional Competencies:

- A history of, and commitment to, mentoring underrepresented students.
- Demonstrated commitment to inclusive frameworks for teaching.

Preferred Qualifications:

- Demonstrated contributions to professional and/or community service in the areas of race/ethnicity and Latinx sociology
- Contributions to public education in the media

Employer Description:

The University of Oregon is located in the Willamette Valley; campus sits on 295-acres and features state-of-the-art facilities in an arboretum-like setting. Eugene is a vibrant and growing metropolitan area of over 200,000 people located two hours from Portland.

The University of Oregon is located on Kalapuya Illhee the traditional homelands of the Kalapuya people. Following treaties between 1851 and 1855, Kalapuya people were dispossessed of their indigenous homeland by the United States government and forcibly removed to the Coast Reservation in Western Oregon. Today, Kalapuya descendants are primarily citizens of the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde and the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians, and they continue to make important contributions to their communities, to the University of Oregon, to the land we now call Oregon, and to the world.

Job Description:

Centenary College of Louisiana invites applications for a tenure-track sociology position at the rank of assistant professor to begin August 2024. Candidates should be prepared to teach both introductory and upper level courses, including Introduction to Sociology, Race and Ethnicity, and Social Theory. Preference will be given to candidates with expertise in race and ethnicity, particularly as it intersects with any of the following: criminal justice, healthcare inequalities, environmental justice, or social movements. Candidates should also be prepared to contribute to the development and implementation of various social justice and diversity initiatives on campus.

Faculty at Centenary are expected to be student centered, focusing heavily on engaged, innovative teaching in small class settings, advising individual and group student research projects, and mentoring students. Candidates are also required to have a strong record of scholarship and a clear research agenda. The standard teaching load is six courses per year, with opportunities to teach in immersive May and August terms and to participate in college-wide programs such as Centenary in Paris. A completed Ph.D. by August 2024 is required.

Centenary College recognizes that diversity is essential to its goal of providing an educational environment where students explore the unfamiliar, invent new approaches to understanding, and connect their work and lives to the world at large. We thus welcome applicants who would add to the College’s diversity of ideas, beliefs, experiences, and cultural backgrounds. Centenary is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

To apply, send a letter of application, curriculum vitae, writing sample (approximately 15-20 pages), unofficial transcripts from all institutions of higher learning, and the names, telephone numbers, and email addresses of three references. Candidate materials should address experience and/or commitment to teaching and mentoring undergraduate students from diverse backgrounds and to advancing the College’s commitment to diversity. Official transcripts, letters of recommendation, and a background check are required before a candidate can be hired.

Priority review of applications will begin on September 15, 2023.

Job Description:

The University Center for Human Values invites applications for Laurance S. Rockefeller Visiting Faculty Fellowships for academic year 2024-25. Fellows devote an academic year in residence to research and writing about topics involving human values in public and private life. This full-time visiting program is open to scholars in all disciplines across the humanities and social sciences. For 2024-25, the Center’s designated research theme is Criminal Justice, but scholars need not work on Criminal Justice to apply. We anticipate that roughly half of the fellowships awarded for 2024-25 will fall within the research theme, and welcome applications for research projects in any area of human values, broadly defined. We welcome applications from scholars from a variety of disciplines for both our theme and non-theme fellowships.

For those proposing research on the theme of Criminal Justice, we are especially interested in research which may critically analyze underlying values in the philosophy and practice of criminal justice; evaluate institutional formations and policy proposals in light of those values; and explore the roles played by race, ethnicity, gender, and other factors in the differential ways that criminal justice is conceived and carried out in specific contexts.

For thematically relevant applications, please state this explicitly and describe the relevance of the research to the theme. In assessing each application, we look for the potential of applicants to contribute to and benefit from a research community that draws together scholars who work in and across different disciplines.

Fellows are expected to reside in or around Princeton or demonstrate to the program's satisfaction the ability to be on campus daily and on short notice. Fellows are expected to pursue their own research and to be active contributors to the intellectual life of UCHV. This includes participating in a weekly seminar to discuss work in progress. Candidates must have a doctorate or equivalent professional degree and a strong record of research publications appropriate to their career stage. Typically, Fellows hold faculty positions at other universities or colleges; in exceptional cases we consider applications from independent scholars.
when there is a high level of scholarly achievement. This is not a postdoctoral fellowship program and we do not generally consider candidates who will have held the Ph.D. for less than two years at the time of appointment.

The fellowship typically extends from September 1 to June 1. Fellows receive a stipend paid in nine equal installments. Ordinarily, home institutions provide a portion of their salaries in addition to benefits, although this is not a requirement. Independent scholars are eligible to apply.

Main considerations are the following:

*The significance of the proposed research and its relevance to the purposes of the University Center for Human Values
*The quality of a candidate's previous research and the contribution the candidate is likely to make in the future
*The likelihood that the research would benefit from being conducted at UCHV
*Where applicable, the relevance of the application to the Center's designated research theme

HOW TO APPLY

Candidates must submit an online application at https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/30681.

Required materials:

1. A CV
2. A scholarly paper (no more than 12,000 words) written in the past three years
3. A statement (no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed project. Describe the project's relevance to the research theme where applicable
4. Contact information for three referees, including one who was not a graduate advisor (note, the priority deadline for letters of reference only is Thursday, October 26, 2023; all other applicant materials must be submitted by the earlier deadline stated below). Referees will be contacted directly

Applicant materials must be submitted by: Thursday, October 19, 2023, 11:59 p.m. EST. Decisions expected by late March 2024.

Princeton University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

POSITION DESCRIPTION
The Department of Sociology at the University of California, Berkeley seeks applications for a tenure-track, Assistant Professor faculty position. Candidates will be considered regardless of field of specialization. The position's duties include: academic research and publications, undergraduate and graduate teaching, and administrative service. The department welcomes candidates with the potential for innovation and leadership in research, commitment to educating and mentoring diverse students, dedicated or planned service to the field or their communities, and those who share our core values: https://sociology.berkeley.edu/diversity-equity-and-inclusion.

The Department of Sociology and the Division of Social Sciences recognize the intrinsic relationship between diversity and excellence in all our endeavors. We embrace open and equitable access to opportunities for learning and development as our obligation and goal. We seek candidates who demonstrate a commitment to advancing diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging through their research, teaching, and/or service. UC Berkeley is committed to upholding the university’s principles of community so that every individual can be successful in a healthy, welcoming, and safe environment. Additional information about programs and resources supporting the advancement of diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging is available at:

- https://ls.berkeley.edu/about/diversity-equity-and-inclusion
- https://ls.berkeley.edu/ls-divisions/social-sciences/diversity-equity-and-inclusion

Considering the significant disruptions caused by the Covid-19 pandemic, particularly for disadvantaged groups, in our evaluation of applicants, dips in productivity in otherwise strong records occurring with the onset of the pandemic will be evaluated with the context of the pandemic in mind.

The department is committed to addressing the family needs of faculty, including dual career couples and single parents, as well as candidates who have had non-traditional career paths or who have taken time off for family reasons. For information about potential relocation to Berkeley, or career needs of accompanying partners and spouses, please visit: http://ofew.berkeley.edu/new-faculty.

Tenure-Track Assistant Professor of Criminology

Department of Sociology and Criminology

Position Summary:

The Department of Sociology and Criminology at Villanova University invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professorship in the criminology program, starting in August of 2024. We seek a promising scholar who shares the Department's enthusiasm for quality research, undergraduate teaching excellence, and dedicated service. We especially encourage applicants whose scholarship focuses on one or more of the following pressing contemporary issues: gun violence, political violence/terrorism, cybercrime, and comparative criminology, although other specialties may be considered. Successful candidates will have a demonstrated commitment to promoting diversity, inclusion, and multicultural competence in an educational environment and contribute to Villanova University’s Strategic Plan, Rooted. Restless (https://www1.villanova.edu/university/strategic-plan.html).

Duties and Qualifications:

Primary teaching responsibilities will be in the Criminology program and consist of five undergraduate courses per academic year, with a semester-long sabbatical after a successful third-year review. In addition to teaching courses aligned with their expertise, our new colleague will be expected to teach the introductory-level course along with the research methods and/or data analysis course. Candidates for this position are encouraged to pursue an active research agenda and strive for high-quality publications. We value meaningful university, disciplinary, and public service from our departmental colleagues. Candidates should have earned a Ph.D. in Criminology or Sociology by the time of appointment.

Special message to Applicants:
Applicants must apply online at https://jobs.villanova.edu/. The online application should include:

1) a letter indicating interests and suitability for the position
2) a statement of research and teaching interests
3) curriculum vitae
4) evidence of teaching effectiveness (e.g., sample syllabi, evaluations)
5) unofficial academic transcripts
6) three electronically submitted letters of recommendation

Review of applications begins August 23, 2023, and will continue until the position is filled.

Employer Description:

Villanova is a Catholic university sponsored by the Augustinian Order, located in the thriving and culturally diverse Philadelphia metropolitan area. An AA/EEO employer, Villanova seeks a diverse faculty committed to scholarship, teaching, and service, as well as the University's mission, particularly regarding social justice and public service. Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion have been and will continue to be integral components of Villanova University's mission.

Job Description:

The University of Hong Kong

Tenure-Track Associate / Assistant Professor in the Department of Sociology

Ref.: 521030
Work type: Full-time
Department: Department of Sociology (30400)
Categories: Professoriate Staff

Applications are invited for appointment as Tenure-Track Associate / Assistant Professor in the Department of Sociology (Ref.: 521030), to commence on September 1, 2023 or as soon as possible thereafter, on a three-year fixed-term basis with the possibility of renewal and consideration for tenure before the expiry of a second three-year fixed-term contract.

The Department of Sociology was founded in 1967, at that time the first sociology department in Hong Kong. It has a long tradition of marrying the twin disciplines of Sociology and Anthropology, developing an interdisciplinary approach to the study of social issues in Hong Kong, China, and Asia more generally. The 2023 QS World University Ranking rated the Department the 25th among the world’s top 200 universities in the subject of sociology. The Department offers a range of innovative and engaging taught programmes, including undergraduate major/minor programmes in Sociology, Criminology and Media & Cultural Studies. In addition to research postgraduate degrees, it also offers two taught postgraduate programmes in Criminology and Media, Culture and Creative Cities. Its faculty, research postgraduate students and post-doctoral fellows, are actively engaged in cutting-edge research and excel in producing excellent scholarly research in the social sciences. The Department is also home to the HKU Anthropology Research Network. Information about the Department can be obtained at https://sociology.hku.hk

Applicants should possess a Ph.D. degree in sociology or related areas such as anthropology, contemporary China studies, demography, and we particularly welcome applicants with research expertise in the fields of criminology and/or media and cultural studies.

The appointees will teach at the undergraduate and postgraduate levels programmes, supervise research postgraduate students, conduct and publish high quality research work, and assume high-level service/administrative responsibilities.

A highly competitive salary commensurate with qualifications and experience will be offered, in addition to annual leave and medical benefits. At the current rates, salaries tax does not exceed 15% of gross income. The appointment will attract a contract-end gratuity and University contribution to a retirement benefits scheme, totaling up to 15% of the basic salary. Housing benefits will be provided as applicable.

The University only accepts online application for the above posts. Applicants should apply online at the University’s careers site (https://jobs.hku.hk) and upload (1) a cover letter indicating the earliest availability date, (2) an up-to-date CV with the contact information of three referees, (3) one sample of a representative research output, (4) a research plan of not more than 2 pages, (5) a teaching statement of not more than 2 pages, and (6) outlines of two proposed undergraduate courses. Review of applications will start as soon as possible and continue until July 31, 2023 or until the posts are filled, whichever is earlier.

The University is an equal opportunities employer and is committed to equality, ethics, inclusivity, diversity and transparency

This is a university-year appointment with an expected start date of August 26, 2024.

We invite scholars whose research and teaching engages the complexity of Jewish identities, experiences, and practices in the contemporary world. Scholars whose work draws on social science theories and methods (including, but not limited to, anthropology, sociology, political thought, ethics, and media & communication studies) are particularly encouraged to apply.

Candidates should demonstrate outstanding scholarly achievement as well as excellence in teaching and mentorship. They will also be expected to contribute to the Frankel Center’s public outreach efforts and participate in cross-departmental initiatives and collaborations.

A completed Ph. D. is required by the time of appointment. Application review begins on September 18, 2023 and will continue until an appointment is made.

All application materials should be submitted online through Interfolio. Materials should include a cover letter detailing the candidate’s interest in and qualifications for the position, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching philosophy and experience (2-3 pages), statement of current and future research plans (2-3 pages), a writing sample (approximately 25 pages), teaching evaluations and other evidence of teaching excellence. Additionally, please include a diversity statement that demonstrates your commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion through scholarship/research, and/or teaching/mentoring, and/or service/engagement. There may be some overlap with your research proposal and teaching statements. Candidates selected for interviews will be asked to provide three letters of reference.

For any questions, please contact Michele Fleming at js-secretary-admin@umich.edu.
Offers for this appointment are contingent on successful completion of a background screening. The University of Michigan is supportive of the needs of dual career couples and is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. Women and members of minority groups are encouraged to apply.

The JSRI Fellow supports initiatives related to race, poverty and migration to fulfill JSRI’s mission to transform the Gulf South through research, education, advocacy, and service on race, poverty, and migration. The JSRI Fellow interacts with a variety of community and campus partners on behalf of JSRI to advance our priorities and programming.

The JSRI Fellow will provide research, writing, and advocacy on higher education in prisons, as well as contribute research capacity to support ongoing and emerging statewide efforts to expand higher education in prisons across Louisiana and nationally. Specifically, the JSRI Fellow will monitor the emerging trends and policies, undertake applied research and policy analysis, and then share this information with leaders working to advance higher education in prisons across Louisiana, as well as university stakeholders and community leaders.

The JSRI Fellow may also work with consultants and affiliated faculty members, in addition to supervising staff members, work study students, and interns.

Focus issues will include:
1. Improvement and expansion of higher education in prisons in Louisiana and nationally
2. Relation between higher education in prisons and JSRI’s mission to transform the Gulf South through research, education, advocacy and service on the key issues of race, poverty and migration.

Principal Duties and Responsibilities:

Research and Education: Facilitates knowledge building and management focused on achievement of the following results:

- Collection, analysis, and interpretation of data, combined with thorough research of related issues in the preparation of high-quality analyses and reports;
○ Production of reports on key issues in higher education in prisons in Louisiana;
○ Development of pedagogical resources and processes specific to higher education in prisons in Louisiana;
○ Sound contributions to knowledge networks and communities of practice through identification of lessons learned and guidelines for action.

Outreach and Dissemination: Effectively communicates and disseminates JSRI and partners activities focused on the achievement of the following results:

○ Public presentation of JSRI activities and research findings through participation in relevant forums, meetings, and conferences;
○ Contributions to the development of content and editing of publications and reports;
○ Support for expanded partnerships and collaborations to increase access to higher education in prisons in Louisiana.

The results of such research and analysis will be shared, as appropriate, with local, state, national leaders, coalition partners, community groups, the press, media, policymakers, and in JSRI publications (JustSouth Newsletter, JustSouth special reports, JSRI website, etc.).

Collaboration: Works closely with a variety of interested parties both within and outside of Loyola University New Orleans to conduct research and contribute to programming with the goal of expanding access to higher education in prisons.

Qualifications:

○ A terminal degree in a field related to the mission of JSRI (e.g. sociology, political science, law, humanities, etc.).
○ 5 years of experience in social science, political science, social work, law, criminal justice advocacy or a related field.
○ Expertise in issues related to the criminal legal system.
○ Commitment to foster and promote Catholic Social Teaching and the Jesuit tradition of “the faith that does justice” as an integral part of the University’s overall intellectual commitment to research, teaching excellence and service.

○ Experience implementing qualitative methodologies for social science research.
○ Knowledge of presenting research and advocacy
○ Excellent verbal and written communication skills.
○ Effective skills in editing and presenting ideas and concepts.
○ Ability to relate well with numerous types of people: administration, faculty, staff, students, and JSRI constituency
○ Ability to take initiative and to be flexible in order to collaborate in JSRI as it develops and grows new programs
○ Ability to work well with the director, faculty, and staff
○ Willingness to travel extensively throughout the state of Louisiana and across the US, conducting research in prisons as well as attending relevant meetings and conferences, adjusting work schedule as needed
○ Note: this position requires residence in the New Orleans area to participate in meetings and research in-person

Preferred Qualifications:

○ PhD Preferred
○ Humanities and humanistic social science research experience and skills
○ Experience with implementing multi-year research projects involving evaluation and partnership development
○ All applicants are welcome. Black, Indigenous, and People of Color (BIPOC), immigrants, women, LGBTQ, and formerly incarcerated candidates are strongly encouraged to apply.
Employment Terms

Works under a twelve-month, grant-funded contract renewable for three years and possibly longer, pending further funding; $70,000 plus benefits.

Employer Description:

Loyola University New Orleans is a Catholic, Jesuit university, located in the heart of the picturesque Uptown neighborhood in New Orleans. For more than 100 years, Loyola has helped shape the lives of our students, as well as the history of our city and the world, through educating men and women in the Jesuit traditions of academic excellence and service to others. Our more than 50,000 living graduates serve as catalysts for change in their communities around the world as they exemplify the comprehensive, values-laden education they received at Loyola.

The JSRI Fellow is an extraordinary faculty member in the Jesuit Social Research Institute (JSRI) Department. JSRI Fellows report to the JSRI Executive Director.

The Jesuit Social Research Institute (JSRI) was founded in 2007 to transform the Gulf South through action research, analysis, education, and advocacy on the core issues of poverty, race, and migration through the lens of Catholic Social Teaching. As part of an organizational restructuring, JSRI will be accomplishing this mission by focusing on issues related to the criminal legal system in Louisiana. JSRI is a collaboration of Loyola University New Orleans and the United States Central and Southern (UCS) Province of the Society of Jesus (the Jesuits).

In 2022, JSRI launched a prison education program at Loyola, beginning with credit-bearing courses offered to incarcerated students and staff at Rayburn Correctional Center in Angie, LA. Currently 40 incarcerated students and 20 correctional employees are taking Loyola courses. The prison education program strives to bring the full Loyola experience to the prison and integrate the students into our community, thereby contributing to Loyola University New Orleans’ mission to welcome students of diverse backgrounds and prepare them to lead meaningful lives with and for others; to pursue truth, wisdom, and virtue; and to work for a more just world.

Job Description:

Job Summary:
The Department of Human Development and Family Studies (HDFS) in the School of Human Ecology (SoHE), University of Wisconsin (UW)-Madison invites applicants for a departmental cluster of up to 3 tenure-track or tenured faculty positions. We seek candidates with a desire to work in an interdisciplinary environment at a leading university who have an active research agenda and established research record focused on early relational health, which includes factors that promote safe, stable, and nurturing relationships from the prenatal period to age five, and the impacts of such relationships on children's and families' health and well-being across the lifespan.

We are seeking candidates who will join us in achieving our department's vision of becoming globally prominent and locally relevant in the conduct and application of rigorous research on human development (including relationships, families, intervention, program evaluation, and policy studies) to solve societal problems and to contribute to the well-being of children and families.

We strive to be a leading program for relational and developmental systems approaches to studying human development in context; methodological diversity and rigor applied to understanding and solving real-world problems; and a strengths-based approach to understanding and promoting equity and justice. Diversity and inclusion are strong values within the HDFS Department and are integral to achieving our strategic goals. We seek candidates with an awareness of and commitment to the principles of diversity and inclusion across all spectrums.

The successful candidate(s) will have an active research agenda and established research record focused on early relational health, which includes factors that promote safe, stable, and nurturing relationships from the prenatal period to age five, and the impacts of such relationships on children's and families' health and well-being across the lifespan. Relevant research topics include (but are not limited to) factors that affect and are affected by...
infant-parent/caregiver attachment; infant and early childhood mental health; trauma-informed care; the impact of fathers/fathering during the prenatal to five period; how parent/caregiver identities (e.g., gender, sexual orientation, ability, race, ethnicity) and other factors (e.g., mental health, financial or social resources) affect parenting/caregiving behavior with infants and young children; intergenerational impacts of early experience (e.g., trauma, attachment); strengths-based approaches to understanding parenting/caregiving in adversity; and promoting early relational health and parent/caregiver resilience through education, prevention, intervention, and policy.

Faculty positions in HDFS carry research, teaching, and service responsibilities appropriate for the rank sought. The 2:2 teaching load (4 courses per year) includes courses at both the undergraduate and graduate levels. Numerous opportunities exist for course buyouts or partial release from teaching, including extramural research grants and intramural incentive grants. Other responsibilities include leading an independent and high-impact research program; seeking external research funding; advising and working with graduate students; and participating in department, school, and university service.

Responsibilities:
Faculty positions in HDFS carry a commitment to the three functions of UW-Madison faculty (teaching, research, and outreach/service) as well as professional and university service as appropriate to the position and rank. A 9-month academic year position includes a 2:2 teaching load (4 courses per year) or equivalent, which includes undergraduate and graduate courses, with an opportunity for buyout using research grants and/or incentive grants.

The successful candidate(s) will be expected to:
- Develop and lead an independent research program;
- Collaborate with investigators in the HDFS Department, School of Human Ecology, and/or research centers at UW-Madison or its partner institutions;
- Publish research findings in venues appropriate to areas of investigation;
- Seek external funding as appropriate to areas of investigation;
- Disseminate findings of high-impact research to a wide range of stakeholders appropriate to areas of investigation;
- Teach undergraduate and graduate courses in HDFS;
- Advise graduate students and mentor undergraduate students;
- Contribute to undergraduate and graduate program development in HDFS;
- Join the faculty in shared governance of the Department and School;
- Participate in department, school, university, and professional service appropriate to the faculty rank;
- Demonstrate commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion;
- Promote respect and the practice of civility in the workplace.

Institutional Statement on Diversity:
Diversity is a source of strength, creativity, and innovation for UW-Madison. We value the contributions of each person and respect the profound ways their identity, culture, background, experience, status, abilities, and opinion enrich the university community. We commit ourselves to the pursuit of excellence in teaching, research, outreach, and diversity as inextricably linked goals.

The University of Wisconsin-Madison fulfills its public mission by creating a welcoming and inclusive community for people from every background - people who as students, faculty, and staff serve Wisconsin and the world.

For more information on diversity and inclusion on campus, please visit: Diversity and Inclusion

Education:
Required
PhD
Preferred focus in human development and family studies, psychology, public health, sociology, social work, or a related discipline required by start date.

Qualifications:
Candidates must have proven success in conducting research and teaching appropriate to their stage of career. Years of experience will be commensurate with the rank sought. Associate and Full Professor candidates must possess experience and scholarly credentials for appointment with tenure at UW-Madison.

The successful candidate(s) will have:
- Demonstrated ability to lead a research program that attracts (or has the potential to attract) external funding, engages students, and produces high-impact scholarship;
- Research program that centers on early relational health, which includes factors that promote safe, stable, and nurturing relationships from the prenatal period to age five, and the impacts of such relationships on children's and families' health and well-being across the lifespan;
- Commitment to excellence in undergraduate and graduate teaching and mentoring;
- Ability to apply a strengths-based approach to understanding diverse individuals, families, and communities;
- Commitment to empowering individuals and families to strengthen relationships through education, intervention, prevention, and policy to improve the quality of lives;
- Commitment to university, professional, and community service and outreach;
- Ability to work effectively and compassionately with a diverse community and student population to support learning and personal/professional development.

Work Type:
Full Time: 100%
It is anticipated this position requires work be performed in-person, onsite, at a designated campus work location.

Appointment Type, Duration:
Ongoing/Renewable

Anticipated Begin Date:
AUGUST 19, 2024

Employer Description:

DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN DEVELOPMENT AND FAMILY STUDIES: The HDFS Department at UW-Madison works to promote health and well-being across the lifespan. Our program is enriched by interdisciplinarity among faculty conducting basic and applied research. At both the graduate and undergraduate level, our program has a well-rounded curriculum that is applied, equity-oriented, strengths-based, and methodologically rigorous. The HDFS Department includes 16 tenured/tenure-track professors and full-time instructional staff. Four faculty members hold integrated appointments with UW Extension, and many faculty members are affiliated with a range of UW research centers, including the Institute for Research on Poverty and the Waisman Center. Our programs include approximately 320 undergraduate majors and approximately 35 graduate students. Departmental resources for teaching and research include the Child Development Lab and the Frances & Elliot Lehman Family Research Center (descriptions below). We also have numerous outreach programs for children and families, as well as the resources of the entire UW campus. See https://humanecology.wisc.edu/academics/departments/human-development-family-studies/

CHILD DEVELOPMENT LAB: The UW-Madison CDL is a laboratory school housed in SoHE that provides year-round, high-quality early education programs for children ages 6 weeks to 5 years. In addition, the CDL supports the teaching, research, and outreach missions of the University in several ways, including: on-site and virtual observation booths; undergraduate courses in early childhood development, advocacy, and research; internship placements; and opportunities for faculty and student research with children, families, and early childhood professionals. The CDL also manages the Frances & Elliot Lehman Family Research Center, which is a comfortably furnished research space with observation booths and state-of-the-art recording equipment ideal for research with children and families from the community. See https://childdevelopmentlab.wisc.edu/

SCHOOL OF HUMAN ECOLOGY: The mission of the SoHE is to understand the complex relationship among individuals, groups and families, and to focus on quality-of-life issues through research, creative innovation, education, and outreach. The School has four academic departments (Civil Society and Community Studies, Consumer Science, Design Studies, and HDFS) with a collective enrollment of approximately 2,400 undergraduate students and approximately 100 graduate students. A common theme across all departments in the School is the application of human science. See http://humanecology.wisc.edu
UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-MADISON: UW-Madison has a strong reputation as a research university and for producing research that improves people's lives. The University consistently ranks among the top 10 institutions in national research expenditures. In 2015, the University received a community engagement award from the Carnegie Foundation for its commitment to deeply engaging with local, regional, national, and global communities. UW-Madison is a land-grant institution with an enrollment of about 35,000 undergraduate students and 10,000 graduate students. Madison (pop. 270,000) is the state capital and combines the culture of a large urban area with the comfort of a small city. See http://wisc.edu

Salary Range: Negotiable

Submission Link: https://hr.gatech.edu/careers

Job Description:

The School of History and Sociology (HSOC) at Georgia Institute of Technology invites applications for a tenure-track faculty position in sociology at the rank of assistant professor. The position will begin in August 2024. We seek a candidate whose research specializes in social justice and inequality. We are especially interested in scholars whose research uses intersectional approaches and can contribute to the school's interest in Black, gender, and/or sexuality studies.

The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses in their areas of expertise and demonstrate excellence in research, teaching, and mentoring students. At the time of appointment, the new hire must have a Ph.D. degree and an established research trajectory that fits with the mission of the school.

HSOC believes diversity is foundational to creating the most intellectually vibrant and successful academic communities. Therefore, we are especially interested in applicants who will work effectively with students, faculty, and staff from diverse backgrounds, including women, those who are Black, Indigenous, People of Color, from minority ethnic groups, identify with LGBTQIA+ communities, have disabilities, from lower income backgrounds, and/or first-generation college students. Women and members of underrepresented groups are strongly encouraged to apply.

We will begin reviewing applications on September 8, 2023. Application materials should be sent electronically. Please submit a letter of application, which speaks to your qualifications for the position, a curriculum vita, up to three writing samples, and three letters of recommendation through Georgia Tech’s Careers Site at (Job ID 259271). A teaching portfolio will be requested for all final candidates. Requests for information may be directed to Dr. Jennifer Singh at Jennifer.singh@hsoc.gatech.edu

The School of History and Sociology (HSOC) is a uniquely interdisciplinary unit with an intellectual culture of cross-pollination between sociological and historical scholarship, as well as work in science and technology studies. The School is united around a vision of scholarship and teaching that elucidates processes of local, national, and global change, past and present. This mission includes promoting a broader understanding of how racial, gender, and class inequalities intersect, as well as how technology, science, and culture are intertwined.
One of six schools in the Ivan Allen College of Liberal Arts at Georgia Tech, the School of History and Sociology offers a Bachelor of Science degree in History, Technology, and Society (HTS), a research-intensive major that equips our graduates with the analytical techniques and communication skills necessary to understand and meet the challenges of a rapidly changing world. In collaboration with other schools within the Liberal Arts at Georgia Tech, HSOC sponsors many innovative programs, including undergraduate Minors in Sports, Society, and Technology; Social Justice; Women, Science, and Technology; and Health, Medicine and Society. At the graduate level, HSOC offers master’s and doctoral degrees in the History and Sociology of Technology and Science. Our graduate students come from across the globe to gain expertise in these increasingly important fields of study— and have been exceptionally successful in gaining employment throughout the world, including in academe, government, nongovernmental organizations, and corporations. For more information about the School of History and Sociology, please visit http://hsoc.gatech.edu.

Georgia Tech is a top-ranked public research university situated in the heart of Atlanta, a diverse and vibrant city with great economic and cultural strengths. The Institute is a member of the University System of Georgia, the Georgia Research Alliance, and the Association of American Universities. Georgia Tech prides itself on its technology resources, collaborations, high-quality student body, and its commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. Georgia Tech is an equal education/employment opportunity institution dedicated to building a diverse community. We strongly encourage applications from women, underrepresented minorities, individuals with disabilities, and veterans. Georgia Tech has policies to promote a healthy work-life balance and is aware that attracting faculty may require meeting the needs of two careers.

Salary Range: $60,000 - $69,999
Submission Link: < a href='http://www.gonzaga.edu/jobs' target='_blank'>www.gonzaga.edu/jobs

Job Description:

The Department of Sociology and Criminology at Gonzaga University in Spokane, WA. invites applications for up to two full-time lecturer positions for the 2023-24 academic year (4/4 teaching load). We seek up to two criminologists who are committed to the teacher-scholar model. Field subarea expertise within criminology is open. Candidates must demonstrate a commitment to teaching excellence and an inclusive learning environment, articulate course offerings they would contribute to the Department curriculum and describe their fit with Gonzaga’s mission.

We wish to welcome teacher-scholars who possess strong pedagogical abilities, with particular sensitivity to inclusive, equity-minded teaching practices and who has demonstrated experience or interest in mentoring undergraduates from a variety of backgrounds and identities, including those historically marginalized in the academy (e.g., first-generation students, students from low-income families, students of color, LGBTQ+ students, students with disabilities).

The College of Arts and Sciences is committed to inclusive excellence, to increasing the diversity of the campus community, and to supporting traditionally underrepresented students in higher education, especially at a predominantly white institution. In alignment with Gonzaga University’s mission, we expect applicants to provide evidence of direct experience and expertise in issues related to social justice, diversity, global engagement, and care for/solidarity with vulnerable and marginalized communities. Candidates who have demonstrated experience working with a diverse range of faculty, staff, and students, and who can contribute to the departmental ethos and campus climate of inclusivity are encouraged to identify specific experiences in these areas. Candidates who have demonstrated expertise in issues applicable to diverse populations and direct experience working with underrepresented and minoritized students through teaching, research, mentoring, or administration are preferred.

Required Qualifications:

• Ph.D., ABD, or MA/MS (will be considered if the degree will be conferred by July 15, 2023) in Criminology, Criminal Justice, Sociology or closely related field.

• Evidence of teaching effectiveness, including the ability to effectively respond to the academic needs of learners from diverse backgrounds

Job Duties:
Teach 24 credit hours per year (4 courses or 12 credits each semester), including introductory-level courses (CRIM101, CRIM193, SOCI101, or SOCI193) and CRIM electives in the candidate’s areas of expertise.

Application Procedure:

To apply, please visit our website at www.gonzaga.edu/jobs. Applicants must complete an online application and electronically submit (1) a cover letter, (2) curriculum vitae, (3) teaching portfolio, including a statement of teaching philosophy that includes evidence of responsiveness to the academic needs of students from diverse backgrounds, evidence of teaching excellence, sample course syllabus taught by candidate, and (4) the names and email addresses for three references. The position(s) is open until filled; for best consideration, please submit by July 14, 2023. For assistance with your online application, please contact Human Resources at (509) 313-5996. Direct other inquiries to Dr. Joe Johnston, Associate Professor & Department Chair, Department of Sociology and Criminology, johnstonj@gonzaga.edu.

Employer Description:

Gonzaga University sits adjacent to downtown Spokane, WA, along the Spokane River. We exist on the historical lands of Salish speaking tribes in the Inland Northwest’s most metropolitan region. Spokane is Washington’s second largest city and is home to a diverse array of neighborhoods and shopping districts, with many exciting food and beverage amenities. We are a short drive from hiking, skiing, rafting, and climbing locations.

Gonzaga University is a Jesuit, Catholic, humanistic institution, and is therefore interested in candidates who will contribute to its distinctive mission. Gonzaga University is a committed EEO/AA employer and diversity candidates are encouraged to apply. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to their disability status and/or protected veteran status. Applicants with disabilities needing reasonable accommodations to complete the application or hiring process should contact Human Resources (509) 313-5996.

Salary Range: Negotiable

Submission Link: http://apply.interfolio.com/127653

Job Description:

The Work and Organization Studies (WOS) group at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) Sloan School has openings for tenure track faculty members to start July 1, 2024, or as soon thereafter as possible, whose teaching and research uses computational social science methods to study communications and organizational issues. The rank is open and junior and senior candidates at the Assistant Professor, Associate Professor and Full Professor levels will be considered.

The candidate's research program should substantively engage with organizations and communication. It should also use computational social science methods; for example, network analysis, machine learning, web-scraping, or natural language processing. In addition to research, faculty would be responsible for teaching courses related to communications, organizational studies or data science, all broadly defined. For example, courses might be taught on data analysis, communications, organizations or a variety of specific substantive topics (like Advanced Leadership Communication, Communicating with Data, Network Analysis, or Sports and Analytics at the MBA level, or Computational Methods at the PhD level).

At the Assistant Professor level, candidates must possess, or be close to completion of, a Ph.D. in a field related to work and organization studies such as Communications, Political Science, Computer Science, Economics, Psychology, Organizational Behavior, or Sociology at the start of employment. At the Associate Professor and Full Professor levels, a Ph.D. and a substantial research record is required.

The WOS faculty is interdisciplinary and eager to integrate computational social science research. WOS research approaches includes quantitative, ethnographic, field based, and/or lab based. WOS builds on the traditions of Organization Studies and the Institute for Work and Employment Research and has Ph.D. programs in both areas. (For more information about our group, go to: https://mitsloan.mit.edu/faculty/academic-groups/work-and-organization-studies/about-us).

The WOS group is part of the Behavioral and Policy Sciences Area, one of three major academic areas at Sloan. We encourage multidisciplinary work with colleagues in other parts of the School (Communication; Economic Sociology; Technological Innovation, Entrepreneurship, and Strategy Management; System Dynamics; Global Economics and Management; and Information Technology).

Please submit applications electronically at http://apply.interfolio.com/127653 providing a cover letter outlining interests and experience, a current CV, research and teaching statements, and one or two papers that indicate your research focus and capabilities. Applicants should also arrange for three letters of recommendation to be submitted via Interfolio. Applications will be reviewed as received but are due no later than Friday, September 8, 2023.

Job Description:

The primary professional responsibilities of instructional faculty members are: teaching, research, scholarship and/or creative activity, and service to the University, profession and to the community. These responsibilities generally include: advising students, participation in campus and system-wide committees, maintaining office hours, working collaboratively and productively with colleagues, and participation in traditional academic functions.

The successful candidate will be committed to the academic success of all our students and to an environment that acknowledges, encourages, and celebrates diversity and differences. To this end, the successful candidate will work effectively, respectfully, and collaboratively in diverse, multicultural, and inclusive settings. In addition, the successful candidate will be ready to join faculty, staff, students, and administrators in our University’s shared commitment to the principles of engagement, service, and the public good.

Employer Description:

Position:
School of Criminal Justice and Criminalistics
Assistant Professor of Criminal Justice

Starting Date:
August, 2024

Minimum Qualifications:

1) An earned doctorate (Ph.D.) in Criminal Justice, Criminology, or other closely-related discipline from an accredited institution (or equivalent) is required; however, applicants nearing completion of the doctorate (ABD) may be considered. For appointment, the doctorate must be completed by the date of appointment (8/19/2024).
2) Evidence of successful teaching experience at the undergraduate level.

3) Evidence of publications in scholarly journals.

Preferred Qualifications:

1) Documented experience with online, hybrid, and related technological innovation in the classroom.

Salary:

Initial salary is commensurate with qualifications and experience (anticipated hiring range: $80,004 - $83,208 annually).

The University:

California State University, Los Angeles (Cal State LA) is one of 23 campuses within the California State University system. The University is the premier comprehensive public university in the heart of Los Angeles. Cal State LA is ranked number one in the U.S. for the upward mobility of its students, and is dedicated to engagement, service, and the public good. We offer nationally recognized programs in science, the arts, business, criminal justice, engineering, nursing, education, ethnic studies, and the humanities. Our faculty have a strong commitment to scholarship, research, creative pursuits, community engagement, and service.

Our 240,000 alumni reflect the City and County's dynamic mix of populations. The University has one of the most diverse student populations of any college or university in the nation. As a federally recognized Hispanic-Serving Institution, and Asian-American, Native American, and Pacific Islander-Serving Institution, Cal State LA recognizes the transformative power of education and embraces its duty to identify and serve the needs of all its students. The University is committed to creating a community in which a diverse population can live, work, and learn in an atmosphere of civility and respect for the rights and sensibilities of each individual.

The College:

The Rongxiang Xu College of Health and Human Services offers specialized courses in audiology, child development, community health, community leadership, criminal justice, criminalistics, environmental health, exercise and human performance, food science and technology, forensic mental health, nursing, nutritional science, parenting, physical education, rehabilitation and therapeutic exercise, social work and speech-language pathology through the following academic schools and departments: Department of Child and Family Studies, Department of Communication Disorders, Department of Nutrition and Food Science, Department of Public Health, School of Criminal Justice and Criminalistics, School of Kinesiology, Patricia A. Chin School of Nursing and School of Social Work.

The School of Criminal Justice and Criminalistics:

The School of Criminal Justice and Criminalistics contributes to student success by providing students specialized knowledge and skills to become well-informed justice professionals, creating significant learning experiences and partnerships to conduct applied research that improves policy and practice, and promoting social justice, public awareness, scientific investigation, and continuing education related to justice issues.

In 2007, the School moved to the Hertzberg-Davis Forensic Science Center, along with the Los Angeles Police Department and Los Angeles County Sheriff's Forensic Science Laboratories, and the California Forensic Science Institute. This inter-agency, educational, and public safety partnership created numerous hands-on, active learning experiences for students due to the extraordinary exposure to cutting-edge research and important practical experience in forensic science and criminal justice. In 2022, the School of Criminal Justice and Criminalistics and the California Forensic Science Institute began collaborating with the Los Angeles Innocence Project at Cal State LA, the first innocence project in the Innocence Network to be affiliated with a forensic science academic program in the nation.

Required Documentation:

Please submit the following to the Search Committee Chair as part of the online application at the Apply link listed below:

1) a cover letter specifically addressing minimum and preferred qualifications.

2) a narrative statement describing your commitment to working effectively with faculty, staff, and students in a multicultural/multiethnic urban campus environment with a substantial population of students who are among the first-generation of their family to attend a college or university.

3) a curriculum vitae.

Finalists will be required to submit:

*Official transcripts.

Employment is contingent upon proof of eligibility to work in the United States.

*A United States (US) Equivalency certification is required for earned/awarded/conferred foreign terminal degrees. The US Equivalency certification is used to validate foreign studies by an academic credential evaluation agency and is evaluated on foreign studies and deemed to be equivalent to degrees from the United States. The certification must translate the information in English, and confirm that your highest terminal degree is US Equivalent to a US terminal degree (i.e., Master’s, Doctorate’s, Doctor’s of Philosophy).

Application:

Deadline: For full consideration, complete applications must be submitted by August 17, 2023. Applications received after the deadline may be considered.

To apply: please click the Apply Now icon on this page or visit Tenured/Tenure Track Faculty Positions or https://careers.calstatela.edu.

Please address all questions to the search committee chair (<Dr. Katharine Tellis>) at: ktellis@calstatela.edu.

Note: The person holding this position is considered a "mandated reporter" under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

Beginning January 1, 2022, campuses may not hire or reappoint an Employee to perform CSU-related work outside of California. Requests for exceptions are very limited based on CSU Policy and must have prior written approval from the University President.

A background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed satisfactorily before any candidate can be offered a position with the CSU. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may affect the application status of applicants or continued employment of current CSU employees who apply for the position.

In addition to meeting fully its obligations under federal and state law, Cal State LA is committed to creating a community in which a diverse population can live, work and learn in an atmosphere of tolerance, civility and respect for the rights and sensibilities of each individual. To that end, all qualified individuals will receive equal consideration without regard to economic status, race, ethnicity, color, religion, marital status, pregnancy, national origin or cultural background, political views, sex, sexual orientation, gender identification, age, disability, disabled veteran or Vietnam era veteran status.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/TITLE IX EMPLOYER

Upon request, reasonable accommodation will be provided to individuals with protected disabilities to (a) complete the employment process and (b) perform essential job functions when this does not cause undue hardship.
