THE MacIVER LECTURESHP

The MacIver Lectureship, awarded annually to the author of a publication which has made an outstanding contribution to the progress of sociology, represents one of the major gestures of recognition by the profession and the American Sociological Association. The Award was established several years ago, on the initiation of Professor Theodore Abel, to honor Robert M. MacIver whose own work has done so much to advance the field.

The American Sociological Association believes that the MacIver Award is a significant factor in maintaining the highest standards of scholarly publication.

The Association would like to express its deep appreciation to Theodore Abel, Morroe Berger, and Charles Page, who have donated royalties from Freedom and Control in Modern Society, published by the Octagon Press, to the MacIver Award fund.

In addition, the Association wishes to thank the following publishers who have pledged contributions to the MacIver Award fund over the next four years.
