Cities of the Future

Sometime in the next decade, the world will pass a historic milestone. For the first time in human history, a majority of the world's people will live in cities. The future of humanity is fundamentally urban, and modes of social organization and settlement that have characterized human existence for millennia will gradually disappear over the course of the next century. To a large extent, this has already happened in the developed world, but the process is already well-advanced in many corners of the developing world as well. Even the least developed portions of the globe are now rapidly and relentlessly urbanizing.

The theme of the 2001 Annual Meeting, "Cities of the Future," is meant to reflect on the meaning of urbanization for human societies and social relations, not just in wealthy industrial nations, but in those that are rapidly industrializing as well as those that lag behind. What are the social organizations, economic structures, ecological patterns, and cultural forms that exist in cities now? How do they vary across the globe? What do they tell us about our urban future? And what does an urban future imply for the countryside, and for those regions of the planet that are not incorporated into a global capitalism rooted in huge urban agglomerations? These are some of the questions that we seek to address in the 2001 Annual Meeting, on the threshold of global urbanism.

Annual Meeting Schedule

The official days of the 2001 ASA Annual Meeting are Saturday to Tuesday, August 18-21, 2001. Program sessions are scheduled on all four days of the meeting at all three facilities, which are within easy walking distance of each other. There are also pre-meeting activities scheduled on Friday, August 17.

Most program sessions are 1 hour and 40 minutes in length, followed by a 20-minute break. Exceptions are clearly noted in the detailed program schedule. The turnover schedule is as follows:
8:30 a.m.-10:10 a.m.
10:30 a.m.-12:10 p.m.
12:30 p.m.-2:10 p.m.
2:30 p.m.-4:10 p.m.
4:30 p.m.-6:10 p.m.
6:30 p.m.-8:15 p.m.
8:30 p.m.-10:15 p.m.

The 6:30-8:10 p.m. time slot is normally allocated for Section receptions, member-sponsored activities, and meetings of other groups. The major Plenary Sessions are scheduled at 4:30 p.m. on the first and second days, and at 12:30 p.m. on the third day of the meeting. All sessions end by 4:10 p.m. on the fourth day.

Please refer to the Program Schedule for a daily listing of all sessions, meetings, and social events.

Program Highlights

Welcome to the 96th Annual Meeting!

The 96th Annual Meeting of the American Sociological Association (ASA) is a special event! Located in sunny Southern California, the 2001 meeting has been in production for two years in order to meet the scholarly, teaching, training, and practice needs of sociologists and aligned social scientists at every career stage. Please join in and listen, discuss, contribute, and participate—in paper sessions, workshops, plenary events, and town meetings organized around the important substantive areas and issues that animate sociology as a discipline and profession.

If this is the first time you have attended an ASA Annual Meeting, please plan to attend an orientation session at 3:00 p.m. on Saturday, August 18, prior to the Opening Plenary Session. Advice from ASA Officers and experienced attendees will help you chart a course through the myriad activities and substantive attractions.

Newcomers and experienced participants alike are invited to the Welcoming Party on Saturday evening, immediately following the Opening Plenary Session. Check the "Other Events" section for more special features to include on your convention calendar.

Plenaries Feature Major Urban Issues
Opening Plenary on Cities of the Future
Mid-day Plenary on Political Disenfranchisement

The Annual Meeting theme of "Cities of the Future" is being addressed in the opening plenary on the first afternoon of the meeting. Attention then turns to the political scene and voting issues arising from the recent Presidential election process. Details on these important sessions are shown below. Make sure that your meeting schedule includes these major sessions!

Cities of the Future: From Chicago to LA
Session 136, Saturday, August 18, 4:30-6:10 p.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Pacific Ballroom C
Organizers: Douglas S. Massey, University of Pennsylvania; Darnell M. Hunt, University of Southern California
Presider: Darnell M. Hunt, University of Southern California
Something Old, Something New. John R. Logan, University at Albany
The Place of Post-Modern Urbanism. Michael Dear, University of Southern California
Discussion: Douglas S. Massey, University of Pennsylvania
Sociology came of age with the industrial city. It sought to explain and understand new social forms that came into existence with the rise of urbanism as a way of life. Theories of spatial structure, community, social solidarity, conflict, and race were substantially developed with the modern industrial city in mind. The Chicago School of Sociology played a pivotal role early in this movement. Yet, the economy and technology that created the industrial city has given way to a new post-industrial regime. Some have argued that Los Angeles now represents the prototypical post-modern city. Are our theories about life in the city still adequate? If not, what changes are warranted? This session grapples with these fundamental questions as it considers theories of urbanism from Chicago to LA.

The Political Disenfranchisement of Urban America
Session 367, Monday, August 20, 12:30-2:10 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Ballroom A
Organizer and Presider: Chandler Davidson, Rice University
Who Votes? Who Doesn't? Can Turnout Be Increased?
Raymond E. Wolfinger, University of California, Berkeley
Fractured Franchise: Felony Disenfranchisement in Urban America. Keith Reeves, Harvard University
The Political Thicket in the Age of Bushes. Pamela Karlan, Stanford University
Americans like to think of the Voting Rights Act as having put an end to disfranchisement. But has it? Do systemic forces in the polity still limit the voting rights of those groups with a history of disfranchisement? Prominent students of voting address this question, as well as the hotly debated issue of the effects of low voter turnout.

ASA Business Meeting

The ASA Business Meeting is an opportunity for members of the Association to discuss important issues facing the discipline and profession. Members are encouraged to attend this meeting convened by the ASA President.

As recommended by ASA Council, President Douglas S. Massey has placed two topics on the agenda for discussion: (1) The decoupling of dues and journal subscriptions; and (2) the reinstatement of a modified Committee on Committees. This open forum is an opportunity for members to share their insights, reactions, and suggestions. Consult the flyer in your meeting folder for details on the agenda.

Summary reports on the Association and its key activities this year will be given by President Massey and Executive Officer Felice J. Levine. The meeting concludes with the traditional transfer of the gavel, marking the transition of duties from President Massey to incoming President Barbara F. Reskin.

As noted in the May/June issue of 'Footnotes' and the posting of meeting information on the ASA website, members seeking to present formal resolutions should be prepared to provide background materials on the issue to be discussed. Members who missed the August 1 submission deadline may bring their resolutions and supporting background documentation to the ASA Office in the Coronado Room at the Hilton Anaheim by 3:00 p.m. on Monday, August 20.

All meeting attendees are invited to join ASA officers, Council members, and staff for continental breakfast and discussion at the ASA Business Meeting on Tuesday, August 21, 7:00-8:20 a.m. in the Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon F.

Regional Spotlight

This is the first time that the Association has met in Anaheim, California. The location affords meeting attendees a special opportunity to view the social makeup and personality of Southern California. President Douglas S. Massey appointed a local committee to propose special panels, develop a program of local tours, prepare a restaurant guide, and write special articles for ASA. ASA wishes to express thanks to Ronald E. Hughes (California State University, Fullerton), Roberta Lessor (Chapman University), Judy Stepan-Norris (University of California, Los Angeles), and Min Zhou (University of California, Los Angeles), for their service as local committee members.

Eight special panels and nine tours focus attention on this year's meeting site. The substantive program sessions are highlighted below; please refer to the "Explore Southern California" section for details on tours.

Regular Sessions

Regular Sessions are comprised of research papers submitted in response to the 2001 Call for Papers. The Program Committee appointed organizers for 121 general Regular Session topics and announced that topics were open to submissions from ASA members. Each Regular Session organizer received anywhere from 2 to 62 submissions for review. A total of 198 formal paper sessions were organized from the submitted papers.

Please refer to the Program Schedule for details on each Regular Session.

This year also marked the inauguration of an online submission system for open submissions. The system is undergoing further development and improvements based on the feedback received from authors, organizers, and association staff. All submissions for next year's meeting will be handled by the online system. Be sure to check the ASA website this fall for information on making your paper submission for the 2002 Annual Meeting.

Open Refereed Roundtables

The 2001 Program Committee has continued this open roundtable component which was added to the general program five years ago. Sam Cohn (Texas A&M University) was invited to review submissions and organize roundtable sessions using a "mini-session" format: a general topic identified for each table, two to five paper presentations, and a table presider to coordinate presentations and discussion. Two large general roundtable sessions were created for this year's program.

Potpourri I
Session 225, Sunday, August 19, 12:30 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Ballroom A

Potpourri II
Session 345, Monday, August 20, 10:30 a.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Pacific Ballroom D

Poster Sessions

This program component features a series of display presentations that allow face-to-face conversation between authors and viewers. By facilitating informal discussions between presenters and "browsers," Poster Sessions provide a more direct forum for information exchange than do formal paper presentations. There are two categories of poster displays on this year's program—research paper presentations and informational presentations.

The 2001 Program Committee invited Glenn Deane (University at Albany) to review general submissions and select research poster presentations. Two sessions were arranged from the open submissions.

Informational poster presentations provide information on resources, materials, and opportunities. The annual Research Support Forum includes two major poster sessions to highlight research funding opportunities and data resources. As part of the Graduate Education focus, a poster session is scheduled featuring displays and representatives from participating graduate departments of sociology.

The varied roster of display presentations includes something of interest for every meeting attendee. Be sure to include some time in your schedule to visit this year's poster displays, adjacent to Café ASA in the ASA Exhibit area.

Open Topic Research Presentations: Computers and Technology, Marriage and the Family, Culture, Identity, Aging and Life Course
Session 110, Saturday, August 18, 2:30-4:00 p.m.

Hilton Anaheim, California Pavilion
Organizer: Felice J. Levine, American Sociological Association

Informational Poster Session. Graduate Programs in Sociology
Session 383, Monday, August 20, 2:30-4:00 p.m.
Hilton Anaheim, California Pavilion
Organizer: Meghan E. Rich, American Sociological Association

Open Topic Research Presentations: Work/Labor Markets, Health/Illness, Criminology/Delinquency, Urban Sociology
Session 491, Tuesday, August 21, 10:30 a.m.-12:10 p.m.
Hilton Anaheim, California Pavilion
Organizer: Glenn Deane, University at Albany, State University of New York

Informal Discussion Roundtables

This popular program component is designed to bring together small groups of people interested in discussing specific topics. The Program Committee invited Rebecca L. Reviere (Howard University) to receive proposals and coordinate topics and discussion leaders. Four informal discussion sessions have been created to enhance networking opportunities.

In addition, the ASA Executive Officer sponsored a special topical roundtable session on "New Directions in Sociology" as an opportunity to create a forum for exploring fresh opportunities and new paths in core issues and on nascent issues.

All roundtables discussions are held simultaneously in one large meeting room; no audio-visual equipment nor recording devices may be used.

Issues Across Cultures
Session 79, Saturday, August 18, 12:30 p.m.

Session 187, Sunday, August 19, 10:30 a.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 204B/C
Organizers: Felice J. Levine, American Sociological Association; Jan E. Thomas, Kenyon College

10th Annual Research Support Forum

This year marks the tenth anniversary of the Research Support Forum, which features research funding information, data resources, and discussion of science policy issues throughout the Annual Meeting. The Forum begins on Saturday with two workshops that consider research conduct and peer review, moves on Sunday to sessions key to undertaking research and obtaining and developing sources of support, turns to data resources on Monday, and concludes on Tuesday with workshops on obtaining small grants and writing dissertation/research proposals.

If you have ever encountered research practices that are ambiguous with respect to questions of misconduct, plan to attend the workshop sponsored by the Committee on Professional Ethics on Saturday afternoon. Experienced researchers will discuss the "gray areas" encountered in daily research practices and present two cases for group analysis. Also on Saturday afternoon, those who are interested in peer review processes will find a workshop that provides advice, guidance, and pointers for undertaking review of proposals and serving effectively on peer review groups at the National Institutes of Health.

On Sunday morning, the first session focuses on what you should know about navigating Federal support for sociological research. Chaired by Havidan Rodriguez (University of Puerto Rico, Mayaguez), the workshop panel features insider views from Sally T. Hillsman (U.S. Department of Justice), and Patricia E. White, (National Science Foundation), and Richard Suzman (National Institute on Aging, NIH).

The second event is a special Town Meeting with Raynard Kington, Associate Director of the National Institutes of Health (NIH) and Director of the NIH Office of Behavioral and Social Sciences Research (OBSSR). This session will focus on plans and activities underway at NIH to enhance attention to and support for the social and behavioral aspects of health and well-being. Two 2001 reports, New Horizons in Health: An Integrative Approach and Progress and Promise in Research on Social and Cultural Dimensions of Health, provide the framework for a research agenda. A panel of sociologists will frame questions to Dr. Kington, and the audience is strongly encouraged to participate in this open Town Meeting exchange.

A key part of the Research Support Forum is a three-hour poster session on "Opportunities for Research Support," scheduled for Sunday afternoon. This exhibit session includes public and private funding representatives who are available to talk individually with meeting attendees about funding priorities, application procedures, and other specific issues of concern. It is an important opportunity to obtain face-to-face advice and information. See pages 187-191 for a full listing of organizations and program descriptions.

Another major highlight of this year's Forum is the Sunday afternoon Town Meeting with Dr. Greg Koski, Director of the Office for Human Research Protections (OHRP). This session provides a unique opportunity for researchers, teachers, and students to learn about the review of social and behavior science research involving human subjects and to raise questions or seek clarification. The panel is moderated by Felice J. Levine, a member of the National Advisory Committee for the Protection of Human Subjects (NHRPAC). NHRPAC reports to the Secretary of Health and Human Services and advises OHRP. The panel itself is comprised of Robert Hauser and Sally Hillsman, both members of the NHRPAC Social and Behavioral Science Working Group, and Barbara Risman, ASA Council member with interests in human subjects protection as it relates to research, teaching, and training.

The Research Support Forum continues on Monday morning with a second three-hour poster session on "Data Resources." This session provides meeting participants with an opportunity to meet principal investigators, researchers, and managers of large-scale data sets that are publicly available for use. Each exhibit showcases at least one major data set of significance for primary or secondary analysis. This event is an excellent way of learning about available data and their potential for a range of research and teaching uses. A complete listing of data sets with program descriptions may be found beginning on page 192.

The Forum concludes on Tuesday with two proposal development workshops. In the morning, the focus is on small grants proposals for cutting edge research; the afternoon workshop addresses how to get funding for your dissertation or research.

The 10th Annual Research Support Forum is designed to provide invaluable help, access, and consideration of important substantive and policy issues for new researchers and more experienced scholars. From the opening workshop on Saturday afternoon to the closing session on Tuesday, attendees can count on plentiful access to a variety of funding experts and data sources during the 2001 Forum.

Didactic Seminars

Didactic Seminars are designed to keep sociologists abreast of recent scholarly trends and developments. Experts considered to be at the forefront of a given field are invited by the Program Committee to conduct these intensive sessions.

Seminar speakers will present materials to explain specialized developments within their topic areas. Seminars are scheduled for two to four hours, except for the pre-meeting course co-sponsored by the Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research and the ASA Section on Methodology. Please see the listing below for session details and brief descriptions provided by the leaders.

Attendance limits and fees are noted below, and prepaid registration is required. Attendees who preregistered should have received their tickets with their name badges when they picked up their program packets as ASA Preregistration.

Seminar fees were non-refundable after July 1, 2001. However, if the required enrollment was not reached by the time preregistration closed and a seminar was cancelled, all fees will be fully refunded.

Reservations for seminars were accepted in order of receipt in the ASA Executive Office. Those who did not make advance reservations may check at the ASA Tickets counter in Pacific B at the Hilton Anaheim for possible openings.

Latent Trajectory/Growth Curve Analysis (co-sponsored by the Interuniversity for Political and Social Research and the ASA Section on Methodology)

Session 1, Friday, August 17, 9:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Fee: $125 general, $100 Methodology Section member, $60 student
Attendance Limit: 50
Ticket required for admission
Leader: Kenneth A. Bollen, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Latent Trajectory Analysis (LTA) or Latent Curve Analysis is a powerful technique to analyze longitudinal data. LTA permits each case in a sample to have individual trajectories ("latent curves" or "growth curves") representing change over time. In addition to mapping these trajectories, LTA allows researchers to examine the determinants of these trajectories or to relate the trajectories of one variable to those of another. The seminar begins with a conceptual introduction to LTA and a description of research questions that are well-suited for the technique. The remainder of the seminar will cover the following topics: LTA models for a single variable with and without predictors of differences in trajectories, modeling nonlinear trajectories, the LTA model for multiple variables, the relation between the parameters governing the trajectories in two or more variables, incorporating predictors of multiple trajectories, and extensions to the LTA model.

Reader/Writer Partners: Publishing for Junior Scholars (co-sponsored by the Association of Black Sociologists)

Session 32, Saturday, August 18, 9:00 a.m.-12:00 noon
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201B
Fee: $25; ticket required for admission
Attendance Limit: 50
Ticket required for admission
Organizers: Donald Cunnigen, University of Rhode Island and Association of Black Sociologists; Marilese Durr, Wright State University and Association of Black Sociologists; Douglas S. Massey, University of Pennsylvania and American Sociological Association
Panel: Franklin D. Wilson, University of Wisconsin, Madison, and the American Sociological Review
Ronald L. Taylor, University of Connecticut and Race & Society
Christine Bose, University at Albany and Gender & Society
Anthony M. Orum, University of Illinois, Chicago, and City & Community

This seminar is intended to assist junior scholars with manuscripts-in-progress, offering criticism, feedback, and suggestions from editors of several leading social science journals, including the American Sociological Review, City & Community, Race & Society, and Gender & Society. Seminar-related activity began before the Annual Meeting, which allowed reader/writer partners to correspond and work on manuscripts prior to meeting formally in Anaheim.

Event History Analysis

Session 41, Saturday, August 18, 10:30 a.m.-12:10 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Fee: $25; ticket required for admission
Attendance Limit: 50
Ticket required for admission
Leader: Nancy Brandon Tuma, Stanford University

This seminar provides an introduction to event history analysis: the analysis of change in discrete outcome variables when one has data on the times of the changes for individual cases as well as data on explanatory variables hypothesized to affect the likelihood of change. Topics discussed include appropriate kinds of data, several basic models of change over time (including a Cox model), modeling effects on change due to dependent variables, estimation and testing of models, software options, interpreting and presenting results of event history analysis, and relationship to some other ways of analyzing discrete variables. Handouts including a bibliography will be made available to participants.
Combining Qualitative and Quantitative Methods: Making the Right Choices
Session 104, Saturday, August 18, 2:30-4:10 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Fee: $25; ticket required for admission
Attendance Limit: 50
Ticket required for admission
Leader: David L. Morgan, Portland State University

Due to their complexity, projects that combine qualitative and quantitative methods require careful attention to research design. The first part of the workshop addresses basic motivations for combining methods, since it is important to clarify WHY you are using multiple methods before you can decide HOW to combine those methods. The second part of the workshop addresses the process of selecting a research design that connects a broad motivation to a specific research question. In particular, the workshop will concentrate on a set of practical research designs that use the strengths of one method to enhance the performance of another method. The workshop participants will (1) explore the options that are available for combining qualitative and quantitative methods and (2) learn how to select among those options in order to meet the needs of a given research project.

Basics of Regression Modeling
Session 145, Sunday, August 19, 8:30-11:30 a.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201B
Fee: $25; ticket required for admission
Attendance Limit: 50
Ticket required for admission
Leader: Roger A. Wutzkiewicz, Ball State University

Regression analysis is one of the most commonly used quantitative techniques in the social sciences. This seminar goes beyond the usual regression analysis methods taught in first-year graduate statistics courses by focusing on regression modeling tools which can be used to produce publishable analysis. This seminar is oriented toward researchers who are interested in learning a practical, alternative way of conceptualizing regression analysis, whose modeling skills are rusty, or who are inexperienced with regression modeling. The prerequisite for the seminar is knowledge of elementary statistics, including mean, proportion, and t-test. The seminar has three segments: (1) basic conceptualization and interpretation of OLS and logistic regression coefficients; (2) using the elaboration approach to consider the contribution of control variables to observed differences; and (3) measuring conditional effects using interactions between two categorical variables or interactions between a categorical and an interval level variable.

Doing Qualitative Analysis with Computer-Assisted Software: An Introduction
Session 182, Sunday, August 19, 10:30 a.m.-12:10 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Fee: $25; ticket required for admission
Attendance Limit: 50
Ticket required for admission
Leaders: Sharlene J. Hesse-Biber, Boston College
Denise Leckenby, Boston College
Raymond C. Maietta, Research Talk, Inc.

This didactic seminar is for qualitative researchers who wish to use computer software to analyze textual data (e.g., case records, newspaper articles, fieldnotes, transcripts of interviews or focus groups discussions), pictures, graphics or audio and video tapes. We will briefly explore the history of computer-assisted software programs in the social sciences. We will analyze the problems and prospects of using computer-assisted software programs for qualitative data analysis. We will discuss the factors you should consider in selecting a software program. This seminar is intended for those who want a basic introduction to the field of computer-assisted software for qualitative data analysis.

Computer-Assisted Software for Qualitative Data Analysis
Session 295, Monday, August 20, 8:30 a.m.-12:10 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201B
Fee: $25; ticket required for admission
Attendance Limit: 50
Ticket required for admission
Leaders: Sharlene J. Hesse-Biber, Boston College
Raymond C. Maietta, Research Talk, Inc.

This didactic seminar is for qualitative researchers who wish a basic overview of computer software to analyze textual data, pictures, graphs, audio, and video tapes. We will describe the range of some of the most important computer software programs available on the market today and will compare and contrast some of the most important program features. We will discuss the factors you should consider in selecting a software program. We will provide a brief demonstration of a range of some of the most important software program for analyzing qualitative data (text, audio tapes, and video tapes). We will discuss some of the methodological implications of using computer-assisted software to analyze qualitative data.

Spatially integrated Social Science
Session 296, Monday, August 20, 8:30 a.m.-12:10 p.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5
Fee: $25; ticket required for admission
Attendance Limit: 50
Ticket required for admission
Leaders: Michael F. Goodchild, University of California, Santa Barbara
Richard P. Appelbaum, University of California, Santa Barbara
John R. Logan, University at Albany

Have you heard about computer mapping? Wonder what it can do for you? Let CSISS show you what can be done, what you have to learn, what software and hardware you would need, and where you can turn for help. CSISS is the Center for Spatially Integrated Social Science, funded by the National Science Foundation under its program of support for infrastructure in the social and behavioral sciences. Our seminar will introduce you to spatial analysis, and familiarize you with the ways in which CSISS can be of use to you in conducting research with a spatial component. We will offer some live demonstrations, discuss spatial analysis as an integrative tool for the social sciences, and review CSISS's multifaceted approach to spatial visualization and analysis. Detailed information about CSISS can be found at www.csiss.org. Core programs include Best Practice Examples, Learning Resources, National Workshops, Place-Based Search, Software Tools, and Specialist Meetings.

Comparative Methodology
Session 339, Monday, August 20, 10:30 a.m.-12:10 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Fee: $25; ticket required for admission
Attendance Limit: 50
Ticket required for admission
Leader: Charles C. Ragin, Northwestern University

Comparative social science is defined by its interest in (or at least a presumption of) meaningful "cases." Comparativists treat cases as whole entities purposefully selected, not as homogeneous observations drawn randomly from a large pool of equally plausible selections. This gives comparative work a special focus on "significant" cases. Case-oriented discourse speaks directly to the events and experiences of cases, abstracting from their histories and their specific characteristics and circumstances to draw out their theoretical significance. At the case level, researchers can make sense of seemingly unrelated phenomena, placing events and processes in context and in meaningful sequences. Thus, case-oriented discourse responds to the experiences of cases as singular entities and is capable of contributing directly both to the discussion of issues and problems faced by separate cases and to the elaboration of theory.

Discourse that is too case-oriented, however, has its own problems. Every case may seem too different to be compared with any other case, and scholarly authority may derive exclusively from in-depth knowledge of cases, not from explication of their theoretical relevance. In the extreme, discourse that is too slanted toward cases can atomize comparative social science, with each scholar attached to a seemingly unique case and deriving scholarly authority from a store of knowledge that cannot be easily shared or duplicated. A competing goal of comparative social science, therefore, is to derive general statements about theoretically important relationships. Making general statements requires using concepts and, at the level of cases, focusing on observable "variables." Thus, concepts and variables permeate almost all social scientific discussion of cases, no matter how much or how little homage is paid to their singularity or meaningfulness as cases.

The course addresses the problem of balancing case-oriented and variable-oriented discourse in comparative research. It offers an advanced introduction to comparative methodology, as it is—or should be—practiced in sociology, political science and related social sciences. The course is built around the contrast between the logic of comparative analysis and other analytic logics, with a focus on different forms of qualitative and quantitative analysis. A central concern is the comparative analytic techniques appropriate for different types of comparative investigations. The logic of comparative research is powerfully influenced by the number of cases, usually countries or some other macro-social unit, included in a study. This course will explore a wide range of comparative designs, from comparatively oriented case studies to research on large numbers of macro-level cases and will focus on the tools needed to link case-oriented and variable-oriented discourse in these different research designs.

Designing and Implementing Large Scale, Comparative, Qualitative/Ethnographic Research
Session 375, Monday, August 20, 2:30-4:10 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Fee: $25; ticket required for admission
Attendance Limit: 50
Ticket required for admission
Leaders: Kathryn J. Edin, Northwestern University
Lauren Lein, University of Texas, Austin

This seminar, led by the authors of the 1997 book Making Ends Meet, will focus on a re-emerging "style" of qualitative research that has its roots in the Chicago School of Sociology and in the work of W.E.B. DuBois: relatively large, case-oriented, comparative, qualitative research. Examples are qualitative or ethnographic studies of respondents drawn from survey subsamples ("nested" qualitative designs), qualitative or ethnographic studies that involve comparisons across sites, or single-site studies that compare subgroups.

The following questions will be considered: (1) How to design your study, including a discussion of multi-method "nested" approaches, cross-sectional, and longitudinal approaches to research design for a large-scale qualitative or ethnographic study. (2) How to formulate research questions and topic lists (for depth interview studies, interview guide) in this type of study, and how to maintain your ability to reformulate questions and topics as new areas of interest emerge while in the field. (3) How to collect systematic qualitative or ethnographic data using a number of different data collectors. (4) How to develop a preliminary coding guide in this type of study, and how to maintain your ability to incorporate new codes that emerge in preliminary coding. (5) How to code systematically using multiple coders. (6) How to present data gleaned from large-scale qualitative or ethnographic studies.

Statistical Graphics
Session 376, Monday, August 20, 2:30-5:30 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201B
Fee: $25; ticket required for admission
Attendance Limit: 50
Ticket required for admission
Leader: John D. Fox, McMaster University

In eclipse for most of the 20th century, there has been a remarkable resurgence of interest in statistical graphics in the last 25 years. Graphs should play a central role in the analysis and presentation of statistical data in the social sciences, a common prescription that is more often than not honored in the breach. This seminar provides a brief but wide-ranging introduction to modern statistical graphics, with an emphasis on the role of graphs in the presentation of data, including the history of statistical graphics; graphical standards and critique; research on graphical perception; graphing linear and generalized linear models; and (time permitting) an overview of statistical graphics for data analysis.

New Methods of Representing Social Networks
Session 486, Tuesday, August 21, 10:30 a.m.-12:10 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Fee: $25; ticket required for admission
Attendance Limit: 50
Ticket required for admission
Leader: Linton C. Freeman, University of California, Irvine

Graph theorists have developed elaborate programs that create visual images designed to display patterns of relations among the elements of a graph. Molecular modelers have developed other programs designed to display the structural properties of molecules. Both of these kinds of programs provide powerful tools for uncovering important structural features of data and displaying those features to others. This seminar is intended to provide a practicum. It will show how to adapt some programs from graph theory and molecular modeling to the task of creating visual images that display the structural features of social network data. And it will introduce procedures that permit an investigator to uncover some of the antecedents and consequences of observed structural features. Finally, it will provide each participant with a CD containing the programs needed to conduct this kind of analysis of network data on a PC.

Professional Workshops

Professional Workshops provide opportunities for attendees to update their knowledge and skills in a variety of professional areas. The 32 workshops on this year's program roster address research issues, career opportunities, data availability, writing and publishing ventures, publicity and marketing decisions, ethical dilemmas, and more. Professional workshops are open to all meeting registrants.

Developments in Qualitative Data Analysis Software: Linking Qualitative and Quantitative Analysis
Session 8, Saturday, August 18, 8:30 a.m.
Hilton Anaheim, San Clemente
Organizer and Presider: Gregg Carter, Bryant College
Panel: Edward Brent, University of Missouri, Columbia
Gregg Carter, Bryant College
Sharlene J. Hesse-Biber, Boston College
Stephanie Howling, Boston College
Udo Kuckartz, Philipps University of Marburg, Germany

This session will provide a forum for current and prospective researchers to be introduced to recent developments in computer software intended for the investigation of qualitative data, especially innovations in creating links between qualitative and quantitative analysis. As qualitative researchers' interviews begin to number in the double digits, it becomes increasingly difficult to identify complex patterns in the data. Qualitative data sets often contain large numbers of codes that are suitable for quantitative analysis. Part of this session will be the assessment of the advantages and pitfalls of transforming qualitative "codes" into quantitative "variables." Demonstrations of how the quantification of qualitative data can be used as a heuristic device will be provided.
Emerging software using strategies from artificial intelligence will be demonstrated to show how qualitative codes can be mined more thoroughly for the information they contain. Finally, there will be a demonstration of how the different types of text that can be found on the Internet—e.g., online conferences, mailing lists, user groups, and interviews—can be readily analyzed with qualitative analysis programs, as well as how researchers can integrate demographic-background and other types of quantitative data with the codes developed for Internet text. Panelists will demonstrate HyperRESEARCH, InTQual, and winMax.

Navigating Graduate School to Your Best Advantage
Session 9, Saturday, August 18, 8:30 a.m.
Hilton Anaheim, La Jolla
Organizer and Presider: Frieda Fowler, University of Nebraska, Lincoln
Organizer: Irene Padavic, Florida State University
Panel: Julie Harms Cannon, Texas Tech University
Youlanda M. Gibbons, University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Patricia Yancey Martin, Florida State University
Suzanne T. Ortega, University of Missouri, Columbia
Panelists will discuss ways of successfully negotiating graduate school. The panel consists of sociologists who are familiar with the graduate experience at various levels. The group will discuss graduate school from the administrative area to the advanced graduate experience. Topics to be covered include getting into graduate school, establishing mentor/mentee relationships, forming networks, and your responsibility as a graduate student.

Officially Retired, Hardly Retiring
Session 43, Saturday, August 18, 10:30 a.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Santa Monica
Organizer and Presider: James F. Short, Washington State University
Panel: William Form, Ohio State University
Joan Huber, Ohio State University
Morris Zelditch, Stanford University
The workshop is designed to help retirees, or prospective retirees, think about retirement problems and opportunities for continuing professional activity during retirement. For some, retirement is a bit like being on "permanent sabbatical." Several senior scholars have agreed to participate and to share their experiences with each other and with those who attend the workshop. We hope attendees will come both with experiences to share and questions that will be of interest to all.

Editing Anthologies and Readers
Session 75, Saturday, August 18, 12:30 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201B
Leader: Jeffrey Ian Ross, University of Baltimore
This workshop reviews the nuts and bolts of editing nonfiction academic books in the social sciences. This includes outlining advantages and disadvantages of taking on edited projects, choosing your contributors, determining what you need from your authors for the proposal, dealing with contributors, choosing a publisher, assembling the manuscript for review, responding to feedback, and preparing the final manuscript for publication. The leader will give a brief talk, then provide some handouts. Attendees are encouraged to bring abstracts, outlines, and proposals with them for discussion.

Research With and On the Internet
Session 76, Saturday, August 18, 12:30 p.m.
Hilton Anaheim, San Clemente
Leaders: Marc A. Smith, Microsoft Research
James C. Witte, Clemson University
The workshop is rooted in the premise that the Internet, along with related developments in information technology, fundamentally redefine many aspects of human interaction. Moreover, social research is necessarily rooted in such interaction. As a result, the development of this powerful new technology has not only changed the society sociologists study, but also redefines how sociologists study this society. This workshop has four components offering a review and discussion of major approaches to studying social phenomena in and through online media: (1) Intro: Research with and on the Internet—Review opportunities and challenges of online research: How can the Internet be used as a research tool? How do established methods map to social cyberspaces? (2) Case study: National Geographic Society Survey methods and results; (3) Case study: Netscan - Data Mining Social Cyberspaces; (4) Research with and on the Internet. There will be question and answer opportunities with workshop participants to discuss research questions and methods using online components. Topics to be discussed include: (1) theoretical frameworks in using the Internet for research; (2) available methodological strategies: (a) survey-based Internet methods, (b) analyses of texts generated by emails, bulletin boards, usenet groups and chats, and (c) online game-theoretical experiments; (3) Internet search tools; and (4) existing online databases and how to find and navigate them.

Scientific Misconduct: The Choices We Make When Faced with the "Gray Areas" of Research Practice (co-sponsored by the ASA Committee on Professional Ethics and the 10th Annual Research Support Forum)
Session 105, Saturday, August 18, 2:30 p.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Green Room
Organizers and Presiders: Joyce Miller Lutcovich, Keystone University Research Corporation; Barbara Entwistle, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Panel: Joyce Miller Lutcovich, Keystone University Research Corporation
Barbara Entwistle, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Erin Leahey, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
As a point of departure, this workshop will briefly overview the federal government's definition of scientific misconduct (fabrication, falsification, and plagiarism) and differentiate between these "high crimes" and the "misdemeanors" of everyday research practice. Featured are research practices that are ambiguous with respect to questions of misconduct. In areas such as data editing and management, human subjects protection, and peer review, the rules of conduct are not as obvious or clear cut, if they exist at all. For these "gray areas" of responsible research conduct, the workshop leaders will present two cases for group analysis and discussion: "Human Subjects Issues in the Context of Evolving Research Relationships" and "When Data Editing Is Data Cooking."

Serving on a Peer Review Group at NIH: What You Should Know (10th Annual Research Support Forum)
Session 105x, Saturday, August 18, 2:30 p.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Capistrano A
Organizer: Felice J. Levine, American Sociological Association
Presider: William R. Avison, Florida International University
Panel: Raymond Kington, Office of Behavioral and Social Sciences Research, National Institutes of Health
R. Jay Turner, Florida International University
Michael Micklin, Center for Scientific Review, National Institutes of Health
The National Institutes of Health and social scientists with research expertise in health share an interest in developing a strong peer reviewer community in the social and behavioral sciences. This workshop provides advice, guidance, and pointers for undertaking review of proposals and serving effectively on a peer review group. Persons who have not yet served on panels, those with some or intermittent experience, and even veterans will benefit from this workshop and frank discussion and exchange. How to prepare written reviews, how to present effectively, when to talk and when to listen, and how best to weigh in on proposals when you were not a primary reviewer are among the questions that will be addressed in this workshop. Panelists are knowledgeable about the processes and operations of peer review groups and bring considerable experience serving on and administering peer review processes. The panel encourages questions.
Add Health Wave III: New Features, New Opportunities
Session 183, Sunday, August 19, 10:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon H
Organizers: Kathleen Mullan Harris and J. Richard Udry, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Panel: Kathleen Mullan Harris, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
J. Richard Udry, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
David C. Rowe, University of Arizona
Glen H. Elder, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Christine A. Bachrach, National Institute of Child Health and Human Development

Add Health will complete collection of Wave III data on its original national representative sample of 20,000 adolescents by the beginning of 2002, with data from Wave III available for use in the research community in the fall of 2002. Respondents were first interviewed in 1994-95 and again in 1996, and are aged 18-24 in Wave III. This workshop will describe new features added to the Wave III data collection and highlight unique research opportunities yet to be exploited with these data. Information will be provided and questions answered for researchers developing grant applications to NIH and other funding agencies for analysis of these data.

Getting the Mentoring You Want and the Skills You Need in Graduate School
Session 184, Sunday, August 19, 10:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5
Organizers: Kathleen Mullan Harris and J. Richard Udry, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Presiders: Mary Lou Wylie, James Madison University
Valerie Jenness, University of California, Irvine
Emily W. Kane, Bates College

Advice on Engaging in Proprietary Research
Session 146, Sunday, August 19, 8:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon A
Organizer and Presider: Ross Koppel, Social Research Corporation and University of Pennsylvania
Panel: Ross Koppel, University of Pennsylvania and Social Research Corporation (Wyncote, PA)
Joyce Miller Lutovich, Keystone University Research Corporation, Erie, PA
Andrew Ziner, Atlantic Social Research Corporation (Allentown, PA) and Cedar Crest College

Session 220, Sunday, August 19, 12:30 p.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Redondo
Organizer: Jan Marie Fritz, University of Cincinnati
Panel: Jan Marie Fritz, University of Cincinnati
Susan Brown Eve, University of North Texas
Christine Inglis, University of Sydney

Collaborating Internationally on Research and Teaching
Session 220, Sunday, August 19, 12:30 p.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Redondo
Organizer: Jan Marie Fritz, University of Cincinnati
Panel: Jan Marie Fritz, University of Cincinnati
Susan Brown Eve, University of North Texas
Christine Inglis, University of Sydney

Panelists and audience members will discuss ways to initiate or improve international research and teaching. The discussion will begin with panelists' specific experiences in Italy, Israel, Ghana, and the Asia-Pacific region. Discussion will cover opportunities and experiences for individuals as well as programs. This workshop is open to those who have experiences to share as well as those who would like to initiate international collaboration in teaching and/or research.

Dr. Fritz will discuss the workshops she gives in Italy and the collaborative research she undertook in Israel. She will also mention department initiatives in Indonesia, Thailand, and Greece. Dr. Fritz is an executive committee member of the International Sociological Association.

The University of North Texas has operated a masters program in clinical sociology in cooperation with a school for ultra-orthodox Jewish women in Jerusalem since 1995. The teaching program uses distance learning technology, including videotapes, web-based learning, and intensive courses taught on site by UNT faculty and some Israeli adjunct instructors. Problems encountered included adapting US materials to culturally relevant and resolution of credentialing and licensure issues in the international context. UNT also has an exchange relationship with the University of Ghana. Experiences recruiting, retaining, and supporting students from developing countries in an applied sociology program will be discussed.

Dr. Inglis is the Associate Dean (Research) and Director of the Multicultural Research Center at the University of Sydney, and also a...
Vice President of the International Sociological Association. She will discuss research cooperation in the Asia-Pacific region.

Using the Internet for Research
Session 221, Sunday, August 19, 12:30 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Leaders: Lloyd Klein, Louisiana State University, Shreveport
Deidre A. Tyler, Salt Lake Community College
This workshop focuses on the potential for obtaining substantive research materials through resources offered via the Internet. Consideration will be given to caveats essential in contrasting substantive research materials with questionable website content. The workshop will offer an analysis of specific internet browsers serving as portals enabling the acquisition of useful research materials. Discussion will also detail suggested sociology websites containing resources for scholarly research.

Employment Opportunities for Sociologists in State Government
Session 259, Sunday, August 19, 2:30 p.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon B
Organizer: Mary Lizabeth Gatta, Rutgers University
Panel: Mary Lizabeth Gatta, Rutgers University
Dianne Mills McKay, New Jersey Council on Gender Parity in Labor and Education
This workshop will share creative opportunities for sociologists in state government. Panelists will present the innovative model of the New Jersey Council on Gender Parity in Labor and Education. This Council represents the partnership of the NJ State Employment and Training Commission, a state agency, and the Center for Women and Work, an academic social science research organization. The workshop will explore and discuss the formation of state-academic partnerships, the functioning of state-academic partnerships, how the needs of policymakers are addressed in such partnerships, the benefits to each organization, the role of sociological research in state government, and mentoring students for careers in state government.

New PhDs Discuss Details of the Job Market Process: From Timelines to Negotiations
Session 260, Sunday, August 19, 2:30 p.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5
Organizer: Ronica N. Rooks, National Institute on Aging
Panel: Ronica N. Rooks, National Institute on Aging
Tailise Damille Johnson, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Laura M. Moore, University of Maryland, College Park
This workshop is training for job seekers who have a basic knowledge of the job search process and are looking for additional details, or the "little known facts," about the job search and interview process. Panelists will provide information on starting a job search, creating timelines and utilizing effective time management skills, understanding the resources and costs involved in marketing yourself, and what to expect and how to prepare for the interview process and negotiations. This workshop is intended to empower job seekers and alleviate some of the stress that usually accompanies a job search.

How to Get Your Research Presented in the Mass Media—with Relatively Little Pain or Humiliation
Session 297, Monday, August 20, 8:30 a.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Oceanside
Organizer: Pepper J. Schwartz, University of Washington
Panel: Janet Lever, California State University, Los Angeles
Virginia E. Rutter, University of Washington
Pepper J. Schwartz, University of Washington
Rick Shenkman, TomPaine.com, Washington, DC
Many academics have findings that should reach the public, and reach them in a way that academics feel has not distorted the meaning of their research. We will present ways of getting research to various types of media, trying to protect it as much as possible, and damage control when things don’t go as planned. We will have a panel of academics who are media-savvy and who also have been media gatekeepers. We will also have a person who does public relations for professors and a professional newsman who spent twenty years in broadcast news. Topics will include: ways to get your research noticed; how to make sure the media gets the central points; who to contact, who to trust; how to talk to media in print, internet, radio, and television; and what to do if the media gets it wrong.

How to Get Published: Advice from ASA Editors
Session 298, Monday, August 20, 8:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon G
Organizer and Presider: Aaron Pallas, Teachers College, Columbia University, and Editor, Sociology of Education
Panel: Annette Laneu, Temple University
Jonathan H. Turner, University of California, Riverside and Editor, Sociological Theory
Claude S. Fischer, University of California, Berkeley, and editor of Contexts
This workshop is intended for sociologists seeking to learn more about the process of publishing in scholarly journals, and about the tacit rules that guide the editorial process. The workshop will examine how to identify appropriate journals to which to submit manuscripts, and will demystify the editorial review process. Special attention is given to the process of revising manuscripts for publication. Materials will be provided for workshop participants.

Opportunities for Research, Consulting, and Teaching in the Asia-Pacific Region
Session 340, Monday, August 20, 10:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon K
Organizer: Patricia G. Steinhoff, University of Hawaii
Panel: Douglas J. Guthrie, New York University and Social Science Research Council
Patricia G. Steinhoff, University of Hawaii
Panelists will discuss what kinds of opportunities for research, consulting, and teaching in the Asia-Pacific region are available to sociologists, what preparation and background are needed, and where to go for further information. The workshop aims to help participants focus on what sorts of opportunities in the Asia-Pacific region might be appropriate for them, and how to pursue them effectively.

Serving as an Expert Witness
Session 377, Monday, August 20, 2:30 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 202A
Organizer and Presider: Robert L. Nelson, American Bar Foundation and Northwestern University
Panel: William T. Bielby, University of California, Santa Barbara
Laura Beth Nielsen, American Bar Foundation
Barbara F. Reskin, Harvard University
Lynn Smith-Lovin, University of Arizona
Ross Stolzenberg, University of Chicago
David Wellman, University of California, Santa Cruz
The workshop will discuss the practical, professional, and intellectual aspects of serving as an expert witness. Panelists will describe their personal experiences serving as expert witnesses in litigation. Most of the panelists have worked as statistical experts in litigation. Some have drawn on different kinds of expertise in the research and teaching of the law. Panelists and the audience will be invited to talk about the impact of legal process on the style and substance of their work product, their sense of objectivity and professional autonomy in an adversarial context, problems of communicating their findings to professional and lay decision-makers, the impact of their analyses on the contests in which they participated, and the practical costs and benefits of the work. We also will ask panelists to reflect on the implications of their experience for the sociology of knowledge and the sociology of law: how do the epistemological assumptions and decision-making principles of social science and law compare? What does this support about the potential value of the legal process as a means of learning about society? How influential is sociological knowledge likely to be in the legal process?
Looking for Jobs, Promotion, and Tenure: Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, and Transgender Issues
Session 378, Monday, August 20, 2:30 p.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon B
Organizers: Jennifer L. Eichstedt, Humboldt State University; Peter M. Nardi, Pitzer College
Panel: Lionel Cantu, University of California, Santa Cruz
        Jennifer L. Eichstedt, Humboldt State University
        Peter M. Nardi, Pitzer College
        Verta A. Taylor, Ohio State University
Panelists will discuss issues confronting lesbian/gay/bisexual/transgendered (LGBT) people as they enter the job market and come up for promotion and tenure. What should be included on a vita, what should be left out, or what should be rephrased? The workshop will discuss how you present yourself at interviews, what you say to various constituencies (faculty, students, administrators), and how you inquire about benefits for domestic partners. Panelists will present personal experiences from when they were seeking jobs as well as what they experience now at the hiring end. The workshop is open to LGBT people and strongly welcomes chairs, faculty, and administrators who want to learn how to interview LGBT candidates for faculty or staff positions.

Preparing Future Faculty for the Range of Academic Jobs
Session 379, Monday, August 20, 2:30 p.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Santa Monica
Organizers: Harland Prechel, Texas A&M University; Jean Shin, Western Maryland College
Panel: Sarah N. Gatson, Texas A&M University
        Elizabeth Gill, Randolph-Macon College
        Brian Powell, Indiana University
        William G. Roy, University of California, Los Angeles
This workshop will cover the many different kinds of academic jobs available in sociology, from those at large public research universities to ones at small private liberal arts colleges (and the many in between). We will give special attention to how graduate faculty members might mentor and advise students for the range of academic jobs, and also what graduate students can do to prepare for different types of expectations, resources, and duties. The workshop panel is comprised of experienced directors of graduate studies, other senior faculty members who have served as mentors or advisors, and also newer faculty who can reflect on their graduate training and how it has connected with their first years on the job. After some brief remarks by each organizer and panelist, much of the time will be devoted to an open forum for questions and discussion with the audience.

Navigating Legislatutes as a Sociologist (co-sponsored by the Spivack Program in Applied Social Research and Social Policy)
Session 418, Monday, August 20, 4:30 p.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon G
Organizer and Presider: George Dowdall, St. Joseph's University
Panel: Larry Burmeister, University of Kentucky and ASA Congressional Fellow
        Rachel Gragg, Office of U.S. Senator Paul D. Wellstone
        Paul Luebke, University of North Carolina, Greensboro, and North Carolina State Representative (D-Durham)
Sociological Abstracts and Library and Internet Resources: Research and Teaching Tips and Tools
Session 419, Monday, August 20, 4:30 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Leaders: Jill K. Blaemers, CSA Sociological Abstracts
        Sally Wilson Weimer, University of California, Santa Barbara
This workshop will demonstrate and review uses of Sociological Abstracts for research and teaching, highlighting its new Web Resources feature. Other tools available on the Internet and through the university library will also be discussed. The focus will be on how to take advantage of the Internet and other changes in technology to enhance teaching and research.

Teaching Portfolios
Session 453, Tuesday, August 21, 8:30 a.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201B
Leader: Diane Pike, Augsburg College
The fully hands-on workshop will guide participants through the key issues of context, content, and consequences in creating a teaching portfolio. Assessing the value and costs of the portfolio for faculty improvement and evaluation will accompany the production of an actual portfolio entry (workbook provided).

Winning Small Grants for Cutting Edge Research and Research Activities: The ASA Fund for the Advancement of the Discipline (10th Annual Research Support Forum)
Session 454, Tuesday, August 21, 8:30 a.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Salinas
Organizer and Presider: Roberta M. Spalter-Roth, American Sociological Association
Panel: Paul Burstein, University of Washington
        April Brayfield, Tulane University
        Eduardo Bonilla-Silva, Texas A&M University
        Philip N. Cohen, University of California, Irvine
        Ligaya Lindo-McGovern, Indiana University, Kokomo
        Meyer Kestnbaum, University of Maryland
        John P. Robinson, University of Maryland
        William G. Roy, University of California, Los Angeles
        Sally Willson Weimer, University of California, Santa Barbara
        Donald Robertson, California State University, Northridge, and
        Jim Stockinger, University of California, Berkeley
This workshop will cover the many different kinds of academic jobs available in sociology, from those at large public research universities to ones at small private liberal arts colleges (and the many in between). We will give special attention to how graduate faculty members might mentor and advise students for the range of academic jobs, and also what graduate students can do to prepare for different types of expectations, resources, and duties. The workshop panel is comprised of experienced directors of graduate studies, other senior faculty members who have served as mentors or advisors, and also newer faculty who can reflect on their graduate training and how it has connected with their first years on the job. After some brief remarks by each organizer and panelist, much of the time will be devoted to an open forum for questions and discussion with the audience.

Issues of Part-Time, Adjunct, and Temporary Faculty Appointments
Session 487, Tuesday, August 21, 10:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5
Organizer and Presider: Harold Charnofsky, California State University, Dominguez Hills
Panel: Jane Kerlinger, California State University, Chico, and Vice President of the California Faculty Association (CFA)
        Donald Robertson, California State University, Northridge, and California State University, Dominguez Hills
        Jim Stockinger, University of California, Berkeley

The Internet, Information Technology, and Society
Session 488, Tuesday, August 21, 10:30 a.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Oceanside
Leaders: Alan Neustadtl, University of Maryland
        John P. Robinson, University of Maryland
        Meyer Kestnbaum, University of Maryland
The Internet and other Information Technology (IT) are now being actively used by 40-60% of the American public and are obviously changing the character and quality of American life. There now are several important social science efforts to disseminate and coordinate studies of IT usage and impact. This ASA workshop would allow participants to become familiar with these disparate efforts, which include: (1) the University of Maryland website, at which researchers can now have immediate and interactive access to national data on the public's access and use of the Internet (www.webuse.umd.edu); (2) Internet data modules on the General Social Survey (GSS) and Current Population Surveys (CPS), and specialized surveys conducted by Pew Center, UCLA, the SIOSS at Stanford, Carnegie-Mellon, Toronto and Harvard Universities, and the National Geographic; and (3) theoretical discussions of the ways IT is likely to transform social, economic, political, educational, and commercial institutions and modes of interaction—as exemplified in an Annual Review of Sociology article.

The workshop will also draw on and review insights and critiques that emerged from an intensive three-week summer "WebShop" held at the University of Maryland and the University of California-Berkeley in June of 2001, where 50 top graduate students from across the country discussed and interacted with 50 top scholars and researchers concerning their conclusions about IT's apparent impact on society.

Preparing Your Dissertation for Publication as a Book and as an Article

Session 522, Tuesday, August 21, 12:30 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Leader: Myra Marx Ferree, University of Wisconsin, Madison
Ilene Kalish-Routledge, Routledge Publishing Group
Amy L. Best, California State University, San Jose

This workshop is designed for professors who teach these substantive courses and wish to integrate a minimal data analysis competent into their course in ways that are both "student friendly" and "teacher friendly". It will introduce faculty to the approach of the Social Science Data Analysis Network (www.SSDAN.net) at the University of Michigan, which makes data sets and course modules accessible to instructors, and provides backup support during the semester. This offering of the workshop launches a new NSF-funded joint SSDAN-ASA initiative which will enable entire departments to participate in the SSDAN program, with infrastructure support from ASA. Therefore, we encourage participation of individual faculty members who wish to learn about this approach, or small groups of faculty from the same department who wish to work on the incorporation of SSDAN in their specific courses or in the curriculum more generally.

Proposal Development: Obtaining Funding for Your Dissertation/Research (10th Annual Research Support Forum)
Session 551, Tuesday, August 21, 12:30 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Organizer and President: Fred C. Pampel, National Science Foundation
Panel: Reeve Vanneman, University of Maryland
Jeffrey W. Lucas, Akron University
Laurie Duchowny, State University of New York, Stony Brook
Joya Mira, University of Massachusetts, Amherst

This workshop targets graduate students, faculty, and researchers who are new to proposal writing and submission. A representative from the National Science Foundation (NSF), a recent member of the NSF review panel, and recipients of NSF dissertation and regular research grants will discuss the proposal development process, elements of a competitive proposal, proposal submission and review, and funding opportunities for graduate students and new faculty. Along with brief presentations of the panel, the format will include time for audience questioning and participation.

Teaching Workshops

Teaching Workshops are a popular part of each Annual Meeting program. These sessions provide opportunities for attendees to enhance their teaching skills and discover ways to integrate new materials into their courses. Teaching Workshops emphasize interaction between leaders and audience, and attendees are encouraged to bring questions or problems for discussion and new ideas to enliven classroom activities. These workshops are open to all meeting registrants.

Teaching Undergraduate Statistics in Sociology
Session 11, Saturday, August 18, 8:30 a.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Salinas
Leaders: Herman J. Loether, California State University, Dominguez Hills
Robert M. O'Brien, University of Oregon
Vanessa J. Hamilton, Indiana University

This workshop will deal with strategies for integrating statistics into the sociology curriculum to validate its value to sociology and to make it more palatable to sociology students. Organization of the subject matter, styles of presentation, and testing strategies will be addressed. Uses of a computerized laboratory as an integral part of the course will be discussed.

SSDAN and Integrating Data Analysis into Undergraduate Courses
Session 45, Saturday, August 18, 10:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5
Leader: William H. Frey, University of Michigan

This workshop will focus on how professors can integrate the analysis of US Census data in relevant, user-friendly ways into a variety of courses other than research methods or statistics. Courses can range from Intro Sociology and Social Problems, to Stratification, Race Relations, Gender Studies and more. The workshop is designed for professors who teach these substantive courses and wish to integrate a minimal data analysis competent into their course in ways that are both "student friendly" and "teacher friendly". It will introduce faculty to the approach of the Social Science Data Analysis Network (www.SSDAN.net) at the University of Michigan, which makes data sets and course modules accessible to instructors, and provides backup support during the semester. This offering of the workshop launches a new NSF-funded joint SSDAN-ASA initiative which will enable entire departments to participate in the SSDAN program, with infrastructure support from ASA. Therefore, we encourage participation of individual faculty members who wish to learn about this approach, or small groups of faculty from the same department who wish to work on the incorporation of SSDAN in their specific courses or in the curriculum more generally.

The Pedagogy of Visual Sociology: The Sociological Imagination and the World We See
Session 46, Saturday, August 18, 10:30 a.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Carmel
Leader: Douglas Harper, Duquesne University

This workshop is intended for sociologists interested in bringing the visual dimension into their teaching. The overriding theme is "How can we encourage students to explore sociological concepts through visual methods?" The discussion will emphasize four approaches to teaching sociology visually. Where appropriate, sample syllabi will be distributed and discussed. The four approaches are:

1. The advanced visual sociology course. In this course, students are required to have or acquire moderate knowledge of photographic and darkroom (wet or electronic) skills. Typical syllabi are distributed and discussed.

2. The visual sociology assignment in a typical Introductory Sociology course. In this assignment, introductory sociology students complete an assignment using rudimentary photographic equipment and skills. No prior photographic skills are required. Sample assignments are discussed. Developments of this assignment in upper division sociology courses are introduced.

3. Video methods. This discussion will center on community studies using video methods. This is an advanced course in which students learn filmmaking theory and techniques, and computer-based video editing. Typical syllabi will be distributed and discussed.

4. Multi-media applications. We will also discuss the new opportunities for visual exploration of society offered by various multi-media approaches.

The Boxless Rebellion: Incorporating Interdisciplinary Teaching in Your Sociology Classes
Session 78, Saturday, August 18, 12:30 p.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5
Leader: Toska Olson, The Evergreen State College

This practical and interactive workshop is designed for sociologists interested in learning more about the value of and techniques involved in interdisciplinary teaching and learning. Faculty and students with all levels of experience in interdisciplinary teaching are encouraged to come and share their perspectives on this learning model. Participants will collaboratively explore a variety of strategies for connecting learning, ranging from designing interdisciplinary assignments within a class, to linking assignments across classes, to team teaching in coordinated studies programs. We will also discuss strategies for situating interdisciplinary studies and learning communities within current institutional environments.

Teaching Introductory Sociology for the First Time
Session 109, Saturday, August 18, 2:30 p.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Monterey
Leaders: Roberta Lessor, Chapman University
Jerry M. Lewis, Kent State University
Karen Young, Chapman University
This workshop will address the needs of instructors in a variety of settings. Sociologists may find themselves teaching their first Introductory Sociology course in the 400-seat lecture hall or the small seminar room. We will provide assistance with course goals, introductory course content, constructing a syllabus, choosing readings and computer programs, managing a class session including deciding whether or not to lecture, and how to do assessment. Together with those attending the workshop, we will discuss the challenge of helping our beginning students to develop a "sociological imagination."

Using Data Sets in Courses Other than Research Methods
Session 151, Sunday, August 19, 8:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon H
Organizer and Presider: Rogelio Saenz, Texas A&M University
Leaders: Allen Scarboro, Augusta State University
Michael C. Kearl, Trinity University
Mark A. Fossett, Texas A&M University
The goal of this workshop is to share ideas about the use of data sets and data analyses in courses aside from those related to research methods. The leaders will share with the audience examples of the kinds of data sets and data analyses that they have introduced into their courses. There will also be time for discussion between the leaders and members of the audience. Handouts will be provided.

Teaching Race, Class, and Gender
Session 186, Sunday, August 19, 10:30 a.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201C
Organizer: Robin L. Jarrett, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign
Panel: Kimberly Nettles, University of Memphis
Estela Godinez Ballon, University of California, Los Angeles
Edith W. Chen, University of Hawaii
Gilda L. Ochoa, Pomona College
Joya Misra, University of Massachusetts
Anne R. Roschelle, State University of New York, New Paltz
Kathryn B. Ward, Southern Illinois University
This workshop will explore topics, theoretical frameworks, and instructional strategies for teaching substantive and methodological courses that focus on race, class, and gender. More specifically, the workshop will concentrate on women of color in the U.S. and inequality in non-western societies; explore integrative and comparative, cross-cultural perspectives; and discuss team teaching, classroom simulations, and the use of films.

Teaching Symbolic Interaction Courses
Session 224, Sunday, August 19, 12:30 p.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon A
Organizer and Presider: D. Angus Vail, Willamette University
Teaching Social Psychology as Symbolic Interactionism. Jodi O'Brien, Seattle University
Teaching Symbolic Interactionism as Theory. David R. Maines, Oakland University
Teaching Deviance as Symbolic Interactionism. Rebecca F. Plante, Wittenberg University
Teaching Symbolic Interactionism and Research Methods. Leslie Wasson, University of South Florida, Tampa

Distance Learning
Session 262, Sunday, August 19, 2:30 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Leader: Joan Biddle, New School Online University
The emphasis for this workshop will be on the importance of social interaction between the instructor and students in a virtual classroom, on sociability as a method for creating an atmosphere which inspires students to contribute to the conversation, and as a vehicle by which the content of a course is conveyed. Although the leader will briefly discuss the technological environment for teaching and learning, the technology of distance learning is secondary to the interaction that occurs within it. A "distance" classroom is a classroom regardless of what it "looks" like. Criticisms about distance formats often complain about the alleged lack of "face-to-face" contact between instructors and course participants. There is indeed "face-to-face" contact between all participants of a virtual or distant course; it is a matter of reorienting one's perspective to the concept of "face" in these settings. Additionally, as courses in distance formats become more commonplace, it is necessary to understand the relationships between "anytime, anywhere" and the management of time, both by students and professors.

Developing a Custom Textbook in Sociology
Session 300, Monday, August 20, 8:30 a.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Capistrano B
Leaders: Janice Clifford Wittekind, Auburn University
Murray C. Adams, Auburn University
Arthur Wilke, Auburn University
Clint Crockett, International Thompson Publishing/Wadsworth
The objective of this workshop is to provide an overview of the steps in development of a custom textbook. The session will focus on outlining the necessary steps for successful completion of this type of project. The presenters will consist of an editor, contributing authors, and a publisher representative. The audience will see differing perspectives as well as the importance of both good communication and working relationships among members of the writing team.

In addition, a discussion will highlight how custom publishing can serve as a vehicle for departmental renewal, serving as it were a "common good" for those interested in the teaching mission of sociology departments. Information will be presented on a variety of topics, including the utility of a custom text, assessing departmental resources (financial and faculty participation), selection of a publisher, setting deadlines, and other pertinent issues. The importance of overcoming challenges and responses by those who were party to the process—writers, editors, and publishers—will also be addressed.

The Use of E-Mail and the Internet for Student Feedback and Course Communication
Session 301, Monday, August 20, 8:30 a.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Leader: S. Fernando Rodriguez, University of Texas, El Paso
The goal of this workshop is to provide participants with information and tools that will help them make more efficient use of e-mail and the Internet to improve student feedback and course communication.

Teaching Racial and Ethnic Relations
Session 343, Monday, August 20, 10:30 a.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Capistrano B
Leaders: Sarmistha Banerjee, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign
Shirley A. Jackson, Southern Connecticut State University
This workshop will demonstrate various methods of teaching race and ethnicity. The facilitators will discuss techniques that may be used to explore race and ethnicity from a national and an international perspective. This session will provide opportunities for participants who are already teaching courses on race and ethnicity to share their experiences. Participants will have the opportunity to exchange ideas, learn new techniques, and discuss the challenges of teaching in this area. Handouts, including readings, films, activities, and assignments/projects, will be made available.
Teaching the Sociology of Religion
Session 344, Monday, August 20, 10:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon D
Leader: Cheryl Townsend Gilkes, Colby College

Teaching about Popular Culture
Session 382, Monday, August 20, 2:30 p.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5
Organizer and Presider: Clinton R. Sanders, University of Connecticut
Panel: David L. Althide, Arizona State University
Joshua Gamson, Yale University
Thomas C. Hood, University of Tennessee
Chandra Mukerji, University of California, San Diego
This workshop focuses on organizing and teaching classes in popular culture and the mass media. Panel members will informally discuss such issues as how they plan their own courses, substantive topics dealt with, textual and other materials used, class exercises and assignments, and special problems commonly encountered. Panel members are well-known figures in the sociology of media and popular culture. In addition to presentations, time will be devoted to responding to comments and questions from workshop attendees.

Teaching the Sociology of Sexualities
Session 421, Monday, August 20, 4:30 p.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 3
Organizer and Presider: Tracy E. Ore, Saint Cloud State University
Panel: Sine Anahita, Iowa State University
Kendal L. Broad, University of Florida
Jodi O'Brien, Seattle University
This workshop will address teaching the sociology of sexualities, particularly as it intersects with race, class, gender, (dis)ability, etc. A variety of techniques and strategies for negotiating hostility, incorporating identities, and drawing interconnections between issues of race, class, ethnicity, gender, ability, and community will also be discussed. The session format is highly interactive, and those attending are encouraged to share what they have experienced as obstacles, opportunities, and the methods they have developed to handle a variety of situations. This workshop is appropriate for those teaching courses on sexualities or those who incorporate such materials into their own courses.

Using the Web for Teaching Sociology
Session 456, Tuesday, August 21, 8:30 a.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Oceanside
Organizer and Presider: Andrew Ziner, Cedar Crest College
Panel: Putting a Course in Applied and Clinical Sociology Online: Prospects and Problems. Mary Cay Sengstock, Wayne State University
Virtual Research and Firsthand Experience: Using the Internet to Meet a Dual Pedagogical Challenge. Suzanne B. Maurer, Syracuse University
Visualizing and Exploring U.S. Social Change: Interactive Multimedia and Web-based Tools. Andrew A. Beveridge, Queens College and Graduate Center, City University of New York; David Halle, University of California, Los Angeles
Using Web-based Technology to Teach Applied Sociology. Duane Dukes, John Carroll University

Teaching Urban Sociology
Session 490, Tuesday, August 21, 10:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon A
Leaders: Philip G. Olson, University of Missouri, Kansas City
John C. Kilburn, Eastern Connecticut State University
Jerome Krase, Brooklyn College, City University of New York
This workshop will introduce innovative approaches to teaching that go beyond traditional lecture and discussion courses. The use of films, direct field experience, community service work, taking the class to the community and bringing the community into the classroom will all be discussed. Additional information on how to effectively use 2000 Census data will be presented. Participants are invited to bring their course syllabi, teaching materials, and approaches they have used that have proven to work in helping undergraduate students understand the sociological nature of cities.

Teaching Sociology of Law
Session 524, Tuesday, August 21, 12:30 p.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201B
Leader: Lisa J. McIntyre, Washington State University

Teaching Sociology of Mental Health and Illness
Session 553, Tuesday, August 21, 2:30 p.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Monterey
Leaders: Maxine S. Thompson and Maxine P. Atkinson, North Carolina State University
Panel: Allan V. Horwitz, Rutgers University
Pamela Braboy Jackson, Indiana University
Kristen Marcussen, Kent State University
The goal of this workshop is to provide a framework of decision-making for instructors of mental health and illness. When participants have finished the workshop, they will be able to evaluate or reevaluate the structure of their courses. The workshop will be conducted with an emphasis on teaching sociologically by objectives. Participants will be actively involved in responding to crucial choice points about the objectives of their course, methods of instruction, and methods of evaluating our own instruction. Bringing a syllabus, or draft of a syllabus, to the workshop will improve the effectiveness of the workshop for participants.

Academic Workplace Workshops
Academic Workplace Workshops are a relatively new category of events at the Annual Meeting, building on the success of Teaching Workshops and Professional Workshops. The many pressing issues in higher education and the importance of chair and faculty leadership led ASA Academic and Professional Affairs Program staff to send proposals to the Program Committee for sessions designed to increase sociology’s strength and effectiveness in the academic context. Similar in format to Teaching Workshops, these sessions emphasize interaction between leaders and audience, and attendees are encouraged to bring questions or problems for discussion. Academic Workplace Workshops are open to all meeting registrants.

Teaching Adult Students
Session 10, Saturday, August 18, 8:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5
Leaders: Nancy E. Sacks, State University of New York, Stony Brook
Vondora Wilson-Corzen, Suffolk Community College
Peter Kaufman, State University of New York, New Paltz
The goal of this workshop is to identify effective methods for teaching adult students. Special characteristics of adult learning styles and adult student behavior will be discussed. Case studies of successful pedagogical strategies that maximize the learning potential of adult students will be shared.

Criminology-Programs Inside and Outside of Sociology Departments
Session 44, Saturday, August 18, 10:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 4
Leaders: Lawrence W. Sherman, University of Pennsylvania
Candace Kruttschnitt, University of Minnesota
Lawrence Sherman chaired the Department of Criminology and Preparing for a Program Review
Session 149, Sunday, August 19, 8:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5
Leaders: Edward L. Kain, Southwestern University
Gregory L. Weiss, Roanoke College
The goal of this workshop is to provide participants with helpful strategies and information that will be useful for chairs and departments in conducting an effective program review. Specific topics include: (1) the importance of the institutional context of the program review, (2) strategies for getting the process started with a positive spirit, (3) the types of information that need to be included in a thorough self-study, (4) the documents that are typically requested by external reviewers, (5) keys to organizing a successful review, and (6) what to expect during the external review and in the external reviewers' report. Participants will become familiar with the ASA/AAC document, Liberal Learning and the Sociology Major, and how it is used for a guide for evaluating sociology programs nationwide. Handouts will be provided, and there will be ample time for questions and answers.

Taking Students Abroad
Session 150, Sunday, August 19, 8:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Monterey
Leader: Michael R. Leming, St. Olaf College
Panel: Pirapon Isarabhakdi, Chiang Mai University, Thailand
Manisha Desai, Hobart and William Smith Colleges
Jeremy Geller, Hobart and William Smith Colleges
This participatory workshop is designed for those who are interested in, or considering, taking sociology student abroad. The facilitators have led programs in North America, Egypt, Europe, and South, East, and Southeast Asia. The workshop will investigate, but not be restricted to, the following topics: Curriculum and policy decisions; institutional structures in support of study-abroad; models of study abroad (faculty-directed, affiliated institutions, consortial, and third-party programs); the use of ethnographic journals, field trips, internships, and discussions as transformative pedagogy; cross-cultural issues related to gender, ethnicity, and class inequalities; the integration of study-abroad into on-campus curriculum (selection of students, orientation and re-entry programming for students, preparing students for non-US pedagogy); and ways to create study-abroad programs.

Models for Graduate Proseminars in Graduate Training
Session 185, Sunday, August 19, 10:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon A
Organizer: Judith A. Howard, University of Washington
Panel: Mary Benin, Arizona State University
Scott Coltrane, University of California, Riverside
Judith A. Howard, University of Washington
Michael A. Messner, University of Southern California
Robert Zussman, University of Massachusetts, Amherst
The goal of this workshop is to provide participants with ideas for various models of professional development for graduate students. Panelists from a variety of programs will describe how they organize the professional training of graduate students, including substantive proseminars and workshops on professional activities such as publishing, grant-writing, introduction to professional organizations, preparing for certification/qualifying exams, and preparation for both academic and non-academic job markets. Handouts will be provided and there will be time for questions and discussion.

Sociology Departments, High School Social Studies, and Sociology Program Growth
Session 222, Sunday, August 19, 12:30 p.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Carmel
Leaders: Keith Alan Roberts, Hanover College
Catherine Mobley, Clemson University
Carla B. Howery, American Sociological Association
Vanessa-marie D'Andrea, City University, London
Issues to be covered in this workshop include: (1) collaborations with education to prepare primary and secondary school teachers; (2) sociology department summer courses/workshops for credit for secondary school teachers; (3) resources for secondary school teachers—workshops, lesson plans, and textbooks; (4) alliances that college faculty can make with local secondary school teachers; (5) a high school advanced placement course and recruitment of incoming first-year students; and (6) state standards for high school sociology courses.

The Sociology Major: Problems and Solutions
Session 261, Sunday, August 19, 2:30 p.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon A
Organizers: Beth A. Eck, James Madison University; Jay R. Howard, Indiana University-Purdue University, Columbus
Goals and Objectives of the Sociology Major: Why They Matter. Gregory L. Weiss, Roanoke College
Taking Theory Last: A Different Approach to Organizing the Curriculum. Beth A. Eck, James Madison University
Observations from the Field: What Works and What Doesn't in Assessment. Catherine White Bertheide, Skidmore College
Educational institutions and academic departments across the country are being asked to give serious attention to their mission, goals, and specific objectives; to assess that their achievement of these objectives; and to use the results of assessment to modify the curriculum, individual courses, and teaching pedagogy to enhance student learning. To that end, this workshop focuses on what we know about designing effective sociology programs and offers a place to suggest improvements for the major, regardless of institution. Attendees will participate in discussion of goals and objectives of the Sociology major, curriculum matters (including sequencing and courses taught), and mechanisms for assessment. The remarks of three panelists will provide the catalyst for these discussions.

Managing a Joint Sociology and Social Work Program
Session 299, Monday, August 20, 8:30 a.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 3
Leaders: Kerry J. Strand, Hood College
Roger Feitman, Hood College
In this workshop we discuss the special characteristics, benefits, and challenges of combining sociology and social work programs within academic departments, particularly from the perspective of the department chair. Topics include coordinating curricula, professional expectations, and administrative issues including budgets, personnel decisions, and the accreditation process. The major focus will be on departments with social work programs accredited by the American Council on Social Work Education. However, we will also give some attention to other configurations, such as departments where the sociology major is combined with a concentration, track, or minor in social work or human services.

How Research on Diversity Should Inform Teaching
Session 341, Monday, August 20, 10:30 a.m.
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201D
Leaders: Lori Latrice Sykes, State University of New York, Albany
Leslie T.C. Wang, University of Toledo
Charles P. Gallmeier, Indiana University Northwest
Catherine R. Zimmer, North Carolina State University
This session is an interactive workshop which will explore the integration of research topics such as race, ethnicity, gender, class, and sexuality into classroom instruction. Specifically, panelists and attendees will share best practice models with special attention devoted to the selection of required and recommended materials, assignments, and lecture content.

Lessons from Preparing Future Faculty Projects
Session 342, Monday, August 20, 10:30 a.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Manhattan
Leaders: Camilla Vivian Saulsbury, Indiana University
Robert V. Robinson, Indiana University
Nancy J. Davis, DePauw University
Matthew Oware, Indiana University
The goal of this workshop is to provide participants with information about the Preparing Future Faculty (PFF) Program along with tools for implementing aspects of PFF programs at their own college or university. The focus will be on what can be gained from involvement with PFF programs, from both individual and departmental-level perspectives. Models for generating graduate student and faculty interest in PFF-related activities, as well as how to operate PFF programs or activities on a shoestring, will also be presented. Handouts will be provided and there will be time for questions.

Integrating International Students in Graduate Programs
Session 380, Monday, August 20, 2:30 p.m.
Leader: Kiyoshi Ikeda, University of Hawaii, Manoa
Participants in this workshop will share experiences in "integrating" international students in graduate programs with a view to fostering supportive academic and social environments. Such arrangements can enable students from such backgrounds to develop and proceed in sociology graduate studies and beyond. The workshop leader will moderate, comment, and provide information on the most effective arrangements and conditions involving students and programs at given stages in graduate education and beyond. In the flow of developments, the focus will be on how "integration" is fostered within pre-admission efforts, institutional and program elements, and post-degree influences. Key influences can be explored in thriving and coping with study program demands (the first 18 months or so), developing a niche and a focus, becoming a part of the sociological craft and vocation, and related preparation for initial placements and post-doctoral supports. At each point of interest, the basic structural and program arrangements to foster integration of international students to such conditions and contexts will be explored.

Working Effectively with Students with Disabilities
Session 381, Monday, August 20, 2:30 p.m.
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon G
Leaders: Sharon N. Barnartt, Gallaudet University
Bruce K. Friesen, Kent State University, Stark
Kelly Oster, Kent State University, Stark
Workshop participants will first become familiar with the major federal laws that frame relationships between students with disabilities, their professors, and the University. Issues such as educational integrity, inclusion, and equity will be explored as they related to students with impairments of hearing, sight, and mobility, as well as learning disabilities. Suggestions for creating a more accessible classroom for all students will be presented. This workshop is of interest to faculty, department chairs, and university staff who work with students with disabilities.

Preparing Graduate Students to Teach: Models for Success
Session 420, Monday, August 20, 4:30 p.m.
Hilton Anaheim, Capistrano A
Organizer and Presider: John D. DeLamater, University of Wisconsin, Madison
Panel: George Bridges, University of Washington
John D. DeLamater, University of Wisconsin, Madison
Jill Stein, University of California, Los Angeles
Mary Wright, University of Michigan
Each panelist will present an overview of the training graduate teaching assistants/instructors receive in their department. Each will highlight the main aspects of both the structure and the process, and indicate the strengths and weaknesses of their program. Dialogue with the audience will be encouraged.

Establishing Successful Research Centers within Sociology Departments
Session 455, Tuesday, August 21, 8:30 a.m.
Hilton Anaheim, San Simeon A
Leader: John M. Kennedy, Indiana University
Research centers can support the research, teaching, service, and service-learning missions of sociology departments. Their success
Leading Academic Change
Eighth Annual ASA Chair Conference

Sponsored by the ASA Academic and Professional Affairs Program, the Eighth Annual ASA Chair Conference is designed for new and current chairs at all types of institutions. This conference provides "briefings" on issues of critical importance for departmental leadership. Panels, roundtables, and informal conversation facilitate sharing information and advice. As always, attendees will meet in groups with chairs from similar institutions to discuss common issues. The ASA Research Program on the Discipline and Profession will also present data on important trends in the profession.

The conference begins in the Capistrano B Room at the Hilton Anaheim on Friday, August 17, at 12:30 p.m. and concludes at 2:10 p.m. on Saturday, August 18.

The major briefing sessions will focus on:
- Opportunities and Dilemmas for Chairs as Leaders: Finding Your Leadership Style
- Data on Trends in the Profession: Department Survey and Data Update
- Higher Education Issues and Chair Leadership Briefings
- Improving Your Curriculum Roundtables:
  1. Infusing Service Learning and Internships in the Curriculum
  2. Enhancing Undergraduate Research Training in the Curriculum
  3. Attending to Issues of Diversity in the Sociology Major
  4. Insights and Developments in Graduate Curricula
  5. Becoming Entrepreneurial
- Navigating the Institutional Review Board Process
- Building Sociology Connections to Urban Studies Programs
- Making Effective Use of On-Campus Faculty Development Resources
- Successful Strategies for Team Teaching
- Lunch and Panel Presentation: The Leadership Role of the Chair in Navigating the Institutional Review Board Process

Preregistration and fee payment are required. Fees for the Chair Conference are $95 for chairs from Department Affiliate departments; $125 for chairs from non-affiliate departments. The registration fee includes all conference materials, coffee breaks, dessert on Friday night, and breakfast and lunch on Saturday.

Attendees who preregistered should have received their tickets with their name badges and program materials at ASA Preregistration. Those who did not make advance reservations may check at the ASA Tickets counter in Pacific B at the Hilton Anaheim for openings.
Section Activities

Looking for an easy way to find colleagues with similar research interests? Section activities offer one convenient avenue for connecting with like-minded scholars. These specialized sessions range in format from formal paper presentations to panels and discussion roundtables. Section-sponsored sessions are open to all meeting registrants, whether section members or not.

Sections promote ongoing communication among their members by publishing newsletters, supporting cooperative research ventures, recognizing outstanding work by professionals and students in their specialties, and sponsoring program activities at each Annual Meeting. ASA members with interests in specialized areas of sociological inquiry may join any Section of the Association. Stop by the ASA Membership table in the On-Site Registration area at the Hilton to browse through recent section newsletters and pick up section membership information. Of course, if you join a section before September 30, your membership will help support that section's program allocation for 2002.

The number of sessions allocated to each Section is based on the size of the Section membership. For the 42 sections, including two sections-in-formation (Labor and Labor Movements, and Animals and Society), there are a total of 164 sessions/meetings scheduled.

Section activities are summarized below for quick reference. Meeting days are Saturday, August 18; Sunday, August 19; Monday, August 20; and Tuesday, August 21.

Special Forum for Directors of Graduate Study

Because Directors of Graduate Study (DGS) are important leaders in shaping department policies and opportunities for effective graduate programs, ASA's Academic and Professional Affairs Program has planned a series of events to encourage exchange among sociologists in the DGS role.

On Monday, August 20, there will be events pertinent to graduate studies throughout the day. Some of these activities are open to all meeting attendees; others are open only to Directors of Graduate Study and require preregistration and fee payment. Fees are $25 for Directors of Graduate Study from Department Affiliate departments, $45 for non-affiliate Directors of Graduate Study. The registration fee includes breakfast and all DGS conference materials.

Attendees who preregistered should have received their tickets with their name badges when they picked up their program materials at ASA Preregistration. As noted on the DGS ticket, morning events will begin in the Santa Monica room at the Hilton Anaheim. Those who did not preregister may check at the ASA Tickets counter in Pacific B at the Hilton Anaheim for possible openings.

Graduate Programs Poster Session

Directors of Undergraduate Studies and prospective graduate students will want to take note of the special poster session on graduate programs which will be held at 2:30-4:00 p.m. on Monday, August 20, adjacent to the ASA Exhibits in the California Pavilion at the Hilton Anaheim. This event is designed to brief students and advisors about graduate programs in sociology. Graduate departments that responded to the invitations issued by the ASA Academic and Affairs Program are listed in the program schedule under Poster Session #283.

Student Forum

The ASA welcomes the attendance of undergraduate and graduate students at the Annual Meeting. Special arrangements for students include discounted registration fees, a special housing block, workshops oriented to issues of interest to students, student paper and roundtable sessions, and space for an informal Student Center.

Student Forum. To facilitate students' engagement in the Association and the discipline, the ASA Council approved the formation of a Student Forum in 1998. Anyone who joins ASA as a student member automatically becomes a member of the Student Forum.

Students are encouraged to attend the Annual Meeting, meet with the Forum leadership, and participate in the formal and social events that will be held. The business meeting of the Student Forum will be held on Sunday, August 19, at 8:30-10:10 a.m. in Pacific D at the Hilton Anaheim.

Student Forum officers will be present at the Orientation for First-Time Meeting Attendees to welcome students and newcomers and will serve as co-hosts of the Student Reception. The officers will also be a visible presence throughout the meeting at the Student Center.

Orient Yourself to the Meeting. Plan to attend the Orientation for First-Time Meeting Attendees to acquaint yourself with meeting service areas. Visit the exhibit area, the ASA Bookstore, and the ASA Information Desk to orient yourself to meeting service areas.

Student Reception. All students registered to attend the Annual Meeting are invited to a special student reception on Monday, August 20, at 6:30-7:30 p.m. in Grand Ballroom Salon E at the Anaheim Marriott.

Student Center. All students attending the Annual Meeting are welcome to use this hospitality room. Located in El Capitan B at the Hilton Anaheim, the Student Center will be open from 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. on Saturday through Monday, August 18-20, and 8:00 a.m.-3:00 p.m. on Tuesday, August 21, to provide an informal place for students to meet, make dinner arrangements, caucus, etc.

Graduate Programs Poster Session

Directors of Undergraduate Studies and prospective graduate students will want to take note of the special poster session on graduate programs which will be held at 2:30-4:00 p.m. on Monday, August 20, adjacent to the ASA Exhibits in the California Pavilion at the Hilton Anaheim. This event is designed to brief students and advisors about graduate programs in sociology. Graduate departments that responded to the invitations issued by the ASA Academic and Affairs Program are listed in the program schedule under Poster Session #283.
Some coffee will be provided by ASA each morning; early birds get the rewards.

Graduate School Poster Session. On Monday, August 20, from 2:30-4:00 p.m., come to the California Pavilion at the Hilton Anaheim to view the displays of graduate programs in sociology and talk to program representatives.

Data Resources and Funding Sessions. Be sure to attend poster sessions 248 and 329 to advance your work in sociology.

Student Sessions. The Program Committee reviews proposals from Student Forum officers each year and allocates up to five slots for student sessions. For details on Student Forum sessions on this year’s program, please see sessions 12, 263, 303, 386, and 492 in the Program Schedule.

Whether you are planning to attend graduate school, or are further along and look to employment in sociological practice or the academy, please take a look at the professional and teaching workshops. Don’t let the huge program overwhelm you. Start by looking at the Student Forum sessions noted above and then check the Topic Index to identify other sessions in your particular areas of interest.

Student Discounts. Registration fees are substantially discounted for students. A special block of rooms was also arranged at the nearby Howard Johnson Anaheim hotel this year. Valid student IDs may be required at check-in to verify eligibility for student rates.

Film/Video Screenings

Twelve films have been selected for inclusion on the 2001 film/video screening series, thanks to assistance from ASA Academic and Professional Affairs Program staff. The Balboa C and Lido C rooms at the Hilton Anaheim have been set aside for showing these recent video and film releases throughout the Annual Meeting.

Videos and films to be shown include:

American Odyssey: Restlessness has always defined the American psyche. Mobility is part of our lifeblood. What better expression of this quirky trait than the Wally Byam Caravan Club, a tight-knit community of older Americans who crisscross the continent in their Airstream trailers. American Odyssey looks at this group’s unconventional lifestyle and comes to the conclusion we don’t vilify the rootless, we envy them. The Wally Byam Caravan Club manages to find unity, closeness, and support the very thing that ripped us all apart: the road. This film is a unique study of American nomads as well as a community model for independence, adventure, and meaning in the latter third of life. (34 minutes). Directed by Christina Monnier. (419) 529-4297.

La Boda (The Wedding): In an intimate portrait of migrant life along the U.S.-Mexican border, Hannah Weyer’s new film “La Boda” delves into the challenges faced by a community striving to maintain their roots in Mexico, while pursuing the “American Dream” across the border. Weyer’s camera follows Elizabeth Luis during the weeks before her marriage to Artemio Guerrero interweaving the anticipation of the upcoming wedding with candid stories that explore the architecture of the Luis family. For 22-year-old Elizabeth, migrant life has meant shouldering responsibilities beyond those of an average young adult. Along with her seven siblings, she has contributed to the family income throughout her adolescence and young adulthood, often forced to sacrifice school for fieldwork, social life for travel as she and her family move between Texas, California and Mexico. “La Boda” tells the timeless story of a young woman’s coming of age, while also confronting negative stereotypes of the migrant community with the real life biography of a Mexican-American family bridging the gap between countries and culture. (53 minutes). Directed by Hannah Weyer. Women Make Movies (www.wmm.com).

A Boy Named Sue: Julie Wyman’s compelling documentary chronicles the transformation of a transsexual named Theo from a woman to a man over the course of six years. The film successfully captures Theo’s physiological and psychological changes during the process, as well as their effects on her lesbian lover and community of close friends. Taking full advantage of the unlimited access she received into an extraordinarily personal process, Wyman carefully composes a moving story about gender identity, relationships, and how even things that seem permanent can change. (56 minutes). Made by Julie Wyman. Women Make Movies (www.wmm.com).

Camp Scott Ladies: Camp Scott is a “boot camp” for juvenile girls, ages twelve to eighteen. Dressed in Army fatigues, they march in double-time, orders continually barked at them by Los Angeles County Probation officers. They’ve been sentenced here by the courts for crimes ranging from selling drugs to attempted murder. They’re defiant, tough, and daring. They’re also vulnerable and scared, often for their lives. Virtually all of them have been abused. Most were caught up in gang life. Tattoos cover their young bodies, branding them the personal property of a “Homeboy.” These girls, from rival gangs and different backgrounds, are now forced to be together twenty-four hours a day. More than a hundred girls sleep in one large Army barrack. There’s absolutely no privacy. They’re told when to eat, when to sleep, and when to speak. Parents are only allowed to visit for two hours every Sunday. Some girls will never have a visitor during their entire six-month or yearlong stay. Probation officers. documentary explores the reality behind those promises, showing that projects that benefited the downtown business community were completed, while improvements to the neighborhood adjacent to the Olympics were minimal. The film provides historical background and context to the thorny issues it examines, and serves as an illuminating case study of the social, economic, and development dilemmas facing all American cities today. (58 minutes). Produced by Roger Torda and Kathleen Sullivan. University of California Extension, Center for Media and Independent Learning. (http://www-cmil.unex.berkeley.edu/media/).

Hammering It Out: "This spirited documentary spotlights the experience of women in the building trades, specifically those women involved in Century Freeway Women's Employment Project in Los Angeles. Framed by the story of a community initiated lawsuit resulting in hundreds of women getting trained and working on a billion-dollar freeway, the film involves a primer on the feminist issues of equality, identity, and changing gender roles. Powerful testimonials by the women workers tell stories of the often unspoken gendered specifics of discrimination in the building trades: sexual harassment at the jobsite; negotiations about childcare and worker benefits; and the translation of affirmative action policy to the traditional practices of contractors and the historical conventions of the male worksite. It is a film which demonstrates the importance of providing opportunity, embracing equity, and abandoning sexist traditions which deny talented women workers the right to support their families on a par equal with men. It also serves as a cautionary tale that warns that under the law, policies, and conventions are changed, women workers may be forced out of their chosen professions, like the Rosie the Riveters, by bias and expediency." Joseph Boles, Northern Arizona University. (54 minutes). Directed by Vivian Price. Women Make Movies (www.wmm.com).

The Least Remembered City: Los Angeles is the most photographed but least remembered city in the world. This fascinating documentary features the critic and historian of mass culture, Norman Klein, who leads viewers on an "anti-tour" of the hidden, forgotten, and completely erased Los Angeles. Klein presents cinematic expression of some of the most intriguing ideas in his provocative book, The History of Forgetting Los Angeles and the Erasure of Memory, by delving into the strange paradoxes between the reality of the city and our collective illusion of it. Klein contends that the city was promoted into existence by the idea of the place rather than its reality, and that what remains now is a collective illusion of what people think is there - fact has become fiction and fiction has blended into fact. (30 minutes). Produced by Paul Forrer. University of California Extension, Center for Media and Independent Learning. (http://www-cmil.unex.berkeley.edu/media/).

900 Women: "The Louisiana Correctional Institute is located in the swamps of southern Louisiana in the small town of St. Gabriel. Built in 1970 to house an increasing population of female convicts, today it houses the state's most dangerous female prisoners and often exceeds its population capacity of 900. 75% of these are mothers and one fourth of them are serving sentences of fifteen years or more. The prison compound has a surreal quality; there are no searchlight-capped towers or barbed wire fences. Filmmaker Khadivi delivers a striking, sensitive portrait of life in this deceptively peaceful atmosphere, which is filled with stories of life on the streets, abuse, freedom, childbirth and motherhood. Six women - a grandmother, a young high school student, a pregnant woman, a recovering heroin addict, a prison guard, and the only woman on death row - were brave enough to share their frustrations and hopes. Produced by Academy Award-nominated filmmaker Jonathan Stack (The Farm)." From the Human Rights Watch Film Festival Catalogue. (72 minutes). Director Laleh Khadivi. Women Make Movies (www.wmm.com).

Nuyorican Dream follows five years in the life of a New York Puerto Rican family struggling against poverty, drug addiction, and incarceration - the flip side of the American Dream. Eldest of five children, Robert Torres is the only family member to finish high school and graduate from college. He works as a teacher and administrator at a bilingual alternative school he co-founded. Throughout the documentary, he offers blunt observations and statistics about the legacy of colonialism, inadequate inner-city educational systems and discrimination. Robert, who is also gay, presents an example of how a professional with his background can "give back" to his community as well as the personal contradictions he lives with as a member of two worlds. His siblings' stories are less the American Dream than nightmare. Aborted educations, crack use, heroin, prison stints and offspring haplessly left behind for Grandma to raise constitute traps they can't seem to escape. Laurie Collyer's feature-length, cinema verite documentary captures the emotional immediacy of a family in a free-fall without a social safety net. Nuyorican Dream also celebrates elements of community life - solidarity, sharing of resources, cultural citizenship - which make day-to-day survival possible. The film also is a testimony of the central role played by Puerto Rican women in maintaining family and cultural ties. (82 minutes). Directed by Laurie Collyer. California Newsreel (www.newsreel.com).

Secrets of Silicon Valley is a shocking, funny and moving expose that uncovers the dark side of America's love affair with technology. Part "Modern Times," part "Bladerunner," it is both a mood piece about rapid social change, and a chronicle of a tumultuous year in the life of two charismatic young activists who are experiencing "globalization" on their own doorsteps. (60 minutes). Directed by Alan Snitow and Deborah Kaufman. www.secretsofsiliconvalley.org.

Stranger With a Camera is a brilliant, uncompromising, haunting, knock-out micro history of cameras, guns and Appalachian imagery. It refuses any easy answers to the persistent ethical and political conundrum of the traffic in images of the poor, the rural, the regional and the periphery in all of popular culture today. In the coal-mining heart of Appalachia's "poverty belt," where residents have felt alternately aided and assaulted by media scrutiny, the 1967 murder of filmmaker Hugh O'Connor still stirs strong community feelings. O'Connor was in the area during the War on Poverty gathering images for a film when he was killed by landowner Hobart Ison. The story of this tragic confrontation serves as a study of media makers, the fine line between the public's right to know and the individual's right to dignity. (62 minutes). Directed by Elizabeth Barrett. California Newsreel (www.newsreel.com).

Explore Southern California

One of the best ways to get a feel for the people and history of Southern California is to take advantage of one or more of this year's Spotlight tours. This year's complement of tours highlights the social makeup and personality of the Southern California area. No matter which adventure you decide to embark upon, there is one common denominator: the way to experience and learn about a city is to meet with, talk to, and learn from the people who live there.

The schedule of tours is provided below. Reservations are mandatory. Those who already enrolled in tours should have received their tickets with their name badges. Attendees who wish to join a tour may check at the ASA Tickets counter in Pacific B at the Hilton Anaheim for availability.

Most tour sites are accessible to persons with disabilities; however, tours are generally not accessible to attendees in wheelchairs unless alternative transportation is arranged in advance. Attendees may make such arrangements on their own or contact the ASA Office in the Coronado Room at the Hilton Anaheim for assistance.

Fees are noted with the descriptions below and include all entrance fees. All fees go toward tour handling, entrance fees, and group transportation costs. Tour fees are non-refundable. If a tour has been cancelled due to insufficient enrollment, however, fees will be refunded in full.

Some of the tours have options for lunch stops at local restaurants, and this cost is generally not included in the tour fee. Please read the tour descriptions carefully for clarification.

Transportation costs are covered by tour fees, and the type of transportation involved is noted with each tour description. Attendees who opt to use an alternate mode of transportation, e.g., taking a cab instead of walking or riding the bus, will be completely responsible for the cost of that transportation.

Limits on tour attendance are noted below.

All tour buses will depart from the main entrance on the Lobby Level of the Hilton Anaheim. Attendees are asked to arrive promptly so that departure times may be observed. Keep in mind that the arrival times back to the hotel are estimates only and may vary somewhat due to traffic conditions.

Please note that Tour 3 begins with an orientation lecture and slide show. Attendees should go to Mezzanine Room 3 at the time designated as the start of that tour.

Tour 1: Bowers Museum, Santa Ana

Saturday, August 18, 1:00 p.m.—4:00 p.m.

Fee: $34.00

Coordinated by Whirl-A-Round Tours

Heralded by U.S. News and World Report as one of the nation's 10 must-see museums, the Bowers Museum opens its stately doors for you.
Housed in a Spanish style hacienda, the Bowers is renowned for its collection of Latin American and Pacific Rim art and artifacts. You’ll have time to explore the various rooms of the museum, each chronicling a different piece of the cultural fabric that comprises Southern California. Of particular interest in this, the sesquicentennial of the state of California, is an exhibit that details the Golden State’s rich history. Attendees are encouraged to make arrangements for lunch prior to the departure of the tour. (Bus/walking tour; limited to 46 participants.)

Tour 2: Spanish Los Angeles (Los Angeles: The Spanish Colony)
Sunday, August 19, 10:00 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.
Leader: Kris Kouri, California State University, Northridge
The first Spanish settlement, established in the area now known as Los Angeles, was a mission founded by the Franciscan Fathers in 1771. Always looking to expand their territory, the Spanish government soon instituted the Pueblo de Los Angeles just a short distance away. The first inhabitants of this little town were forty-four multiracial soldiers of Black, Indian, and Spanish descent, who were granted large plots of land. These early settlers, who were known as the Rancheros, continued to farm the land even after Mexico won its independence from Spain in 1822. But with the United States takeover of the California territory in 1848 and the new system of government that followed, they gradually lost their holdings. This tour traces this early Spanish period. You will first visit the San Gabriel Mission, and from there travel to the Pueblo de Los Angeles. Here you will be able to see the old Plaza and explore an adobe Ranchero family home. You will then be given the opportunity to explore the shops and restaurants located in Olvera Street, a Mexican Village that sits adjacent to the pueblo. (Attendees are responsible for lunch costs; lunch is not included in the tour price.) (Bus/walking tour; limited to 25 participants.)

Tour 3: Little Saigon
Sunday, August 19, 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.
Orientation Room: Mezzanine Room 3, Hilton Anaheim
Fee: $22.00
Leaders: Gina Masequesmay, California State University, Northridge; Jeffery Brody, California State University, Fullerton; David DeVries, California State University, Fullerton; Tracy A. Pham, co-host of Public Affairs Vietnamese American radio, Linh Van Nguyen, Executive Director of Nguyen Ba Hoc Cultural Center, Thom Tran, University of California, Los Angeles

Little Saigon is the largest Vietnamese community outside of Vietnam and is the social, economic and political capital of Vietnamese America. This is a multi-leader tour that involves driving and promenades. You will begin with a 50-minute slide show of the Vietnamese American community given by Professor Jeff Brody in Mezzanine Room 3 at the Hilton Anaheim. Then embark to explore the cultural and religious aspects of the community by taking a bus tour to one of the many cultural (Nguyen Ba Hoc) and religious (Cao Dai Temple) centers in Little Saigon. Then, you will have lunch in Phuoc Loc Tho, one of the business centers in Little Saigon, where attendees are encouraged to explore the different foods of Vietnamese and Sino-Vietnamese America. You will meet back after lunch to visit a Nguoi Viet (Vietnamese People) newspaper agency and a Vietnamese American radio station, where news, entertainment, and community services are delivered in both Vietnamese and English. Attendees should bring cash (most places do not accept credit cards) to buy lunch in Phuoc Loc Tho. Attendees are encouraged to wear good walking shoes since the tour involves walking to different buildings and sites. (Bus/walking tour; limited to 30 participants.)

Tour 4: Museum of Tolerance
Sunday, August 19, 10:30 a.m. - 3:00 p.m.
Fee: $30.00
Coordinated by Whirl-A-Round Tours

"This is no ordinary museum," states the New York Times, and many say that is an understatement. LA’s Museum of Tolerance, located within the Simon Wiesenthal Center, guarantees you will not have an "ordinary" experience. The Museum blends technology and history to focus visitors’ thoughts on the dynamics of racism and prejudice, using the Holocaust as the ultimate symbol of man’s inhumanity against man. Your visit begins when you are given a passport of a child who lived in the years before the Holocaust. As you travel through the exhibit, the passport is continuously updated, and in the end, you learn the child's ultimate fate. Besides the recordings and reenactments to which you are exposed in this section, there are displays of Holocaust artifacts such as Anne Frank's original letters, a bunk bed from the Majdanek death camp, and a flag sewn by the Mauthausen inmates for their American liberators. Other exhibits in the Museum feature rotating displays that illustrate how hate and prejudice still live in the world today, while permanent features include the Point of View Diner, where your own answers to electronic questions may generate surprise, and The Other America, a wall-sized video map documenting more than 250 hate groups in the US alone. Prepare to have your eyes and your heart opened a bit wider when you don't just visit but experience the Museum of Tolerance. Attendees are responsible for lunch costs; lunch is not included in the tour price. (Bus/walking tour; limited to 46 participants.)

Tour 5: California History 101: Mission San Juan Capistrano
Monday, August 20, 9:00 a.m. - 12:00 noon
Fee: $26.00
Coordinated by Whirl-A-Round Tours
San Juan Capistrano, "The City of the Bells," first captured the eye of Father Junipero Serra over 200 years ago. It was here that he built the "Jewel of the Missions", a complex lovingly preserved to this day. From its significance in the history of Orange County and, indeed, California, to its reputation as a sanctuary for the swallows that return every March, this mission intrigues and enchants its guests. While touring the mission, you will learn how two cultures—Native and Spanish—worked together to build a new life in a young land. The kitchens, workshops, gardens, soldiers’ barracks, and cemetery are in remarkable condition; yet of prime interest is Father Serra’s original chapel, with its beautifully kept golden altar. After leaving the mission, stroll the main boulevard of San Juan Capistrano, lined with many authentic adobe structures, and explore the business district of eclectic shops that feature a wide variety of antiques and mementos to commemorate your visit to "The City of the Bells." (Bus/walking tour; limited to 46 participants.)

Tour 6: Sweat Shops (co-sponsored by the Labor and Labor Movements Section-in-formation)
Monday, August 20, 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.
Leaders: Ku-Sup Chin, Johns Hopkins University; and Robert Ross, Clark University

The heart of the Los Angeles garment industry lies in a relatively compact Fashion District just east of downtown Los Angeles, not far from the glittering financial and cultural core of the city. It contains several blocks of apparel manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers. After cruising the garment business enclave by bus, you will visit several small garment workshops housed in the aging, multi-story buildings that line Broadway corridor. We will attempt to observe known labor law violator shops; we will see the buildings in which they now operate. Our next stop is the California Mart located in the center of the garment district on 9th Street between Los Angeles and Main Streets. The Mart, the largest apparel market in North America, houses primarily 1,500 showrooms representing 10,000 collections. The final destination is the Jobber Alley, a bustling commercial market filled with apparel wholesalers occupying renovated warehouse shops. The Jobber market is the marketing link between apparel wholesalers and small retailers. This field trip will provide special insights into the structure of the Los Angeles garment industry and the type of economic activity that fosters a "dual city," or creates a "third world city" in the U.S. (Bus/walking tour; limited to 30 participants).

Tour 7: Afro-American Museum
Sunday, August 19, 9:00 a.m. – 1:00 p.m.
NOTE: Due to a recent change in hours of operation at the Museum, this tour is now scheduled on Sunday morning, instead of Monday afternoon as was announced in the May/June issue of ASA Footnotes.
Fee: $27.00
Coordinated by Whirl-A-Round Tours
Come join in celebrating and exploring the African American heritage in the city of Los Angeles. At the start of your visit to the Afro-American Museum, you are welcomed into a beautiful 13,000 square foot sculpture court with bronze-tinted glass ceilings, greenery, and the works of Afro-American artists placed sporadically throughout the courtyard. The facility's primary goal is to collect and preserve artifacts documenting the Afro-American experience in this country. The exhibitions and programs focus on those contributions made to the arts, humanities, sciences, politics, religion, and sports. If time permits, make sure you view one of the many films that are played throughout the day. Lunch is not included with tour; attendees are advised to adjust their meal schedules to eat after the tour returns to the hotel. (Bus/walking tour; limited to 46 participants.)

Tour 8: Latina/o Los Angeles Through Murals (co-sponsored by the Section on Latina/o Sociology)
Tuesday, August 21, 9:00 a.m.-2:30 p.m.
Leader: Abel Valenzuela, Jr., University of California, Los Angeles
The tour will survey different murals located throughout several different Latina/o communities. Murals serve as an important form of community art expression. Los Angeles's Latina/o community is grounded in the City's rich mural tradition. There will be no opportunity to have lunch while on this tour, so attendees are advised to adjust their meal schedules to eat after the tour. (Bus/walking tour; limited to 30 people.)

Tour 9: Los Angeles: A Contemporary Ethnic Quilt
Tuesday, August 21, 10:00 a.m. – 3:30 p.m.
Leader: Kris Kouri, California State University, Northridge
The city of Los Angeles, with its large number of contemporary immigrants, houses many different and sharply defined ethnic neighborhoods. The communities seen here are especially interesting because they are very different from the kinds of ethnic neighborhoods found in other parts of the United States. This tour is hence designed to acquaint you with unique parts of the Southern California landscape. You will first travel to Monterey Park, a modern-day suburb comprised of immigrants from Hong Kong and Taiwan. Here, you will be given the opportunity to eat authentic Chinese food, explore herb shops, and visit large Chinese supermarkets. You will then proceed to Alvarado Street, an area of Los Angeles largely inhabited by Mexican immigrants. Afterwards you will travel a short distance to an area of the city known as Koreatown where you will view a large number of businesses owned and operated by Korean entrepreneurs. (Attendees are responsible for lunch costs; lunch is not included in the tour price.) (Bus/walking tour; limited to 25 participants.)

Special Events

Orientation for First-Time Attendees

This orientation to ASA and the Annual Meeting is a must for first-time meeting attendees. Scheduled from 3:00-4:15 p.m. on Saturday, August 18, in Pacific Ballroom D at the Hilton Anaheim prior to the Opening Plenary Session and Welcoming Party, this special orientation hour provides the opportunity to meet Association officers and staff and begin networking with experienced colleagues.

ASA Secretary Florence Bonner and Executive Officer Felice J. Levine host this orientation. Pointers on making new acquaintances, chat with old friends, and reminisce about graduate school days, create new coalitions, and catch up on the latest news!

Welcoming Party

All meeting registrants are invited to the Welcoming Party on Saturday, August 18, from 6:30-7:30 p.m., in Pacific Ballroom D at the Hilton Anaheim to celebrate the opening of the 96th Annual Meeting. This social event kicks off after the afternoon plenary session on the first day of the meeting.

Make new acquaintances, chat with old friends, and find a first-time meeting attendee to befriend. New members and first-time meeting attendees are particularly encouraged to come and have fun!

Departmental Alumni Night (DAN)

Be sure your meeting schedule for Monday, August 20, includes the 28th annual Departmental Alumni Night (DAN), where sociologists from around the world meet to reminisce about graduate school days, create new coalitions, and catch up on the latest news!

Each graduate department of sociology in the United States and Canada was given the opportunity to sponsor a table to attract alumni and friends. As of press time, around 60 departments had signed up for tables. Tables will also be provided for sociologists in business and industry as well as for international scholars and guests.

The gathering will begin around 9:30 p.m. in Pacific Ballroom D at the Hilton Anaheim.
Honorary Reception

All meeting attendees are invited to attend the Honorary Reception at 6:30 p.m., Sunday, August 19, in Pacific Ballroom D at the Hilton Anaheim to express appreciation, congratulations, and best wishes to President Massey and the major ASA award recipients on this festive occasion.

Since 1984, the American Sociological Association has been joined by social science departments and regional societies in co-sponsoring the annual Honorary Reception that follows the President’s address. This year the Association is pleased to acknowledge the following co-hosts of the Honorary Reception.

- American Bar Foundation

General Information

The 96th ASA Annual Meeting is being held at the Hilton Anaheim, the Anaheim Marriott, and the Anaheim Convention Center. Program sessions and social events are being held at all three facilities, which are within easy walking distance of each other. ASA Registration, Bookstore, Exhibits, Child Care Service, and Student Center are at the Hilton Anaheim. The ASA Employment Service is located at the Anaheim Convention Center.

Meeting rooms are listed alphabetically below; maps are printed as a separate handout in the Final Program packet.

Registration Services

Registration confirmations were mailed for all meeting preregistrations received by the announced deadline. Attendees who sent materials after the deadline will find their paperwork held at the ASA Situations counter in Pacific B for registration processing.

- Preregistration Pickup. Attendees who preregistered may pick up badges, program packets, and special tickets at the Preregistration counter in the Ballroom Lobby at the Hilton Anaheim. See registration hours below.
- On Site Registration. Those who missed the July 31 online preregistration deadline should go to the On-Site Registration counters in the Pacific B at the Hilton Anaheim to register for the meeting.

Registration Services Hours:

- Friday, August 17: 1:30-7:00 p.m.
- Saturday, August 18: 8:00 a.m.-5:30 p.m.
- Sunday, August 19: 8:00 a.m.-5:30 p.m.
- Monday, August 20: 8:00 a.m.-5:30 p.m.
- Tuesday, August 21: 8:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m.

Reminder: Access to all ASA services is restricted to meeting registrants. Badges are required for entry to the ASA Exhibits, Employment Service, and Child Care Service areas. Attendance at events which require fee payment (e.g., Didactic Seminars, Chair Conference, Director of Graduate Studies Series, TEF Just Desserts, MFP Benefit, Tours) is restricted to meeting registrants.

- Refunds/Cancellations. All registration-related fees are non-refundable as of July 1, 2001. Unfortunately, under no circumstances can ASA issue refunds for no-shows. Program participant registration fees are non-refundable; cancellations will not be accepted nor refunds issued.
Message Center

Electronic message centers are located in all three facilities where sessions are being held. The primary ASA Message Center is at the Hilton in the Ballroom Lobby, adjacent to ASA Preregistration. At the Marriott, you will see a satellite ASA Message station at a registration counter in the Ballroom Lobby. Another satellite message area is located on the 3rd Level of the Convention Center, near Room 304.

The message service enables the on-site exchange of messages as well as offers access to those not at the meeting site. Friends, family, and colleagues in other locales, along with attendees who brought their own laptops for use on-site, may log onto the host site http://asa2001.postmessage.com on the web and send messages to meeting attendees. The service also provides information on where attendees are staying while at the Annual Meeting, exhibit companies and booths, and location of program activities.

The Association invites exhibitors and institutions to consider the message center as a sponsorship opportunity for the 2002 Annual Meeting. Please contact ASA Meeting Services staff to discuss the possibilities.

Abstract and Paper Center

You won't need that extra suitcase to haul papers back from the Annual Meeting this year. The traditional printed abstract booklet and on-site Paper Sales Service, with its yards of tables and stacks of papers, have both yielded to the electronic age. August 17th marks the debut of the ASA Online Abstract & Paper Center!

The new, compact Online Abstract and Paper Center may be accessed via several computer terminals adjacent to the ASA Bookstore in Pacific B at the Hilton Anaheim. At these terminals, or from your own laptop in your room or your computer at home, you will be able to access the ASA website with its new repository of abstracts of papers presented at the Annual Meeting.

The Online Abstract & Paper Center permits searches of abstracts by keyword or author’s name and notes whether the full paper is available for online purchase. All abstracts and papers submitted by authors to the online abstract system will be listed. If an author did not file her/his abstract or paper, you will need to contact that individual directly via the on-site ASA Message Center.

An important part of the good news is that meeting papers will no longer be available only at the meeting site. The online repository will be accessible after the meeting and, we hope, for years to come. So while that extra suitcase may come in useful for Disney memorabilia, you won't need to lug reams of paper home with you. Your chiropractor and your environment thank you!

Exhibits

The ASA Exhibits are located in the California Pavilion at the Hilton Anaheim. Exhibits will be open to meeting registrants on all four days of the meeting this year.

ASA Exhibit Hours:
- Saturday, August 18: 12:00 noon-4:00 p.m.
- Sunday, August 19: 9:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m.
- Monday, August 20: 9:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m.
- Tuesday, August 21: 9:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m.

The location of the Exhibits offers excellent accessibility to meeting attendees, due to its close proximity to ASA registration activities and the ASA Message Center. Always one of the most popular activities at the Annual Meeting, Exhibits offer variety, convenience, and an opportunity to discover current trends in sociological publishing, information processing, and services.

Meeting attendees are encouraged to schedule several visits to the Exhibit area so that ample time can be given to exploring the many offerings. Browse through the latest sociological publications, explore current computer software, chat with representatives of statistical resources and informational literature, and meet the editor of your next publication!

See the Directory of Exhibitors elsewhere in this Program for the names and booth numbers of all exhibitors. Don't forget to look through the Program for special ads too.

All persons wishing access to ASA Exhibits must be paid registrants for the Annual Meeting; badges are required for entrance into this area.

Café ASA

Where do you go when you have only an hour to visit exhibits and eat lunch? Café ASA, of course. This convenient service in the middle of the exhibit area is the place to buy coffee, sodas, and light snacks, as well as meet friends and chat about the morning's sessions. Café ASA is located in the California Pavilion at the Hilton Anaheim and open during posted Exhibit hours.

ASA Bookstore

Building on its successful premiere in 1998, the ASA Bookstore features works published by the Association. Located near On-Site Registration in Pacific B at the Hilton Anaheim, the Bookstore will be staffed by ASA Executive Office personnel and open throughout the four days of the Annual Meeting during the same hours as ASA Registration.
All attendees are welcome to browse through this area filled with recent journal issues, timely books, teaching resources and syllabi sets, career publications, sociological practice materials, directories, and reference volumes.

Membership Desk

Information on ASA membership and subscriptions will be provided at the Membership tables in the Pacific B at the Hilton Anaheim. The Membership desk will be staffed by ASA Executive Office personnel and open during the same hours as ASA Registration. Attendees may investigate current membership benefits and join the Association, sign up for Section memberships, and subscribe to ASA journals. Display copies of current journals will be available for reference.

Section Information

Looking for information about 40 ASA Sections, 2 sections-in-formation, or copies of 2001 section newsletters? Check the Section Display Tables near the ASA Membership desk in Pacific B at the Hilton Anaheim. Every Section was invited to designate representatives to staff the display table during each meeting day. Staff from the ASA Executive Office will also be available occasionally to answer questions, or you may consult personnel at the nearby Membership Desk about joining any and all sections.

Information on special section activities will also be available. For example, members of the Section on Community and Urban Sociology will want to be sure and stop by the Section Display Tables and pick up a special button to wear during the meeting. And, representatives of the Section on Latina/o Sociology will be on hand to sell reception tickets and tickets for their Minority Fellowship Raffle.

Tickets for Events and Services

Registrants already signed up for didactic seminars, tours, employment or child care services, and special events should have received tickets with their meeting packets. Those who did not make advance reservations may check at the ASA Tickets counter in Pacific B at the Hilton Anaheim for ticket availability. The Tickets counter will be open during posted On-Site Registration hours.

Event tickets are non-refundable and cancellations cannot be accepted. You may, however, sell your ticket to someone else if you are unable to attend.
punched, of their complete resumes to the Service. These resumes will be used to create two supplemental resume reference books for use by registered employers during the meeting. For candidates unable to preregister, it is recommended that you visit the Employment Service as early as possible upon arriving in Anaheim in order to start the required processing.

Representatives from organizations that are listing positions should check in at the Employer Registration area in Room 304CD at the Anaheim Convention Center to begin the candidate profile review—or update their early-bird profile book—and initiate the interview scheduling process.

Profiles of preregistered candidates received by July 15 were sent to pre-registered employers prior to the Annual Meeting. This allowed interviewers to review candidate information prior to arrival at the meeting site and should speed the process of setting up screening interviews with the Service on-site.

Candidate profiles received after July 15 will not be supplied to employers until the candidate files have been activated on-site.

Interview Scheduling. All initial interview appointments are to be scheduled through the Employment Service at the meeting site. Since employers need some time to review profiles, there will be a lag time between on-site activation of a candidate file and the scheduling of interviews. Because of this processing/review time, those intending to make full use of the Service should activate their files/listings on-site by 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, August 18. No new candidate files will be activated on the last day (Tuesday, August 21) of Employment Service operations.

Child Care

ASA is continuing the tradition of providing an innovative program of activities for children of Annual Meeting registrants. Arrangements have again been made with KiddieCorp to offer a full child care program during daytime session hours for preregistered children between the ages of 6 months to 12 years.

KiddieCorp is dedicated to providing quality child care services across the nation for meeting attendees. Staffing is based on a 1:2 ratio for children 6 months to 1 year, 1:3 ratio for children 1-2 years of age, and a 1:5 ratio for children 3-12 years of age. The program includes a customized hourly schedule of creative and educational activities, age-appropriate toys and games, popular arts and crafts projects, and child-pleasing movies and cartoon videos.

The Child Care Service registration is located in Mezzanine Rooms 12-14 at the Hilton Anaheim. This service is available to preregistrants only. The non-refundable preregistration deposit of $50 per child will be applied to the daily usage fees on-site. Daily use fees per preregistered child are $50 per full day, $30 per half day. For children using the service for shorter periods, the half-day fee will apply to encourage stable populations. Fees include on-site activities and snacks; lunch is not included but meal arrangements can be made through KiddieCorp.

Service hours are 8:00 a.m. – 6:30 p.m. on Saturday-Monday, August 18-20, and 8:00 a.m. – 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday, August 21. Parents/guardians using these services must be registrants for the Annual Meeting.

There is no guarantee that non-preregistered families can be accommodated on-site. Child care providers reserve the right to refuse admittance to non-preregistrants. If there are any openings, fees for children who were not preregistered will be $75 per day per child. No half-day rates are available for non-preregistered children.

Accessibility Resources and Services

The ASA offers several services and oversight arrangements to facilitate attendance at the Annual Meeting. The ASA Information desk will coordinate resources during the meeting week for registrants with physical disabilities who are attending the Annual Meeting. Special services which were arranged in advance may be verified with Information staff to ensure that you receive the assistance you need. Should you encounter any problems during the meeting week or need any additional information while at the Annual Meeting, please see Meeting Services staff in the on-site ASA Office.

Comfort Zone. Attendees coping with illness, meeting fatigue, or stress may use the small room set aside by ASA as a "safe haven" to escape briefly from the noise and bustle of meeting activities. At the Hilton, the Balboa A room on the Concourse level is the designated Comfort Zone. This space is provided in response to concerns brought to the ASA Council by the Sociologists' AIDS Network, Sociologists' Lesbian and Gay Caucus, and the ASA Committee on the Status of Persons with Disabilities in Sociology.

Sessions. ASA has made arrangements for sign language interpreters, sighted guides, and other communication avenues for meeting registrants who provided information in advance of the meeting.

Housing. Attendees who requested wheelchair accessible rooms, bathrooms with safety equipment (grab bars), amplified telephone receivers, TDD access, "shake awake" alarms, or other resources when making room reservations, and who have not received the desired equipment or accommodations, are asked to contact the ASA Office immediately.
Travel. Attendees with mobility impairments who are flying in and out of the Anaheim area are advised to notify their airline 24 hours before departure if they will need assistance in getting from their arrival gate to the baggage claim area. Airline and airport personnel will gladly assist any meeting attendee needing transportation aid. With 24-hour advance reservation, Supershuttle offers accessible bus/shuttle service; call 1-800-BlueVan (1-800-258-3826) to make a reservation or get more information about accessible transportation.

Other Services. Registrants who did not make advance arrangements for services or equipment are requested to contact staff in the ASA Office in the Coronado Room at the Hilton Anaheim. Every reasonable effort will be made to assist registrants on-site. However, if you have a physical disability and need special services, equipment, or accommodations, and did not notify ASA in advance of your arrival at the meeting site, ASA may not be able to provide appropriate services due to the limited availability of some equipment and services.

Hotel Information

The 96th Annual Meeting is being held at the Hilton Anaheim, the Anaheim Marriott, and the Anaheim Convention Center. Program sessions and social events are being held at all three facilities, which are within easy walking distance of each other.

ASA Registration, Bookstore, Abstract and Paper Center, Exhibits, Poster Sessions, Child Care Service, and Student Center are at the Hilton Anaheim. The ASA Employment Service is located at the Anaheim Convention Center.

Blocks of guest rooms for meeting attendees were reserved at the co-headquarters hotels, overflow housing was arranged at an adjacent hotel, and a student room blocks was contracted at a nearby hotel. Special discounts on room rates were arranged at all four hotels. Availability of rooms at ASA rates was on a first-come, first-served basis; the cutoff date for reservations at the co-headquarters hotels was extended to July 30. All hotel guest rooms are subject to applicable taxes and service charges.

Attendees with questions or reservation problems may consult the TTG representative at the ASA Housing Desk adjacent to the ASA Information desk in the Ballroom Lobby at the Hilton Anaheim. The housing coordinator will have up-to-date reservation information and can provide assistance in resolving reservation discrepancies.

For the convenience of meeting attendees, a list of hotels is given below where registrants will be staying for the ASA Annual Meeting and for meetings of sister associations and societies. Designations are noted below for the headquarters hotels for the Association for the Sociology of Religion (ASR), the Association of Black Sociologists (ABS), the Society for the Study of Social Problems (SSSP), the Society for the Study of Symbolic Interaction (SSI), the Sociological Practice Association (SPA), and Sociologists for Women in Society (SWS).

Travel Arrangements

The American Sociological Association appointed Travel Technology Group, Ltd. (TTG) as travel coordinator for the 2001 ASA Annual Meeting. Contract arrangements were made to offer special fares on United Airlines and Delta Airlines. United Airlines is the official carrier for the ASA Annual Meeting; Delta Airlines is the official co-carrier.

United Airlines: 800-521-4041 (Meeting ID# 557XA)
Delta Airlines: 800-241-6760 (File# DMN177133A)
TTG guarantees lowest airfare on any airline and special negotiated fares with the official carriers of up to 10% off the lowest fares. To contact TTG, call 1-800-631-5353 (from the U.S. or Canada), fax 312-329-9513, e-mail asa@ttgonline.com.

Airport Transportation

The Anaheim/Orange County area is serviced by four airports: (1) John Wayne/Orange County Airport (SNA), 16 miles south of Anaheim; (2) Los Angeles International Airport (LAX), 31 miles north of Anaheim; (3) Ontario International Airport (ONT), 27 miles northeast of Anaheim; and (4) Long Beach Airport (LGB), 20 miles northwest of Anaheim.

Shuttle bus services such as SuperShuttle or AirportBus are available from most airports. A SuperShuttle discount coupon was mailed with preregistrants with their registration confirmations. One-way fares on SuperShuttle are currently $10 from Orange County, $13 from LAX. Please note that SuperShuttle requires advance reservations for transportation from the hotels to the airports. There is a reservation desk in the main lobby at the Hilton Anaheim.

Cab fares from SNA to Anaheim run around $25; the ride takes 20-25 minutes. Expect to pay anywhere from $55-80 for a taxi from LAX, and plan on up to one hour of travel time.

Media Office

Media representatives are invited to check in at ASA’s on-site Media Office for registration packets and interview assistance. The Media Office is located in El Capitan A on the Concourse level at the Hilton Anaheim. Office hours are 1:30-5:30 p.m. on Friday, August 17; 8:00 a.m.-5:30 p.m. on Saturday-Monday, August 18-20; and 8:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m. on Tuesday, August 21.

Meeting attendees are also encouraged to stop by the on-site Media Office and provide information on their availability to discuss their work with the media while in Southern California.

ASA Office

To support ASA activities at the co-headquarters hotels and the Convention Center, there will be an ASA office staffed with Executive Office personnel at the Hilton Anaheim in the Coronado room.

This office will be open on Friday afternoon, August 17, though staff may be intermittently unavailable that day due to setup demands. On Saturday-Monday, August 18-20, offices will be open from 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Hours on the last day of the meeting, Tuesday, August 21, will be 8:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

1. Didactic Seminar. Latent Trajectory/Growth Curve Analysis (co-sponsored by the Interuniversity for Political and Social Research and the ASA Section on Methodology) (to 4:00 p.m.)

Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Friday, August 17, 9:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m.
Leader: Kenneth A. Bollen, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Latent Trajectory Analysis (LTA) or Latent Curve Analysis is a powerful technique to analyze longitudinal data. LTA permits each case in a sample to have individual trajectories ("latent curves" or "growth curves") representing change over time. In addition to mapping these trajectories, LTA allows researchers to examine the determinants of these trajectories or to relate the trajectories of one variable to those of another. The seminar begins with a conceptual introduction to LTA and a description of research questions that are well-suited for the technique. The remainder of the seminar will cover the following topics: LTA models for a single variable with and without predictors of differences in trajectories, modeling nonlinear trajectories, the LTA model for multiple variables, the relation between the parameters governing the trajectories in two or more variables, incorporating predictors of multiple trajectories, and extensions to the LTA model.

Orientation for New MFP Fellows—Friday, August 17, 12:30-5:00 p.m.—Hilton Anaheim, Monterey

Honors Program Orientation—Friday, August 17, 1:00-5:00 p.m.—Hilton Anaheim, Mezzanine Room 3

Section on Medical Sociology Council Meeting—Friday, August 17, 6:00-10:00 p.m.—Hilton Anaheim, Monterey

Honors Program Roundtables—Friday, August 17, 7:00-9:00 p.m.—Hilton Anaheim, Capistrano A
Saturday, August 18

Organizer: Douglas S. Massey, University of Pennsylvania
Presider: Camille Zubrinsky Charles, University of Pennsylvania
Families and Neighborhoods: Toward a Broader View of Social Ecology. Frank F. Furstenberg, University of Pennsylvania
Do Neighborhood Really Matter for Childrens' Development? Greg J. Duncan, Northwestern University

3. Special Session. Causes and Consequences of Mental Health and Well-Being: Research by MFP Fellows (co-sponsored by the ASA Minority Fellowship Program)
Hilton Anaheim, Capistrano B
Organizer and Presider: Bernice A. Pescosolido, Indiana University
The Role of Quality Care on Well-Being. Elbert P. Almazan, Indiana University
The Intersection of Mental Health, Pregnancy, and Race: Investigating the Impact of Marital and Socioeconomic Status on Maternal Psychological Distress. Renee B. Canady, Michigan State University
Jang's Market: A Case Study of Korean Merchants' Adaptive Strategies in Response to Inner City Violence. Sung Hak Choi, University of California, Los Angeles
Discussion: Carol A. Boyer, Rutgers University

4. Special Session. Citizenship and Identity
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 202B
Organizer and Presider: Yasemin Soysal, University of Essex
To be announced. Saskia Sassen, University of Chicago
Senza Piu Patria?: Past and Present in Italian Political Identities. John Agnew, University of California, Los Angeles
To be announced. Jeff Weintraub, Bryn Mawr College
Discussion: Edward Soja, University of California, Los Angeles; Philip Kasinitz, Graduate Center and Hunter College, City University of New York
This special session will focus on the changing sites, publics, and discourses through which citizenship and identities are claimed, constituted, and exercised. Special attention will be given to the relationship between identity and space, and the transformations in the logic of civil society and citizenship claims.

5. Special Session. Exploring "Generation X" Religiosity/Spirituality (co-sponsored by the Association for the Sociology of Religion)
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 2
Organizer and Presider: D. Paul Johnson, Texas Tech University
Generational Differences and Similarities in Religiosity, Spirituality, Socioeconomic Status, and Race/Ethnicity. Robert E. Beckley and James D. Griffith, West Texas A&M University
The Religious Identity of Young Adult Catholics in the Context of Other Catholic Generations. Mary Gautier and Mary Bendyna, Georgetown University
Civic Engagement among American Catholics, Especially the Post-Vatican II Generation. James D. Davidson, Purdue University
Catholic Identity: Are GenXers Different from Other Birth Cohorts? Andrea S. Williams, Purdue University
Discussion: James C. Cavendish, University of South Florida
6. Special Session. Reassessing the Asian Economic Model
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 303D
Organizer and Presider: Thomas B. Gold, University of California, Berkeley
Introduction: The Asian Economic Model in the Wake of the 1997 Financial Crisis. Thomas B. Gold, University of California, Berkeley
Panel: Eun Mee Kim, Ewha Womans University, South Korea
John Lie, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign
Harry Makler, University of Toronto and Stanford University
Gi-Wook Shin, University of California, Los Angeles
This session will review the common elements of what was seen as a model of economic development adopted throughout much of East and Southeast Asia, and studied by developing economies around the world. With the severe financial crisis commencing in July 1997, most of the economies of the region suffered severe downturns as well as social and political unrest. Panelists will discuss what they see as lessons learned about the model in the wake of this crisis, its analytical usefulness and policy relevance in Asia and elsewhere, and its relation to theories of development and the transferability of models.

7. Special Session. The Marketing of Urban Crime
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 303B
Organizer and Presider: Barry Glassner, University of Southern California
Imaging the "Bad Girl": Popular Media Constructs of Young Women, Sex, and Crime. Jody A. Miller, University of Missouri, St. Louis
"Kids and Guns": How Politicians, Experts, and the Press Fabricate Fear of Youth. Michael Males, University of California, Santa Cruz
Discussion: Jerome Skolnick, New York University

8. Professional Workshop. Developments in Qualitative Data Analysis Software: Linking Qualitative and Quantitative Analysis
Organizer and Presider: Gregg Carter, Bryant College
Panel: Edward Brent, University of Missouri, Columbia
Gregg Carter, Bryant College
Sharlene J. Hesse-Biber, Boston College
Stephanie Howling, Boston College
Udo Kuckartz, Philipps University of Marburg, Germany
This session will provide a forum for current and prospective researchers to be introduced to recent developments in computer software intended for the investigation of qualitative data, especially innovations in creating links between qualitative and quantitative analysis. As qualitative researchers’ interviews begin to number in the double digits, it becomes increasingly difficult to identify complex patterns in the data. Qualitative data sets often contain large numbers of codes that are suitable for quantitative analysis. Part of this session will be the assessment of the advantages and pitfalls of transforming qualitative “codes” into quantitative “variables.” Demonstrations of how the quantification of qualitative data can be used as a heuristic device will be provided.
Emerging software using strategies from artificial intelligence will be demonstrated to show how qualitative codes can be mined more thoroughly for the information they contain. Finally, there will be a demonstration of how the different types of text that can be found on the Internet—e.g., online conferences, mailing lists, user groups, and interviews—can be readily analyzed with qualitative analysis programs, as well as how researchers can integrate demographic-background and other types of quantitative data with the codes developed for Internet text. Panelists will demonstrate HyperRESEARCH, InteQual, and WinMax.

9. Professional Workshop. Navigating Graduate School to Your Best Advantage
Hilton Anaheim, La Jolla
Organizer and Presider: Frieda Fowler, University of Nebraska, Lincoln
Organizer: Irene Padavic, Florida State University
Panel: Youlanda M. Gibbons, University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Suzanne T. Ortega, University of Missouri, Columbia
Panelists will discuss ways of successfully negotiating graduate school. The panel consists of sociologists who are familiar with the graduate experience at various levels. The group will discuss graduate school from the administrative area to the advanced graduate experience. Topics to be covered include getting into graduate school, establishing mentor/mentee relationships, forming networks, and your responsibility as a graduate student.

10. Academic Workplace Workshop. Teaching Adult Students
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5
Leaders: Nancy E. Sacks, State University of New York, Stony Brook
Peter Kaufman, State University of New York, New Paltz
The goal of this workshop is to identify effective methods for teaching adult students. Special characteristics of adult learning styles and adult student behavior will be discussed. Case studies of successful pedagogical strategies that maximize the learning potential of adult students will be shared.

11. Teaching Workshop. Teaching Undergraduate Statistics in Sociology
Hilton Anaheim, Salinas
Leaders: Herman J. Loether, California State University, Dominguez Hills
Robert M. O’Brien, University of Oregon
Vanessa J. Hamilton, Indiana University
This workshop will deal with strategies for integrating statistics into the sociology curriculum to validate its value to sociology and to make it more palatable to sociology students. Organization of the subject matter, styles of presentation, and testing strategies will be addressed. Uses of a computerized laboratory as an integral part of the course will be discussed.

41. Didactic Seminar. Event History Analysis

Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A

Ticket required for admission
Leader: Nancy Brandon Tuma, Stanford University
This seminar provides an introduction to event history analysis: the analysis of change in discrete outcome variables when one has data on the times of the changes for individual cases as well as data on explanatory variables hypothesized to affect the likelihood of change.
Topics discussed include appropriate kinds of data, several basic models of change over time (including a Cox model), modeling effects on change due to dependent variables, estimation and testing of models, software options, interpreting and presenting results of event history analysis, and relationship to some other ways of analyzing discrete variables. Handouts including a bibliography will be made available to participants.

42. Minority Fellowship Program Professional Development Workshop. Building Careers and Collaborations

Hilton Anaheim, Sunset

Organizers: Linda Burton, Pennsylvania State University;
David T. Takeuchi, Indiana University
Leaders: Christine A. Bachrach, National Institute of Child Health Development
Linda Burton, Pennsylvania State University
David T. Takeuchi, Indiana University

The workshop is geared toward doctoral students and recent PhDs who are contemplating a career in sociology. The goal of the workshop is to provide some helpful hints about how to approach more senior sociologists in forming mentoring or collaborative relationships. We provide information about how to initiate and maintain contact with established sociologists. We also identify some successful and unsuccessful means that seem to facilitate network ties from sociologists who are in academia and governmental positions. Time is allotted for questions and discussion.

43. Professional Workshop. Officially Retired, Hardly Retiring

Hilton Anaheim, Santa Monica

Organizer and Presider: James F. Short, Washington State University
Panel: William Form, Ohio State University
Morris Zelditch, Stanford University

The workshop is designed to help retirees, or prospective retirees, think about retirement problems and opportunities for continuing professional activity during retirement. For some, retirement is a bit like being on "permanent sabbatical." Several senior scholars have agreed to participate and to share their experiences with each other and with those who attend the workshop. We hope attendees will come both with experiences to share and questions that will be of interest to all.

44. Academic Workplace Workshop. Criminology Programs Inside and Outside of Sociology Departments

Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 4

Candace Kruttschnitt, University of Minnesota

Lawrence Sherman chaired the Department of Criminology and Criminal Justice at Maryland before moving to the Department of Sociology at the University of Pennsylvania, where he teaches criminology to undergraduates in the sociology department and chairs the interdisciplinary PhD in criminology. Candace Kruttschnitt chairs the Department of Sociology at Minnesota, where she has taught criminology classes. The two workshop leaders will address some of the key issues for teaching criminology in and out of sociology:

—Tall wagging the dog: Is the demand for criminology too hot for sociology to handle?
—Dog biling the tail: Why do so many sociology departments marginalize or even reject criminology?
—Feeling the dog: How can the demand for criminology be used to strengthen the field of sociology?

45. Teaching Workshop. SSDAN and Integrating Data Analysis into Undergraduate Courses

Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5

Leader: William H. Frey, University of Michigan

This workshop will focus on how professors can integrate the analysis of US Census data in relevant, user-friendly ways into a variety of courses other than research methods or statistics. Courses can range from Intro Sociology and Social Problems, to Stratification, Race Relations, Gender Studies and more. The workshop is designed for professors who teach these substantive courses and wish to integrate a minimal data analysis competent into their course in ways that are both "student friendly" and "teacher friendly." It will introduce faculty to the approach of the Social Science Data Analysis Network (www.SSDAN.net) at the University of Michigan, which makes data sets and course modules accessible to instructors, and provides backup support during the semester. This offering of the workshop launches a new NSF-funded joint SSDAN-ASA initiative which will enable entire departments to participate in the SSDAN program, with infrastructure support from ASA. Therefore, we encourage participation of individual faculty members who wish to learn about this approach, or small groups of faculty from the same department who wish to work on the incorporation of SSDAN in their specific courses or in the curriculum more generally.

46. Teaching Workshop. The Pedagogy of Visual Sociology: The Sociological Imagination and the World We See

Leader: Douglas Harper, Duquesne University

This workshop is intended for sociologists interested in bringing the visual dimension into their teaching. The overriding theme is "How can we encourage students to explore sociological concepts through visual methods?" The discussion will emphasize four approaches to teaching sociology visually. Where appropriate, sample syllabi will be distributed and discussed. The four approaches are:

1. The advanced visual sociology course. In this course, students are required to have or acquire moderate knowledge of photographic and darkroom (wet or electronic) skills. Typical syllabi are distributed and discussed.
2. The visual sociology assignment in a typical Introductory Sociology course. In this assignment, introductory sociology students complete an assignment using rudimentary photographic equipment and skills. No prior photographic skills are required. Sample assignments are discussed. Developments of this assignment in upper division sociology courses are introduced.
3. Video methods. This discussion will center on community studies using video methods. This is an advanced course in which students learn filmmaking theory and techniques, and computer-based video editing. Typical syllabi will be distributed and discussed.
4. Multi-Media applications. We will also discuss the new opportunities for visual exploration of society offered by various multi-media approaches.

75. Professional Workshop. Editing Anthologies and Readers
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201B
Leader: Jeffrey Ian Ross, University of Baltimore
This workshop reviews the nuts and bolts of editing nonfiction academic books in the social sciences. This includes outlining advantages and disadvantages of taking on edited projects, choosing your contributors, determining what you need from your authors for the proposal, dealing with contributors, choosing a publisher, assembling the manuscript for review, responding to feedback, and preparing the final manuscript for publication. The leader will give a brief talk, then provide some handouts. Attendees are encouraged to bring abstracts, outlines, and proposals with them for discussion.

76. Professional Workshop. Research With and On the Internet
Leaders: Marc A. Smith, Microsoft Research; James C. Witte, Clemson University
The workshop is rooted in the premise that the internet, along with related developments in information technology, fundamentally redefine many aspects of human interaction. Moreover, social research is necessarily rooted in such interaction. As a result, the development of this powerful new technology has not only changed the society sociologists study, but also redefines how sociologists study this society. This workshop has four components offering a review and discussion of major approaches to studying social phenomena in and through online media: (1) Intro: Research with and on the Internet—Review opportunities and challenges of online research: How can the Internet be used as a research tool? How do established methods map to social cyberspaces?; (2) Case study: National Geographic Society Survey methods and results; (3) Case study: Netscan - Data Mining Social Cyberspaces; (4) Research with and on the Internet. There will be question and answer opportunities with workshop participants to discuss research questions and methods using online components. Topics to be discussed include: (1) theoretical frameworks in using the Internet for research; (2) available methodological strategies: (a) survey-based internet methods, (b) analyses of texts generated by emails, bulletin boards, usenet groups and chats, and (c) online game-theoretical experiments; (3) Internet search tools; and (4) existing online databases and how to find and navigate them.

77. Academic Workplace Workshop. Perspectives on Faculty Governance
Hilton Anaheim, Santa Monica
Organizer and Presider: Mary Scheuer Senter, Central Michigan University
Panel: Harold Chamofsky, California State University, Dominguez Hills; Ronald L. Johnstone, Ball State University; Christine Maitland, National Education Association; Joan Z. Spade, State University of New York, Brockport
Panelists will discuss the major issues affecting the role of faculty in decision-making on campuses. Of particular interest are suggestions for enhancing the role of faculty collectively and for helping to ensure that faculty who are active in campus governance are positively recognized for their contributions. Panelists will also address the problematic features of faculty governance—both for faculty as a whole and for individual faculty careers. Panelists have experience as union activists, faculty active in academic senates, administrators, and researchers in the field. Audience contributions will be encouraged.

78. Teaching Workshop. The Boxless Rebellion: Incorporating Interdisciplinary Teaching in Your Sociology Classes
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5
Leader: Toska Olson, The Evergreen State College
This practical and interactive workshop is designed for sociologists interested in learning more about the value of and techniques involved in interdisciplinary teaching and learning. Faculty and students with all levels of experience in interdisciplinary teaching are encouraged to come... and share their perspectives on this learning model. Participants will collaboratively explore a variety of strategies for connecting learning, ranging from designing interdisciplinary assignments within a class, to linking assignments across classes, to team teaching in coordinated studies programs. We will also discuss strategies for situating interdisciplinary studies and learning communities within current institutional environments.

104. Didactic Seminar. Combining Qualitative and Quantitative Methods: Making the Right Choices

Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Ticket required for admission
Leader: David L. Morgan, Portland State University
Due to their complexity, projects that combine qualitative and quantitative methods require careful attention to research design. The first part of the workshop addresses basic motivations for combining methods, since it is important to clarify WHY you are using multiple methods before you can decide HOW to combine those methods. The second part of the workshop addresses the process of selecting a research design that connects a broad motivation to a specific research question. In particular, the workshop will concentrate on a set of practical research designs that use the strengths of one method to enhance the performance of another method. The workshop participants will (1) explore the options that are available for combining qualitative and quantitative methods, and (2) learn how to select among these options in order to meet the needs of a given research project.

105. Professional Workshop. Scientific Misconduct: The Choices We Make When Faced with the "Gray Areas" of Research Practice (co-sponsored by the ASA Committee on Professional Ethics and the 10th Annual Research Support Forum)

Hilton Anaheim, Green Room
Organizers and Presiders: Joyce Miller Iutcovich, Keystone University Research Corporation; Barbara Entwisle, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Panel: Joyce Miller Iutcovich, Keystone University Research Corporation
Barbara Entwisle, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Erin Leahey, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
As a point of departure, this workshop will briefly overview the federal government's definition of scientific misconduct (fabrication, falsification, and plagiarism) and differentiate between these "high crimes" and the "misdemeanors" of everyday research practice. Featured are research practices that are ambiguous with respect to questions of misconduct. In areas such as data editing and management, human subjects protection, and peer review, the rules of conduct are not as obvious or clear cut, if they exist at all. For these "gray areas" of responsible research conduct, the workshop leaders will present two cases for group analysis and discussion: "Human Subjects Issues in the Context of Evolving Research Relationships" and "When Data Editing Is Data Cooking."

Hilton Anaheim, Capistrano A
Organizer: Felice J. Levine, American Sociological Association
Presider: William R. Avison, Florida International University
Panel: Raynard Kington, Office of Behavioral and Social Sciences Research, National Institutes of Health
R. Jay Turner, Florida International University
Michael Mcklin, Center for Scientific Review, National Institutes of Health
The National Institutes of Health and social scientists with research expertise in health share an interest in developing a strong peer reviewer community in the social and behavioral sciences. This workshop provides advice, guidance, and pointers for undertaking review of proposals and serving effectively on a peer review group. Persons who have not yet served on panels, those with some or intermittent experience, and even veterans will benefit from this workshop and frank discussion and exchange. How to prepare written reviews, how to present effectively, when to talk and when to listen, and how best to weigh in on proposals when you were not a primary reviewer are among the questions that will be addressed in this workshop. Panelists are knowledgeable about the processes and operations of peer review groups and bring considerable experience serving on and administering peer review processes. The panel encourages questions.

106. Professional Workshop. Your First Academic Job: Success in the Early Faculty Years

Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5
Leaders: Mary Lou Wylie, James Madison University
Valerie Jenness, University of California, Irvine
107. Academic Workplace Workshop. Evaluating and Rewarding Service

Hilton Anaheim, Santa Monica

Organizers and Presiders: Cornelia B. Flora, Iowa State University; William V. Falk, University of Maryland
Panel: Susan Beth Tiano, University of New Mexico
Joel Best, University of Delaware
Carol A. Jenkins, Mariposa Community College
Panelists will discuss how their departments deal with evaluating and rewarding service. The panel and the other workshop participants will analyze how service (referred to in the current parlance as "engagement") relates to discovery and learning in the reward structure at their institutions. Representing a variety of institutions, panelists will share the institutional-stated criteria for evaluating and rewarding service, what counts as service, when it counts in considering faculty rewards, and how and if quality of service is determined. Focus will be on departmental norms and institutional pressures.

Organizer: Ann Helton Stromberg, Pitzer College
Leaders: Ann Helton Stromberg, Pitzer College
Lisa R. Avalos, Grinnell College
Kimberly Davies, Augusta State University
Walter Diaz, University of Puerto Rico, Mayaguez
Edward L. Kain, Southwestern University

The goal of the workshop is to provide participants with models, insights, and resources developed for undergraduates' research training through our departments' participation in the ASA Minority Opportunities through School Transformation (MOST) Program. Successful strategies range from course-specific materials and mentoring approaches to comprehensive skills sequencing models and a certification program in applied social research. Examples reflect the diversity of our institutions—large and small, public and private.

109. Teaching Workshop. Teaching Introductory Sociology for the First Time

Leaders: Roberta Lessor, Chapman University
Jerry M. Lewis, Kent State University
Karen Young, Chapman University

This workshop will address the needs of instructors in a variety of settings. Sociologists may find themselves teaching their first Introductory Sociology course in the 400-seat lecture hall or the small seminar room. We will provide assistance with course goals, introductory course content, constructing a syllabus, choosing readings and computer programs, managing a class session including deciding whether or not to lecture, and how to do assessment. Together with those attending the workshop, we will discuss the challenges of teaching our beginning students to develop a "sociological imagination."

Something Old, Something New. John R. Logan, University at Albany
The Place of Post-Modern Urbanism. Michael Dear, University of Southern California
Discussion: Douglas S. Massey, University of Pennsylvania

Sociology came of age with the industrial city. It sought to explain and understand new social forms that came into existence with the rise of urbanism as a way of life. Theories of spatial structure, community, social solidarity, conflict, and race were substantially developed with the modern industrial city in mind. The Chicago School of Sociology played a pivotal role early in this movement. Yet, the economy and technology that created the industrial city has given way to a new post-industrial regime. Some have argued that Los Angeles now represents the proto-typical post-modern city. Are our theories about life in the city still adequate? If not, what changes are warranted? This session grapples with these fundamental questions as it considers theories of urbanism from Chicago to LA.

145. Didactic Seminar. Basics of Regression Modeling (to 11:30 a.m.)

Anaheim Convention Center, Room 210B

Leader: Roger A. Wojtkiewicz, Ball State University
Regression analysis is one of the most commonly used quantitative techniques in the social sciences. This seminar goes beyond the usual regression analysis methods taught in first-year graduate statistics courses by focusing on regression modeling tools which can be used to produce publishable analysis. This seminar is oriented toward the practical use of regression analysis, whose modeling skills are rusty, or who are inexperienced with regression modeling. The prerequisites for the seminar is knowledge of elementary statistics, including mean, proportion, and t-test. The seminar is divided into segments: (1) basic conceptualization and interpretation of OLS and logistic regression coefficients; (2) using the elaboration approach to consider the contribution of control variables to observed differences; and (3) measuring conditional effects using interactions between two categorical variables or interactions between a categorical and an interval level variable.

146. Professional Workshop. Advice on Engaging in Proprietary Research

Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon A

Organizer and Presider: Ross Koppel, Social Research Corporation and University of Pennsylvania
Panel: Ross Koppel, University of Pennsylvania and Social Research Corporation (Wyncote, PA)
Joyce Miller lutcovich, Keystone University Research Corporation, Erie, PA

This professional workshop will examine the special issues involved in conducting proprietary research. We discuss how "proprietary research" introduces concerns and limitations beyond the usual factors involved in research based on sociological knowledge, theory, methods, and statistics. Topics include: doing research for money, negotiating the contract, helping the client understand the most appropriate research methods, protection of subjects, maintaining professional and ethical standards, control over the research findings, negotiating the right to publish findings, identifying the stakeholders, and addressing the concerns of conflicting stakeholders. We also note issues involving joint projects with other firms and universities, dual citizenship in business and academic, subcontracting, and budgeting (estimating time on tasks, material costs, others' services).

147. Professional Workshop. Trends, Priorities, and Opportunities for Federal Funding in the Social Sciences (10th Annual Research Support Forum)

Hilton Anaheim, Redondo

Organizer: Felice J. Levine, American Sociological Association
Presider: Havidan Rodriguez, University of Puerto Rico, Mayaguez
Panel: Patricia E. White, National Science Foundation
Sally T. Hillsman, National Institute of Justice
Richard Suzman, National Institute on Aging, National Institutes of Health

Senior representatives from leading federal science agencies will discuss trends, priorities, and opportunities for research support in the social and behavioral sciences. Panelists will consider the contemporary situation, continuing goals and emphases, new initiatives, and other issues relevant both to funding and to understanding the environment for federal investments in the social sciences. Potential applicants—from new to seasoned grantees—should benefit from this current overview. Questions from the audience are encouraged, from specific advice to broader inquiries about the landscape of support.

148. Professional Workshop. So You Want to Write a Textbook

Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon G

Leader: Earl Babbie, Chapman University

The goal of this workshop is to examine the process of textbook publishing from the viewpoint of both authors and publishers. Panelists will make short introductory comments, and the bulk of the session will consist of conversations between the panelists and those attending the session.

149. Academic Workplace Workshop. Preparing for a Program Review

Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5

Gregory L. Weiss, Roanoke College

The goal of this workshop is to provide participants with helpful strategies and information that will be useful for chairs and departments in conducting an effective program review. Specific topics include: (1) the importance of the institutional context of the program review, (2) strategies for getting the process started with a positive spirit, (3) the types of information that need to be included in a thorough self-study, (4) the documents that are typically requested by external reviewers, (5) keys to organizing a successful review, and (6) what to expect during the external review and in the external reviewers' report. Participants will become familiar with the ASA/AAC document, Libral Learning and the Sociology Major, and how it is used for a guide for evaluating sociology programs nationwide. Handouts will be provided, and there will be ample time for questions and answers.

150. Academic Workplace Workshop. Taking Students Abroad

Leader: Michael R. Leming, St. Olaf College
Panel: Pirapon Isarabhakdi, Chiang Mai University, Thailand
Manisha Desai, Hobart and William Smith Colleges
Jeremy Geller, Hobart and William Smith Colleges

This participatory workshop is designed for those who are involved in, or considering, taking sociology student abroad. The facilitators have led programs in North America, Egypt, Europe, and South, East, and Southeast Asia. The workshop will investigate, but not be restricted to, the following topics: Curriculum and policy decisions; institutional structures in support of study-abroad; models of study abroad (faculty-directed, affiliated institutions, consortial, and third-party programs); the use of ethnographic journals, field trips, internships, and discussions as transmigratory pedagogy; cross-cultural issues related to gender, ethnicity, and class inequalities; the integration of study-abroad into on-campus curriculum (selection of students, orientation and re-entry programming for students, preparing students for non-US pedagogy); and ways to create study-abroad programs.

151. Teaching Workshop. Using Data Sets in Courses Other than Research Methods

Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon H

Organizer and Presider: Rogelio Saenz, Texas A&M University
Leaders: Allen Scarboro, Augusta State University
Michael C. Karel, Trinity University
Mark A. Fossett, Texas A&M University

The goal of this workshop is to share ideas about the use of data sets and data analyses in courses aside from those related to research methods. The leaders will share with the audience examples of the kinds of data sets and data analyses that they have introduced into their courses. There will also be time for discussion between the leaders and members of the audience. Handouts will be provided.

This didactic seminar is for qualitative researchers who wish to use computer software to analyze textual data (e.g., case records, newspaper articles, fieldnotes, transcripts of interviews or focus groups discussions), pictures, graphics or audio and video tapes. We will briefly explore the history of computer-assisted software programs in the social sciences. We will analyze the problems and prospects of using computer-assisted software programs for qualitative data analysis. We will discuss the factors you should consider in selecting a software program. This seminar is intended for those who want a basic introduction to the field of computer-assisted software for qualitative data analysis.

Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon H
Organizers: Kathleen Mullan Harris and J. Richard Udry, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Panel: Kathleen Mullan Harris, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
J. Richard Udry, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
David C. Rowe, University of Arizona
Glen H. Elder, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Christine A. Bachrach, National Institute of Child Health and Human Development

Add Health will complete collection of Wave III data on its original national representative sample of 20,000 adolescents by the beginning of 2002, with data from Wave III available for use in the research community in the fall of 2002. Respondents were first interviewed in 1994-95 and again in 1996, and are aged 18-24 in Wave III. This workshop will describe new features added to the Wave III data collection and highlight unique research opportunities yet to be exploited with these data. Information will be provided and questions answered for researchers developing grant applications to NIH and other funding agencies for analysis of these data.
184. Professional Workshop. Getting the Mentoring You Want and the Skills You Need in Graduate School

Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5

Leaders: Phyllis Moen, Cornell University
Teresa A. Sullivan, University of Texas, Austin

The goal of this workshop is to provide participants with information and tools which will help them get the mentoring they want and the skills they need in graduate school. The session will include a group discussion of potentials, pitfalls, and pragmatics involved in negotiating the graduate school experience. There will be considerable audience participation in the form of discussion as well as questions and answers.

220. Professional Workshop. Collaborating Internationally on Research and Teaching
Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5
Organizer: Jan Marie Fritz, University of Cincinnati
Panel: Jan Marie Fritz, University of Cincinnati
Susan Brown Eve, University of North Texas
Christine Inglis, University of Sydney
Panelists and audience members will discuss ways to initiate or improve international research and teaching. The discussion will begin with panelists' specific experiences in Italy, Israel, Ghana, and the Asia-Pacific region. Discussion will cover opportunities and experiences for individuals as well as programs. This workshop is open to those who have experiences to share as well as those who would like to initiate international collaboration in teaching and/or research.
Dr. Fritz will discuss the workshops she gives in Italy and the collaborative research she undertook in Israel. She will also mention department initiatives in Indonesia, Thailand, and Greece. Dr. Fritz is an executive committee member of the International Sociological Association.
The University of North Texas has operated a masters program in clinical sociology in cooperation with a school for ultra-orthodox Jewish women in Jerusalem since 1995. The teaching program uses distance learning technology, including videotapes, web-based learning, and intensive courses taught on site by UNT faculty and some Israeli adjunct instructors. Problems encountered included adapting US materials to culturally relevant and resolution of credentialing and licensure issues in the international context. UNT also has an exchange relationship with the University of Ghana. Experiences recruiting, retaining, and supporting students from developing countries in an applied sociology program will be discussed.
Dr. Inglis is the Associate Dean (Research) and Director of the Multicultural Research Center at the University of Sydney, and also a Vice President of the International Sociological Association. She will discuss research cooperation in the Asia-Pacific region.

221. Professional Workshop. Using the Internet for Research
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Leaders: Lloyd Klein, Louisiana State University, Shreveport
Deidre A. Tyler, Salt Lake Community College
This workshop focuses on the potential for obtaining substantive research materials through resources offered via the Internet. Consideration will be given to caveats essential in contrasting substantive research materials with questionable website content. The workshop will offer an analysis of specific internet browsers serving as portals enabling the acquisition of useful research materials. Discussion will also detail suggested sociology websites containing resources for scholarly research.
222. Academic Workplace Workshop. Sociology Departments, High School Social Studies, and Sociology Program Growth

Hilton Anaheim, Carmel

Leaders: Keith Alan Roberts, Hanover College
Catherine Mobley, Clemson University
Carla B. Howery, American Sociological Association
Vaneeta-marie D’Andrea, City University, London

Issues to be covered in this workshop include: (1) collaborations with education to prepare primary and secondary school teachers; (2) sociology department summer courses/weekshops for credit for secondary school teachers; (3) resources for secondary school teachers—workshops, lesson plans, and textbooks; (4) alliances that college faculty can make with local secondary school teachers; (5) a high school advanced placement course and recruitment of incoming first-year students; and (6) state standards for high school sociology courses.

Hilton Anaheim, California Pavilion

Organizer: Felice J. Levine, American Sociological Association

This poster/exhibit session is an important opportunity to meet program officers and representatives of major research funding institutions to talk about opportunities for research and fellowship support. This is a chance for conference participants to speak one-on-one with representatives and learn about new and continuing funding initiatives, application procedures and review processes, and elements of a competitive research proposal. Each exhibit provides a visual overview of research funding and the application process, materials for distribution, and time for direct individual discussion. All meeting participants, including students, are encouraged to attend.

For detailed information on programs and institutions, see pp. 187-191.

This workshop will share creative opportunities for sociologists in state government. Panelists will present the innovative model of the New Jersey Council on Gender Parity in Labor and Education. This Council represents the partnership of the NJ State Employment and Training Commission, a state agency, and the Center for Women and Work, an academic social science research organization. The workshop will explore and discuss the formation of state-academic partnerships, the functioning of state-academic partnerships, how the needs of policymakers are addressed in such partnerships, the benefits to each organization, the role of sociological research in state government, and mentoring students for careers in state government.

260. Professional Workshop. New PhDs Discuss Details of the Job Market Process: From Timelines to Negotiations

Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5
Organizer: Ronica N. Rooks, National Institute on Aging
Panel: Ronica N. Rooks, National Institute on Aging
Talisse Damille Johnson, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Laura M. Moore, University of Maryland, College Park
This workshop is training for job seekers who have a basic knowledge of the job search process and are looking for additional details, or the "little known facts," about the job search and interview process. Panelists will provide information on starting a job search, creating timelines and utilizing effective time management skills, understanding the resources and costs involved in marketing yourself and what to expect and how to prepare for the interview process and negotiations. This workshop is intended to empower job seekers and alleviate some of the stress that usually accompanies a job search.
261. Academic Workplace Workshop. The Sociology Major: Problems and Solutions
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon A
Organizers: Beth A. Eck, James Madison University; Jay R. Howard, Indiana University-Purdue University, Columbus
Goals and Objectives of the Sociology Major: Why They Matter. Gregory L. Weiss, Roanoke College
Observations from the Field: What Works and What Doesn’t in Assessment. Catherine White Bertheide, Skidmore College
Educational institutions and academic departments across the country are being asked to give serious attention to their mission, goals, and specific objectives; to assess that their achievement of these objectives; and to use the results of assessment to modify the curriculum, individual courses, and teaching pedagogy to enhance student learning. To that end, this workshop focuses on what we know about designing effective sociology programs and offers a place to suggest improvements for the major, regardless of institution. Attendees will participate in discussion of goals and objectives of the Sociology major, curriculum matters (including sequencing and courses taught), and mechanisms for assessment. The remarks of three panelists will provide the catalyst for these discussions.

262. Teaching Workshop. Distance Learning
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Leader: Joan Biddle, New School Online University
The emphasis for this workshop will be on the importance of social interaction between the instructor and students in a virtual classroom, on sociability as a method for creating an atmosphere which inspires students to contribute to the conversation, and as a vehicle by which the content of a course is conveyed. Although the leader will briefly discuss the technological environment for teaching and learning, the technology of distance learning is secondary to the interaction that occurs within it. A "distance" classroom is a classroom regardless of what it "looks" like. Criticisms about distance formats often complain about the alleged lack of "face-to-face" contact between instructors and course participants. There is indeed "face-to-face" contact between all participants of a virtual or distant course; it is a matter of reorienting one’s perspective to the concept of "face" in these settings. Additionally, as courses in distance formats become more commonplace, it is necessary to understand the relationships between "anytime, anyplace" and the management of time, both by students and professors.

295. Didactic Seminar. Computer-Assisted Software for Qualitative Data Analysis (to 12:10 p.m.)

Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201B

Ticket required for admission

Raymond C. Maietta, Research Talk, Inc.

This didactic seminar is for qualitative researchers who wish a basic overview of computer software to analyze textual data, pictures, graphics, audio and video tapes. We will describe the range of some of the most important computer software programs available on the market today and will compare and contrast some of the most important program features. We will discuss the factors you should consider in selecting a software program. We will provide a brief demonstration of a range of some of the most important software programs for analyzing qualitative data (text, audio tapes, and video tapes). We will discuss some of the methodological implications of using computer-assisted software to analyze qualitative data.

296. Didactic Seminar. Spatially Integrated Social Science (to 12:10 p.m.)

Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5

Ticket required for admission

Leaders: Michael F. Goodchild, University of California, Santa Barbara
Richard P. Appelbaum, University of California, Santa Barbara
John R. Logan, University at Albany

Have you heard about computer mapping? Wonder what it can do for you? Let CSISS show you what can be done, what you have to learn, what software and hardware you would need, and where you can turn for help. CSISS is the Center for Spatially Integrated Social Science, funded by the National Science Foundation under its program of support for infrastructure in the social and behavioral sciences. Our seminar will introduce you to spatial analysis, and familiarize you with the ways in which CSISS can be of use to you in conducting research with a spatial component. We will offer some live demonstrations, discuss spatial analysis as an integrative tool for the social sciences, and review CSISS's multifaceted approach to spatial visualization and analysis. Detailed information about CSISS can be found at www.csiss.org. Core programs include Best Practice Examples, Learning Resources, National Workshops, Place-Based Search, Software Tools, and Specialist Meetings.

Hilton Anaheim, Oceanside

Organizer: Pepper J. Schwartz, University of Washington
Panel: Janet Lever, California State University, Los Angeles
Virginia E. Rutter, University of Washington
Pepper J. Schwartz, University of Washington
Rick Shenkman, TomPaine.com, Washington, DC

Many academics have findings that should reach the public, and reach them in a way that academics feel has not distorted the meaning of their research. We will present ways of getting research to various types of media, trying to protect it as much as possible, and damage control when things don't go as planned. We will have a panel of academics who are media-savvy and who also have been media gatekeepers. We will also have a person who does public relations for professors and a professional newswoman who spent twenty years in broadcast news. Topics will include: ways to get your research noticed; how to make sure the media gets the central points; who to contact, who to trust; how to talk to media in print, internet, radio, and television; and what to do if the media gets it wrong.

298. Professional Workshop. How to Get Published: Advice from ASA Editors

Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon G

Panel: Annette Lareau, Temple University
Jonathan H. Turner, University of California, Riverside and Editor, Sociological Theory
Claude S. Fischer, University of California, Berkeley, and editor of Contexts

This workshop is intended for sociologists seeking to learn more about the process of publishing in scholarly journals, and about the tacit rules that guide the editorial process. The workshop will examine how to identify appropriate journals to which to submit manuscripts, and will demystify the editorial review process. Special attention is given to the process of revising manuscripts for publication. Materials will be provided for workshop participants.

Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 3
Leader: Kerry J. Strand, Hood College
Roger Reitman, Hood College

In this workshop we discuss the special characteristics, benefits, and challenges of combining sociology and social work programs within academic departments, particularly from the perspective of the department chair. Topics include coordinating curricula, professional expectations, and administrative issues including budgets, personnel decisions, and the accreditation process. The major focus will be on departments with social work programs accredited by the American Council on Social Work Education. However, we will also give some attention to other configurations, such as departments where the sociology major is combined with a concentration, track, or minor in social work or human services.

300. Teaching Workshop. Developing a Custom Textbook in Sociology

Hilton Anaheim, Capistrano B
Organizer: Janice Clifford Wittekind, Auburn University
Leader: Janice Clifford Wittekind, Auburn University
Murray C. Adams, Auburn University
Arthur Wilke, Auburn University
Clint Crockett, International Thompson
Publishing/Wadsworth

The objective of this workshop is to provide an overview of the steps in development of a custom textbook. The session will focus on outlining the necessary steps for successful completion of this type of project. The presenters will consist of an editor, contributing authors, and a publisher representative. The audience will see differing perspectives as well as the importance of both good communication and working relationships among members of the writing team. In addition, a discussion will highlight how custom publishing can serve as a vehicle for departmental renewal, serving as it were a "common good" for those interested in the teaching mission of sociology departments. Information will be presented on a variety of topics, including the utility of a custom text, assessing departmental resources (financial and faculty participation), selection of a publisher, setting deadlines, and other pertinent issues. The importance of overcoming challenges and responses by those who were party to the process—writers, editors, and publishers—will also be addressed.

301. Teaching Workshop. The Use of E-Mail and the Internet for Student Feedback and Course Communication

Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Leader: S. Fernando Rodriguez, University of Texas, El Paso

The goal of this workshop is to provide participants with information and tools that will help them make more efficient use of e-mail and the Internet to improve student feedback and course communication.

Hilton Anaheim, California Pavilion

Organizer: Felice J. Levine, American Sociological Association

This poster/exhibit session provides a unique occasion to meet principle investigators, researchers, and managers of large-scale data sets that are publicly available for use. Each exhibit showcases at least one major data set or multiple data resources of tremendous value for secondary analysis. Representatives are available to talk about the nature of these data sets, their analytic potential, and issues relating to access and use, including the development of state-of-the-art internet services to access data sets. This is an opportunity for conference participants to learn about these data sets and their potential for research and teaching. All meeting attendees, including students, are encouraged to attend.

339. Didactic Seminar. Comparative Methodology
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A
Ticket required for admission
Leader: Charles C. Ragin, Northwestern University

Comparative social science is defined by its interest in (or at least a presumption of) meaningful "cases." Comparativists treat cases as whole entities purposefully selected, not as homogeneous observations drawn randomly from a large pool of equally plausible selections. This gives comparative work a special focus on "significant" cases. Case-oriented discourse speaks directly to the events and experiences of cases, abstracting from their histories and their specific characteristics and circumstances to draw out their theoretical significance. At the case level, researchers can make sense of seemingly unrelated phenomena, placing events and processes in context and in meaningful sequences. Thus, case-oriented discourse responds to the experiences of cases as singular entities and is capable of contributing directly both to the discussion of issues and problems faced by separate cases and to the elaboration of theory.

Discourse that is too case-oriented, however, has its own problems. Every case may seem too different to be compared with any other case, and scholarly authority may derive exclusively from in-depth knowledge of cases, not from explication of their theoretical relevance. In the extreme, discourse that is too slanted toward cases can atomize comparative social science, with each scholar attached to a seemingly unique case and deriving scholarly authority from a store of knowledge that cannot be easily shared or duplicated. A competing goal of comparative social science, therefore, is to derive general statements about theoretically important relationships. Making general statements requires using concepts and, at the level of cases, focusing on observable "variables." Thus, concepts and variables permeate almost all social scientific discussion of cases, no matter how much or how little homage is paid to their singularity or meaningfulness as cases.

The course is built around the contrast between the logic of comparative analysis and other analytic logics, with a focus on different forms of qualitative and quantitative analysis. A central concern is the comparative analytic techniques appropriate for different types of comparative investigations. The logic of comparative research is powerfully influenced by the number of cases, usually countries or some other macro-social unit, included in a study. This course will explore a wide range of comparative designs, from comparatively oriented case studies to research on large numbers of macro-level cases and will focus on the tools needed to link case-oriented and variable-oriented discourse in these different research designs.

Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon K
Organizer: Patricia G. Steinoff, University of Hawaii
        Patricia G. Steinoff, University of Hawaii
Panelists will discuss what kinds of opportunities for research, consulting, and teaching in the Asia-Pacific region are available to sociologists, what preparation and background are needed, and where to go for further information. The workshop aims to help participants focus on what sorts of opportunities in the Asia-Pacific region might be appropriate for them, and how to pursue them effectively.

341. Academic Workplace Workshop. How Research on Diversity Should Inform Teaching
Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201D
Leaders: Lori Latrice Sykes, State University of New York, Albany
        Leslie T.C. Wang, University of Toledo
        Charles P. Gallmeier, Indiana University Northwest
        Catherine R. Zimmer, North Carolina State University
This session is an interactive workshop which will explore the integration of research topics such as race, ethnicity, gender, class, and sexuality into classroom instruction. Specifically, panelists and attendees will share best practice models with special attention devoted to the selection of required and recommended materials, assignments, and lecture content.

342. Academic Workplace Workshop. Lessons from Preparing Future Faculty Projects
Hilton Anaheim, Manhattan
Leaders: Camilla Vivian Saulsbury, Indiana University
        Robert V. Robinson, Indiana University
        Nancy J. Davis, DePauw University
        Matthew Oware, Indiana University
The goal of this workshop is to provide participants with information about the Preparing Future Faculty (PFF) Program along with tools for implementing aspects of PFF programs at their own college or university. The focus will be on what can be gained from involvement with PFF programs, from both individual and departmental-level perspectives. Models for generating graduate student and faculty interest in PFF-related activities, as well as how to operate PFF programs or activities on a shoestring, will also be presented. Handouts will be provided and there will be time for questions.
343. Teaching Workshop. Teaching Racial and Ethnic Relations
Hilton Anaheim, Capistrano B
Leaders: Sarimatha Banerjee, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign
Shirley A. Jackson, Southern Connecticut State University
This workshop will demonstrate various methods of teaching race and ethnicity. The facilitators will discuss techniques that may be used to explore race and ethnicity from a national and an international perspective. This session will provide opportunities for participants who are already teaching courses on race and ethnicity to share their experiences. Participants will have the opportunity to exchange ideas, learn new techniques, and discuss the challenges of teaching in this area. Handouts, including readings, films, activities, and assignments/projects, will be made available.

375. Didactic Seminar. Designing and Implementing Large Scale, Comparative, Qualitative/Ethnographic Research

Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A

Ticket required for admission

Leaders: Kathryn J. Edin, Northwestern University
Laura Lein, University of Texas, Austin

This seminar, led by the authors of the 1997 book Making Ends Meet, will focus on a re-emerging "style" of qualitative research that has its roots in the Chicago School of Sociology and in the work of W.E.B. Du Bois: relatively large scale, comparative, qualitative research. Examples are qualitative or ethnographic studies of respondents drawn from survey subsamples ("nested" qualitative designs), qualitative or ethnographic studies that involve comparisons across sites, or single-site studies that compare subgroups.

The following questions will be considered: (1) How to design your study, including a discussion of multi-method "nested" approaches, cross-sectional, and longitudinal approaches to research design for a large-scale qualitative or ethnographic study. (2) How to formulate research questions and topic lists (for depth interview studies, interview guide) in this type of study, and how to maintain your ability to reformulate questions and topics as new areas of interest emerge while in the field. (3) How to collect systematic qualitative or ethnographic data using a number of different data collectors. (4) How to develop a preliminary coding guide in this type of study, and how to maintain your ability to incorporate new codes that emerge in preliminary coding. (5) How to code systematically using multiple coders. (6) How to present data gleaned from large-scale qualitative or ethnographic studies.

376. Didactic Seminar. Statistical Graphics (to 5:30 p.m.)

Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201B

Ticket required for admission

Leader: John D. Fox, McMaster University

In eclipse for most of the 20th century, there has been a remarkable resurgence of interest in statistical graphics in the last 25 years. Graphs should play a central role in the analysis and presentation of statistical data in the social sciences, a common prescription that is more often than not honored in the breach. This seminar provides a brief but wide-ranging introduction to modern statistical graphics, with an emphasis on the role of graphs in the presentation of data, including the history of statistical graphics; graphical standards and critique; research on graphical perception; graphing linear and generalized linear models; and (time permitting) an overview of statistical graphics for data analysis.

377. Professional Workshop. Serving as an Expert Witness

Anaheim Convention Center, Room 202A

Organizer and Presider: Robert L. Nelson, American Bar Foundation and Northwestern University
Panel: William T. Bielby, University of California, Santa Barbara
Laura Beth Nielsen, American Bar Foundation

Barbara F. Reskin, Harvard University
Lynn Smith-Lovin, University of Arizona
David Wellman, University of California, Santa Cruz

The workshop will discuss the practical, professional, and intellectual aspects of serving as an expert witness. Panelists will describe their personal experiences serving as expert witnesses in litigation. Most of the panelists have worked as statistical experts in employment discrimination cases; some have drawn on different kinds of expertise and have been involved in other kinds of controversies. Panelists and the audience will be invited to talk about the impact of legal process on the style and substance of their work product, their sense of objectivity and professional autonomy in an adversarial context, problems of communicating their findings to professional and lay decision-makers, the impact of their analyses on the contests in which they participated, and the practical costs and benefits of the work. We also will ask panelists to reflect on the implications of their experience for the sociology of knowledge and the sociology of law: how do the epistemological assumptions and decision-making principles of social science and law compare? What does this support about the potential value of the legal process as a means of learning about society? How influential is sociological knowledge likely to be in the legal process?

Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon B

Organizers: Jennifer L. Eichstedt, Humboldt State University;
Peter M. Nardi, Pitzer College
Panel: Lionel Cantu, University of California, Santa Cruz
Jennifer L. Eichstedt, Humboldt State University
Verta A. Taylor, Ohio State University

Panelists will discuss issues confronting lesbian/gay/bisexual/transgendered (LGBT) people as they enter the job market and come up for promotion and tenure. What should be included on a vita, what should be left out, or what should be rephrased? The workshop will discuss how you present yourself at interviews, what you say to various constituencies (faculty, students, administrators), and how you inquire about benefits for domestic partners. Panelists will present personal experiences from when they were seeking jobs as well as what they experience now at the hiring end. The workshop is open to LGBT people and strongly welcomes chairs, faculty, and administrators who want to learn how to interview LGBT candidates for faculty or staff positions.

379. Professional Workshop. Preparing Future Faculty for the Range of Academic Jobs

Hilton Anaheim, Santa Monica

Panel: Sarah N. Gatsen, Texas A&M University
Elizabeth Gill, Randolph-Macon College
Brian Powell, Indiana University
William G. Roy, University of California, Los Angeles

This workshop will cover the many different kinds of academic jobs available in sociology, from those at large public research universities to ones at small private liberal arts colleges (and the many in between). We will give special attention to how graduate faculty members might mentor and advise students for the range of academic jobs, and also what graduate students can do to prepare for different types of expectations.
resources, and duties. The workshop panel is comprised of experienced directors of graduate studies, other senior faculty members who have served as mentors or advisors, and also newer faculty who can reflect on their graduate training and how it has connected with their first years on the job. After some brief remarks by each organizer and panelist, much of the time will be devoted to an open forum for questions and discussion with the audience.

380. Academic Workplace Workshop. Integrating International Students in Graduate Programs

Leader: Kiyoshi Ikeda, University of Hawaii, Manoa

Participants in this workshop will share experiences in "integrating" international students in graduate programs with a view to fostering supportive academic and social environments. Such arrangements can enable students from such backgrounds to develop and proceed in sociology graduate studies and beyond. The workshop leader will moderate, comment, and provide information on the most effective arrangements and conditions involving students and programs at given stages in graduate education and beyond. In the flow of developments, the focus will be on how "integration" is fostered within pre-admission efforts, institutional and program elements, and post-degree influences. Key influences can be explored in thriving and coping with study program demands (the first 18 months or so), developing a niche and a focus, becoming a part of the sociological craft and vocation, and related preparation for initial placements and post-doctoral supports. At each point of interest, the basic structural and program arrangements to foster integration of international students to such conditions and contexts will be explored.

381. Academic Workplace Workshop. Working Effectively with Students with Disabilities

Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon G

Leaders: Sharon N. Barnatt, Gallaudet University
Bruce K. Friesen, Kent State University, Stark
Kelly Oster, Kent State University, Stark

Workshop participants will first become familiar with the major federal laws that frame relationships between students with disabilities, their professors, and the University. Issues such as educational integrity, inclusion, and equity will be explored as they related to students with impairments of hearing, sight, and mobility, as well as learning disabilities. Suggestions for creating a more accessible classroom for all students will be presented. This workshop is of interest to faculty, department chairs, and university staff who work with students with disabilities.

382. Teaching Workshop. Teaching about Popular Culture

Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5

Organizer and Presider: Clinton R. Sanders, University of Connecticut

Panel: David L. Altheide, Arizona State University
Joshua Gamson, Yale University
Thomas C. Hood, University of Tennessee
Chandra Mukerji, University of California, San Diego

This workshop focuses on organizing and teaching classes in popular culture and the mass media. Panel members will informally discuss such issues as how they plan their own courses, substantive topics dealt with, textual and other materials used, class exercises and assignments, and special problems commonly encountered. Panel members are well-known figures in the sociology of media and popular culture. In addition to presentations, time will be devoted to responding to comments and questions from workshop attendees.

383. Informational Poster Session. Graduate Programs in Sociology

Organizer: Meghan E. Rich, American Sociological Association

Graduate programs will display information describing their programs, special emphases, financial aid and admissions criteria, and opportunities to work with faculty researchers and instructors. Department representatives will be on hand to answer questions from undergraduate students and their advisors, MA students looking to pursue a PhD, and other interested parties. Some departments will bring information and admission packets to distribute to attendees.

Patrick Le Gales, Institut d'Etudes Politiques, Paris
Christopher Husbands, London School of Economics and Political Science, England
Saskia Sassen, University of Chicago
Discussion: Alan Harding, Salford University, England
Urban studies as an interdisciplinary territory is the focus for different intellectual agendas that are partly shaped by national public policies. We may expect sociologists in urban studies, therefore, to adapt their contributions to national contexts. But the issue remains whether they are able to find a common sociological core that leaves a distinctive impression on other disciplines and enjoys some cross-national validity.
A common cross-national theme that has emerged in recent years is the importance of global connections. Does this theme enhance or diminish a specifically sociological contribution to urban studies? This special session explores whether sociologists can strengthen their disciplinary input and debates the extent to which common cross-national strategies are more or less necessary under global capitalist conditions.
This is the second of two joint sessions of the ASA/BSA that have the aim of enhancing the professional identity of sociology through international collaboration and debate. This one follows "The Future of Urban Sociology" chaired by Alan Harding at the BSA Jubilee meeting in April 2001 in Manchester. A report of that meeting can be found at www.surf.salford.ac.uk.

The fully hands-on workshop will guide participants through the key issues of context, content, and consequences in creating a teaching portfolio. Assessing the value and costs of the portfolio for faculty improvement and evaluation will accompany the production of an actual portfolio entry (workbook provided).

Hilton Anaheim, Salinas
Organizer and Presider: Roberta M. Spalter-Roth, American Sociological Association
Panel: Paul Burstein, University of Washington
April Brayfield, Tulane University
Eduardo Bonilla-Silva, Texas A&M University
Philip N. Cohen, University of California, Irvine
Ligaya Lindio-McGovern, Indiana University, Kokomo
The American Sociological Association's Fund for the Advancement of the Discipline (FAD) provides small grants up to $7,000 for ground-breaking research initiatives and related activities. FAD is made possible through a matching grant to ASA from the National Science Foundation. Four award recipients, a member of the selection panel, and the co-director of the program discuss the following: How are proposal evaluated? What makes research cutting edge? How do you get additional funding? How do you describe scientific, social, and educational impacts? The purpose of this workshop is to encourage applications, especially from scholars in early stages of their careers and who are not necessarily in "top 10" departments.

455. Academic Workplace Workshop. Establishing Successful Research Centers within Sociology Departments
Hilton Anaheim, San Simeon A
Leader: John M. Kennedy, Indiana University
Research centers can support the research, teaching, service, and service-learning missions of sociology departments. Their success depends on carefully defining the center's goals so that the directors can focus their activities such that they meet both the needs of the center and the department. However, research centers often find that stakeholders have different expectations and that success requires that the centers often take on more activities than originally anticipated. The workshop will discuss strategies centers can use to accomplish their goals within the limits of their missions and their resources. It will also discuss strategies for planned growth for centers wishing to expand their activities.

486. Didactic Seminar. New Methods of Representing Social Networks

Anaheim Convention Center, Room 201A

Leader: Linton C. Freeman, University of California, Irvine
Graph theorists have developed elaborate programs that create visual images designed to display patterns of relations among the elements of a graph. Molecular modelers have developed programs designed to display the structural properties of molecules. Both of these kinds of programs provide powerful tools for uncovering important structural features of data and displaying those features to others. This seminar is intended to provide a practicum. It will show how to adapt some programs from graph theory and molecular modeling to the task of creating visual images that display the structural features of social network data. And it will introduce procedures that permit an investigator to uncover some of the antecedents and consequences of observed structural features. Finally, it will provide each participant with a CD containing the programs needed to conduct this kind of analysis of network data on a PC.

487. Professional Workshop. Issues of Part-Time, Adjunct, and Temporary Faculty Appointments

Anaheim Marriott, Orange Salon 5

Organizer and Presider: Harold Charnofsky, California State University, Dominguez Hills
Panel: Jane Kerlinger, California State University, Chicago, and Vice President of the California Faculty Association (CFA)
Donald Robertson, California State University, Northridge, and California State University, Dominguez Hills
Jim Stockinger, University of California, Berkeley
This workshop is intended to address the issues and problems facing part-time, adjunct, and temporary faculty. Overworked, underpaid, exploited, they represent nearly half of all faculty on many campuses.
488. Professional Workshop. The Internet, Information Technology, and Society
Hilton Anaheim, Oceanside
Leaders: Alan Neustadt, University of Maryland
John P. Robinson, University of Maryland
Meyer Kestnbaum, University of Maryland
The Internet and other Information Technology (IT) are now being actively used by 40-60% of the American public and are obviously changing the character and quality of American life. There now are several important social science efforts to disseminate and coordinate studies of IT usage and impact. This ASA workshop would allow participants to become familiar with these disparate efforts, which include: (1) the University of Maryland website, at which researchers can now have immediate and interactive access to national data on the public’s access and use of the Internet (www.webuse.umd.edu); (2) Internet data modules on the General Social Survey (GSS) and Current Population Surveys (CPS), and specialized surveys conducted by Pew Center, UCLA, the SfQSS at Stanford, Carnegie-Mellon, Toronto and Harvard Universities, and the National Geographic; and (3) theoretical discussions of the ways IT is likely to transform social, economic, political, educational, and commercial institutions and modes of interaction—as exemplified in an Annual Review of Sociology article.
The workshop will also draw on and review insights and critiques that emerged from an intensive three-week summer “WebShop” held at the University of Maryland and the University of California-Berkeley in June of 2001, where 50 top graduate students from across the country discussed and interacted with 50 top scholars and researchers concerning their conclusions about IT’s apparent impact on society.

489. Academic Workplace Workshop. Building Sociology Connections to Urban Studies Programs
Hilton Anaheim, Monterey
Organizer and Presider: Gregory D. Squires, George Washington University
Panel: Xavier De Souza Briggs, Harvard University
Robert D. Bullard, Clark Atlanta University
Philip Nyden, Loyola University Chicago
Anne B. Shlay, Temple University
This session will examine current and potential relationships between departments of sociology and urban studies programs, as well as the roles sociology departments do and might play in addressing a range of urban policy issues. Among the specific topics to be explored are the urban policy issues that create demands for scholarship generally and sociological knowledge in particular, identifiable skills and areas of knowledge where sociology can meet current demands, collaborative initiatives among university researchers and community organizations, and institutional imperatives of universities that can nurture or impede such developments.

490. Teaching Workshop. Teaching Urban Sociology
Anaheim Marriott, Grand Salon A
Leaders: Philip G. Olson, University of Missouri, Kansas City
John C. Kilburn, Eastern Connecticut State University
Jerome Krase, Brooklyn College, City University of New York
This workshop will introduce innovative approaches to teaching that go beyond traditional lecture and discussion courses. The use of films, direct field experience, community service work, taking the class to the community and bringing the classroom into the classroom will all be discussed. Additional information on how to effectively use 2000 Census data will be presented. Participants are invited to bring their course syllabi, teaching materials, and approaches they have used that have proven to work in helping undergraduate students understand the sociological nature of cities.

How individuals and departments can make effective use of faculty development resources will be the focus of this workshop. Three questions underlie the discussion: (1) What are different types of faculty development and the use of each for individuals and departments? (2) What faculty development resources exist on most campuses and how can individuals and departments take advantage of them? (3) What new resources can individuals/departments develop if they are not available? The leaders will distinguish between formative and summative use of faculty development resources in teaching and research, resources to look for on campus, and resources that can be readily developed on campus. Attention will be given to faculty development for teaching assistants, new junior faculty, and senior faculty. The workshop leaders are experienced in faculty development and sociology on their campuses; they will provide interactive projects and share information and handouts on faculty development. Participants will leave with printed materials and ideas for effectively utilizing faculty development opportunities.

1. National Science Foundation
Division of Social and Economic Sciences

Presenters: Fred Pampel and Patricia White, Sociology Program, National Science Foundation, 4201 Wilson Boulevard, 995 SBE, Arlington, VA 22230; phone: (703) 292-8762; fax: (703) 292-9195 e-mail: pwhite@nsf.gov; homepage: http://www.nsf.gov/sbe/ses/socio/.

The Sociology Program at the National Science Foundation (NSF) supports research on human social organization, demography, and processes of individual and institutional change. The Program encourages theoretically focused empirical investigations aimed at improving the explanation of fundamental social processes. Included is research on organizations and organizational behavior, population dynamics, social movements, social groups, labor force participation, stratification and mobility, family, social networks, socialization, gender roles, and the sociology of science and technology.

The Sociology Program resides in NSF’s Division of Social, Behavioral and Economic Sciences. The Division supports disciplinary and multidisciplinary research, data collection, measurement and methodological research. Its goal is to develop basic scientific knowledge of social, behavioral, and economic systems, organizations and institutions, and human interaction and decision making. It also provides support for research conferences, doctoral dissertation research, international group travel, and data resource development.

2. National Institutes of Health
National Institute of Child Health and Human Development

Presenter: Rebecca L. Clark and Lynne M. Casper, Demographic and Behavioral Sciences Branch, Center for Population Research, National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, 6100 Executive Boulevard, Room 8B07G, Bethesda, MD 20892-7510; phone: (301) 496-1175; fax: (301) 496-0962; e-mail: rclark@mail.nih.gov; homepage: http://www.nichd.nih.gov/; http://www.nichd.nih.gov/cpr/; http://www.nichd.nih.gov/cpr/dbs/dbs.htm.

National Institute of Child Health and Human Development (NICHD), through its Center for Population Research, is the nation’s largest single source of funding for behavioral and social science research on population; most of this research is funded by the Demographic and Behavioral Sciences Branch. Program areas of interest include family and household structure and processes, fatherhood, children’s well-being, fertility and contraceptive behavior, sexual behavior related to risk of pregnancy, HIV infection, and other sexually transmitted diseases; immigration, migration, and population distribution; population and environment; the relationship between demographic factors and labor markets and labor force participation; child care; mortality, especially infant mortality and child health; and formal demographic and methodological research. Within NICHD, the Center for Research on Mothers and Children also supports behavioral and social research in the areas of child development, mental retardation, and nutrition and growth; and the National Center for Medical Rehabilitation Research supports work on the behavioral aspects of disability.
3. National Institutes of Health

National Institute of Mental Health

Presenter: Emeline Otey, National Institute of Mental Health, 6001 Executive Boulevard, Room 6186, MSC 9625, Bethesda, MD 20892-9625; phone: (301) 443-1636; fax: (301) 443-4611; e-mail: eotey@nih.gov; homepage: http://www.nimh.nih.gov/.

The National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) is the component of the National Institutes of Health charged with generating the knowledge needed to understand, treat, and prevent mental illness through directing, planning, supporting, and conducting programs of research, research training, research dissemination, and resource development on mental health and illness. NIMH support in the social and behavioral sciences addresses such issues as etiology, genetics, prevention, treatment, and clinical course of mental disorders; clinical mental health services and service systems research; epidemiology; assessment and classification of mental disorders; and basic biobehavioral, cognitive, emotional, personality, and social processes. A more complete description of the areas of research supported by the NIMH can be found at http://www.nimh.nih.gov/grants/program_contact.cfm.

4. National Institutes of Health

National Institute on Aging

Behavioral and Social Research Program

Presenter: Sidney M. Stahl, Behavioral and Social Research Program, National Institute on Aging, 7201 Wisconsin Avenue, #533, Bethesda, MD 20892-9205; phone: (301) 402-4156; fax: (301) 402-0051; e-mail: sidney_stahl@nih.gov; homepage: http://www.nih.gov/nia/research/extramural/behavior/.

The Behavioral and Social Research (BSR) Program of the National Institute on Aging (NIA) supports basic social and behavioral research and research training on processes of aging at both the individual and societal level. It focuses on how people change over the adult life course, on the interrelationships between older people and social institutions, and on the societal impact of the changing age composition of the population. Emphasis is placed upon the dynamic interplay between the aging of individuals and their changing biomedical, social and physical environments and on multi-level interactions among psychological, physiological, social, and cultural levels. Collaboration and coordination with other NIA programs is emphasized.

5. National Institutes of Health

National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism

Presenter: Robert Huebner, Division of Clinical and Prevention Research, National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, 6000 Executive Boulevard, Suite 505, Rockville, MD 20892; phone: (301) 443-8767; fax: (301) 443-8774; e-mail: ruhebner@wicn.niaaa.nih.gov.

The National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism (NIAAA) supports basic applied research related to the causes, consequences, treatment, and prevention of alcohol-related problems. Most behavioral and social science research is funded through the Division of Clinical and Prevention Research and the Division of Biometry and Epidemiology. NIAAA's research priorities include: sociocultural and environmental influences on drinking behaviors; safety, intentional, and unintentional injury (including violence and drunk driving); economic, socioeconomic and policy-related issues in the prevention and treatment of alcohol problems; the prevention and treatment of alcohol-related problems in children, adolescents, families, the disabled and elderly, and other at-risk populations; race/ethnic health disparities in the etiology, treatment, and prevention of alcohol-related problems; prevention of Fetal Alcohol Syndrome (FAS); interventions with persons at risk for HIV/AIDS; and alcohol-related health services studies including research on the organization, management and financing of alcohol treatment and prevention services.

6. National Institutes of Health

Office of Behavioral and Social Sciences Research

Presenter: Ronald P. Abeles, Office of Behavioral and Social Science Research, Building 1, Room 326, Bethesda, MD 20892; phone: (301) 402-1146; fax: (301) 402-1750; e-mail: abeles@nih.gov; homepage: http://obssr.od.nih.gov.

The Office of Behavioral and Social Sciences Research opened officially on July 1, 1995. The U.S. Congress established the Office of Behavioral and Social Sciences Research (OBSSR) in the Office of the Director, NIH, in recognition of the key role that behavioral and social factors often play in illness and health. The OBSSR mission is to stimulate behavioral and social sciences research throughout NIH and to integrate these areas of research more fully into others of the NIH health research enterprise, thereby improving our understanding, treatment, and prevention of disease. The Office engages in a variety of activities. Among these are: (a) developing funding initiatives for research and training, (b) setting priorities for behavioral and social sciences research, (c) providing opportunities for training and career development for behavioral and social scientists, (d) linking minority students with mentors, (e) organizing conferences, workshops, and lectures, and (f) briefing key NIH staff on behavioral and social sciences research.

7. National Institutes of Health

Center for Scientific Review

Presenter: Michael Micklin, Chief, Risk, Prevention, & Health Behavior Integrated Review Group, Center for Scientific Review, National Institutes of Health, 6701 Rockledge Drive, Room 3178, Bethesda, MD 20814-9692; phone: (301) 435-1258; fax: (301) 480-3962; e-mail: micklinm@mail.nih.gov; homepage: http://www.csr.nih.gov/.

The Center for Scientific Review (CSR) provides staff support to the Office of the Director, National Institutes of Health (NIH), in the formulation of grant application review policies and procedures, makes initial referral to PHS components, assigns NIH applications to supporting institutes and centers and to CSR integrated review groups (IRGs), and provides for scientific review of most NIH research grants and Individual National Research Service Awards (Fellowships).

8. Department of Health and Human Services
Office for Human Research Protections
Office of Research Integrity
Darlene Marie Ross, Department of Health and Human Services, Office for Human Research Protection, 6100 Executive Boulevard, Suite 3B01, MSC-7507 Rockville, MD 20852; phone (301) 435-5648; fax (301) 402-0527; e-mail: dr20a@.nih.gov; Homepage: http://ohrp.osophs.dhhs.gov/

The Office for Human Research Protections (OHRP), Department of Health and Human Services oversees the protection of human subjects in federally funded research activities. The OHRP accomplishes its mission through assurance negotiation and development, compliance oversight, and education development. Staff will be available to discuss the regulatory and ethical principles involved in human subject research, the IRB Guidebook, the videotape series entitled “Protecting Human Subjects,” and the regulatory and guidance materials available from the OHRP Web Site.

The Office of Research Integrity (ORI) provides funding to support conferences, workshops, or colloquia and expects to provide funding for research and the development of educational resources. Funded activities address the responsible conduct of research, the prevention of scientific misconduct, fostering integrity in research environments, and handling allegations of scientific misconduct.

9. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention
Behavioral and Social Sciences Working Group
Presenter: Karin A. Mack, Division of Adult and Community Health, National Center for Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 4770 Buford Highway, NE, Mail Stop K-47, Atlanta, GA 30341; phone: (770) 488-2455; fax: (707) 488-8150; e-mail: kmack@cdc.gov; homepage: http://www.cdc.gov/train.htm.

- The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), based in Atlanta, Georgia, is the nation’s primary agency responsible for disease and injury prevention. It maintains a full prevention and health promotion agenda that includes prevention of infectious diseases, chronic diseases, injuries, workplace hazards, birth defects and disabilities, and environmental hazards such as lead and other toxic substances. It also promotes healthy behaviors and lifestyle choices. Information will be available regarding current job opportunities, postgraduate training, the Epidemic Intelligence Service (EIS), and funding opportunities such as cooperative agreements.

10. U.S. Department of Justice
National Institute of Justice
Presenter: Thomas Feucht, National Institute of Justice, Office of Justice Programs, 810 7th Street, NW, Washington, DC 20531; phone: (202) 307-2949; fax: (202) 616-0275; e-mail: feucht@ojp.usdoj.gov; homepage: http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/nij/

The National Institute of Justice (NIJ), a component of the Office of Justice Programs, is the research agency of the U.S. Department of Justice. Created by the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968, as amended, NIJ is authorized to support research, evaluation, and demonstration programs, development of technology, and both national and international information dissemination for preventing and reducing crime and improving justice. In recent years, NIJ has greatly expanded its initiative, partly the result of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 (the Crime Act), partnerships with other federal agencies and private foundations, advances in technology, and a new international focus. New research and evaluation is exploring key issues in: violence against women; child abuse and neglect; use of geographical systems; substance abuse; youth development and delinquency; comparative cross-national crime; sentencing and corrections; community policing; and innovative justice system efforts including drug courts; family treatment courts, in-prison residential drug treatment, and offender reintegration programming. Information will be provided on NIJ funding opportunities for research on crime and criminal justice, and graduate and visiting fellowships.

11. U.S. Department of Education
Office of Educational Research and Improvement
Presenters: Ram N. Singh and Harold S. Himmelfarb, U.S. Department of Education, Office of Educational Research and Improvement (OERI), Suite 514, 555 New Jersey Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20208; phone: (202) 219-2025 (Singh) or (202) 219-2031 (Himmelfarb); fax: (202) 219-2135; e-mail: Ram_Singh@ed.gov; homepage: http://www.ed.gov/offices/OERI/funding.html/

Through support of basic and applied research, evaluations, and synthesizes, the Office of Educational Research and Improvement (OERI) serves researchers, parents, teachers, school administrators, and policy makers at local, state, and national levels. OERI supports the National Center for Education Statistics; the Office of Reform Assistance and Dissemination; the National Institute on Early Childhood Education; the National Institute on At-Risk Students; the National Institute on Student Achievement, Curriculum, and Assessment; the National Institute on Educational Governance, Finance, and Policy Making; and the National Institute on Postsecondary Education, Libraries, and Lifelong Learning. A major function of OERI is to fund and coordinate research carried out by a national system of research and development centers and regional education laboratories. In addition, the Office supports a variety of grant and contract programs, including Field-Initiated Studies (FIS) Program, Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR), and Interagency Education Research Initiative (IERI).

12. The Spencer Foundation
Presenter: John L. Rury, The Spencer Foundation, 875 North Michigan Avenue, Suite 3930, Chicago, IL 60611-1803; phone: (312) 337-7000; fax: (312) 337-0282; e-mail: jrruy@spencer.org; homepage: http://www.spencer.org/.

The Spencer Foundation supports high quality research related to education, where education is defined broadly to include all the situations and institutions in which education proceeds, across the entire life span. The research programs, comprised of Major Research Grants and Small Research Grants, support work that shows promise of contributing new knowledge, understanding, and improvement of educational thought and practice. The fellowship programs support educational researchers at different stages of their professional careers, providing resources to both young and senior researchers to pursue concentrated intellectual activity. This exhibit will include information about funding opportunities, eligibility criteria, and application procedure for all the major research and fellowship opportunities available at the Foundation.

13. United States Institute of Peace
Presenter: John T. Crist, U.S. Institute of Peace, 1200 17th Street, NW, Suite 200, Washington, DC 20036-3011; phone: (202) 429-3897; fax: (202) 822-5199; e-mail: John.crist@usip.org; homepage: http://www.usip.org/.

The U.S. Institute of Peace is an independent, nonpartisan institution created by Congress to strengthen the nation’s capacity to promote the peaceful resolution of international conflict. Through fellowships and grants, the Institute funds projects related to preventive diplomacy, ethnic and regional conflicts, peacekeeping and peace operations, peace settlements, post-conflict reconstruction and reconciliation, democratization and the rule of law, cross-cultural negotiations, U.S. foreign policy in the 21st century, and related topics. The Jennings Randolph Fellowship Program annually awards scholars and practitioners (including college and university faculty, journalists, diplomats, writers, educators, military officers, international negotiators and lawyers) who conduct their research and writing at the Institute’s offices in Washington for periods of up to ten months. Dissertation fellowships are also available to doctoral candidates for field research and writing. Through its solicited and unsolicited competition, the Grant Program offers financial support for research, education and training, and the dissemination of information on international peace and conflict resolution. Grant recipients conduct their research and writing at home institutions or other appropriate sites.

14. American Sociological Association
Research and Fellowship Support for Sociologists
Presenter: Roberta Spalter-Roth, American Sociological Association, 1307 New York Avenue, NW, Suite 700, Washington, DC 20005; phone: (202) 383-9005 (x 321); fax: (202) 638-0882; e-mail: executive.office@asapnet.org; homepage: http://www.asapnet.org/.

The American Sociological Association (ASA) provides funding for sociologists through two small grants programs and several fellowships programs. The ASA’s Fund for the Advancement of the Discipline (FAD) is a small grants program aimed at supporting research and related scientific activities. FAD provides grant support (up to $7,000) for substantive and methodological breakthroughs that can advance knowledge and provide leverage for the acquisition of additional research funds. Awards are limited to individuals with Ph.D. degrees or the equivalent. ASA also makes awards (up to $1000) through its Teaching Enhancement Fund to support projects that extend the quality of teaching in the United States and Canada. Individuals, departments, and a program or a committee of a state or regional association are eligible to apply.

ASA, through its Sydney S. Spivack Program in Applied Social Research and Social Policy, supports a Congressional Fellowship, Community Action Research Fellowships, and a Mass Media Fellowship. The ASA Congressional Fellowship provides a Ph.D.-level sociologist with in-depth experience as a staff member of a Congressional Committee or in a Congressional Office or agency. The Community Action Research Fellowships provide support for sociological work with community organizations, local public interest groups, or community action projects. The Mass Media Fellowship gives sociologists the opportunity to enhance their skills in and commitment to public communication through a ten-week placement at a media site. This latter fellowship is open to Ph.D. sociologists and to advanced graduate students (ABD).

15. American Sociological Association
Minority Fellowship Program
Presenter: Alfonso R. Latone-Rodriquez, American Sociological Association, 1307 New York Avenue, NW, Suite 700, Washington, DC 20005; phone: (202) 383-9005 (x 321); fax: (202) 638-0882; e-mail: minority.affairs@asapnet.org; homepage: http://www.asapnet.org/.

Through its Minority Fellowship Program (MFP), the American Sociological Association (ASA) supports the development and training of minority sociologists in mental health. Funded by a grant from the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH), the MFP seeks to attract talented minority students interested in mental health issues and to facilitate their placement, work, and success in an appropriate graduate program. In addition to providing financial support, the MFP works with Fellows and their faculty advisors at their home departments to help prepare Fellows in the sociology of mental health. Also, the MFP conducts symposia sessions at scholarly meetings, offers travel support to scientific conferences, and undertakes other initiatives that foster the development of formal and informal training for Fellows.

16. Civic Education Project
Presenter: Thomas J. Wood, Director of Faculty Recruitment and University Relations, 1140 Chapel Street, Suite 2A, New Haven, CT 06511; phone: (203) 781-0273; fax: (203) 781-0265; e-mail: twood@cep.yale.edu.

The Civic Education Project (CEP) grants teaching fellowships designed to help advance the social sciences in post-communist societies. CEP has been involved in international higher education since 1991, when it began its fellowship programs in Eastern Europe and Eurasia in an effort to help post-communist colleges redesign their social science and law curricula and teaching.

CEP's Visiting Lecturer Fellowship Program sends Western social scientists to countries in Eastern Europe and the Former Soviet Union to teach for one academic year (2 semesters), unlike most exchange programs that only focus on supporting short-term visits. CEP is also one of the few organizations to support dynamic young scholars native to the region, with its Eastern Scholar Fellowship Program. Due to the high loss ("brain drain") of talented academics from the region, CEP's Eastern Scholar Program Fellows have become a critical component of sustainable education reform in the region.

CEP began its first year with fifteen Fellows in the former Czechoslovakia. Today CEP Fellows are teaching in twenty-two countries from Hungary to Mongolia, our newest program. Approximately 20,000 students participate in CEP courses each year, in fields such as economics, European studies, history, human rights, international relations, law, political science, public administration, and sociology. Specific courses are selected by the university in cooperation with CEP and cover a broad range and depth, from general introductory courses to advanced electives.

It should be stressed that while CEP fellowships are primarily for teaching, our fellowships have a large professional development component. This includes language training, (most CEP program countries fall into the lesser-taught languages category), access to a large network of regional scholars, and strict limitations on teaching requirements to allow time for research and other activities. CEP also has a limited number of bursaries available for fellows every year who want to travel to their home countries to present papers at academic conferences.
Informational Poster Session 329
Data Resources

Organizer/Presider: Felice J. Levine, American Sociological Association
Monday, August 20, 2001 ♦ 9:00 a.m. – 12:00 noon
Hilton Anaheim

Meet principal investigators, researchers, and managers of large-scale data sets which are publicly available for use. Each exhibit showcases a major data set or multiple data resources of tremendous value for secondary analyses. Representatives are available to talk about the nature of these data sets, their analytic potential, and issues relating to access and use, including the development of state-of-the-art Internet services to access data sets. This is an opportunity for conference participants to learn about these data sets and their potential for research and teaching. All meeting participants, including students, are encouraged to attend.

1. General Social Survey
National Opinion Research Center, University of Chicago
Presenter: Tom W. Smith, National Opinion Research Center, University of Chicago, 1155 East 60th Street, Chicago, IL 60637; phone: (773) 256-6288; fax: (773) 753-7886; e-mail: smitht@norcmail.uchicago.edu; homepage: http://www.norc.uchicago.edu/.

The General Social Survey (GSS) of the National Opinion Research Center, University of Chicago, monitors social change in the United States. Since 1972, the GSS has gathered data on contemporary American society in order to monitor and explain trends and constants in attitudes, behaviors, and attributes of the adult population. These high quality data are easily accessible to a broad-based user community, including researchers, teachers in colleges and universities, students at undergraduate and graduate levels, business and corporate planners, journalists, and political officials who need to understand the pulse of our country in their work. The 23 national probability samples include interviews of over 40,000 respondents. Of the nearly 4,000 items that have been asked, there are time trends for over 1,000 items.

Two recent developments regarding the GSS are featured—the GSS Data and Information Retrieval System II (GSSDIRS) and the 2000 GSS. The GSSDIRS II is a new web product that links together code book, trends, bibliography, project reports, and other documentation; permits on-line analysis and data sub-setting; and provides the latest information via an announcement section, and contact with the GSS staff. The 2000 GSS contains supplements on religion, sexual behavior, internet and computer use, freedom, intergroup relations, childcare, and health and well-being.

2. International Social Survey
National Opinion Research Center, University of Chicago
Presenter: Tom W. Smith, National Opinion Research Center, University of Chicago, 1155 East 60th Street, Chicago, IL 60637; phone: (773) 256-6288; fax: (773) 753-7886; e-mail: smitht@norcmail.uchicago.edu; homepage: http://www.issp.org/.

The International Social Survey Program (ISSP) is the cross-between the General Social Survey (GSS) and its counterparts in other countries. Studies have been conducted annually since 1985 dealing with such topics as the role of government, social support and networks, social inequality, gender, family, work, the environment, national identity, and religion. Over 200 surveys with over 250,000 respondents have been conducted. Topics are repeated every 5-8 years. This means that both over time and cross-national comparisons are possible. There are now 37 member countries participating in the ISSP. It is a valuable resource for researchers undertaking comparative analysis or studying attitudes, behaviors, and attributes of adult populations in other countries.

3. The Panel Study of Income Dynamics
University of Michigan, Institute for Social Research
Presenters: Hiromi Ono and Jean Yeung, Institute for Social Research, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, MI 48106-1248; phone: (734) 936-0099 or (734) 963-5166 (messages); fax: (734) 647-4575; e-mail: psidhelp@isr.umich.edu; homepage: http://www.umich.edu/~psid/.

Now in its thirty-first year of data collection, the Panel Study of Income Dynamics (PSID) is a longitudinal survey of a representative sample of U.S. men, women, and children and the families in which they reside. Data on employment, income, wealth, health, housing and food expenditures, transfer income, and marital and fertility behavior have been collected annually since 1968. From 5,000 families in 1968, the study has grown to include over 7,000 families and more than 50,000 individuals.

The study has collected high quality intergenerational data on economic capacity, income, and the transmission of wealth, as well as information on such issues as the long-term effects of life events (early childbearing, divorce, illness) on workers and their families, the relationship of business cycles to economic well-being, and the interaction of labor mobility and geographic mobility. In recent years, the value of the PSID has been further extended through matching PSID respondents to Census geocodes, permitting the addition of valuable neighborhood characteristics to individual files. The coverage of the PSID was expanded in 1997 with the addition of an immigrant refresher sample and a child development supplement covering children from birth through age 12.

The Panel Study of Income Dynamics homepage is available to Internet browsers worldwide. The most recent versions of all PSID data and supplements can be downloaded from this site. Documentation, errata, and a newsletter are also available.

4. The Wisconsin Longitudinal Study
Center for Demography of Health and Aging, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Presenters: Robert M. Hauser and Taissa S. Hauser, Center for Demography of Health and Aging, University of Wisconsin-Madison, 1180 Observatory Drive, Madison, WI 53706; phone: (608) 262-2182; fax: (608) 262-8400; e-mail: wls@ssc.wisc.edu; homepage: http://dplb.dacc.wisc.edu/wls/wlsarch.htm/.

The Wisconsin Longitudinal Study (WLS) is a 43-year-old study of the social and economic life course among 10,000 men and women who graduated from Wisconsin high schools in 1957, and who have been followed up at ages 25, 36, and 53-54. Data from the original respondents or their parents from 1957 to 1975 cover social background, youthful and adult aspirations, schooling, military service, family formation, labor market experience, and social participation. The 1992-93 surveys cover occupational histories; income, assets, and economic transfers; social and economic characteristics of parents, siblings, and children; and mental and physical health and well-being. Parallel interviews have been carried out with siblings in 1977 and 1993-94. WLS data and documentation are available on the world wide web.

Keywords of relevance to WLS are: ability, aging, alcohol, aspirations, assets, careers, caregiving, children, cognition, college, depression, divorce, earnings, education, employment, family, fertility, gender, health, households, income, insurance, intelligence, labor force, life course, marriage, menopause, mental health, mid-life, mobility, morbidity, occupations, pensions, personality, physical health, psychological well-being, religion, retirement, siblings, social participation, voting, and wealth.

5. National Survey of Families and Households
University of Wisconsin, Department of Sociology

Presenter: Larry L. Bumpass, Department of Sociology, University of Wisconsin, 1180 Observatory Drive, Madison, Wisconsin 53706; phone: (608) 262-2182; fax: (608) 262-8400; e-mail: Bumpass@ssc.wisc.edu.

The first wave of the 1987-88 National Survey of Families and Households interviewed 13,007 respondents including an oversample of blacks, Puerto Ricans, Mexican Americans, single-parent families, families with stepchildren, cohabiting couples and recently married persons. Several portions of the main interview were self-administered to facilitate the collection of sensitive information and to ease the flow of the interview. In addition, a shorter self-administered questionnaire was given to the spouse or cohabiting partner of the primary respondent.

A considerable amount of life-history information was collected, including the respondent's family living arrangements in childhood, the experience of leaving the parental home, marital and cohabitation experience, as well as education, fertility, and employment histories. Substantive coverage has been kept broad to permit the holistic analysis of family experience from an array of theoretical perspectives.

Reinterviews were conducted in 1992-94 with the main respondents, with current and former spouses, and with a sample child and a sample parent. The sample child was in the parental household at T1. A third wave is scheduled for 2000 with telephone interviews with the parent-child dyads interviewed at T2, and with the remainder of the sample age 45 and over at the time of interview.

6. The National Longitudinal Study of Adolescent Health
North Carolina Population Center

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

Presenter: J. Richard Udry, The National Longitudinal Study of Adolescent Health, 123 West Franklin Street, Suite 400A, Chapel Hill, NC 27516-3997; phone: (919) 966-2829; fax: (919) 966-7019; e-mail: fflorey@unc.edu; homepage: http://www.cpc.unc.edu/addhealth/.

The National Longitudinal Study of Adolescent Health (Add Health) is a longitudinal study which provides data uniquely qualified to address the most important questions about adolescent health and health behaviors today. A national sample of 7th to 12th grade students completed 90,000 in-school questionnaires during the 1994-1995 school year. Twenty thousand students and a parent were interviewed in their homes during the summer of 1995 (Wave I); fourteen thousand of the adolescents were re-interviewed during the summer of 1996 (Wave II). Add Health provides a comprehensive view of adolescent health including: (1) physical, mental, and emotional health status, including self-reported and measured height and weight, injuries, physical disabilities, sleep disorders, self-esteem, suicide ideation; and (2) health behaviors, including eating disorders, substance use and abuse, weapon carrying and use, measures used to prevent HIV and other sexually transmitted infections, sexual behavior, contraceptive use, nutrition, exercise, and use of health services. The Add Health Study’s unique design provides an unprecedented view of how an adolescent’s health is shaped by characteristics of the world in which he or she lives. As well as the adolescent’s view of his or her world, independent measures of the adolescent’s social context are available, including family context, peer influence and school context.

In Wave III of the Survey (2000-01), all eligible respondents who participated in Wave I, now young adults aged 18-26, will be re-interviewed. A sample of 2,000 of their romantic/sex partners will also be interviewed. This unparalleled sample will allow researchers to study the effects of adolescent friendship networks and the characteristics of the communities and neighborhoods in which adolescents mature on young adult employment, education, and health outcomes. Data from Wave III will also make it possible to model the structure of social, sexual, and romantic networks of a representative sample of young adults, a critical first step in understanding of STI diffusion in America today.

7. Mexican Migration Project/Latin American Migration Project

University of Pennsylvania, Population Studies Center
Presenter: Mariano Sana, Population Studies Center, University of Pennsylvania, 3718 Locust Walk, Philadelphia, PA 19104-6298; phone: (215) 573-9388; fax: (215) 898-2124; e-mail: mexmig@pop.upenn.edu; homepage: http://www.pop.upenn.edu/mexmig/.

Founded in 1982, the Mexican Migration Project has annually administered ethnosurveys to randomly sampled households in various communities in Mexico since 1987. In 1998, its sister project, the Latin American Migration Project, was born with surveys in Puerto Rico. For both projects, each community yields approximately 200 surveyed households in the home country (fewer in some LAMP countries), as well as 10 to 20 households of community members living in the U.S. who are identified through snowball sampling. Responses are converted to electronic format and compiled to form five unique data sets. The PERS file contains general socioeconomic information for each household member (as well as those children of the head of household who no longer live at home), including basic measures of domestic and international migration. Next, MIG file contains detailed border-crossing characteristics, measures of migratory experience of family of origin, extended family and friends, and the social and economic characteristics of the last U.S. trip for each head of household. The HOUSE file contains measures of household composition and amenities, and details of household holdings: businesses, land, property, vehicles and livestock. Finally, the LIFE and SPOUSE files are labor histories for the head of household (LIFE) and his/her spouse (SPOUSE) in which each record represents a person-year detailing labor force participation, family/household formation, and cumulative U.S. experience.

In addition to the core database, supplemental data are gathered at aggregate levels and presented both cross-sectionally and longitudinally. At the community level, measures of infrastructure, social resources, public services, labor force participation, education, land use and (in the case of Mexico) ejido characteristics are compiled. Labor market-specific data corresponding to U.S. destinations include economic indicators, immigration measures and population counts. At the national level, Mexican border-patrol statistics, Mexico-U.S. finance and trade measures, and Mexican labor force indicators are provided. Currently, the MMP database contains 71 communities, while the LAMP database boasts five communities in Puerto Rico, two in Nicaragua, and six in the Dominican Republic. All data files, as well as qualitative materials (including oral histories of migrants and a retablo gallery) are accessible for download via the MMP website.

8. The Social Science Electronic Data Library and the Automated Dataset Development Software

Sociometrics Corporation

Presenters: Tamara J. Kuhn, Josefina J. Card, Shobana Raghupathy, Elizabeth A. McKean, and Ruben Ruiz, Sociometrics Corporation, The Social Science Electronic Data Library and Automated Dataset Development Software, 170 State Street, Suite 260, Los Altos, CA 94022; phone: (650) 949-3282 ext. 201; fax: (650) 949-3299; e-mail: tkuhn@socio.com; homepage: http://www.socio.com/

The Sociometrics Social Science Electronic Data Library (SSEDL) is a premium health and social science resource that consists of seven topically focused data archives. With over 300 data sets from 200 different studies comprising seven topically-focused collections, it is a unique source of high quality health and social science data and documentation for researchers, educators, students, and policy analysts. The Electronic Data Library was made available in 1999 on a set of CD-ROMs and includes an online membership with free access to datasets for downloading by members.

The Collections in SSEDL includes: AIDS/STD (11 Studies, 20 Data Sets, 14,400+ variables); Disability in the U.S. (16 Studies, 29 Data Sets, 15,800+ variables); American Family (14 Studies, 36 Data Sets, 20,000+ variables); Adolescent Pregnancy & Pregnancy Prevention (150 Studies, 234 Data Sets, 60,000+ Variables); Aging (3 Studies, 22 Data Sets, 19,400+ variables); Maternal Drug Abuse (7 Studies, 13 Data Sets, 5,000+ variables); and Contextual Data Archive (13 geographic levels from several sources, 20,000+ variables).

Sociometrics' Automated Dataset Development Software (ADDS) is an integrated software program that, when completed, will develop and document social science research studies. The program will perform the following functions: 1) Instrument generation—generate a fully formatted research instrument in print, ASCII, and other machine-readable formats. 2) Codebook generation—generate the data set documentation in a printed codebook (also in ASCII and other formats), flow chart (skip map), and data file map. 3) Data entry—provide for data entry from completed questionnaires, with simultaneous error checking. 4) Program file generation—produce a raw data file in ASCII format, and build the program statement files needed to transform the raw data file into SPSS and/or SAS system files. The software will automate tasks best done by computer, improve instrumentation and documentation by providing a complete, high-quality structure and format, and reduce the post-data-collection effort of documenting a public-use data set. In addition, we are also building an item bank of high quality, commonly used questions, scales, and interviewing tools. This bank will be accessible within the program to permit users to select questions to develop their own research instruments. The item bank will be filled with several thousand questionnaire items drawn from the leading studies in family research.

9. Behavioral and Social Research Program
National Institute on Aging, National Institutes of Health
Presenter: Kristen N. Robinson, Behavioral and Social Research Program, National Institute on Aging, National Institutes of Health, Gateway Building, Suite 533, 7201 Wisconsin Avenue, MSC 9205, Bethesda, MD 20892-9205; phone: (301) 458-4460; fax: (301) 458-4037; e-mail: kgr4@cdc.gov; homepage: http://www.nih.gov/nia/research/extramural/behavior/.
The Behavioral and Social Research Program of the National Institute on Aging supports basic social and behavioral research and research training on the aging process and the place of older people in society. This poster session will display information on NIA-funded data resources.

10. National Archive of Criminal Justice Data
National Institute of Justice Data Resources Program
Presenter: Janet Stametel, National Archive of Criminal Justice Data, Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, MI 48106; phone: (800) 999-0960; fax: (734) 998-9889; e-mail: nacjd@icpsr.umich.edu; homepage: http://www.icpsr.umich.edu/NACJD/.
Staff from the National Archive of Criminal Justice Data (NACJD) will exhibit the resources available through the Data Resources Program of the National Institute of Justice (NIJ). The program was established to ensure the preservation and dissemination of research and evaluation data collected through NIJ-funded research. Data sets are made available to others in order to support new research to replicate original findings or test hypotheses. All NACJD data collections are freely available to the public through the internet. Staff will demonstrate how to search for and download data files and supporting documentation and will provide information about data and training opportunities available through the Data Resources Program. The National Archive of Criminal Justice Data is a part of the Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR) at the University of Michigan.

11. Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research and National Archive of Computerized Data on Aging
Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research
Presenter: James W. McNally, Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research, P.O. Box 1248, Ann Arbor, MI 48106-1248; phone: (734) 998-9865; fax: (734) 998-9889; e-mail: jmclnally@umich.edu; homepage: http://www.icpsr.umich.edu/.
Established in 1962, the Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR) is a membership-based organization providing access to the world’s largest archive of computer-based research and instructional data for the social sciences. ICPSR further serves social scientists around the world by offering training facilities in basic and advanced techniques of qualitative social analysis and other resources that facilitate secondary analysis. ICPSR provides facilities and services for an international community of scholars that no one college or university could offer independently.

12. Murray Research Center
Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study
Presenter: Annemette Sorensen, Murray Research Center, Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study, Harvard University, 10 Garden Street, Cambridge, MA 02138; phone: (617) 495-8140; fax: (617) 495-3993; e-mail: sorensen@radcliffe.edu; homepage: http://www.radcliffe.edu/murray/.

The Henry A. Murray Research Center is a multi-disciplinary research center focusing on the study of lives over time. It is a national repository for social and behavioral science data on human development and social change. The primary criteria for evaluating data sets for inclusion in the archive are the usefulness of the data for secondary analysis, replication or longitudinal follow-up. Issues of confidentiality and access are addressed for each data set as the study is acquired and processed.

The data archive is unique in that it includes not only computer-accessible quantitative data, but also qualitative materials such as case histories, open-ended interviews, responses to projective tests, and video taped and audio taped data. The center is also unique in allowing new researchers to contact the subjects of existing data sets to obtain follow-up data.

The resources of the Murray Center are available to researchers at all levels and from all disciplines and schools, free of charge. The Guide to the Data Resources provides an overview of the Murray Center's data holdings. The Guide is available online at: http://www.radcliffe.edu/murray. Hard copies of the Guide are also available.
13. Division of Science Resources Studies
National Science Foundation

Presenter: Kelly H. Kang, National Science Foundation, Division of Science Resources Studies, 4201 Wilson Boulevard, Suite 950, Arlington, VA 22230; phone: (703) 292-7796; fax: (703) 292-9091; e-mail: kkang@nsf.gov; homepage: http://www.nsf.gov/sbe/srs/stats.htm

The mission of the National Science Foundation’s Division of Science Resources Studies (SRS) is to produce and disseminate data and analyses related to science, engineering, and technology. SRS focuses on the amounts of human and funding resources in the Nation’s science, engineering, and technology enterprise, how persons are educated, their place in the workforce, and the R&D activities. To do this, SRS collects information from 14 surveys of the U.S. enterprise and obtains comparable international data. SRS also analyzes these data in order to help policy-makers, administrators, and others understand the implications of the data and their application to current issues.

At the present time, SRS maintains data on a wide range of science and engineering (S&E) issues and promotes use of databases by researchers to examine topical issues. Examples of topics reflected in the SRS sponsored work are S&E education at all levels with details on gender, race, field, institutional type, financial support (including education history); S&E personnel and career paths for both researchers and academics, citizenship, disability status, employment status, field of study, job assignment and salaries (especially for doctorates); S&E research infrastructure at universities and colleges, funding and expenditures for S&E research by colleges and universities; data on industrial research and development; and public attitudes about science and engineering issues.

The exhibit highlights the availability of SRS data files that are of particular interest to sociologists. Information is collected on all fields of science, including the social sciences, and for many surveys, in a detailed field specialty. Micro-data are available to researchers through licensing agreements.

14. National Center for Education Statistics
U.S. Department of Education

The National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) disseminates large national data sets on CD-ROM with electronic codebooks and via the Internet at its world wide web page listed above. Current data releases include school and institutional censuses for basic data on enrollments and finances at the elementary, secondary, and post secondary levels of public and private education. More detailed data are available through repeated cross-sectional surveys of teachers and faculty. A Random Digit Dialing (RDD) household survey is used to collect population based education data on topics such as early childhood education, school safety, and adult education. In addition, the NCES collection of longitudinal data on elementary, secondary, and postsecondary cohorts continues. Longitudinal data are available from seniors in 1972, 1982, and 1992 as well as for students who have just started their postsecondary education and students who just completed their baccalaureate. This exhibit will demonstrate the NCES web site and data resources available on-line.

15. NCES 1999-2000 Schools and Staffing Survey: An Overview
Education Statistics Services Institute, American Institutes for Research

Presenters: Michael T. Luekens and Gregory A. Strizek, Education Statistics Services Institute, American Institutes for Research, 1990 K Street, NW, Suite 500, Washington, DC 20006; phone: (202) 654-6527; fax: (202) 737-4918; e-mail: mluekens@air.org or gstrizek@air.org; homepage: http://www.nces.ed.gov/surveys/SASS.

The National Center for Education Statistics’ (NCES) Schools and Staffing Survey (SASS) is the nation’s largest sample survey of the characteristics and conditions of America’s elementary and secondary schools, principals, teachers and library media centers. The 1999-2000 SASS, with data from over 120,000 respondents, provides national and state-representative estimates for public schools and affiliation-reliable estimates for private schools. The latest administration of the Survey also includes data from all public charter schools in operation during the 1998-1999 school year.

16. Center for Electronic Records
National Archives and Records Administration

Presenter: William P. Fischer, Center for Electronic Records, National Archives and Records Administration, 8601 Adelphi Road, College Park, MD 20740-6001; phone: (301) 713-6645; fax: (301) 713-6911; e-mail: william.fischer@nara.gov or cer@nara.gov; homepage: http://www.nara.gov.

The National Archives is the federal agency responsible for preservation of and access to the permanently valuable electronic records of the federal government. The Center for Electronic Records has custody of the permanently valuable computerized records of federal agencies transferred to the National Archives for long-term preservation. The Center has approximately 100,000 computerized data files from over 100 federal agencies in all three branches of the government. Topics reflected in the Center’s holdings include agricultural data, attitudinal data, demographic data, environmental data, health and social services data, international data, military data, and scientific and technological data. The exhibit will highlight the availability of data files in the Center’s custody of particular interest to sociologists.
17. National Medical Expenditure Panel Survey
Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality
Presenters: Gregg Taliabona and James B. Kirby, Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality, CCFS, Suite 500, 2101 E. Jefferson Street, Rockville, MD 20852; phone: (301) 594-7077; fax: (301) 594-2166; e-mail: gtailef@ahrq.gov or jkirby@ahrq.gov; homepage: http://www.meps.ahrq.gov/.

Sponsored by the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (AHRQ), in conjunction with the National Center for Health Statistics (NCHS), the Medical Expenditure Panel Survey (MEPS) is a vital resource designed to continually provide policymakers, researchers, health care professionals, businesses and others with timely, comprehensive information about the United States population’s health, health care utilization, and costs. Through the integration of four components, MEPS collects data on the specific health care services that Americans use, how frequently they use them, the cost of those services and how they are paid, as well as data on the cost, scope, and breadth of private health insurance held by and available to the U. S. population. MEPS is unparalleled for the degree of detail in its data, as well as its ability to link health status and health care to the demographic, employment, economic, family and other characteristics of survey respondents. In addition, MEPS is the only national survey that provides a foundation for estimating the impact of changes in sources of payment, insurance coverage, family status on different economic groups or special populations such as the poor, elderly, veterans, the uninsured, and racial and ethnic minorities. The 1996 and 1997 full year data, as well as point in time population characteristics for 1996–2000 are available on the Internet and on CD-ROM. The 1998 full year data will be available early in 2002.

18. Data Dissemination Branch
National Center for Health Statistics, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention
Presenters: Linda R. Washington and Tammy Stewart-Prather, Data Dissemination Branch, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, National Center for Health Statistics, 6525 Belcrest Road, Room 1064, Hyattsville, MD 20782; phone: (301) 458-4526 (Prather), (301) 458-4558 (Washington); fax: (301) 458-4027; e-mail: lrwi@cdc.gov and TMS2@cdc.gov; homepage: http://www.cdc.gov/nchs/.

This poster session will feature the latest health data available from the National Center for Health Statistics (NCHS). Data are available from NCHS in published form and electronically, including public-use data files, CD-ROMs, diskettes, and through the Internet. Handouts of various products will be made available during the session.

19. The National Health Interview Survey
Division of Health Interview Statistics
National Center for Health Statistics, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention
Presenter: Diane S. Shinberg, Division of Health Interview Statistics, National Center for Health Statistics, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 6525 Belcrest Road, Room 850 Hyattsville, MD 20782; phone: (301) 458-4699; fax: (301) 458-4035; e-mail: dshinberg@cdc.gov; homepage: http://www.cdc.gov/nchs/nhis.htm/.

The National Health Interview Survey (NHIS) is a multipurpose health survey conducted by the National Center for Health Statistics (NCHS), Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The NHIS is the principal source of information on the health of the civilian, non-institutionalized household population of the United States. The NHIS has been conducted continuously since 1957. The data are used to monitor major health trends and to evaluate federal health policies. In 1997, the NHIS underwent a major questionnaire revision to improve the relevance of the data; the survey now includes annual data on expanded socio-demographics, family relationships, income resources, health insurance, and health care access. Public use data from the NHIS are released annually via CD-ROM and the Internet.

20. National Survey of Family Growth
Reproductive Statistics Branch
National Center for Health Statistics, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention
Presenter: Joyce Abma, Reproductive Statistics Branch, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, National Center for Health Statistics, 6525 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, MD 20782-2003; phone: (301) 458-4222; fax: (301) 458-4033; e-mail: jza2@cdc.gov; homepage: http://www.cdc.gov/nchs/nsfg.

The 1995 The National Survey of Family Growth (NSFG) is a comprehensive data set of women's fertility in the United States. The NSFG has been conducted 5 times since 1973, resulting in a cross-sectional time-series for 1973, 1976, 1982, 1988, and 1995. The NSFG has always included complete birth and pregnancy histories, and detailed information on contraceptive method use. The 1995 cycle expanded its event-history coverage into domains of work, education, cohabitation, and sexual partners. Computer-assisted personal interviews of 10,847 women ages 15-44 are supplemented with information collected using Audio Computer Assisted Self Interview (ACASI) technology. The 1995 NSFG includes a rich contextual data file and other supplementary files. The next NSFG, to be conducted in 2002, will include interviews with 7,200 males and 11,800 females.
21. Reproductive Statistics Branch: Natality Data
National Center for Health Statistics, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention
Presenter: Stephanie J. Ventura, Reproductive Statistics Branch, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, National Center for Health Statistics, 6525 Belcrest Road, Room 820, Hyattsville, MD 20782-2003; phone: (301) 458-4547; fax: (301) 458-4033; e-mail: SVentura@cdc.gov; homepage: http://www.cdc.gov/nchs/births.htm

The National Center for Health Statistics (NCHS) collects and publishes information on a wide variety of demographic and health characteristics reported on the birth certificate for all births occurring in the United States. Information from birth certificates registered in the health departments of all states, New York City, the District of Columbia, and the territories, is provided to NCHS through the Vital Statistics Cooperative Program. Data are collected continuously. NCHS publishes preliminary and final data reports annually. Public-use data files are available beginning with the 1968 data year; a compressed data file is available on CD-ROMs for data years 1990-98. A variety of special reports is available on specific topics, including most recently, teenage birth patterns, pregnancy rates, attendant at birth, method of delivery, obstetric interventions, twin and triplet births, smoking during pregnancy, and Hispanic-origin births. Demographic characteristics available in the natality file include age, race, Hispanic origin, education, birthplace, marital status, residence, live-birth order, sex, and month and day of birth. Health information includes month prenatal care began, number of prenatal visits, medical risk factors, tobacco use, alcohol use, obstetric procedures, attendant at birth, place of delivery, method of delivery, complications of labor and/or delivery, period of gestation, birthweight, Apgar score, abnormal conditions of the newborn, congenital anomalies, and plurality.

22. Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System
Division of Adult and Community Health
Centers for Disease Control and Prevention
Presenter: Deborah Holtzman, Division of Adult and Community Health, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 4770 Buford Highway, NE K-47, Atlanta, GA 30341; phone: (770) 488-2455; fax: (770) 488-8150; e-mail: dhx4@cdc.gov; homepage: http://www.cdc.gov/nccdphp.bfrss/

This exhibit features the Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System (BRFSS), a unique, state-based surveillance system, currently active in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and three U.S. territories. For almost two decades, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) in collaboration with state health departments has conducted telephone surveys of U.S. adults to estimate the prevalence of behaviors linked to specific health problems. The BRFSS was designed to gather information on behaviors, practices, and attitudes related to issues such as, health status and access to care, tobacco and alcohol use, dietary patterns, physical activity, injury control, women's health, use of clinical preventive services, and HIV. Every month, a representative sample of persons 18 years and older is selected for interview in each participating state and territory. The BRFSS provides data for many purposes including assessing risks for chronic diseases, identifying sociodemographic patterns and trends in health-related behaviors, designing and monitoring health interventions and services, addressing emerging health issues, and measuring progress toward achieving state and national health objectives.

23. Census Data in the Classroom: The Social Science Data Analysis Network
Presenter: Albert F. Anderson, Public Data Queries, Inc., for William H. Frey, Population Studies Center, University of Michigan, 426 Thompson Street, Ann Arbor, MI 48106-1248; phone or fax: (888) 257-7244; e-mail: biiff@umich.edu; homepage: www.ssdan.net/.

This exhibit provides an overview of workbooks, computer diskettes, Internet, and on-line access to undergraduate teaching materials available through the Social Science Data Analysis Network (SSDAN). Funded by the National Science Foundation (NSF), the Network enables college teachers to introduce "user-friendly" analysis of census data in their classes. Tailor-made data sets, from the 1950 through 1990 U.S. Censuses, and the 1999 Current Population Survey, can be used in a variety of social science classes dealing with topics such as: race/ethnicity, immigration, gender studies, marriage, households and poverty, income inequality, children, the elderly and others. SSDAN staff will help instructors tailor exercises for classes.

Presenter: Albert F. Anderson, Public Data Queries, Inc., 310 Depot Street, Suite C, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48104; phone: (734) 213-4964 x309; fax: (734) 475-8160; e-mail: afa@pdq.com; homepage: http://www.pdq.com/.

Public Data Queries, Inc., formed in 1993 and funded in part by small business grants from the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development (NICHD) and the National Institute on Aging (NIA), will demonstrate PDQ-Explore, a data information system that provides interactive access to very large microdata files such as the Public Use Microdata Samples (PUMS) and Current Population Surveys (CPS) from the U.S. Census Bureau. Tabulations, summary statistics, correlations, and extracts can be generated in seconds from data sets with record counts ranging to tens of millions.

25-26. Population Division Surveys
U.S. Census Bureau
Presenters: Barbara A. Downs, Jane Lawler Dye, Rose M. Kreider, Jeff Kuenzi, Kristen Smith, and Amy Symens-Smith, U.S. Census Bureau, Population Division, 4600 Silver Hill
Road, Suitland, Maryland 20746; phone: (301) 457-2465; e-mail: pop@census.gov; homepage: http://www.census.gov/.

Representatives from the Population Division of the U.S. Census Bureau will present information about six of its major demographic data resources: The Current Population Survey; the Survey of Income and Program Participation; the Survey of Program Dynamics; the American Community Survey; the 2000 Decennial Census; and the Population Estimates and Projections Program. We provide specific information about each data source, including: survey design, advantages of each data source, types of data files available, reports written from each source, and relevant Census Bureau website locations of additional information.

27. Integrated Public Use Microdata Series and National Historical Geographic Information System

University of Minnesota, Minnesota Population Center

Presenters: Patricia Kelly Hall and Catherine Fitch, University of Minnesota, Minnesota Population Center, 537 Heller Hall, 271 10th Avenue South, Minneapolis, MN 55455; phone: (612) 624-5818; fax: (612) 626-8375; e-mail: fitch@pop.umn.edu, kelly@pop.umn.edu; homepage: http://www.ipums.org/.

The Minnesota Population Center has undertaken several projects to create and disseminate harmonized census data for research and classroom use. These include the Integrated Public Use Microdata Series (IPUMS) and the National Historical Geographic Information System (NHGIS). The IPUMS consists of 25 high-precision samples of the United States population drawn from thirteen federal censuses, spanning 1850 to 1990. The IPUMS assigns uniform codes across all the samples and brings relevant documentation into a coherent form to facilitate analysis of social and economic change. All data and documentation are available free at http://ipums.org/. NHGIS, a new project, will incorporate all available aggregate census information for the United States between 1790 and 2000. The project entails three complementary tasks: 1) collect and enrich historical and contemporary U.S. Census summary data, 2) incorporate these data into a Geographic Information Systems framework, and 3) create a web-based system for access to both census data and the metadata.

28. American Religion Data Archive

The Pennsylvania State University, Department of Sociology

Presenters: Roger Finke, Pamela M. Klein and Phil Schwadel, American Religion Data Archive, Department of Sociology, The Pennsylvania State University, 211 Oswald Tower, University Park, PA 16802-6207; phone: (814) 865-6258; fax: (814) 863-7216; e-mail: arda@pop.psu.edu; homepage: http://www. TheARDA.com/.

The American Religion Data Archive (ARDA) is an Internet-based data archive that stores and distributes quantitative data sets from the leading studies on American religion. Supported by the Lilly Endowment and housed at Penn State's Population Research Institute, the ARDA holds nearly 200 data files on American religion. The abundance of useful online features allows users to conduct basic data analysis, review codebooks, construct a survey instrument, download data and software, and search for variables, principal investigators or topics of interest. These features allow the ARDA to be used for research, teaching, and general perusal.

29. Indicators of Social Justice

American Social Indicators

Presenter: Emanuel Smilkin, American Social Indicators, 196-20 67th Avenue, Fresh Meadows, New York 11365; phone: (718) 454-0428; fax: (718) 454-0428; e-mail: esnik@socialindicators.org; homepage: http://www.socialindicators.org/.

Social indicators can be effective tools in the analysis of everyday social problems and in evaluating all forms of social intervention. By locating affected groups in elements of relatively dysfunctional social structures represented by these indicators, one can diagnose social problems in objective terms and propose viable solutions. Our indicators of social justice reduce the variety and diversity of social behavior to manageable proportions while retaining comprehensive coverage. Taken together, these indicators give a faithful picture of our social structure and provide an unbiased foundation for informed action. They show levels of American social justice and injustice of several varieties: distributive justice, fair exchange, unequal opportunity, unfair advantage, and unfair disadvantage. These primary indicators of social justice cover salient aspects of social status. They are also summarized as annual social change and in several segments of stratified family, cultural, economic, and political behavior. Graphic charts of exemplary indicators are available online where they are segmented by regions, by generations, by social ecology, and by occupations. Based on General Social Survey data, primary social indicators specify relative structural positions of numerous social strata. With the help of these finely differentiated social indicators, one can evaluate quantitatively unfair advantages or disadvantages that a social group may have compared to other groups of the same kind and segmentation. One can also see whether such advantages or disadvantages are stochastic and tolerable or excessive and systemic.

ASA Minority Fellowship Program Fellows

The following MFP Fellows are participating in this year's Annual Meeting Program. ASA and the 2001 Program Committee are pleased to highlight professional activities of current and former fellows. The ASA Minority Fellowship Program (MFP), in operation since 1974, has been a significant factor in recruiting minorities into Sociology. Fellows continue to make important contributions to the growth of the discipline. The Association takes great satisfaction in acknowledging this form of professional activity.

ASA Honors Program Students

The following undergraduate sociology students were accepted into the ASA Honors Program as of July 19, 2001. The program requires nearly a week of participation in professional events held concurrently with the Annual Meetings of the ASA. The students will receive full credit for participation only after completion of the program on August 21.

ASA and the 2001 Program Committee are pleased to highlight these students’ introduction to the profession of sociology. The Honors Program has a 27-year history of involving sociology students in the ASA Annual Meeting. This year’s students are wearing gold ribbons showing their Honors Program affiliation. Please welcome them to their national meeting!

JOURNALS

Social Science Research
A Quarterly Journal of Social Science Methodology & Quantitative Research
Editor: James D. Wright
SSR publishes papers devoted to quantitative social science research and methodology. The journal features articles that illustrate the use of quantitative methods in the empirical solution of substantive problems, and emphasizes those concerned with issues or methods that cut across traditional disciplinary lines.
For subscription and submission information, please visit: www.academicpress.com/ssr

International Journal of the Sociology of Law
Editors: John Carrier & Stephen Savage
IJSL is an interdisciplinary forum for high quality research and debate on social context and social implications of law, law-enforcement, and legal process. It welcomes contributions from all areas of socio-legal study, and particularly those which address comparative issues and questions of development, change, and reform in socio-legal processes.
For subscription and submission information, please visit: www.academicpress.com/ijsl

Religion
Editors: Robert Segal & Ivan Strenske
Religion provides a regular survey of current work in major and specific areas of enquiry. Its swift reviewing and crossing of traditional frontiers to encompass such related studies as psychology and archaeology combine to make it a valued point of reference for a growing readership.

No other bibliographic tools stack up in flexibility, simplicity and power.

Choose the survival tool you’ve been searching for.

What’s in your bibliographic toolbox? When you’re ready to roll up your sleeves and get to work, we have three distinctly different, professional-grade software tools designed to power through jobs of any size. These tools simply can’t be beat when it comes to time-saving power, unlimited versatility and operating simplicity.

PubMed and hundreds of Internet libraries are at your fingertips whenever you need to locate references for publishing your research. Building your database has never been simpler, with references instantly appearing—and ready to cite!

Forget typing bibliographies and citations. Our powerful bibliographic tools deliver quick results when selecting citations. Your document is instantly transformed when you choose a journal style. Drawing on the power of over 500 styles, re-typing and re-formatting references are now history.

Maintaining your references has never been easier. Add your own notes and keywords, or even build links between a reference and an electronic reprint (usually stored as a pdf file). You’ll wish you’d found our high-efficiency tools a lot sooner.

Only one company has the full toolbox to cut even the most complex jobs down to size. ISI ResearchSoft. Nothing else stacks up to ProCite’s flexibility, EndNote’s simplicity and Reference Manager’s power. The choice is yours.

KOREAN AMERICANS AND THEIR RELIGIONS
PILGRIMS AND MISSIONARIES FROM A DIFFERENT SHORE
Edited by Ho-Youn Kwon, Kwang Chung Kim, and R. Stephen Warner

"This is one of the most significant books to examine the role of religious congregations in the lives of post-1965 immigrants in American society. To my knowledge, no book has provided such a comprehensive treatment of the religious experiences of one immigrant/ethnic group."
—Pyong Gap Min, Queens College, CUNY

CHINESE CHRISTIANS IN AMERICA
CONVERSION, ASSIMILATION, AND ADHESIVE IDENTITIES
Fenggang Yang

"Overall, Yang's book is a welcome addition to the literature on contemporary immigration and the sociology of religion. Those interested in how religion affects immigrant adaptation and identity construction in postmodern society should read Chinese Christians in America."
—Rebecca Kim and Min Zhou, UCLA in American Journal of Sociology

NEW IN PAPERBACK
NOTES OF A WHITE BLACK WOMAN
RACE, CULTURE, COMMUNITY
Judy Scales-Trent

"Judy Scales-Trent, fair-skinned and determinedly black, lives her life in the 'no-mans'-land of America's continuing racial conflict. Through her candidly conveyed communiqués, we learn of the challenges that could have brought her down but instead had given her an insight and strength that she dispenses to her readers with the easy grace of a seasoned veteran."
—Derrick Bell, NYU Law School

NAMASTÉ AMERICA
INDIAN IMMIGRANTS IN AN AMERICAN METROPOLIS
Padma Rangaswamy

"Namasté America is a fundamental work on Asian immigration to the U.S. and an important source of information on American-Indian interaction. Fresh and insightful."
—N. Gerald Barrier, University of Missouri-Columbia

Servants of Globalization
Women, Migration, and Domestic Work
RHACEL SALAZAR PARREÑAS
This is a poignant and often troubling study of migrant Filipino domestic workers who leave their own families behind to do the mothering and caretaking work of the global economy in countries throughout the world. It specifically focuses on the emergence of parallel lives among such workers in Rome and Los Angeles, two main destinations for Filipino migration.

Reconfigurations of Class and Gender
Civil Society and Civic Movements in Eastern Europe
JOHN K. GLENN, III
"Deftly and reflectively, John Glenn shows us how the dismantling of state socialism followed contrasting paths in Poland, Slovakia, and the Czech Republic, with fateful consequences for later attempts to install democratic institutions. He also provides an admirable model for the combination of deep local knowledge with systematic comparison. BravO!'—Charles Tilly, Columbia University

The New Institutionalism in Sociology
Edited by MARY C. BRINTON AND VICTOR NEE
Foreword by ROBERT K. MERTON
Winner of the 2000 Coleman Award of the American Sociological Association
“This admirable book makes a strong contribution to institutional theory... and is a model for interdisciplinary exchange and cross-fertilization.”—Sociological Research Online
“Besides sociologists, we are afforded the pleasure of contributions from anthropologists, economists, historians, political scientists, and scholars of law and education.”—Contemporary Society
$19.95 paper

Reconfigurations of Class and Gender
Edited by JANEEN BAXTER AND MARK WESTERN
At a time when social commentators are increasingly likely to assert the "death of class" as a source of social inequality and conflict, this far-reaching volume reasserts the significance of class and gender for understanding socioeconomic conditions. The contributors urge a nuanced approach that focuses on the specific institutional contexts of class-gender relations in various advanced industrial nations.

WORTH SOCIOLOGY

NEW TITLES

WHITE PRIVILEGE
Paula S. Rothenberg
William Patterson College of New Jersey
0-7167-5295-6
This new anthology brings together a series of commonsense, non-rhetorical readings that analyze the nature of white privilege, and offer suggestions for using that privilege to combat racism.

THE WILDERING OF AMERICA
Second Edition
Charles Derber
Boston College
0-7167-5321-9
Part of Worth's Contemporary Social Issues Series, The Wilding of America, 2/e, takes an in-depth look at reality television, school shootings, and other recent violent and individualistic trends that seem to be eroding the moral landscape of American society.

CRIMINAL ELITE
Fifth Edition
James William Coleman
California Polytechnic State University
0-7167-5271-9
In this latest edition, James William Coleman re-examines white collar crime and brings to the surface its most common forms, causes, and the specific damage it inflicts on society.

Discover a new book by Zora Neale Hurston

Every Tongue Got to Confess • Zora Neale Hurston

Every Tongue Got to Confess: Negro Folktales from the Gulf States is the first new book by Zora Neale Hurston to be published in over 50 years. This collection of nearly 500 folktales gathered in the late 1920s represents a major part of Hurston’s legacy and offers a rich slice of African American life in the rural South. With an introduction by John Edgar Wideman.

Rethink the way you teach labor and class history

Packinghouse Daughter • Cheri Register

Cheri Register often tells people her University of Chicago Ph.D. really stands for Packinghouse Daughter. The daughter of a Wilson & Co. worker, Register vividly recalls the 1959 meatpacker’s strike that devastated her home town. Her story portrays the inner conflict felt by a generation of blue-collar children propelled into the middle class by post-World War II prosperity. “This is must reading, especially for the young who have so long been short-changed in the knowledge of labor history.”—Studs Terkel

September 2001: 0-06-093684-3; paperback, $13.00

2001 Index of Session Participants

Numbers refer to Session numbers in the Program Schedule.
