Race and Culture Contacts in the Modern World
by E. Franklin Frazier
Howard University

"Frazier has admirably succeeded in providing a dynamic account of race relations, combining an attractively simple and readable brevity with an enlightened cosmopolitan scope that should dispel any vestiges of cultural or academic parochialism."—Roscoe C. Hinkle, Jr., The Ohio State University

"Excellent volume. Has two great advantages over books I have seen in this area to date: 1) There is an attempt at a conceptual scheme for race and culture contacts which is sufficiently broad to include the many specific problems involved, and 2) It utilizes materials from many areas of the world and does not confine itself to one American minority group such as the American Negro—a fault which is to be found in many texts in this field."—H. D. Rawls, North Carolina State College

"Professor Frazier's Race and Culture Contacts in the Modern World is a useful piece of work, for it leads the reader away from an overly provincial view of racial and ethnic contacts. We see readily enough the nexus between domestic racialism and overseas 'white' colonialism, between color bar in America and in Asia. As the underdeveloped non-white peoples emerge into nationalism they are altering this traditional association of racialism with Western power domination. American students need to be aware of this broader 'cosmopolitanism' context."—Richard H. Robbins, Wellesley College

*The Chairman of each section was asked to prepare a major paper on CURRENT PROBLEMS AND PROSPECTS in his field. Together, these papers should provide an overview of frontier problems as these can presently be identified in the major divisions of sociology. Throughout the Program these papers, or the sessions containing them, are marked with asterisks.

See page 27 of this Program for Council and Committee meetings.

See the back pages of this Program for Index of Program Participants.

The facilities of the United States Employment Service will be used at the Meetings. Their headquarters will be the South Room.

PLANNING FOR MARRIAGE

by Oliver M. Butterfield, Ph.D., Family Relations Counselor, Mt. San Antonio College.

Drawing on his broad experience as a minister, social worker and college instructor, Dr. Butterfield discusses in practical terms the problems of young people whose main concern is to build their marriage wisely. His suggestions help them establish realistic goals, and he offers concrete suggestions as to how these goals may be obtained.

Dr. Butterfield is constantly alert to differing viewpoints. He draws upon a wide variety of sources and refers readers to representative books on marriage by Protestant, Catholic, Jewish, Mormon and other religious groups. The chapters on Readiness for Marriage, How To Prevent Quarreling, and What Is Success In Marriage? are unique contributions to the successful growth and development of marriage.
