Rethinking Social Movements:
Can Changing the Conversation Change the World?

The harsh social, economic and political realities of the 21st century make efforts to link sociology to a social change agenda ever more compelling. Growing economic precarity, declining welfare provision, deunionization and deregulation, soaring inequality in income and wealth, ongoing environmental destruction, and the steady erosion of democratic institutions in many countries, have generated a variety of social movement responses in recent years. These span the political spectrum, ranging from the Occupy Wall Street uprisings to the Tea Party in the U.S., with parallel developments around the globe. Among the many progressive examples in the U.S. are low-wage worker organizing, protests against police brutality and voter suppression, campaigns for racial justice and immigrant rights, the environmental justice movement, new waves of feminism and campaigns for LGBTQ rights. Taken together, such stirrings of popular discontent suggest the potential for a broader challenge to market fundamentalism, like the counter-movements Karl Polanyi wrote about decades ago. But all too often these efforts have been exercises in the politics of possibility: they have been more successful on the discursive level — changing the conversation — than in winning structural transformation. Occupy Wall Street, for example, galvanized public concern about growing inequality but failed to reverse its momentum. Can such movements muster the power to achieve lasting social change?

Annual Meeting Schedule

The official days of the 2016 ASA Annual Meeting are Saturday to Tuesday, August 20-23, 2016. Program sessions are scheduled on all four days of the meeting at the Washington State Convention Center and the Sheraton Seattle Hotel. There are also pre-meeting activities scheduled on Friday, August 19, and the meeting will officially begin with the Opening Plenary Session and Welcoming Reception that evening.

Most daytime program sessions are 1 hour and 40 minutes in length, followed by a 20-minute break. Exceptions are clearly noted in the detailed program schedule. The session turnover schedule is as follows:

- 8:30 am-10:10 am
- 10:30 am-12:10 pm
- 12:30 pm-2:10 pm
- 2:30 pm-4:10 pm
- 4:30 pm-6:10 pm

The 6:30 pm evening time slot is normally allocated for Section receptions, member-sponsored activities, and meetings of other groups. All sessions end by 4:10 pm on the fourth day.

Please refer to the Program Schedule beginning on page 41 for a daily listing of all sessions, meetings, and social events. The session groupings by day are:

- Friday, August 19: Sessions 1-8
- Saturday, August 20: Sessions 9-163
- Sunday, August 21: Sessions 164-309
- Monday, August 22: Sessions 310-457
- Tuesday, August 23: Sessions 458-585

Session presiders and committee chairs are requested to see that sessions and meetings end on time to avoid conflicts with subsequent activities scheduled into the same room and to allow participants time to transit between facilities.

Ethical Conduct during the Annual Meeting:

It is unethical in any professional setting, including the Annual Meeting of the American Sociological Association, for sociologists to use the inequalities of power which characterize many professional relationships to obtain personal, sexual, economic or professional advantages.

Sexual, sexual identity or racial/ethnic harassment is also unethical behavior under the American Sociological Association Code of Ethics.

Attendees are encouraged to immediately report instances of harassment during the Annual Meeting to the ASA Executive Officer at Hillisman@asanet.org or through the ASA Annual Meeting Office.

To read the American Sociological Association Code of Ethics in its entirety, visit www.ASAnet.org and follow the link to “Ethics.”

Greetings from the ASA President

Dear Colleagues:

Seattle is a fitting setting for this year’s program, “Rethinking Social Movements: Can Changing the Conversation Change the World?” Many of you will remember the massive street protests at the World Trade Organization meeting that took place here in 1999, known at the time as the “Battle of Seattle.” More recently, Seattle was the site of one of the first campaigns for a $15 per hour minimum wage, an effort that has since spread across the country. And the city has a legendary labor history as well.

Here are a few highlights of the program:

• The opening plenary on Friday, August 19 at 7 pm is entitled “Beyond the Battle of Seattle” and features three engaging speakers. The renowned sociologist and political activist Walden Bello, will be jointing us from his home in the Philippines to share his insights on the 1999 events in Seattle. This plenary also features Amy Goodman of Democracy Now and Seattle City Council member Kshama Sawant, a socialist who has been deeply involved in the Fight for $15.

• A presidential panel on “Climate Change and Social Movements,” on Saturday August 10 at 10:30 am features leading sociologists who write on this topic: Robert D. Bullard of Texas Southern University; Beth Schaefer Caniglia of Oklahoma State University; and Andrew Szasz of UC-Santa Cruz. Kenneth Gould of Brooklyn College-CUNY will chair this session.

• A plenary session entitled “Protesting Racism,” scheduled for Saturday August 20 at 12:30 pm, focuses on the Black Lives Matter movement. It features feminist legal scholar Kimberlé Crenshaw as well as two leaders of BLM. Charlene A. Carruthers, a Black, queer feminist community organizer and writer who also is the National Director of BYP 100 (Black Youth Project 100) will speak in this session, along with Mariame Kaba, co-founder of We Charge Genocide, an inter-generational effort which documented police brutality and violence in Chicago, and now serves as the director of Project NIA, a grassroots organization with a vision to end youth incarceration based in New York.

• A plenary session entitled, “A New Cycle of Protest: Occupy Wall Street and Beyond,” takes place on Saturday evening, August 20 at 8:00 pm. Former ASA President Frances Fox Piven is one of the featured speakers, joined by two exceptional journalists, Sarah Jaffe of the Nation, author of the book Necessary Trouble: America’s New Radicals, and the BBC’s Paul Mason, who has also authored several books, including Why It’s Still Kicking Off Everywhere (2013).

• A special ASA Town Hall Meeting (and a Presidential Panel) on Monday Aug. 22 at 10:30 am will focus on the ways in which inequalities of race, gender, class and sexuality are reflected and reproduced within our profession. Five prominent sociologists will make brief opening statements to frame the discussion: President-Elect Eduardo Bonilla Silva, Mignon R. Moore, David G. Embrick, Julian Go, and Aldon D. Morris, who will also serve as presider of this session.

• A plenary session on “The 21st Century U.S. Labor Movement,” on Monday August 22 at 12:30 pm, which features four dynamic speakers: Stephen Lerner, architect of the legendary Justice for Janitors campaign; Ai-Jen Poo, who heads the National Domestic Workers’ Alliance, David Rolf of the Service Employees International Union, and author of the new book The Fight for $15; and Erica Smiley, Organizing Director of Jobs with Justice.

As you can see in the pages that follow, there’s much more in the program related to the meeting theme, as well as many other sessions on a rich variety of other topics. I hope you’ll find time to participate not only in scholarly sessions but also in the many workshops, course, section activities, receptions, committee meetings, and social events featured in this year’s program. And be sure to save some time for seeing the vibrant city of Seattle. Several exciting tours are on offer, organized for you by the Local Arrangements Committee, which was chaired by Jerald Herting of the University of Washington.

Welcome!

NAVIGATING THE ANNUAL MEETING

This listing provides information about many of the services and activities available to you during the Annual Meeting. The 111th ASA Annual Meeting is being held at the Washington State Convention Center and the Sheraton Seattle Hotel.

Access for All: Accessibility Resources and Services

The ASA offers several services and oversight arrangements to facilitate attendance at the Annual Meeting. ASA staff at the Meeting Information & Housing Desk will coordinate resources during the meeting week for registrants with physical disabilities who are attending the Annual Meeting. Special services, which were arranged in advance, may be verified with ASA staff to ensure that you receive the assistance you need. Should you encounter any problems during the meeting or need any additional information while at the Annual Meeting, please contact Meeting Services staff on-site at the Meeting Information & Housing Desk located in the Atrium on the fourth level of the Washington State Convention Center.

Comfort Zone. Attendees coping with illness, meeting fatigue, or stress may use the small room set aside by ASA as a “safe haven” to escape briefly from the noise and bustle of meeting activities. The designated Comfort Zone is located in the Richmond Boardroom in the Sheraton Seattle Hotel and Room 202 at the Washington State Convention Center.

Gender-Inclusive Restrooms. ASA has designated Gender-Inclusive Restroom facilities in the Washington State Convention Center (Level 4 and Level 6) and the Sheraton Seattle Hotel (Second and Third Floor). Other restroom facilities designated “women” and “men” are also available on these levels.

Lactation Room. Families with breastfeeding needs will find the Lactation Room at the Washington State Convention Center on Level Three in Room 302.

Plenary Sessions. All Plenary Sessions are available as live simulcasts over the web. In addition, the webcast will allow users to access real-time transcription of the plenary session delivered through their mobile device.

Arrangements for sign language interpreters, in-person real-time captioners (CART) may be provided for meeting registrants who have requested these services for plenary sessions in advance of the meeting.

Other Services. Registrants who did not make advance arrangements for services or equipment are requested to contact staff at the Meeting Information & Housing Desk in the Atrium on the fourth level of the Washington State Convention Center. Every reasonable effort will be made to assist registrants on-site. However, if you have a physical disability and need special services, equipment, or accommodations, and did not notify ASA in advance of your arrival at the meeting site, ASA may not be able to provide appropriate services due to the limited availability of some equipment and services.

For more than 20 years, ASA has provided special services and arrangements to facilitate attendance at the Annual Meeting. For an overview, please read the article on “Committee and Executive Office Collaborate to Make Annual Meeting Accessible,” published in the April 2007 issue of ASA's newsletter Footnotes.

Sessions. ASA has made arrangements for sign language interpreters, sighted guides, and other communication avenues for meeting registrants who provided information in advance of the meeting.

Wheelchair and Motorized Scooter Rentals. The ASA will have a small inventory of scooters for use by registrants who need them for specific activities/events. However, if you prefer to rent your own wheelchair or scooter, feel free to make arrangements with Scoot Around North America (888) 441-7575; www.scootaround.com
Activities of Affiliated and Other Groups

The wide-ranging interests of ASA members generate meetings of special interest groups during each year’s Annual Meeting. Space is assigned as available to these groups to hold their meetings and/or sessions in evening time slots when no formal program sessions or other ASA activities are scheduled.

Some groups will also have membership information and publications on display in Hall 4B of the Washington State Convention Center. See page 27 for time and location of other group activities.

For the convenience of meeting attendees, a list of facilities is given below for meetings of sister associations and societies

ASA Opportunities in Retirement Network

This new ASA network for pre-retired and retired sociologists was launched followed action by ASA Council in March 2014. ASA emeritus/retired members are automatically part of the network and may vote in its elections; others interested in the experiences and challenges of retirement are invited to participate in activities and to help shape its future development.

The Opportunities in Retirement Network (ORN) maintains a list of retirement resources including an opt-in listserv. ORN produces a semi-annual electronic newsletter, and will have regular features on retirement issues in editions of Footnotes.

Since 2015, at each Annual Meeting, the Opportunities in Retirement Network has hosted a Regular Session as part of the Call for Papers; a workshop on retirement planning; and “A Life in Sociology” guest lecture to be presented by an eminent retired sociologist.

See Session 98, 355, and page 30 for more information.
ASA Business Meeting

The ASA Business Meeting is an opportunity for members of the Association to discuss important issues facing the discipline and profession. Members are encouraged to attend this meeting convened by the ASA President Ruth Milkman.

Summary reports on the Association and its key activities this year will be given by President Ruth Milkman, Secretary Mary Romero, and Executive Officer Sally T. Hillsman. The meeting concludes with the traditional transfer of the gavel, marking the transition of duties from President Ruth Milkman to incoming President Michèle Lamont.

This open forum is an opportunity for members to share their insights, reactions, and suggestions. Please consult the flyer in your convention tote bag for details on the Business Meeting agenda.

As noted in the May/June issue of Footnotes and the posting of meeting information on the ASA website, members seeking to present formal resolutions should be prepared to provide background materials on the issue to be discussed. Members who missed the July 13 submission deadline may bring their resolutions and supporting background documentation to the Meetings & Information Desk on the Atrium Level on the fourth floor of the Washington State Convention Center by 3:00 pm on Monday, August 22.

All meeting attendees are invited to join ASA officers, Council members, and staff for continental breakfast and discussion at the ASA Business Meeting on Tuesday, August 23, 7:00-8:15am, in the Ravenna Room A-B on the third floor of the Sheraton Seattle Hotel.

ASA Store

The ASA Store features works published by the Association. Located in the Exhibit of the Washington State Convention Center, the store will be staffed by ASA Executive Office personnel and open throughout the four days of the Annual Meeting (see page 32).

All attendees are welcome to browse through this area filled with recent journal issues, teaching resources and syllabi sets, career publications, sociological practice materials, directories, and reference volumes. The online ASA Store will be available at a kiosk located in the store to complete online orders for those who'd rather not purchase and carry materials home. Items purchased through the online ASA Store will be shipped after the Annual Meeting.

Child Care

ASA is continuing the tradition of providing an innovative program of activities for children of Annual Meeting registrants. Arrangements have again been made with KiddieCorp to offer a full childcare program during daytime session hours for preregistered children between the ages of 6 months to 12 years.

KiddieCorp is dedicated to providing quality childcare services across the nation for meeting attendees. Staffing is based on a 1:2 ratio for children 6 months to 1 year, 1:3 ratios for children 1-2 years of age and a 1:5 ratio for children 3-12 years of age. The program includes a customized hourly schedule of creative and educational activities, age-appropriate toys and games, popular arts and crafts projects, and child-pleasing movies and cartoon videos.

The Child Care Service is located in the Diamond Room on the first floor of the Sheraton Seattle Hotel. This service is available to preregistrants only. The non-refundable preregistration deposit of $55 per child will be applied to the daily usage fees on-site. Daily use fees per preregistered child are $55 per full day, $35 per half day. For children using the service for shorter periods, the half-day fee will apply to encourage stable populations. Fees include on-site activities and snacks; lunch is not included but meal arrangements can be made through the hotel.

Service hours are 8:00 am – 6:30 pm on Saturday-Monday, August 20-22, and 8:00 am – 4:30 pm on Tuesday, August 23. Parents/guardians using these services must be registrants for the Annual Meeting.

There is no guarantee that non-preregistered families can be accommodated on-site. Child care providers reserve the right to refuse admittance to non-preregistrants. IF there are any openings, fees for children who were not preregistered will be $75 per day per child. No half-day rates are available for non-preregistered children; no exceptions.

Complimentary WiFi Access at the Meeting.

ASA provides 40MBps bandwidth WiFi in all ASA meeting rooms, both at the Washington State Convention Center and the Sheraton Seattle Hotel. The WiFi access facilitates the full use of the online program schedule, the Annual Meeting App and webcasting of the plenary sessions and the connections among attendees. Please Note: Requests for hard-wired Internet lines in session rooms for presentations will not be honored. For those of you considering streaming videos in your presentations, the bandwidth is sufficient to allow web browsing and email. However, streaming data on the network is not advised.

ASA Council Policy Statement on Social Media during the Annual Meeting

In ASA sessions, some members of the audience may use twitter or other forms of social media to share the results of papers presented. In rare instances people will record sessions; if you prefer that audio recordings or video recordings not occur, please share your request with the audience. ASA encourages all program participants to be sensitive to the requests of others.

Cyber Café

Attendees are welcome to utilize the Cybercafe located in Hall 4B on the Fourth Level of the Washington State Convention Center. These stations offer access to web and internet services.

Attendees are also encouraged to bring their own laptops and PDAs to utilize the complimentary WiFi internet access.

Employment Service

The annual ASA Employment Service (ES) assists sociologists and prospective employers by providing convenient opportunities for employers and job seekers to meet in a neutral, monitored environment for initial short interviews during the Annual Meeting.

Employers and registered job seekers are able to enter their information in an online module and use an interactive scheduling calendar to set up interview appointments during the Annual Meeting.

All service users were urged to preregister by July 13 in order to take full advantage of the pre-convention communication opportunities that the online Employment Service offers. Interviewers and candidates were also encouraged to bring their own laptops (equipped with wireless capability) and tablets with them so that they can more easily maintain communications during the Annual Meeting. The on-site Employment Service areas will be equipped with a few computer terminals for use by registered ES users.

Location and Hours. The Employment Service will be open in Hall 4A of the Washington State Convention Center during the hours listed below.

Preregistrants should first pick up their ASA badges in the Atrium on the Fourth Level of the Washington State Convention Center before proceeding to the Employment Service areas.

Employers. Employers (organizations) enter the online ES to pay the registration fee and post job listings. Employers can register for the service up to and during the Annual Meeting. All individuals conducting interviews on-site must be registered for the Annual Meeting and subsequently designated as interviewers by their employers in order to use the online service to search candidate information and set up interview appointments.

Candidates. Those who are looking for positions were encouraged to preregister for the Annual Meeting and for the Employment Service before the July 13 preregistration deadline. Those who preregistered may log into the online ES module and fill out their Candidate information, upload a full resume, view jobs posted by Employers, mark their ES calendars to show their availability for interviews, and respond to interview invitations. Candidates that did not preregister for the Annual Meeting and Employment Service may do so at On-site Registration in the Atrium on the Fourth Level of the Washington State Convention Center.

Interviews. All initial interview appointments must be scheduled through the online Employment Service module. Interviewers and candidates are encouraged to bring their own laptops (equipped with wireless capability) with them so that they can more easily maintain communications about interview appointments during the Annual Meeting. The Interview Room provides one table per employer where designated interviewers may meet with candidates at the agreed-upon appointment times. On-site staff will assist with reminders of the 20-minute appointment intervals so that appointment schedules stay on-time throughout the day.

On-Site Registration. Individuals who did not preregister and now want to use the Employment Service, whether as Candidate or Interviewer, must first register for the Annual Meeting. Please see “Registration Services” for on-site registration rates. Fees for candidates to use the Employment Service, which may be paid during your meeting registration process at the On-Site Registration desks, are $55 for ASA members, $90 for non-members. There is no additional service fee for Interviewers. Employers may go directly online to pay the registration fee ($300), post their job listings, and designate the on-site interviewers.

When fully registered, your next step is to visit the Employment Service area in Hall 4A of the Washington State Convention Center, where you will be given a brief orientation to the service procedures and issued a pass permitting your entrance to the Interview Room. No one will be admitted without a pass; “browsing” by non-registered attendees is not permitted.

After the Meeting. The online Employment Service site will remain open after the Annual Meeting is over to permit registered candidates and interviewers to reference information posted there. Users may download files of job listings or candidate resumes for future reference, if they wish. The online 2016 Employment Service will close to registered users at the end of September 2016.

Hotel Information

The ASA 2016 housing block consisted of nine hotels. Blocks of sleeping rooms at these properties offered special convention rates to those making reservations at them.

For the convenience of meeting attendees, a list of facilities is given below where registrants will be staying for the ASA Annual Meeting.

- Sheraton Seattle Hotel (Headquarter Hotel)
  1400 Sixth Avenue; (206) 621-9000

  1415 Fifth Avenue; (206) 971-8000

Meeting Information & Housing Desk

The desk is staffed with key ASA staff and representatives from Connections Housing (ASA’s official housing vendor for the Annual Meeting) who are available to assist if you have questions about a session’s A/V equipment or room setup; need help with guestroom matter; or any issue related to meeting arrangements. The Meeting Information & Housing Desk is located in the Atrium Lobby on the fourth floor of the Washington State Convention Center.

Membership Desk

Information on ASA membership and subscriptions will be provided at the Membership counter in the Atrium Lobby on the fourth floor of the Washington State Convention Center. The Membership desk will be staffed by ASA Executive Office personnel and will be open during the same hours as ASA Registration. Attendees may learn about current membership benefits and join the Association, sign up for Section memberships, and subscribe to ASA journals. Display copies of current journals will be available for reference.

Preconferences (August 19, 2016)
Chair Conference. Studying Sociology/Doing Sociology: Connecting the Dots to Meaningful Employment Outcomes for Majors

Larger student loan burdens, the continuing effects of the Great Recession, and a more diverse student body mean that students (and their parents) are considering the employment implications of their college choices even before setting foot on campuses. The proportion of first year students who say their decisions about where to go to college were influenced by the types of jobs an institution's graduates are getting is at an all-time high (HERI 2016). The United States Department of Education’s “College Scorecard” includes post-graduation earnings for institutions, and some institutions are reporting alumni's earnings data at the program level. Departments need not view this increased emphasis on employment outcomes from the perspective of the trend toward vocationalism. Employer surveys suggest that graduates need have both specific skills and broad knowledge to be competitive on the job market(AAC&U 2014). They need to think critically, work through complex problems, communicate effectively, work in a multicultural context, handle ambiguity and contribute to innovation (AAC&U 2013).

This is a good approach for sociology in which there is notable correspondence between the concepts and skills sociology programs teach and the learning outcomes today’s employers report they are seeking. But many sociology programs still need to become more effective in highlighting these connections and in helping students both to develop a vocabulary that describes their sociological knowledge and skills and to demonstrate their experience applying those skills to real world problems. Our students can be well positioned to graduate into positions in the workforce that both make use of their sociological skills and help to improve the communities in which they live and work.

This year the ASA Department Chairs Conference will explore the ways departments can better demonstrate the links between the major and employment without losing their grounding in liberal learning; help students develop fluency in describing the real-world applicability of their major; and consider how to facilitate opportunities for students to gain experience in responding to complex real world problems.

In addition to plenary presentations and roundtable discussions linked to this year's Chairs Conference theme, the conference will also help department chairs—both new and experienced—develop their leadership and management skills in core areas of responsibility such as: running effective department meetings, managing budgets, conducting faculty performance reviews, evaluating non-traditional scholarship, responding to MCAT 2015, preparing for program review, and strategies for course scheduling to maximize student learning.

Concurrent roundtable sessions during the conference are designed to allow Chairs from the full range of academic institutions—from PhD-granting to BA-liberal arts—to find topics in each session that are appropriate in their context.

The entire conference will take place on Friday August 21, 8:00am-5:00pm. The conference will be held in Room 2B on the second level of the Washington State Convention Center.

Preregistration and fee payments are required. Chair Conference attendees must preregister for the Annual Meeting in order to register for this conference. Fees for the Chair Conference are $150 for Chairs of Department Affiliates and $180 for chairs from non-Affiliate departments. The Chair Conference fee includes all Chair Conference materials, continental breakfast and lunch.

Director of Graduate Studies Conference. Excellence in Graduate Student Teacher Training: Practical Insights for Graduate Programs and Their Leaders

A recent study of sociology graduate programs in Teaching Sociology found that 94 percent of students are engaged in teaching at some point in their graduate careers (Blouin and Moss 2015). For graduate students who go on to employment in academic settings—whether in research intensive institutions or community colleges—nearly all will have positions that include evaluation of their performance as teachers.
Institutions of higher education across the board are increasing attention to effective teaching and its relationship to positive student learning outcomes in both hiring and evaluating faculty regardless of the degree to which they emphasize scholarship. Yet teacher training is not ubiquitous in graduate training. While some graduate departments have decades of experience providing programs explicitly designed to develop teaching skills, others rely—at best—on informal channels to prepare their graduates for this professional responsibility.

This year’s Director of Graduate Studies Conference will focus on graduate student teacher training in sociology PhD and MA programs. The conference will include information and practical advice for departments that do not currently have graduate student teacher training programs, as well as those seeking to strengthen existing programs.

Presenters will provide insights on the advantages and challenges of a range of graduate student teacher training approaches, including discussions about formal and informal training, innovations such as graduate student peer mentors, assessment of such programs, as well as nuts and bolts guidance for their daily management. Discussion also will include how emergent issues such as new technologies, online courses and programs, and responding to the needs of students from diverse countries and cultures can and should influence the content and form of graduate student teacher training.

The conference will include plenary presentations, panel discussions, and roundtable sessions and will give DGS from all department types, including MA and PhD programs, the opportunity network with peers from similar departments.

Fees are $60 for chairs from Department Affiliate departments, and $80 for Chairs from non-affiliate departments. DGS attendees had to preregister for the Annual Meeting in order to register for this conference. The DGS registration fee includes an afternoon beverage break and DGS meeting materials. Only departments that are renewed for the 2015-2016 Academic year are eligible for the Affiliate price. The DGS events begin at 1:30pm in Room 2A on the second level of the Washington State Convention Center.

Press Office

Press and media representatives are invited to check in at the on-site ASA Press Office for program information and interview assistance. The Press Office is located in Room 601 on the Sixth level of the Washington State Convention Center. Office hours are 5:00-7:00 pm on August 19, 8:00 am-5:00 pm on August 20-22, and 8:00 am-1:00 pm on August 23.

Meeting attendees are also encouraged to drop by the on-site Press Office and provide information on their availability to discuss their work with the media while in Seattle.

Research Support Forum

Now entering its 24th year, the annual ASA Research Support Forum features discussion of science policy issues, research funding information and guidance, and updates on data resources throughout the Annual Meeting. The forum is designed to provide invaluable help, access, and consideration of important substantive and policy issues for new researchers and more experienced scholars. From the opening professional workshop on Saturday to the closing academic workshop on Tuesday, attendees can count on plentiful access to funding experts and data sources.

Highlights of all the sessions included in this year’s Forum can be found on page 22. For complete information on all these sessions, please refer to the full session listings in the body of the Program Schedule.

Registration Services

Continuing our commitment to a more environmentally sustainable meeting, we no longer print and mail confirmations to those who registered online. Please save the e-mailed confirmation as your record. Those who registered via fax and mail should have received a printed confirmation by mail. Attendees who sent materials after the July 13 deadline will find their paperwork held for registration processing at the ASA Situations counter in the Atrium Lobby on the fourth floor of the Washington State Convention Center.

On-Site Registration. Those who missed the July 13 preregistration deadline should go to the “On-Site Registration" counter in the Atrium Lobby on the fourth floor of the Washington State Convention Center for the meeting.

Registration Services Hours:
- Friday, August 19: 1:30-7:00 pm
- Saturday, August 20: 8:00 am-6:00 pm
- Sunday, August 21: 8:00 am-5:30 pm
- Monday, August 22: 8:00 am-5:30 pm
- Tuesday, August 23: 8:00 am-1:00 pm

On-Site Fees. Rates for Members and Non-members are shown below. Forms are available in the ASA Registration area. Registration for the Annual Meeting is on a flat fee basis; no “day rates” are available.

Rates for Members:
- Regular/Associate: $260
- Student: $150
- Retired sociologist: $150
- Unemployed sociologist: $150
- Secondary school teacher: $150

Rates for Non-Members:
- General: $470
- Outside the U.S.: $260
- Non-sociologist: $260
- Student: $190
- Secondary school teacher: $150

Name Badges. Your name badge is required for admission to all convention functions including entry to the ASA Exhibits, Employment Service, and Child Care Service areas. Attendance at events which require fee payment (e.g., Courses, Chair Conference, Director of Graduate Studies Conference, TEF/Just Desserts, MFP Benefit, Tours) is restricted to meeting registrants.

A general registrant may sign up for one guest pass ($60 onsite) to provide a courtesy badge for a spouse, partner, family member, or other guest. This guest pass provides only a name badge; the Final Program materials are not supplied. Information printed on a guest badge is restricted to the name of the guest; affiliations will not be printed. Individuals attending the meeting in a professional capacity are expected to register in one of the full registration categories listed above.

Refunds/Cancellations. All registration-related fees are non-refundable as of July 13, 2016. Unfortunately, under no circumstances can ASA issue refunds for no-shows. Program participant registration fees are non-refundable; cancellations will not be accepted nor refunds issued.

Section Information

Section Activities. Looking for a way to find colleagues with similar research interests? Section activities offer one convenient avenue for connecting with like-minded scholars. These specialized sessions range in format from formal paper presentations to panels and discussion roundtables. Section-sponsored sessions are open to all meeting registrants.

Sections promote ongoing communication among their members by publishing newsletters, supporting cooperative research ventures, recognizing outstanding work by professionals and students in their specialties, and sponsoring program activities at each Annual Meeting. ASA members with interests in specialized areas of sociological inquiry may join any Section of the Association. Stop by the ASA Membership table in the Atrium Lobby of the Washington State Convention Center to browse to learn more about section membership information. Of course, if you join a section before September 30, your membership will help support that section’s program allocation for next year’s Annual Meeting.

The number of sessions allocated to each Section is based on the size of the Section membership. For the 52 sections there are a total of 221 sessions/meetings scheduled. Section activities are summarized on page 24 for quick reference.

Section Council Meetings. The total formal allocation of space for each section is comprised of two parts: (a) one “business” slot for holding a one-hour Council meeting followed by a 40-minute Business meeting; and (b) the earned program session allocation. ASA Council does permit Sections to use their Council meeting time (one hour) for other purposes. However, a Section that chooses to use this option forfeits the services of the ASA Office in the arrangement of an alternate Council meeting time and location. The Council meetings listed on page 25 are the extent of the information available at press time. Check at the ASA Meeting Information Desk in the Atrium Lobby on the Fourth Level of the Washington State Convention Center for any updates provided by section chairs during the course of the convention.

Section Receptions. In addition to sponsoring substantive program sessions, ASA Sections often host receptions for their section members during the Annual Meeting. These informal social events are primarily held in the evenings on the first and third days of the meeting, and all members of the sponsoring section are welcome to attend. Sometimes several sections will co-host a joint reception. See page 26 for more information.
Special Events

Community College Faculty Breakfast. Colleagues teaching in community colleges are invited to a special bagel breakfast at 7:00 am on Sunday, August 21, in Jefferson Room A on the Fourth Floor of the Sheraton Seattle Hotel. Join colleagues in a series of ice breaker activities and a conversation. Mark your calendar for this early bird event where you can meet other colleagues teaching at community colleges.

Departmental Alumni Night (DAN). The Departmental Alumni Night (DAN), now in its 43rd year, is a social event held after the first full day of sessions, where attendees can connect with friends and colleagues to reminisce about graduate school days, create new coalitions, and catch up on the latest news.

This traditional gathering will begin at 9:30 pm on Saturday, August 20, in the Metropolitan Ballroom A-B on the Third Floor of the Sheraton Seattle Hotel. All meeting attendees are invited to attend this event.

Each graduate department of sociology in the United States and Canada was given the opportunity to sponsor a table to attract alumni and friends. Participating school are listed below (as of July 5, 2016):

- Indiana University
- University of Minnesota
- University of North Texas
- Washington State University
- Yale University

Honorary Reception. After the conclusion of the 2016 Presidential Address, all meeting attendees are invited to attend the Honorary Reception at 6:30 pm, Sunday, August 21, in the Metropolitan Ballroom A-B on the Third Floor of the Sheraton Seattle Hotel to express appreciation and congratulations to President Ruth Milkman and the major ASA award recipients.

Since 1984, social science departments, publishers and regional societies have joined the American Sociological Association in co-sponsoring the annual Honorary Reception. The Association is pleased to acknowledge the following co-hosts of the Honorary Reception (as of July 5, 2016):

- Brown University
- University of California-Santa Cruz
- University of Nebraska-Lincoln
- University of North Carolina
- Vanderbilt University

Just Desserts! A Carla B. Howery Teaching Enhancement Grant Program Fundraiser. Looking to escape the pressures of presenting papers, searching book displays, and participating in committee meetings? Come and relax with friends at this benefit event, “Just Desserts.” As the name implies, you should bring your sweet tooth along to enjoy special desserts, good coffee, stimulating conversation, and smile that all of this pleasure goes to a good cause.

Sunday, August 21
8:00-9:30 pm
Sheraton Seattle Hotel, ASA Hospitality Suite
$25 donor, $50 sponsor, $100 benefactor

Admission is by ticket only. Proceeds from each ticket will go toward supporting the Teaching Enhancement Fund, a small grants program designed to support teaching-related projects that have long lasting and transferable impact.

Those who enrolled in advance should have received their tickets with their name badges. Others may purchase tickets in the Atrium Lobby of the Washington State Convention Center until 5:00 pm on Saturday, August 20.

MFP Benefit Reception. Set aside time on Sunday evening, August 21, to join good friends and supporters of the ASA’s Minority Fellowship Program (MFP). Plan to relax after dinner, meet current Fellows and MFP alumni, and reaffirm your commitment to the MFP Program.

Sunday, August 21
9:30-11:30pm
Sheraton Seattle Hotel
Cirrus Ballroom (35th Floor)
$25 donor, $50 sponsor, $100 benefactor

Admission is by ticket only. Proceeds from each ticket will go to the Minority Fellowship Program, which supports predoctoral training for students of color.

Those who enrolled in advance should have received their tickets with their name badges. Others may buy tickets at ASA On-Site Registration in the Atrium Lobby of the Washington State Convention Center until 5:00 pm on Saturday, August 20.

Orientation for First-Time Attendees. If this is the first time you have attended an ASA Annual Meeting, please plan to attend an orientation session at 10:30 am–12:10 pm on Saturday, August 20, prior to the mid-day Plenary on the first full day of program sessions.

This special orientation hour provides the opportunity to meet Association officers and staff and begin networking with professional colleagues. Advice from ASA Officers and experienced attendees will help you chart a course through the myriad activities and substantive attractions.

ASA Secretary Mary Romero and Executive Officer Sally T. Hillsman host this orientation in Room 608 on the Sixth Level of the Washington State Convention Center. Pointers on navigating the Annual Meeting will be shared in an informal roundtable discussion. First-time attendees who pre-registered should look for a reminder ticket in their badge envelopes as soon as they pick up their program packets and come prepared to ask “What makes it work?”

Reception for Scholars with International Research & Teaching Interests. All meeting participants interested in international scholarly collaborations, or in meeting colleagues from other countries and learning about sociology globally, are invited to attend a reception in honor of our international colleagues on Saturday, August 20 at 7:00-8:00 pm in the Cirrus Ballroom on the 35th Floor of the Sheraton Seattle Hotel.

Welcoming Reception. All meeting registrants are invited to the Welcoming Reception on Friday, August 19, 9:00–10:30 pm, in the Grand Ballroom Foyer, on the Second Floor of the Sheraton Seattle Hotel to celebrate the opening of the 111th Annual Meeting. This social hour kicks off at the conclusion of the Opening Plenary and provides opportunities to renew past acquaintances, chat with old friends, and find a newcomer to befriend. New members and first-time meeting attendees are particularly encouraged to come and have fun!

Student Forum

The ASA welcomes undergraduate and graduate students at the Annual Meeting. All students who join ASA as student members automatically become members of the Student Forum. Special arrangements for students include discounted registration fees, workshops oriented to issues of interest to students, student paper and roundtable sessions, a reception for students, and admission to the book give-away at the end of the meeting.

Data Resources and Funding Sessions. Be sure to attend poster Session 270 on Sunday, August 21 at 1:00pm and familiarize yourself with the various funding opportunities and data resources which can advance your work in sociology.

Graduate Programs in Sociology Displays. At 2:30-4:10 pm on Saturday, August 20, representatives from graduate departments will be available in the Graduate Programs in Sociology Resource area of Hall 4A on the Fourth Level of the Washington State Convention Center to talk with students and undergraduate advisers. See the listing for Session 95 to find out which schools are participating. The resource area will be available for browsing throughout the meeting.

Orient Yourself to the Meeting. Plan to attend the Welcoming Reception on Friday night and the Orientation for First Time Attendees on Saturday morning to kick off your Annual Meeting experience. Browse thoroughly through the exhibits, posters, and the ASA Store. Don’t be shy about asking staff at the ASA Meeting Information Desk for assistance in finding various activities.

Student Book Give-Away. All students registered to attend the Annual Meeting will receive a ticket to the special book give-away sponsored by ASA exhibitors on Tuesday, August 23, after the exhibit hall has closed.

Student Forum. The Student Forum is pleased to offer a Professional Development Certificate for its members, based on attendance at a number of particular sessions, events, or workshops. Please visit the ASA Meeting & Information Desk in the Atrium Lobby on the Fourth Level of the Washington State Convention Center for more details, including the necessary forms and instructions. In addition, the business meeting of the Student Forum will be held on Sunday, August 21, at 8:30–10:10am in the Juniper Room on the Second Floor of the Sheraton Seattle Hotel

Student Reception. All students registered to attend the Annual Meeting are invited to an open student reception on Saturday, August 20, at 6:30-7:30 pm in Room 606-607 on the Sixth Level of the Washington State Convention Center.

Student Sessions. The Program Committee allocates up to five session slots each year for student sessions. This year, two paper sessions, two workshops and one roundtable session were organized under Student Forum auspices. For details on these student sessions, locate the listings for sessions 52, 97, 173, 282, and 400 in the Program Schedule.

Whether you are planning to attend graduate school, or are further along and look to employment in sociological practice or the academy, please take a look at the career, professional, and teaching workshops.

Don’t let the huge program overwhelm you. Start by looking at the Student Forum sessions noted above and then check the Session Topic Index to identify other sessions in your particular areas of interest.

Tickets for Events and Services

Registrants already signed up for courses, tours, employment, child care services, and/or special events should have received tickets with their meeting packets. Those who did not make advance reservations may check at the ASA On-Site registration counters in the Atrium Lobby on the Fourth Floor of the Washington State Convention Center for ticket availability.

Event tickets are non-refundable and cancellations cannot be accepted. You may, however, sell your ticket to someone else if you are unable to attend.

Types of Sessions

Author Meets Critics Sessions. Author Meets Critics sessions are designed to bring authors of recent books deemed to be important contributions to the discipline together with discussants chosen to provide different viewpoints. The 2016 Program Committee selected 22 books to be featured on this year’s program.

Courses. This educational component provides opportunities for attendees to get in-depth training in special subject areas. Intensive four- to six-hour courses are held pre-convention and led by expert faculty who have prepared a comprehensive curriculum to engage participants on all levels. Registrants will receive certificates documenting their participation and completion of these courses.

Prepaid registration is required; fees are $75. Reservations for the course were accepted in order of receipt in the ASA Executive Office.

Attendees who preregistered should have received their tickets with their name badges when they picked up their program packets as ASA Preregistration. Course fees were non-refundable after July 13.

Informal Roundtable Session. This program component is designed to bring together small groups of people interested in discussing specific topics. Informal roundtables offer opportunities for those who share conceptual, methodological, professional, or policy concerns to meet one another and to initiate and expand networks. These discussion tables also are particularly valuable for those who are developing new ideas or formulating issues in new ways and who would like to explore these ideas or issues with colleagues who have similar interests.

This year’s Informal Discussion Roundtable Session is comprised of 6 tables, with a different discussion topic assigned to each table. Discussion proceeds simultaneously at all tables listed on each session. At each table the discussion leader will introduce the topic and facilitate discussion among all the participants at the table. No formal papers are to be presented, and neither audio-visual equipment nor recording devices may be used.

Please see session 237 in the body of the Program Schedule for complete details.

Open Refereed Roundtable Sessions. The 2016 Program Committee invited, Marth Crowley (North Carolina State University) to review submissions and organize roundtables using a “mini-session” format: a general topic identified for each table, two to five paper presentations, and a table presider to coordinate presentations and discussion.

Two large roundtable sessions comprised of 12-13 tables each were created for this year’s program. Please note that all roundtables presentations listed on a session are held simultaneously at tables located inside one large meeting room; neither audio-visual equipment nor recording devices may be used. Please see sessions 136 and 315 in the body of the Program Schedule for complete details.

Plenary Sessions. The Annual Meeting theme of “Rethinking Social Movements: Can Changing the Conversation Change the World?” is being addressed from the Opening Plenary Session on August 19 to the final Plenary on August 22. Access live webcasts (with real-time transcription) of the Plenary Sessions via the app. See sessions 8, 80, 163, 309, and 383 for complete details.

Poster Sessions. This program component features a series of display presentations that allow face-to-face conversation between authors and viewers. By facilitating informal discussions between presenters and “browsers,” Poster Sessions provide a more direct forum for information exchange than do formal paper presentations.

Graduate Programs in Sociology. As part of the Graduate Education focus, a resource poster area will be open for browsing in Hall 4A and there is one designated time when attendees can expect to meet representatives from participating graduate departments of sociology. The varied roster of display presentations includes something of interest for every meeting attendee. See session 95 for complete details.

Research Funding Opportunities and Data Resources. This poster/exhibit session provides a unique occasion to meet representatives of major research funding institutions and principal investigators, researchers, and managers of large-scale datasets that are publicly available for use. Each display by a funding institution provides a visual overview of research funding and the application process, materials for distribution, and time for direct individual discussion. Data resource representatives are available to talk about the featured datasets, their analytic potential, and issues relating to access and use, including state-of-the-art Internet services to access datasets. This is an opportunity for meeting attendees to learn about these datasets and their potential for research and teaching. All meeting participants, including students, are encouraged to attend. You can find the abstracts for each poster at https://convention2.allacademic.com/one/asa/asa16/. See session 270 for complete details.

Visual Media Poster Session. It’s not just posters anymore! The “Poster Session” is ASA’s new home for creative ways to present sociological research and ideas. It includes digital presentations, standard posters, and much more. It’s all good as long as it’s great sociology creatively presented. After checking out the presentations, don’t forget to vote for the winning one. Two awards will be given, one by a roving judge, and the other goes to the presentation with the most votes at the end of the session. Special bonus: Both awards announced on site at a closing party at the end of the session. See session 398 for complete details.
Regional Spotlight Sessions. Seattle is the 20th largest city in the United States and is part of the 15th largest metropolitan statistical area (Seattle-Bellevue-Tacoma). In the Northwest corner of the U.S., Seattle has historically been a gateway to the Pacific Rim. Seattle was officially incorporated by the Oregon Territorial Legislature in 1869 with a population of just over 2,000 residents. Its first major growth occurred in the 1890s; it grew to over 200,000 by 1910 when it sponsored the 1909 Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition (on the current grounds of the University of Washington). In 1914 it boasted having the tallest building west of the Mississippi, the 42-floor Smith Tower. Seattle is now an international high-tech, innovative, and rapidly growing urban center. Greater Seattle is home to Microsoft, Starbucks, Costco, Nordstrom, Amazon, and Boeing. Nestled between Puget Sound and Lake Washington and bounded by the Cascade and Olympic mountain ranges, Seattle offers great natural beauty. Its 37 inches of rain and 58 fully clear days per year keeps this urban space green. Seattle is home to great food and a vibrant local food movement, boasts numerous small distilleries and breweries, and has one of the largest and oldest open farmers’ markets in the United States. Seattle has also been the seat of great music from classics to jazz to being a consistent place for new music (including the Ventures, Hendrix, Cobain, and Macklemore). So come to Seattle to enjoy the Northwest corner of the country, to observe a city coping with issues of rapid growth, to find one of the most diverse zip codes in the United States, to support a $15 dollar minimum wage, to see legal marijuana stores on street corners, and to discover light rail rapid transit. All in all Seattle’s a great spot for a sociological adventure.

The local arrangements committee, chaired by Jerald R. Herting (University of Washington) and Jennifer McKinney (Seattle Pacific University) have put together a few Footnotes articles and a number of panels and events that capture some key regional history and issues and suggests the overall flavor of Seattle and the region.

Regional Spotlight Tours. No matter which adventure you decide to embark on, there is a common denominator: the way to experience and learn about the city is to meet with, talk to, and learn from the people who live and work in the area. The schedule of tours is listed below, with descriptions and capacity limits. Reservations are required and will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. Confirmations will be e-mailed prior to the Annual Meeting. If insufficient enrollment causes cancellation of a tour, fees will be refunded. See the ASA website for further details about reservations.

Tour 01. Northwest Lesbian and Gay History Tour
Date: Saturday, August 20; 10:30 AM–12:30 PM
(Fee: $10)
Tour Departure Area: Hall A, Washington State Convention Center

Description: The tour is from the Northwest Lesbian and Gay History Project. It is a 90-minute walking tour of Pioneer Square that focuses on important and ordinary sites that lesbians, gays, and other sexual minorities claimed through the early to mid-20th century. It contextualizes their lives and struggles in the social, political, and economic geographies of the cities, as well as broader social movements for sexual liberation of the era.

Tour 02. Seattle Labor History Tour (co-sponsored with Society for the Study of Social Problems)
Date: Sunday, August 21; 8:30 AM–1:30 PM (Fee: $40)
Attendance Limit: 30
Description: Join Andrew Hedden, University of Washington’s Harry Bridges Center for Labor Studies, for a city-wide bus tour of Seattle’s storied labor history. From the 1919 Seattle General Strike to the 1999 WTO protests and beyond, from the IWW to Filipino American unionism, come learn about the radicals and regular working men and women who have built the city and fought for social justice.

Tour 03. Homelessness and Supportive Housing Program - CANCELLED
Date: Monday, August 22; 8:30-11:30 AM (Fee: $65)
Attendance Limit: 30
Description: Downtown Emergency Services Center (DESC) began in 1979 as an emergency shelter for vulnerable adults living with behavioral health disorders and chronic homelessness. Today DESC is Seattle’s leading provider of award-winning housing and support services to chronically homeless adults who are living with mental illness, addictive disorders, and co-occurring disabilities.

Regular Sessions. Regular Sessions are comprised of research papers submitted in response to the 2016 Call for Papers. The 2016 Program Committee appointed organizers for 123 general Regular Session topics and announced that topics were open to submissions from ASA members. Paper submissions were due in early January 2016.

Regular Session organizers received anywhere from 0 to 300 submissions for review. A total of 187 formal paper sessions were organized from over 2,500 papers submitted to Regular Session topics. Please refer to the Program Schedule for details on each Regular Session.

Be sure to check the ASA website this fall for information on making your paper submission for next year’s Annual Meeting. The paper submission deadline will be January 11, 2017.

Special Sessions. The category of “Special Sessions” encompasses many of the suggestions submitted by ASA members for invited panels. These sessions may be on topics that further investigate the meeting theme, contribute to the review of the discipline, or focus attention on other timely and important issues. More than 28 sessions were constituted, including a set of sessions co-sponsored with sister sociological associations/organizations.

Thematic Sessions. The 2016 Program Committee developed a set of invited sessions to explore aspects of this year’s meeting theme. These 46 sessions delve into important social and political issues, explore international and comparative viewpoints, and discuss the importance of sociological contributions.

Program Highlights

The Program Committee oversees about 65% of formal program activities and has traditionally divided its portion of session slots into half for invited session components and half for open submission components. The types of invited sessions are usually Plenary Sessions, Thematic Sessions, Special Sessions, Author Meets Critics Sessions, Regional Spotlight Sessions, pre-convention Courses, and a robust roster of various kinds of workshops. The 2016 Program Committee selected the following sessions to be featured on this year’s program.

Exhibits

ASA Exhibits are located in Hall 4B on the fourth floor of the Washington State Convention Center. Exhibits will be open to meeting registrants on all four days of the meeting.

ASA Exhibit Hours
Saturday, August 20  2:00 -6:00 pm
Sunday, August 21    9:00 am-4:00 pm
Monday, August 22    9:00 am-5:00 pm
Tuesday, August 23   9:00 am-1:00 pm

The location of the Exhibits offers excellent accessibility to meeting attendees. Meeting attendees are encouraged to schedule several visits to the Exhibit area so that ample time can be given to exploring the many offerings. Browse through the latest sociological publications, explore current computer software, chat with representatives of statistical resources and informational literature, and meet the editor of your next publication! Be certain to also visit the ASA Store—always one of the most popular activities at the Annual Meeting.

All persons wishing access to ASA Exhibits must be paid registrants for the Annual Meeting; badges are required for entrance into this area. An alphabetical list of the 53 exhibitors (as of July 5, 2016) follows.

Session Organizer and Leader: Charles C. Ragin, University of California, Irvine

The analytic challenge of case-oriented research is not simply that the number of cases is small, but that researchers gain useful in-depth knowledge of cases that is difficult to represent using conventional forms (e.g., representations that emphasize the “net effects” of “independent variables”). The researcher is left wondering how to represent knowledge of cases in a way that is meaningful and compact, but which also does not deny case complexity. Set-theoretic methods such as Qualitative Comparative Analysis (QCA), the central focus of this workshop, offer a solution. QCA is fundamentally a case-oriented method that can be applied to small-to-moderate size Ns. It is most useful when researchers have knowledge of each case included in an investigation, there is a relatively small number of such cases (e.g., 10-50), and the investigator seeks to compare cases as configurations. With these methods it is possible to construct representations of cross-case patterns that allow for substantial heterogeneity and diversity. This workshop offers an introduction to the approach and to the use of the software package fsQCA (a free download from www.fsqca.com). Both the crisp (i.e., Boolean) and fuzzy-set versions of the method will be presented. Fuzzy set analysis is gaining popularity in the social sciences today because of the close connections it enables among verbal theory, substantive knowledge (especially in the assessment of degree of set membership), and the analysis of empirical evidence. Fuzzy sets are especially useful in case-oriented research, where the investigator has a degree of familiarity with the cases included in the investigation and seeks to understand cases configurationally—as specific combinations of aspects or elements. Using fuzzy-set methods, case outcomes can be examined in ways that allow for causal complexity, where different combinations of causally relevant conditions combine to generate the outcome in question. Also, with set-theoretic methods it is a possible to evaluate arguments that causal conditions are necessary or sufficient. Analyses of this type are outside the scope of conventional analytic methods. Specific topics addressed in the course include: the differences between set-theoretic and correlational methods; conventional crisp sets versus fuzzy sets; the calibration of fuzzy sets; how calibration differs from conventional forms of measurement; analyzing fuzzy set relations; the correspondence between concepts and fuzzy set membership scores; the correspondence between theoretical statements and the analysis of fuzzy set relations; using fuzzy sets to study cases as configurations; and using fuzzy sets to unravel causal complexity, with a special focus on equifinality.

12:00 pm  Conferences

5. ASA Social Media Preconference (12:00-5:30pm; ticket required for admission)
Washington State Convention Center, Room 204, Level Two Session Organizers and Leaders: Dustin Kidd, Temple University and Tressie McMillan Cottom, Virginia Commonwealth University
The 2016 Annual Meeting will offer a special pre-conference aimed at increasing knowledge of social media and strategies for using these tools in sociological work. The Social Media Pre-conference is organized by Tressie McMillan Cottom (Virginia Commonwealth University) and Dustin Kidd (Temple University). The Pre-conference will take place on Friday, August 19 as part of the pre-convention program activities, at a charge of $50.00 to registered attendees of the Annual Meeting. Those interested in attending must register in order to reserve their space. Topics covered include: Creating a social media strategy Twitter for Academics Framing Social Research on Social Media Social Media Techniques for the Classroom

1:30 pm  Courses

6. Course. Incorporating American Community Survey and US Census Data into Undergraduate Courses (1:30-5:30pm; ticket required for admission)
Washington State Convention Center, Room 309, Level Three
Session Organizer: William H. Frey, Brookings Institution
Leader: John Paul DeWitt, University of Michigan
Co-Leaders: Jill Bouma, Berea College
Katherine R. Rowell, Sinclair Community College
Esther Isabelle Wilder, Lehman College
This course will focus on how professors can integrate analyses of U.S. Census and American Community Survey (ACS) data in relevant, user-friendly ways in such courses as Intro Sociology, Social Problems, Stratification, Race Relations, the Family, Sociology of Aging, Population, and more. Adding data analysis to substantive undergraduate sociology courses supports the American Sociological Association initiatives to introduce students to data "early and often" throughout the curriculum. This course will introduce resources available for integrating data analysis into a wide range of sociology course subjects and levels. Participants will learn about the Social Science Data Analysis Network (SSDAN) directed by Professor Frey at the University of Michigan. The course will begin with an overview of the SSDAN project and data analysis materials. Brief tutorials on the easy-to-use software tools will follow, with examples drawn from existing U.S. Census and ACS access tools. In a "hands-on" session, two person teams will "play the role of students" and conduct analyses of pre-tailored 1950-2010 Census, and 2010 ACS data.

2:00 pm  Courses

8. Opening Plenary. Beyond the Battle of Seattle
Sheraton Seattle Hotel, Grand Ballroom A-D, Second Floor
Session Organizer and Presider: Ruth Milkman, City University of New York-Graduate Center
Panelists: Walden Bello, University of Philippines, Diliman
Amy Goodman, Democracy Now
Kshama Sawant, Seattle City Council

In November 1999, the city of Seattle was the site of massive protests against the World Trade Organization, during its meeting there, an event that became known as the "Battle of Seattle." More recently, Seattle has emerged as one of the nation's most dynamic cities, and one that is unusually progressive. The city's voters elected an avowed Socialist to its City Council and led the nation in the "Fight for 15," an effort to raise the minimum wage to $15 per hour. Panelists will reflect on the Battle of Seattle and its legacy, as well as on recent developments in the city.

9:00 pm  Receptions

Welcoming Reception -- Sheraton Seattle Hotel, Grand Ballroom Foyer, Second Floor
All meeting registrants are invited to the Welcoming Reception which follows the Opening Plenary Session on Friday evening August 19 and celebrate the opening of the 111th Annual Meeting.

A POUND OF FLESH
Monetary Sanctions as Punishment for the Poor
Alexes Harris

“A Pound of Flesh is a critical and timely book on a great contemporary American injustice: the imposition of legal fines and fees through the criminal courts. Alexes Harris’ pioneering research documents the widespread practice of charging fines and fees to people who have contact with the criminal justice system—including some who are never convicted of a crime. The imposition of fines and fees creates a two-tiered legal system that separates those who have the ability to pay from those who don’t. A Pound of Flesh is a revolutionary book that has already made an impact on the national policy conversation. It provides an eye-opening account of how the American legal system shapes inequality and how inequality impacts access to justice.”

9. Thematic Session. Right-Wing Movements and Inequality: Looking to the Future
Session Organizer and Presider: Rory M. McVeigh, University of Notre Dame
Panelists: Kathleen M. Blee, University of Pittsburgh
Mabel Berezin, Cornell University
Christopher Sebastian Parker, University of Washington
Discussant: Rory M. McVeigh, University of Notre Dame

A wave of progressive social movement activism beginning in the 1960s helped to reduce various types of social inequalities. The spread of progressive activism also attracted the attention of sociologists and other social scientists, creating a vibrant research field as scholars sought to better understand the emergence of social movements as well as the determinants of their successes and failures. In recent decades we have observed increases in conservative or right-wing activism, with many right-wing movements borrowing organizational forms and tactics previously employed by progressive counterparts. While social scientists were somewhat late in turning their attention to right-wing movements, that has begun to change. Our knowledge of conservative activism has grown substantially in recent years. In this session, scholars who have expertise pertaining to different types of right-wing movements will draw upon their past research to project into the future. While the wave of progressive activism has contributed to social equality in areas such as civil rights, LGBT rights, and gender equality, is there reason to expect that in the years ahead right-wing movements will experience success in rolling back gains that progressive movements have achieved, and exacerbating ongoing inequalities and injustices? Presentations by leading scholars will be followed by an open discussion of the future of right-wing activism.

10. Thematic Session. Urban Protest in the Global South
Session Organizer: Ann Mische, University of Notre Dame
Panelists: Patrick G. Heller, Brown University
Ann Mische, University of Notre Dame
Zeynep Tufekci, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill
Discussant: Gay W. Seidman, University of Wisconsin-Madison

In the past half-decade, the world has seen an expansive wave of global protest, triggered by a combination of economic and political grievances that include austerity measures, unemployment, inequality, precarious public services, authoritarianism, corruption, police violence and state repression. Economic demands have been interwoven, in varying proportions, with challenges to political leadership and institutions and calls for the expansion of electoral and participatory democracy. Many of these protests have taken on a specifically urban dimension, occupying public squares and avenues while raising issues of access to and mobility in urban space. At the same time, the protests have relied heavily on new social media technologies, which have linked these protests together in a transnational public arena. This panel will explore the political, economic and social dimensions of these protests, with a focus on movements in the global South (broadly understood). We will feature panelists who are currently studying the recent protests in India, Brazil, and Turkey, putting these in comparative perspective with protests in other parts of the world.

12. Professional Development Workshop. Writing for Contexts and the World
Session Organizer: Syed Ali, Long Island University
Leaders: Syed Ali, Long Island University
Philip N. Cohen, University of Maryland-College Park
Panelists: Letta Page, Contexts Magazine
Joshua Aaron Page, University of Minnesota
Ilene Kalish, New York University Press
Dana R. Fisher, University of Maryland
Writing for the broader public is a skill many sociologists haven’t developed. The editors of Contexts and others on the panel will try to help.
We’ll give you our take on how to write for a broader audience, starting with how to write for Contexts. Others on the panel who have written for Contexts and the popular media will also help explain how to translate your academic research for the world.

13. Policy and Research Workshop. European Research Council: Funding for U.S. Sociologists (and Elsewhere!) Willing to Explore Ideas or Territories Never Explored Before
Session Organizer and Leader: Lionel Thelen, European Research Council
In Turbulent Times not only banks, institutions, companies or even countries are under pressure but also individuals and, among them, researchers. Studying crisis times can be of the utmost interest for social sciences in general and for sociology in particular. Unfortunately another feature of our hectic times are, in US and in various countries worldwide, financial difficulties to make ends meet as well as limited budgets for universities, research centres and, subsequently, frequent cuts in social sciences research funding. Taking the exact opposite position, the ERC funding capability increases each year and the part of the budget devoted to social sciences has been bettered from 2015 onwards. With funding up to 3.75 million $ for a 5 year project, the ERC has become – in less than 8 years – one of the major funding bodies worldwide and certainly the most generous for Social Sciences and Humanities. “What do the ERC schemes have to offer to sociologists?” “How to get started with an application?” “How to increase your chances to get funding?” “What are the main hitches to avoid?” These are all relevant questions that will be raised during this workshop. Do not hesitate to bring yours! This session is opened to all sociologists aiming to design and lead their good end ground-breaking research projects. The presentations will be done by ERC Scientific Staff as well as by Grantees and Panel Evaluators. Each presentation will be followed by a Q&A session and presenters will of course be available during the whole duration of the Conference to answer your queries. Flyers, reports and publications will be available to help you inasmuch as possible, not forgetting, last but not least, our website: http://erc.europa.eu/

Are youth less engaged than older generations had been at their age or are digital media allowing youth to be politically engaged in new ways and at impressive levels? Or, is reality somewhere between the Putnam-induced pessimism and a digital utopia? This panel will investigate these issues by examining shifts in youth engagement overall, shifts from more traditional formats of engagement such as voting to more engaged formats such as protest participation and/or volunteering, and the risks and advantages of these changes. Panelists come from a variety of backgrounds, including the leading scholar on fan-inspired activism (Henry Jenkins) as well as scholars specializing in social movements, youth studies, and digital media studies.

44. Thematic Session. Riots, Protest, and Social Movements
Session Organizer and Presider: Michael Biggs, University of Oxford
Panelists: Elijah Anderson, Yale University
Randall Collins, University of Pennsylvanian
Bert Useem, Purdue University
The massive riots that swept American cities in the 1960s attracted intense and sustained interest from sociologists. Recent years have seen an upsurge in rioting on both sides of the Atlantic, from London in 2011 to Stockholm in 2013 to Ferguson, Missouri in 2014. Although there is now an enormous literature on rioting, this literature treats riots in isolation from more typical forms of protest (like demonstrations) and from organized social movements. Conversely, quantitative analyses of protest events usually lump riots together with demonstrations and other forms of protest. This session will explore the relationships between rioting, more conventional forms of protest, and organized social movements.

45. Thematic Session. Wealth, Inequality, and the Future of American Politics
Sheraton Seattle Hotel, Ballard Room, Third Floor
Session Organizer and Presider: Mikhail Balaev, Flinders University
Panelists: G. William Domhoff, University of California-Santa Cruz
Gordon Lafer, University of Oregon
Zach Silk, Civic Ventures
Miles Rapport, Common Cause
This panel will discuss the influence of individual and corporate wealth in American politics. Specifically, the panelists will examine (1) how inequality of wealth and income shapes politics and public policy, especially in terms of campaign contributions and lobbying, and (2) the struggle to reform this, such as various efforts to change campaign finance laws, challenge Citizens United, grassroots movements, etc. Although money has always been a major factor in acquiring political influence in the U.S., in less than a decade the influence of money has increased dramatically. 2008 Citizens United Supreme Court decision eliminated the restrictions on political expenditures by nonprofit corporations known as 501c(4). These organizations created a new avenue for undisclosed money to be directed to influence political outcomes. During 2012 Presidential elections, this “dark money” exceeded all Super PACs’ expenditures. The 2014 McCutcheon Supreme Court decision lifted the overall limit on individual political contributions thus enabling wealthy individuals to contribute to unlimited candidates or parties. This decision is a major reason we have just seen the most expensive 2014 midterm elections in the U.S. history. In sum, the influence of money in politics today is unprecedented. When the wealthy have disproportionate influence on the political process the non-elite majority population is marginalized and effectively disenfranchised. The panelists (two academics and two social activists) will offer unique perspectives on the role of money in American politics and discuss whether and how this can possibly change and how the dominance of wealth in political decision-making can be challenged.

46. Special Session. Water: Whose Crisis?
Washington State Convention Center, Room 201, Level Two Session Organizer: Ben Crow, University of California-Santa Cruz
Panelists: Margreet Zwarteveen, UNESCO-IHE
Peter P. Mollinga, University of London
Ben Crow, University of California-Santa Cruz
Larry A. Swatuk, University of Waterloo

While there have been great leaps in our understanding of the social relations of water in the last two decades, global discourse is dominated by overly simple ideas of a crisis arising from global scarcity and of need for safe drinking water. This session will bring leading analysts of water and water justice in urban and rural areas of the global South to explore some of the following themes: • How the processes of neoliberalism play out in the water domain, • Modes of contestation in everyday practice, water policy, hydro politics and global politics of water • Politics of water scarcity • Linkages between gender, displacement and resistance, access to water in peri urban areas • Interface between science and policy in the government of water • Understanding water contestation beyond universalist human rights The growing understanding of water contestation at a moment of global integration, urbanization, climate change and challenge to the neoliberal era of capitalism provides opportunities to think through new theories and identify new possibilities for collective action.

48. Regional Spotlight. Homeless in Seattle:
Responding to a State of Emergency
Session Organizer: Jennifer L. McKinney, Seattle Pacific University
Panelists: Sara Rankin, Seattle University
Karen A. Snedker, Seattle Pacific University
Makoto Hamamoto Eyre, Skb Architects
Discussant: Katherine Beckett, University of Washington

Homelessness is a growing problem in Seattle and King County, where the annual One Night Count for 2015 found 3,772 men, women, and children without access to shelter—a staggering 21 percent increase from 2014. The increasing presence of those who are homeless in the city led to Seattle Mayor Ed Murray and the City Council to declare a state of emergency on homelessness. How do those who are homeless advocate for better housing and resources and how is Seattle responding in unique ways to the crisis?

49. Departmental Management and Leadership Workshop. Adjunct, Contingent, and Part-Time Faculty: Creating Department Structures to Support Faculty and Promote Student Learning
Washington State Convention Center, Room 308, Level Three Session Organizer and Leader: Marisa Camille Allison, George Mason University

In recent years there has been an increased national focus on the growing number of non-tenure track faculty and the conditions in which they work. Tenured and tenure track faculty, who made up almost 60 percent of total faculty in 1975, are now only 25 percent of the professoriate. Non-tenure track faculty are the new faculty majority and research shows that they often lack equitable compensation (with many earning less than a living wage), with little to no benefits to their employment, are heavily relied upon to support the teaching needs of their institutions with little to no assurance of continued employment, have few advancement opportunities, and are given little support for their teaching and within their classrooms. Research has shown that hiring temporary faculty was initially a short-term solution to a set of larger problems in higher education, including a booming student population and a decline in state and government funding. It has now become the standard hiring method at colleges and universities across the nation. This trend toward contingency is accompanied by several well-documented problems, including a decline in educational quality, lower graduation rates and less contact time between faculty and students, band-aid solutions to larger educational staffing problems such as reduced hiring standards, and the rise of what has been described as a “caste-based faculty system.” This workshop will address the ways in which sociologists are affected by the changes within the professoriate and how we can support efforts to improve working conditions on college and university campuses. Examples of best practices both within and outside of sociology programs will be shared to workshop participants.

51. Teaching Workshop. Carrying Out Qualitative Research in the Real World: Confidentiality, Ethics, IRBs, and Other Real-life Challenges
Session Organizer: Karyn Lacy, University of Michigan
Leader: Alford A. Young, University of Michigan
Ethical Issues in Qualitative Methods is a 90-minute workshop designed to offer instruction to graduate students and early career scholars about sensitive issues pertaining to field research in communities housing vulnerable populations, including racial and ethnic, class-based, gender, and LGBT communities. The issues to be explored include the ethics involved in studying vulnerable populations; interpreting university rules regarding interactions with human subjects; data-sharing policies; meeting IRB guidelines; and standards for maintaining confidentiality. The workshop will also include attention to how researchers can best maintain their own emotional and physical safety and security while engaged in such field research as well as ethical issues involved in the analysis of data collected from vulnerable populations and the intellectual politics in writing about them. In essence, research design, data gathering in the field, data analysis, and writing and publication will all be considered as crucial and distinct sites for critical reflection about ethical conduct in researching vulnerable populations.

81. Thematic Session. Challenging Economic Inequality: Leveraging Cracks in the Structures of Business Power
Session Organizer: Fred Block, University of California-Davis
Presider: Nitsan Chorev, Brown University
Panelists: Mark S. Mizruchi, University of Michigan
Stephen Lerner, Georgetown University
Stephanie L. Mudge, University of California-Davis
Fred Block, University of California-Davis

“The 2016 election for president is likely to see a vigorous debate about the deepening inequality of wealth and income in the United States. The issue has already become a major topic in the early maneuvering of candidates in the primaries of both parties. The issue is also being kept alive by social movements fighting for a higher minimum wage and for raises for workers in the fast food industry. At the same time, there is also more and more scholarly discussion of what are the best policy measures for reducing economic inequalities. However, reversing deeply rooted patterns of economic inequality requires big reforms, and the opportunity for major reform initiatives occur rarely in U.S. politics given the power of entrenched economic interests. In fact, a strong current of research in political sociology suggests that such reform breakthroughs are only like to occur when there are deep divisions within the economic elite. Hence, this session will focus on the question of current divisions within the economic elite and the prospects that social movements might leverage those divisions to win major reforms. The speakers will address the issue of fragmentation and division within the U.S. business class and how this might link to movements from below.”

82. Thematic Session. Indigenous Movements in the 21st Century
Session Organizer: Mary Romero, Arizona State University
Presider: Janet Conway, Brock University
The Indigenous Movement and Progress in Brazil: The Need to Redefine Modernity. Angela A. Gonzales, Cornell University; Jonathan Warren, University of Washington Protectors not Protesters: Indigenous Resurgence Movements in Hawai’i and Beyond. Noela Goodyear-Kaopua, University of Hawaii
Discussant: Janet Conway, Brock University

In the face of global capitalism, conditions for indigenous communities have worsen and organizing to against exclusion and dispossession have taken on diverse strategies around the world. Unlike previous indigenous movements, the new movements call for all countries to recognize the rights of indigenous populations, including the right to self-determination, and the right to preserve their culture and heritage.

83. Thematic Session. The New Politics of Participation
Session Organizers: Francesca Polletta, University of California-Irvine and Elisabeth S. Clemens, University of Chicago
Presider: Francesca Polletta, University of California, Irvine
Digital Discourse and Gender-Based Harassment. Sarah Sobieraj, Tufts University
Manufacturing and Marketing New Forms of Civic Engagement. Edward T. Walker, University of California-Los Angeles
The National Politics of Local Democracy. Caroline W. Lee, Lafayette College
Humanities Education and Public Conversation. Andrew J. Perrin and Alanna Gillis, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill
Discussant: Francesca Polletta, University of California-Irvine

Amidst concerns about the public’s disengagement from politics, opportunities for citizen participation in various kinds of deliberative forums have proliferated. Such forums exist alongside the new kinds... of collaboration made possible by the Internet: from Wikipedia and reddit to crowdsourcing. Champions hail an era of Democracy 2.0, in which participation is made easy, fun, and effective. Critics ask, variously, if participation substitutes for power, if the discussion that takes place in the contemporary public sphere is truly deliberative, and if elites end up benefiting more from public participation than the public. This panel tackles the potential and realities of public participation today. Panelists will discuss how the professionalization of participation is shaping its meaning; how women fare in the digital public sphere; how people understand the purposes and limits of advocacy; and what role universities can and should play in creating active citizens.

85. Special Session. Critically Evaluating Religious Diversity (co-sponsored with Association for the Sociology of Religion)
Sheraton Seattle Hotel, Redwood Room A, Second Floor
Session Organizer: Lori Beaman, University of Ottawa
Presider: Heather Shipley, University of Ottawa
Religious Diversity and Migration: Some Critical Thoughts. James Arthur Beckford, University of Warwick Complexity Theory: A Helpful Tool in Theorizing Multiple Religious Trends? Inger Furuseth, University of Oslo
Issues in Measuring Diversity. Peter F. Beyer, University of Ottawa
This session examines religion and diversity, examining the prevalence and use of religious diversity as a catch phrase for sociologists who study the multiplicity of religious practices. One concern about the use of religious diversity is that it can result in identity rigidity, excluding more flexible forms of religious practice and belief. Scholars from various perspectives critically examine the meanings of religious diversity and the consequences of these approaches.

86. Special Session. Nones and the Northwest (co-sponsored with Association for the Sociology of Religion)
Seattle Renaissance Hotel, Municipal Room
Session Organizer and Presider: Ryan T. Cragun, University of Tampa Nones: The New Regional Establishment? James K. Wellman, University of Washington
Emerging Understandings of the Human Person and Community among ‘Nones’ in the Pacific Northwest. Patricia O’Connell Killen, Gonzaga University
Religious Nones in Canada: Freedom from Religion. Joel Thiessen, Ambrose University
The percentage of those who identify as “nones” or non-religious is highest in the Northwestern United States and in Western Canada. In this session, scholars who study regional variation in religiosity examine the factors that have contributed to the high rates of non-religion in this region of the country and how the high rates of non-religion have influenced the culture of this region.

87. Special Session. Rethinking Cannabis Policy Reform Movements
Washington State Convention Center, Room 613, Level Six
Session Organizer and Presider: Joshua S. Meisel, Humboldt State University
Panelists: Philippe Lucas, University of Victoria
Amanda Reiman, Drug Policy Alliance
Mark Cooke, ACLU of Washington
Craig Reinarman, University of California-Santa Cruz
The purpose of this session is to provide a regional focus on cannabis policy reform experiences in Washington, Oregon and British Columbia, with a particular focus on the Seattle, Portland and Vancouver metropolitan areas. While cannabis legalization activists in Washington celebrated their victory in 2012, their Canadian counterparts have struggled in the face of a Federal crackdown on cannabis possession and cultivation. Session participants have been invited from both the academic and activist communities who can shed light on the relative successes and failures of efforts to end cannabis prohibition on both sides of the U.S./Canadian border. These presentations will highlight how cannabis reform social movements navigate rapidly changing political and cultural landscapes. Presentations will draw attention to strategies employed by activist groups to build coalitions, mobilize resources and effectively frame the cannabis legalization debate.

90. Regional Spotlight. Immigration and Refugee Dynamics in the Northwest
Session Organizer: Mytoan Nguyen-Akbar, South Seattle College
Panelists: Roxana Norouzi, One America
Jorge Barron, Northwest Immigrant Rights Project
Beth Takekawa, Wing Luke Museum
Cities and counties are often the primary vehicle for local immigrant and refugee integration efforts. Today, Seattle has become home to one of the most diverse zip codes in the country and boasts 129 languages in its School District. Almost one in five residents is foreign-born. Seattle through its coordinated citywide efforts with civic and nongovernmental organizations and schools is poised to become a leader in local immigrant and refugee integration. The panel will address a brief overview of the history of immigrants and refugees in Seattle’s neighborhoods, current municipal efforts to integrate immigrants and refugees, and timely issues surrounding future Syrian refugee arrivals (estimated for 2017) and the ongoing youth detentions at regional immigrant detention centers.

91. Professional Development Workshop. How (and Why) To Do Corporate Research
Session Organizer and Leader: Robert J.S. Ross, Clark University
To demonstrate the possibilities for teaching and research afforded by online and publicly accessible databases on firms and industries. It is intended as introductory, but participants will be invited to share experiences and resources. Three uses and types of material will be illustrated: one associated with the teaching of a stratification course in which students assess the theories of G. William Domhoff and Michael Useem. This uses Boards of Directors as a starting point. A second illustration is an explication of the kinds of material available in Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) Forms 10 and 14A and some of the NGO databases that use it. A third example will be a corporate profile intended as a resource for anti-sweatshop NGOs, and illustrating the use of multiple sources (including LexisNexis) and collaboration among faculty, graduate students and undergraduates across different campuses. A list of resources will be distributed and if time permits a brief view of them will be provided. Participants who intend to attend may request digital materials ahead of the meeting.

93. Policy and Research Workshop. 50 Years of the National Longitudinal Studies - A Workshop for New and Returning Users
Session Organizer and Leader: Elizabeth C. Cooksey, The Ohio State University
Panelist: Steve McClaskie, The Ohio State University
The first National Longitudinal Study respondent was interviewed in April 1966. Over the past 50 years there have been 7 different longitudinal surveys that have collectively interviewed close to 54,000 respondents with approximately 730,000 interviews and multiple thousands of variables across a wide range of areas of interest to sociologists. Three of the NLS cohorts are ongoing and there are plans to reinterview members of two others. If you have never used the National Longitudinal Surveys before or you have but feel a little rusty, then this is the workshop for you. Elizabeth Cooksey (PI of the NLSY79 Child and Young Adult studies), and Steve McClaskie (head of User Services for the NLS program) will give a brief overview of the various NLS datasets, bring you up to date on new developments, and provide hands on instruction for how to search for information and download data.

94. Teaching Workshop. Creating Undergraduate Applied Sociologists: Starting/ Building and Administering an Internship Program for Sociology Majors
Washington State Convention Center, Room 204, Level Two
Session Organizer and Leader: Ginger E. Macheski, Valdosta State University
Co-Leader: Norma Winston, University of Tampa
More than half of sociology undergraduates do not continue into graduate course work; fewer still pursue graduate work in sociology. Most enter the workforce upon completing their degree. In a sense, the majority of our undergraduate sociology graduates become ‘applied sociologists.’ An internship program imbedded within Sociology curriculum, where students have one foot in the classroom and one foot in the workforce, can help students develop an applied sociological identity and use their ‘sociology toolkit’ in their professional endeavors. This workshop will be twofold: 1) It will give participants concrete materials to build and administer an internship program at their home institutions, and 2) It will discuss ways to encourage our students to maintain their sociological identity and to utilize their sociological training in their internship and subsequent careers.

95. Graduate Programs in Sociology
Washington State Convention Center, Hall 4A, Level Four Session Organizers: Margaret Weigers Vitullo and Jaime Hecht, American Sociological Association
As part of the Graduate Education focus, a resource poster area will be open for browsing in the exhibit hall of the Washington State Convention Center. This poster area will be accessible throughout the Annual Meeting. Attendees can expect to meet representatives from the following participating graduate departments of sociology during this designated time.

126. Thematic Session. Fighting Walmart: From Local Contests to Global Campaigns?
Session Organizer: Virginia Parks, Occidental College
Presider: Penelope W. Lewis, City University of New York-Murphy Institute for Labor Studies
Panelists: Virginia Parks, Occidental College
Carolina Bank Muñoz, City University of New York-Brooklyn College
Eddie Iny, OUR Walmart
In early 2015, Walmart announced a pay hike for its lowest paid workers in the U.S. to $9 an hour. Business pundits explained Walmart’s decision as a natural market response to the tightening labor market of a recovery economy. Other commentators, including Paul Krugman, credited the role of grassroots mobilization and public pressure; in short, power. Social and political mobilization challenging Walmart’s business practices—including low wages, union busting, discriminatory pay, and negative environmental impacts—has changed and evolved over the last decade. This session examines the evolution of these multiple tactics and strategies, ranging from local site fights in urban markets to a national campaign of Walmart workers pressing for better working conditions to unionization campaigns among Walmart workers outside of the U.S. The session focuses on how social actors have defined, or been defined by, the form and scale of engagement in their claims making activities against Walmart, global capitalism’s preeminent economic standards setter. How have the tactics and remedies advocated by these social actors shaped the political terrain of engagement by both mobilizing allies (and opponents) as well as delimiting the scope of possible claims and remedies? Comparative case studies of site fight campaigns, local municipal policy initiatives, labor rights enforcement, and unionization drives serve to elucidate the ways in which local contests may scale up to generate broader global campaigns against Walmartization forces. Alternatively, these case studies may underscore the ways in which popular resistance remains rooted in local political and institutional repertoires of action and remedy. Session participants will consider the relative advantages of different change strategies and their corresponding outcomes of success or failure.

concerning the transformative role of new kinds of publics as a feature of modernity. But this hope easily turns utopian, allowing us to evade questions of which conversations change the world? Through what mechanisms or processes? Through the analyses of episodes of conflict and political engagement, this session opens a conversation on the sociological reconception of the civil sphere.

128. Thematic Session. Transnational Immigrant Movements
Washington State Convention Center, Room 201, Level Two
Session Organizer: Mary Romero, Arizona State University
Presider: Shobha Hamal Gurung, Southern Utah University
Texting and Gathering: Everyday Spaces of Resistance for Indonesian Migrant Domestic Workers in Hong Kong. Merlyna Lim, Carleton University
Globalizing the Grassroots: Care Worker Organizing and the Redefinition of 21st Century Labor Politics. Jennifer Jihye Chun, University of Toronto
Transcending Home Borders: Domestic Workers and Transnational Immigration Activism. Jennifer Fish, Old Dominion University
Discussant: Shobha Hamal Gurung, Southern Utah University
Globalized capitalism has generated the massive movements of peoples across border and challenged both their countries of origin and host countries to respect their human rights and to accept their organizing efforts in finding solutions to improve their conditions. Organizing across borders is gaining strength among workers, youths and families. These movements are explored through DACA organizing in the US and the international organizing of domestic workers.

129. Thematic Session. Unions in Higher Education: Vision, Reality, Analysis
Session Organizer and Presider: Dan Clawson, University of Massachusetts-Amherst Panelists: Martha Ecker, Ramapo College of New Jersey
Ian Robinson, University of Michigan
Unions are a significant presence in higher education. Although faculty unions are unusual in public sector Research I institutions and almost non-existent in the private sector, faculty unions are important in much of the public sector, graduate student unions have increased dramatically in the last twenty years, and unions are common among clerical and maintenance staff. What is the promise/vision of higher education unions and what is a realistic assessment of what they have (and have not) accomplished? What sorts of issues are and are not addressed by research on higher education unions? How can the research inform union practice, and in what ways does union practice suggest research issues? This session will involve a moderated panel discussion, with the presider posing a set of questions to panelists. Significant time will be reserved for audience participation.

130. Special Session. 20 Years since Welfare Reform
Session Organizer and Presider: Celeste M. Watkins-Hayes, Northwestern University
Panelists: Linda Marie Burton, Duke University
Ellen R. Reese, University of California-Riverside
Scott W. Allard, University of Washington
The passage of the 1996 Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act (PRWORA) set a new and definitive tone in the United States’ stance toward aid to the poor, that of time-limited cash assistance. At the same time, the Affordable Care Act, the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (formerly known as food stamps), and the Earned Income Tax Credit have gained increased attention as important policies and programs for low-income individuals. What is the current state of the social safety net for low-income families, and what are the lasting effects of these massive shifts to the welfare system? What are the current dimensions of poverty in the US and how do they differ from the pre-PRWORA era? In this session, leading scholars in the field will reflect on the political, economic, and social impact of welfare reform and point to new directions in the study of poverty, social policy, and collective organizing by and for the poor.

Session Organizer: Patricia E. White, National Science Foundation
Leader: R. Saylor Breckenridge, Wake Forest University
Co-Leaders: Julia Potter Adams, Yale University
Hannah Brueckner, New York University-Abu Dhabi
David B. Grusky, Stanford University
Paolo Parigi, Stanford University
The Sociology Program at the National Science Foundation (NSF) supports large-scale data infrastructure projects and basic research projects to construct and analyze “big data,” and develop new methods and theoretical frameworks by which it can be used in basic research. This session focuses on the research context, trade-offs, limitations, and promises of “big data” for basic social science research. Representatives from the NSF Sociology Program, and Principle Investigators (PIs) on NSF-funded big data projects will describe data accessibility and availability, analytical techniques and tools, conceptualization and theoretical framing, and major research findings from funded research. The session is interactive; audience participation is encouraged.

Five years ago, a new wave of social movements emerged in the United States and worldwide, beginning with the Occupy Wall Street movement which began in New York City and then spread across the nation and the globe. This in turn gave rise to a variety of other social movements, from Black Lives Matter, to the Fight for 15, and more. Panelists will discuss this new cycle of protest, its impact and its future prospects.

PSID A national study of socioeconomics and health over lifetimes and across generations

- 39 waves of data collected on a nationally representative sample of over 9,000 U.S. families, allowing the study of life-course evolution and change within families over multiple generations
- Economic, sociological, demographic, and psychological data including marriage, birth histories, adult and childhood health conditions, poverty indicators, income, wealth, expenditures, food security, housing, mortgage distress and foreclosures
- Health and aging data, including time use, well-being, retirement transitions, onset and duration of chronic health conditions, activities of daily living, mortality, health care expenditures, pensions and wealth accumulation
- Create intergenerational datasets by linking multiple waves of PSID data (including elderly parents and adult children)
- NEW Data have been released including - 2015 Main PSID Early Release File - Housing, Mortgage Distress, Food Security and Wealth 2014 Childhood Retrospective Circumstances Study (CRCS)

Displaced Labor, Transnational Lives, and Local Placemaking

Faranak Miraftab

“[V]ery accessible, and yet [it] teaches us an original way to think about the issues of globalization, labor and work, provincialism, and cultural-social reproduction within and across ethnic communities. . . . [E]xtremely readable, cogent, beautifully told, and thought-provoking.”

Faked in China

Nation Branding, Counterfeit Culture, and Globalization

Fan Yang

Faked in China is a critical account of globalization’s cultural impact on China. Since joining the World Trade Organization in 2001, the Chinese state has worked to improve its image in the wake of highly publicized consumer scares. Fan Yang examines the contradictory effect of IPR, the international property rights regime, in the tension between the government’s project of nation-branding and the growth of counterfeit culture, the transnational making, selling, and buying of unauthorized products.

164. Thematic Session. Gender Equity and Social Policy: Solving Work/Family Conflicts
Session Organizer: Barbara Jane Risman, University of Illinois-Chicago
Presider: Pallavi Banerjee, University of Calgary
Panelists: Barbara M. Hobson, Stockholm University
Mauro Migliavacca, University of Genoa
Hana Hašková, Institute of Sociology of the Czech Academy of Sciences
Anne Revillard, Sciences Po
Discussant: Janet Gornick, City University of New York-Graduate Center

There remains a fundamental incompatibility between the structure of the paid labor force and the ability to do caretaking labor for those with whom we have personal relationships. The presumption that “ideal workers” have domestic partners whose job it is to do caretaking work remains an underlying presumption within economic organizations which disadvantages women, and creates class divides among women based on the ability to outsource traditional female caretaking work. Resolving this dilemma is one project of feminists around the world. This panel will bring together feminist researchers who are studying the policies designed to resolve work/family conflicts, assessing how much they remain projects about gender equality or not, as well as assessing their success as social policy.

165. Thematic Session. One Year after Obergefell v. Hodges: The Case of Marriage Equality
Session Organizer: Brian Powell, Indiana University
Presider: Elbert P. Almazan, Central Michigan University
Panelists: Kathleen E. Hull, University of Minnesota
Wendy Diane Manning, Bowling Green State University
Debra Umberson, University of Texas-Austin
Mary Bernstein, University of Connecticut
Discussant: Brian Powell, Indiana University

Over a year has passed since the 2015 landmark case of Obergefell v. Hodges in which the Supreme Court ruled that the ban on same-sex marriage was unconstitutional. To what extent were social movements, public opinion, and the academy responsible for these remarkable changes in legal rights for same-sex couples? To what extent do these legal changes reshape the agenda of LGBT social movements and scholarship on LGBT issues, family, the law, and social change? A panel of leading sociologists of sexualities, family, the law, and social movements weighs in on these questions.

166. Thematic Session. The Broken Spring: The Arab Uprisings and Their Aftermaths
Sheraton Seattle Hotel, Willow Room A, Second Floor
Session Organizer and Presider: Charles Kurzman, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill
Panelists: Brandon Gorman, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill
Hazem Kandil, Cambridge University
Neil Ketchley, University of Oxford
Dana M. Moss, University of Pittsburgh
Discussants: Asaf Bayat, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and Zakia Salime, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers

The “Arab Spring” uprisings of 2010-2011 produced a moment of nearly unanimous jubilation in the Middle East and among observers worldwide. Among the celebrants was the field of social movement studies, which was initially puzzled by the sudden success of these largely peaceful mass movements, but eager to delve into new avenues of analysis that the uprisings launched into view, including the uses of social media, the role of symbolic spaces, and the specter of food insecurity. Several years later, optimism for the region has almost entirely disappeared, but these and other puzzles remain. This panel will examine the implications of the Arab Spring uprisings and their tumultuous aftermaths for the study of social movements around the world. The panel is composed of young scholars who conducted dissertation fieldwork in the region, with two senior scholars acting as discussants and instigators of audience participation, offering both specific feedback on the papers and broader debate on underlying issues: Can social movement studies be moved by analyses of a region so often treated as culturally distant from the heart of the field? If so, what can the field learn from cases whose dramatic turns have caused such whiplash among both participants and observers?
167. Thematic Session. U.S. Feminism in the 21st Century
Session Organizer and Presider: Jo Reger, Oakland University
Panelists: Anne Slater, Seattle Chapter of Radical Women
Alison Dahl Crossley, Stanford University
Discussant: Jo Reger, Oakland University
U.S. feminist activism continues into the 21st century, addressing long-standing as well as new issues all in a mix of debate, dissension, unity, solidarity and division. This panel will explore some of the most pressing matters for contemporary feminists and provide an analysis of its history. The panelists will speak to issues of race, class, sexuality, sex and gender in the U.S. women’s movement.

168. Special Session. Attack on Public Education K-12
Washington State Convention Center, Room 612, Level Six
Session Organizer and Leader: Linda Renzulli, University of Georgia
Panelists: Dennis J. Condon, Oakland University
Adam Gamoran, William T. Grant Foundation
Aaron M. Pallas, Columbia University
Barbara L. Schneider, Michigan State University
This panel brings together leading scholars doing work to change the conversation about public education. Currently the attacks on education include the teaching profession, standardized testing and curriculum, and neo-liberal and privatization pressures when it comes to public education (e.g., charter schools, vouchers, homeschooling, etc). The panelists will discuss attacks and efforts to change public education, the implications of the changes occurring, and will offer insight into whether and/or how sociologists might more effectively engage in these matters.

169. Author Meets Critics Session. Labor’s Love Lost The Rise and Fall of the Working-Class Family in America (Russell Sage Foundation, 2014) by Andrew J. Cherlin
Washington State Convention Center, Room 304, Level Three
Session Organizer: Frank F. Furstenberg, University of Pennsylvania
Critics: Megan M. Sweeney, University of California-Los Angeles
Steven Mintz, University of Texas-Austin
Author: Andrew J. Cherlin, Johns Hopkins University

Session Organizer: Vincent J. Roscigno, The Ohio State University
Presider: Alexandra Kaliv, Tel Aviv University

171. Professional Development Workshop. Navigating Queer Identities in Research
Session Organizer: Angela Jones, State University of New York-Farmingdale Presider and Leader: Jaime Hartless, University of Virginia
Panelists: Stef M. Shuster, Appalachian State University
Mimi Schippers, Tulane University
Keeping in line with the mission of the caucus, this panel will provide an opportunity to have a dialogue about how our queer identities impact various aspects of the research process, which may include, but are certainly not limited to: acquiring funding, IRB experiences, collaborating with other scholars, fieldwork, publishing, etc. The panel will consist of scholars at various stages of their academic careers (e.g., senior scholars, junior scholars, post-docs, and graduate students). Past panels were comprised of Associate and Full Professors, which was another problem identified in the survey that this panel will overcome. In addition, we have included panelists from both research and teaching centered institutions in order to reflect the diversity of experiences sociologists have based on their milieu. The workshop will be open to all ASA members, and affiliation with the ASA Sociologists LGBTQ Caucus is not required. In fact, these workshops not only serve the needs of the existing members of the caucus, but also help to make the caucus more visible to other members of ASA.

Washington State Convention Center, Room 308, Level Three
Session Organizer and Leader: Patricia E. White, National Science Foundation
Co-Leaders: Jennifer Earl, University of Arizona
Beth A. Rubin, University of North Carolina-Charlotte
Marc Schneiberg, Reed College
This workshop targets graduate students, faculty, and researchers who are new at proposal writing and submission or interested in learning about funding opportunities for sociological research at the National Science Foundation (NSF). Representatives from NSF, its research review committees, and grantees will discuss the proposal development process, elements of a competitive proposal, proposal submission and review, and funding opportunities for sociological research. The format will be interactive, allowing for audience questions and participation. Time is allotted for providing advice on how to prepare competitive doctoral dissertation proposals. Attend the Research Opportunities and Data Resources poster session for one-on-one discussions with NSF Program Officers.

Panelists: Andrew J. Perrin, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill
David Weakliem, University of Connecticut
After a long period of neglect, public opinion is once again receiving attention from sociologists. There is a good deal of scholarship showing that public opinion influences many government policies. However, the factors that cause change in public opinion are not well understood: there are interesting ideas and pieces of evidence, but little systematic research or theorizing. There are no generally accepted answers to questions such as why support for same-sex marriage has risen rapidly over the last few decades, whether recessions cause a rise in support for welfare programs or a “backlash” against the poor, or whether there has been an increase in polarization among the general public. This session will ask the panelists to offer perspectives on change in public opinion, either by synthesizing existing work or by proposing new ideas that could be evaluated in empirical investigations. The panelists will be asked to address one or more of the following issues in their presentations: the relative importance of different potential sources of change in opinion, including economic and demographic change, the activity of social movements, and media coverage and framing; the impact of historical experiences such as war or recessions; innovation and the spread of new ideas—why some move from marginal to mainstream, and others stall; whether there is a general direction of change in public opinion and if so, how it should be characterized—for example, as a movement towards liberalism, individualism, or the expansion of rights.

198. Thematic Session. Journalism and Social Change
Session Organizer and Presider: Christopher R Martin, University of Northern Iowa
Panelists: Sarah Jaffe, Nation Institute
E. Tammy Kim, The New Yorker
Harold Meyerson, L.A. Weekly
Claudia Rowe, Seattle Times
In their now-classic book The Elements of Journalism, Bill Kovach and Tom Rosenstiel argue that to “provide people with the information they need to be free and self-governing” journalism needs to stand for clear principles. Primary among these principles: journalism’s first obligation is to the truth, its first loyalty is to citizens, and it must serve as a monitor to power. Is the very essence of good journalism progressive? How has, and should, journalism – including the so-called mainstream media and alternative/progressive media – contributed to progressive movement-building? Can profit-based, corporate news media be obligated to the truth, loyal to citizens, and monitor power? Is truth-telling enough, or should there be a more directed crusading (or muckraking) element to progressive journalism? A wide range of practicing journalists bring multiple viewpoints to this discussion of the role of journalism in social change.

199. Thematic Session. Rethinking Black Power Movement Outcomes
Session Organizer: Belinda Robnett, University of California-Irvine
Presider: Fabio Rojas, Indiana University
Panelists: Joshua Bloom, University of California-Los Angeles
Alondra Nelson, Columbia University
Joyce Bell, University of Pittsburgh
Discussant: Andreana L. Clay, San Francisco State University 2016 marks the 50th anniversary of the first documented use of the term “Black Power". Little scholarship exists that documents the activities or outcomes of the Black Power Movement. While some claim it had positive cultural identity outcomes, it is often deemed a violent movement that interfered with Black mainstream progress, and had little long-term political or broader social influence. Recently, scholars have chronicled the emergence and consequences of the movement that challenge these predominant understandings. The proposed panel will include Joshua Bloom, whose recent book, Black against Empire, provides a comprehensive account of the Black Panther Party beyond its role as the radical flank following on the heels of a waning civil rights movement. The author of Body and Soul, Alondra Nelson, will add a richly nuanced discussion of the Black Panther Party’s health activism that tackled racism in the medical establishment and led to free community health centers. Joyce Bell’s recent book, The Black Power Movement and American Social Work, shows how the ideology and strategies of the Black Power Movement spilled over to influence the National Association of Black Social Workers and served to shape public policies governing the adoption of Black children by non-Blacks. The discussant will be Andreana Clay, author of The Hip-Hop Generation Fights Back: Youth, Activism and Post-Civil Rights Politics.

200. Thematic Session. Social Change from the Bottom Up? The Status of Social Movements in the Middle East
Session Organizer and Presider: Michael Schwartz, Stony Brook State University
Panelists: Gilbert Achcar, University of London
Juan R. Cole, University of Michigan
Deepa Kumar, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers
Valentine M. Moghadam, Northeastern University

Media coverage and popular histories of the Middle East focus on the attempts by the Global North to integrate the region into United States-led-market-driven globalization, the struggles by corrupt authoritarian regimes to sustain, retain, or consolidate power, and the sometimes-spectacular attempts by competing or insurgent elites to overthrow the existing power structure. A usually ignored aspect of these high profile conflicts has been the importance of popular mass movements that have challenged the rule and the goals of the various elite contenders. These movements have sought and sometimes achieved major victories, even when faced by devastating military invasions from the Global North, the fully mobilized repressive apparatus of authoritarian regimes, and the sometimes-spectacular terrorism of contending elites. Only during the Arab Spring did these social-movement engines of resistance and social change become visible in the mainstream media and popular press. But this visibility subsided with the subsidence of the Arab Spring, despite the continued relevance and importance of popular mass movements, both in the high visibility “hot spots” and the low visibility countries without media-worthy elite conflicts. This session will look at the shape and condition of mass movements in the region in the years since the Arab Spring, and discuss the prospects for meaningful social change.

202. Special Session. Attacks on Higher Education
Washington State Convention Center, Room 201, Level Two Session Organizer and Presider: Neil Gross, Colby College
Panelists: Amy J. Binder, University of California-San Diego
Jason Owen-Smith, University of Michigan
Michael Hout, New York University
Elizabeth A. Armstrong, University of Michigan

America’s public colleges and universities are currently facing threats and challenges that are unprecedented in their scope and magnitude. While some of these reflect a genuine need to adapt to a changing environment, others stem from concerted efforts by interested parties to fundamentally alter higher education. In this panel leading sociologists of higher education will survey the contemporary situation and offer their thoughts on how the public college and university sector might successfully navigate the challenges that lay before it.

203. Special Session. U.S. Health Care Policy and Reform
Session Organizer: Aixa N. Cintron-Velez, Russell Sage Foundation
Presider: Sheldon Danziger, Russell Sage Foundation
Panelists: Sandra R. Levitsky, University of Michigan
Helen Levy, University of Michigan
Theeda Skocpol, Harvard University
Peter Orszag, Lazard

The 2010 Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (ACA) represents the most significant reform of the U.S. health care system in decades. But the new law, which encompasses a hybrid financing system to increase access to insurance for low- and moderate-income Americans, did not result from a large-scale popular movement demanding access to affordable and quality care. There were some ballot initiatives and political campaigns for universal care or for a single-payer system in a handful of states (e.g., Maine, Massachusetts, Oregon), but for the most part health care reform at the beginning of the 21st Century resulted from government led action, not unlike that of the Johnson administration 50 years ago. Today, popular support for reform remains fragmented, despite the promise of the ACA to redress the problems of un-insurance and under-insurance and of achieving other social, economic and political goals. Is health care reform different (in sponsorship, tactics and goals) this time around from earlier efforts at revamping the system and how so? Will recent experience with the ACA foster a movement for universal health care, or a single-payer system or will it prevent government-led policy interventions of this kind in the future? Do improvements achieved through the ACA represent a step forward or an obstacle to more comprehensive reform? What social, economic and political forces help explain the passage of the ACA? What are the critiques of the American health care system that may galvanize support for deeper or different reforms?

206. Regional Spotlight. Marijuana—Legalization and Commercialization
Session Organizer and Presider: Alexes Harris, University of Washington
Panelists: Michael Vuolo, The Ohio State University
Alexes Harris, University of Washington
This panel would discuss current research on illegal and legal marijuana markets with focus on why there is a move towards decriminalization, how states have been organizing and what the outcomes have been. We could also talk about local markets, national markets, and the movement towards decriminalization and think through the potential unintended consequences of legalization.

207. Departmental Management and Leadership Workshop. Improving Department Climate: Concrete Steps Based on Evidence-CANCELLED

208. Professional Development Workshop. IRBs and Responsible Conduct of Research with Children, Inmates and other Potentially Sensitive Groups
Session Organizer and Leader: Charles L. Bosk, University of Pennsylvania

209. Policy and Research Workshop. Seeking Research Funding from the National Institutes of Health (NIH)
Session Organizer and Leader: John W. Curtis, American Sociological Association
Panelists: Bridget Goosby, University of Nebraska- Lincoln
Kyle Crowder, University of Washington
Alice Cepeda, University of Southern California
Augusto Diana, Department of Health and Human Services
Sociologists carry out vitally important research related to disparities in health outcomes, barriers in access to care, and the social environment in which lifestyle decisions and healthcare take place. The National Institutes of Health (NIH) fund research on these topics, but sociologists may not be familiar with NIH procedures and priorities. This session will provide guidance in identifying relevant NIH programs, different funding mechanism (Rs and Ks and all), and submitting a successful funding proposal.

210. Teaching Workshop. Navigating Difficult Dialogues about Current Events in the Classroom and on Campus
Session Organizer and Leader: Jeanne Flavin, Fordham University
Co-Leader: Shirley A. Jackson, Portland State University
This workshop provides general guidance as well as specific strategies for encouraging thoughtful and productive discussions of current events. Particular attention will be given to discussions of race and campus racism and LGBTQI+ identities and concerns. We also will present some guiding principles to shape classroom and campus conversations as well as techniques for regrouping when a discussion “goes off the rails.”
211. Minority Fellowship Program (MFP) Professional Workshop. Stratification in Academic Career Trajectories for Minority PhD Recipients

Sheraton Seattle Hotel, Cedar Room A, Second Floor

Session Organizers and Leaders: Roberta M. Spalter-Roth and Jean H. Shin, American Sociological Association

Discussants: Sabrina Akbar Alimahomed, University of California-Riverside
Willie Pearson, Georgia Institute of Technology
Cheryl B. Leggon, Georgia Institute of Technology
Elizabeth Higginbotham, University of Delaware

This workshop session seeks to investigate and theorize the experiences of under-represented minorities (URMs), especially black and Hispanic scholars in sociology, as they vary by gender. A major purpose is to measure specific aspects of stratification processes that may create or re-create inequalities in the academic career trajectories of these groups. We emphasize two concepts that we have made operational to study the career trajectories of about 400 sociologists—the first is the career outcomes of these scholars and the second is their participation (or lack thereof) in largely white or diverse racial/ethnic worlds. Career outcomes include: 1) obtaining employment at a research-extensive university; 2) achieving tenure and the rank of associate professor within eight years of obtaining a PhD; and 3) attaining the rank of full professor within fourteen years of obtaining a PhD. The concept of “two worlds” (from W.E.B. DuBois) uses measures that reflect participation in largely white academic world, a more diverse black or Hispanic academic world, or both. These measures include teaching at minority-serving institutions versus predominantly white institutions, teaching in racial/ethnic studies-oriented departments, publishing in racial/ethnic studies-oriented journals, and having participated in the certain ASA Sections or the Minority Fellowship Program (MFP).

270. Research Funding Opportunities and Data Resources (part of the Research Support Forum)

Session Organizer: Nicole V. Amaya, American Sociological Association
This poster/exhibit session provides a unique occasion to meet representatives of major research funding institutions and principal investigators, researchers, and managers of large-scale datasets that are publicly available for use. Each display by a funding institution provides a visual overview of research funding and the application process, materials for distribution, and time for direct individual discussion. Data resource representatives are available to talk about the featured datasets, their analytic potential, and issues relating to access and use, including state-of-the-art Internet services to access datasets. This is an opportunity for meeting attendees to learn about these datasets and their potential for research and teaching. All meeting participants, including students, are encouraged to attend. You can find the abstracts for each poster at https://convention2.allacademic.com/one/asa/asa16/.

Discussant: Dana M. Britton, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers

This panel explores the paradoxes of feminists seeking to enhance gender equality while universities have been expanding a neoliberal policy agenda across these globalizing institutions of higher education. Universities as workplace organizations have attracted much attention from feminists for decades. Paradoxically, the inequalities the neo-liberal policy directions encourage have been accompanied by increased attention to policies that enhance gender equality. Comparing recent feminist and feminist activism promoting gender equality in academia in different countries and continents, the panel asks what the strategies, pitfalls, and dilemmas are of pursuing feminist goals in increasingly managerially oriented universities. We consider particularly how feminist interventions are shaped by the larger context of university reforms that increase managerial control over faculty; focus on national competitiveness in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM), and increase class inequality. Noted gender theorists such as Fraser (2013) see the neoliberal embrace of gender reform as coopting feminist concerns, as the instrumental arguments in support of gender equality in higher education increasingly resemble what Edelman, Fuller, and Mara-Drita (2001) describe as the “business case for diversity” that replaced a social justice rationale in corporations. Our discussion will highlight feminist reform politics by analyzing how gender equality approaches in universities emerge in and are shaped by their historical, national and global contexts. Each panelist will be asked to highlight these paradoxes for feminists and contextualize their countries’ experiences in the particular contexts.

272. Thematic Session. The Worlds of Domestic Work: Regulation and Organization
Sheraton Seattle Hotel, Willow Room A, Second Floor
Session Organizer: Eileen Boris, University of California-Santa Barbara Presider: Helma Lutz, Goethe University-Frankfurt
A Multi-scale Comparison of Responses to Abuse Against Domestic Migrant Workers in Taiwan, Hong Kong and Shanghai. Andre Laliberte, University of Ottawa
Care, Migration, Gender: Pieces of an Uncompleted Puzzle. Sonya Alice Michel, University of Maryland, College Park; Rianne Mahon, Balsillie School of International Affairs
Care and Migration Policies in Japan and South Korea. Ito Peng, University of Toronto
Discussant: Ai-Jen Poo, National Domestic Workers Alliance

This interdisciplinary panel explores the various worlds of domestic work across the globe through case studies of regulation and resistance. Domestic work has historically been difficult to regulate because of its personal and private nature. Currently in the world’s wealthier nations, domestic work, including care work, is increasingly being performed by migrant women from poor and emerging economies, adding another layer of complexity—immigration—to the challenge of regulating this type of labor. To understand the worlds of commodified domestic work, these papers emphasize the need for a multi-scale perspective, looking at connections among local/grassroots, national, and international/transnational advocacy organizations and regulatory bodies as well as the organization of workers themselves. The panel considers how states, international institutions, and globalization itself organize domestic work and how advocates and workers organize in light of these structures, laws, and policies.

273. Special Session. Contributions of the Spivak CARI Awardees of the Last 20 Years
Sheraton Seattle Hotel, Willow Room B, Second Floor Session Organizer: Brad Smith, American Sociological Association
Presider: Richard A. Williams, University of Notre Dame
Panelists: Caitlin Patler, University of California-Davis
Mark Sherry, University of Toledo
Amy L. Stone, Trinity University
The Value of Public Academic Partnerships to Non-Profit Programing and Why Research Matters. Stephanie W. Hartwell, University of Massachusetts-Boston
Discussant: Richard A. Williams, University of Notre Dame

For over 20 years the ASA has sponsored the Community Action Research Initiative (CARI) grant. This small grant encourages sociologists to undertake community action projects that bring social science knowledge, methods, and expertise to bear in addressing community-identified issues and concerns. During this session CARI grant research and the influence it has had on the local communities will be presented.

274. Special Session. Intersecting Identities (co-sponsored with Association for the Sociology of Religion)
Seattle Renaissance Hotel, Municipal Room
Session Organizer: Ryan T. Cragun, University of Tampa
Presider: Lain A.B. Mathers, University of Illinois-Chicago
Reflections on Intersectionality as Method. Mary Jo Neitz, University of Missouri Doing Gender, Doing Religion: The Case for Intersectionality in Theorizing Gender and Religion. Orit Avishai, Fordham University
The Virtues and Challenges of Religious Space for People of Color in America. Korie L. Edwards, The Ohio State University
Exploring (non)religious LGBTQ Intersections. J. E. Sumerau, University of Tampa Intersectional approaches to religion are just beginning to be explored. This session brings together scholars who approach the study of religion from a variety of different intersections: religion and race, religion and gender, and religion and sexuality. The session explores the different insights that result from examining religion from intersectional perspectives.
275. Special Session. The Obama Presidency
Washington State Convention Center, Room 201, Level Two
Session Organizer and Presider: Mary E. Pattillo, Northwestern University
Panelists: Tanya Maria Golash-Boza, University of California-Merced
Jake Rosenfeld, Washington University-St. Louis
Rubén G. Rumbaut, University of California-Irvine
Theda Skocpol, Harvard University
Christopher Uggen, University of Minnesota
The election of Barack Obama as the first African American president of the United States was an historic moment. His election raised the expectations for bold social policy aimed at reducing inequalities and improving the situations for the most disadvantaged Americans. The Obama Presidency has also motivated an abundance of academic research and political and social commentary. This session will explore how the country has changed (or not) over the eight years of the Obama Presidency. Panelists will explore the impact and potential legacy of The Obama Presidency on immigration; race, class, and gender inequality; international politics and relations; labor and employment; health care; criminal justice, and political participation and organizing. The panel will not only look backwards, but also highlight how sociological knowledge can and should inform policymaking and organizing into the next election.

276. Special Session. What Social Movements Theories Can Tell Us about Nonreligion (co-sponsored with Association for the Sociology of Religion)
Sheraton Seattle Hotel, Redwood Room A, Second Floor

279. Professional Development Workshop. Getting Beyond “Other”: Quantitative Analysis Using Detailed Demographic Categories
Panelists: Marlese Durr, Wright State University
Kimberly R. Huysers, University of New Mexico
As surveys and administrative data collections have been modified to reflect new perspectives on individual identities, quantitative researchers are confronted with a methodological challenge. Analysis of these datasets may include expanded detailed demographic categories that are too small to yield meaningful statistical results, or may create privacy concerns. One typical response has been to lump small categories together as “other,” defeating the purpose of the detailed data collection in the process. This session will review strategies for disaggregated analysis, illustrated with examples utilizing combinations of gender, race and ethnicity, and sexual orientation.
Washington State Convention Center, Room 305, Level Three
Session Organizer and Leader: Janet Gornick, City University of New York-Graduate Center

281. Teaching Workshop. Presenting about Teaching? Publish about Teaching! A Workshop Sponsored by TRAILS and Teaching Sociology
Sheraton Seattle Hotel, Cedar Room A, Second Floor
Session Organizer and Leader: Margaret Weigers Vitullo, American Sociological Association
Panelists: Julie Pelton, University of Nebraska-Omaha
Stephen A. Sweet, Ithaca College
Jaime Hecht, American Sociological Association
Michele Lee Kozimor-King, Elizabethtown College
Are you presenting the results of an innovative pedagogical strategy at this year’s meeting? Do you want to learn how to contribute to the scholarship of teaching and learning within the discipline of sociology? This workshop, sponsored and led by editors and editorial board members of Teaching Sociology and the Teaching Resources and Innovations Library in Sociology (TRAILS), will provide you with information on two key publication outlets for your work: Teaching Sociology (TS) and TRAILS. In this workshop, we will discuss the differences in the materials that are published in TS and TRAILS, highlight the expectations for submissions, and provide opportunities for attendees to craft a submission outline. This workshop will be especially useful for meeting attendees who are presenting original work on pedagogy at the annual meeting.

Evidence for Action

Investigator-Initiated Research to Build a Culture of Health

Looking for research funding?

Evidence for Action (E4A) funds rigorously designed quantitative, qualitative, or mixed methods research that expands the evidence base needed to build a Culture of Health. Our mission is to support research that yields convincing findings regarding the population health, well-being and equity impacts of specific policies, programs and partnerships. Evidence generated through E4A should aid practitioners and policymakers in setting priorities and allocating resources. While we primarily target late-stage research that directly tests health outcomes, a smaller portfolio of grants is dedicated to the development and validation of key measures to improve the assessment of population health, well-being and equity.

Visit our website or connect with us today for more information about our program and the application process. There is no deadline to apply.

Panelists: David Pellow, University of California-Santa Barbara

Jill Stein, Global Climate Convergence for People, Planet and Peace Over Profit

Corrie Ellis Grosse, University of California-Santa Barbara

Description: By December 2015, the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change will have convened in Paris to finalize a global climate treaty. However, the process has been marked by a protracted stalemate between the interests of the global North and the global South. Simultaneously, a sprawling climate justice movement has been growing in numbers, reach, and strength, interlinked in a vast network of networks. As December 2015 approaches and passes, these movements are hoping to persuade governments and global institutions to take decisive steps that include signing on to a fair and binding global climate treaty and charting pathways toward deeply sustainable societies. This session will address the post-2015 situation, asking whether it remains possible to “change everything,” as Naomi Klein puts it in her bestselling book (and 2015 film by the same name) This Changes Everything: Capitalism vs. the Climate. Consisting of prominent public intellectuals, climate activists, and interdisciplinary scholars, the panel will collectively address the question: how can the global environmental and climate justice movements work creatively to craft action plans that address the root causes and future impacts of climate change? In doing so, we will be rethinking the most important global social movement of the 21st century, and the issue of humanity’s response to the problem of climate change will define the conditions of life as the century wears on.

311. Thematic Session. When Changing the Conversation Matters: Lessons from Southern Europe

Session Organizer: Robert M. Fishman, Carlos III University

Presider: Mabel Berezin, Cornell University

From Protest in the Streets to Party-System Change: Spain’s Indignados Movement and the Growth of Podemos. Eduardo Romanos, Universidad Complutense de Madrid

Discussant: Jeff Goodwin, New York University
Description: Southern Europe provides a useful vantage point for addressing the 2016 meeting theme. Even before the recent wave of protests over austerity policies, countries in this region were world leaders in the sheer volume and public visibility of social protest, much of it focused on efforts to change the public agenda through discourse and mobilization. Yet the impact of popular energies expressed in the streets has varied enormously between—and within—these countries. Discursive creativity has been a frequent mark of protests but the ability of activists to achieve favorable results in matters of public policy—and other societal outcomes—has been anything but constant. Spain’s M-15 movement of Indignados has reoriented tendencies in public opinion but has been denounced by elected office-holders who question its legitimacy. In contrast in Portugal, on crucial occasions, office holders have not only engaged in ‘conversation’ with protesters but have also changed policies in response to public pressure. This cross-national contrast is reflected in the evolution of distributional outcomes in the two countries. Greece and Italy have faced economic challenges and waves of protest that hold much in common with the salience of social movements in Portugal and Spain but the ability of conversation and discourse to achieve at least some of their goals has varied greatly within these countries. This thematic panel will focus on the southern European experience, exploring the impact of protesters’ discursive innovation and energy on socio-structural and political change. Most of the papers will engage in comparative analysis, drawing contrasts within—and beyond—southern Europe.

312. Special Session. Movements Matter: Connecting the Local and Global in Addressing Violence Against Women
Session Organizer and Presider: Bandana Purkayastha, University of Connecticut
Panelists: Margaret Abraham, Hofstra University
Eleanor Lyon, University of Connecticut
Discussant: Bandana Purkayastha, University of Connecticut
This session will focus on movements to address violence against women. It will include American and international scholars on movements and initiatives at international platforms and specific countries. The speakers will address topics such as mobilization to address VAW, initiatives in specific countries to address VAW (including sexual violence in conflict zones) as well as the role of the United Nations to expand the meanings and accounting of VAW.

Discussant: Elizabeth Hordge-Freeman, University of South Florida

314. Policy and Research Workshop. Qualitative Research: Funding Opportunities and Review at the National Science Foundation
Session Organizer and Leader: Patricia E. White, National Science Foundation
Co-Leaders: Edwin Amenta, University of California-Irvine
Sarah Damaske, Pennsylvania State University
Roslyn A. Mickelson, University of North Carolina-Charlotte
Stefanie Molboll, University of Colorado-Boulder
Toby L. Parcel, North Carolina State University
The National Science Foundation (NSF) supports sociological research that uses the full range of social science methodological approaches that includes qualitative methods. Yet, an ongoing and persistent myth is that the NSF does not fund research that uses qualitative techniques. The NSF Sociology Program supports qualitative research proposals via its general program announcement and an ongoing program solicitation, Strengthening Qualitative Research through Methodological Innovation and Integration. Presenters will discuss how to prepare competitive qualitative research proposals; the NSF peer review system and review process; and the application of the NSF evaluation criteria to qualitative research. They will also share their experiences in developing, reviewing and securing funding for projects that reflect various qualitative approaches as well as qualitative methodological innovations and the integration. The session is interactive: audience participation is encouraged.

316. ASA/NSF Postdoctoral Fellowship Program Professional Workshop. The Value of Postdoctorates in Academic Career Trajectories: Should Sociology Follow the Natural and Physical Sciences Model?
Washington State Convention Center, Room 615, Level Six
Session Organizers and Leaders: Roberta M. Spalter-Roth and Jean H. Shin, American Sociological Association
Discussants: Sarah Thebaud, University of California-Santa Barbara and Margaret Michele Gough, University of La Verne
The postdoctorate is an institutionalized stage towards a faculty position the natural and physical science pipelines. In sociology, a field that has not traditionally used the postdoctorate as a stage in the academic career trajectory, there is increasing interest in the role of post-doctoral training in the discipline. This workshop reviews what we know about the value of postdocs on sociological careers, based on two studies that compare those who participated in postdoctoral programs with a matched group of sociologists who did not. It investigates whether participating in a postdoctoral training program is more likely to result in tenure-track positions at Research I universities; whether they increase the amount and importance of scholarly productivity; and whether the result in greater participation in scholarly networks compared to those who did not participate in postdoctoral programs. A major purpose of this research is to begin to answer a series of questions about the role that postdoctoral appointments play in PhD career trajectories and whether or not sociology should follow the model of the natural and physical sciences in institutionalizing this level of training.

10:30 am Sessions
346. Presidential Panel. ASA Town Hall Meeting
Washington State Convention Center, Room 2A-2B, Level Two Session Organizer: Aldon D. Morris, Northwestern University
Presider: Ruth Milkman, City University of New York-Graduate Center
Panelists: Eduardo Bonilla-Silva, Duke University; David G. Embrick, University of Connecticut; Julian Go, Boston University; Mignon R. Moore, Barnard College-Columbia University; Aldon D. Morris, Northwestern University
Sociologists study social inequality across the world. Yet, they seldom examine their own house. The time has arrived for sociologists to take a hard look at how social inequality operates within our discipline and in the American Sociological Association. Race, gender, class, and sexual orientation matter in society as well as in our discipline. It could not be otherwise as we, sociologists, carry the imprint of the social. Consciously and unconsciously and through our actions and inactions, we reproduce social inequalities in our departments, universities, and even in the ASA. In this town hall meeting, we will discuss, debate, and rant a bit about the multiple ways in which social cleavages are reproduced in sociology despite our collective support for diversity. At the town hall meeting during ASA in 2016 in Seattle, five sociologists – Eduardo Bonilla Silva, Mignon Moore, David Embrick, Julian Go, and Aldon Morris- will make brief opening statements in order to frame the most important issues. These statements will be followed by open discussions designed to address the range of issues affecting social inequality within our discipline and its associations.

347. Thematic Session. Collective Action to Address Health: The Case of HIV/AIDS
Session Organizer and Presider: Rachel Sullivan Robinson, American University
Panelists: Kim M. Blankenship, American University; Gay Young, American University; Rachel Sullivan Robinson, American University
What are the conditions under which collective action can successfully improve health? What are the challenges of collective mobilization as a health intervention strategy? Papers on the panel will apply some of the most important areas of sociological theory and research on social movements and collective mobilization to the study of HIV, thus explicitly engaging the conference theme of Rethinking Social Movements. In particular, papers will assess the challenges and possibilities of purposive efforts to foster collective action to address HIV among vulnerable populations around the globe. The research presented in this session will thus help move the discussion of social mobilization and HIV/AIDS beyond antiretroviral therapy provision to consider broader questions of collective action among marginalized populations as a prevention strategy in and of itself, with conclusions that apply to health outcomes more broadly than HIV.

348. Thematic Session. Progressive Cities
Session Organizer and Presider: Peter Dreier, Occidental College
Panelists: Manuel Pastor, University of Southern California
James N. Gregory, University of Washington
Abby Scher, Solidarity Research
Philip Kasinitz, City University of New York-Graduate Center
In a growing number of US cities, progressive social movements and progressive elected officials are pushing the boundaries of municipal policy. They are passing minimum wage and paid family leave laws, adopting community benefit agreements, promoting tenants’ rights and developing affordable and mixed-income housing, and promoting reform of police practices. A common thread is that these cities are challenging business-oriented priorities and changing the definition of a “healthy” business climate. The panel will explore efforts in a number of cities to adopt progressive policies, to learn lessons from their experience, and to acknowledge the limits of creating progressive change at the local level.

349. Thematic Session. What do Workers Need to Live a Good Life? Rethinking Work/Family Conflict in a Neoliberal Age
Session Organizer and Presider: Marianne Cooper, Stanford University
Panelists: Christopher Wimer, Columbia University
Sarah Towne, National Partnership for Women and Families
Marilyn Watkins, Economic Opportunity Institute
Americans report much higher levels of work/family conflict than do workers in other countries. Scholars trace this to the lack of family friendly governmental policies in the U.S. and to the erosion of employer provided supports. This panel will discuss the public and private policies that are needed to supply families with both economic security and family stability. In particular, the panel will highlight initiatives underway at both the state and federal level that are designed to provide families with a secure, good life.

350. Special Session. College Affordability
Washington State Convention Center, Room 201, Level Two Session Organizer and Presider: Katherine Shelley Newman, University of Massachusetts-Amherst
Who Suffers and Who Benefits from Student Loans? Paul A. Attewell, City University of New York-Graduate Center
Free Tuition, No Debt, and America’s College Promise. Alicia Dowd, University of Southern California
Paying the Price: College Costs, Inequality, and the Betrayal of the American Dream. Sara Goldrick-Rab, University of Wisconsin-Madison
College Affordability, Student Debt and the Racial Wealth Gap. Thomas M Shapiro, Brandeis University College attendance is a critical driver of socio-economic mobility and when access is compromised by the withdrawal of state resources and a concomitant “risk shift” to households and families, the consequences for social inequality are dramatic. The problem of affordability is therefore a crucial sociological subject, but not an uncomplicated one. At play are dramatic changes in household wealth (especially collateral against debt, which was drastically reduced in the Great Recession), the impact of family composition (which can limit a student’s access to parental resources as is often the case in divorce or never married households), and political forces that push for reductions (or increases) in state commitments to higher education. Intended and unintended consequences of financial aid policies play a critical role in what is “affordable” as well. Finally, the cost structure of higher education — whether and to what extent it privileges or can realize efficiencies while maintaining commitments to quality — are also part of the picture. This session will examine the affordability question as a matter of economic, social and political dynamics that shape access to the nation’s most crucial credentialing system and gateway to the labor market.

351. Special Session. Whose Knowledge? Who Benefits?
Panelists: Vrushali Patil, Florida International University
Raewyn Connell, University of Sydney
Discussant: Bandana Purkayastha, University of Connecticut
This session will focus on knowledge production: diverse epistemologies, existing global hierarchies of knowledge, and the efforts to address these hierarchies. The session will include American and international speakers who will address topics such as knowledge production and questions of social justice, creating new democratic platforms for disseminating knowledge, reflections on multiple modernities. The embedded issue is about coalitions to change knowledge hierarchies.

352. Author Meets Critics Session. The Black Power Movement and American Social Work (Columbia University Press, 2014) by Joyce M. Bell
Session Organizer and Presider: Zakiya T. Luna, University of California-Santa Barbara Critics: Fabio Rojas, Indiana University
Andreana L. Clay, San Francisco State University
Zakiya T. Luna, University of California-Santa Barbara
Author: Joyce M. Bell, University of Minnesota
Session Organizer and Leader: Jerald R. Herting, University of Washington
Panelists: Dennis Hayes, Bullitt Foundation
Tracy Morganstern, Urban Forestry Commission
Jessica Finn-Coven, Seattle’s Office of Sustainability
Christina Hanna, Seattle Good Business Network
Movement to build greener buildings and sustainable environments in urban places. The panel would explore interplay of policy, architecture and business/gov/public partnerships for greening urban space. Includes topics of environmental justice, local control, and sustainability.

354. Professional Development Workshop. Doing Reproducible Quantitative Social Science (co-sponsored with COPE)
Session Organizer and Leader: Jeremy Freese, Stanford University
Concerns about the replicability, robustness, and integrity of quantitative social science has led to increasing recognition of the importance of doing reproducible research in social science. While assent to the importance of reproducible work is broad in principle, what to do in practice—and how and why to do it—can be more elusive. This workshop covers practices in workflow, documentation, and archiving both data and code for use by other scholars. Concrete, seasoned recommendations for the efficient and effective data analyst will be provided at every turn.

355. Professional Development Workshop. Should I Retire? Late Career Decision Making Sheraton Seattle Hotel, Cedar Room A, Second Floor
Session Organizer and Leader: Rosalyn Benjamin Darling, Indiana University of Pennsylvania
Co-Leaders: Peter J. Stein, University of North Carolina
Jon Darling, University of Pittsburgh
Panelists: Peter M. Hall, Colorado State University
Eva Kahana, Case Western Reserve University
Elinore E. Lurie, Emeritus
Robert Perrucci, Purdue University
Bodil Stevns, TIAA
This workshop is designed for late career sociologists who are contemplating retirement. Making the decision to end a career of teaching, research, or practice is a difficult one, involving issues of finances, health, family and/or partner, identity, alternative pursuits, and, sometimes, relocation to a new community. The workshop will include a panel of sociologists who have already made the decision, either to keep working at their current employment location, or to retire. In addition, a representative of TIAA-CREF will discuss financial considerations. Participants will have the opportunity to discuss their own concerns relating to the retirement decision, and post-meeting follow-up activities will be considered.

Session Organizer and Leader: Paula W. Fomby, University of Michigan
This interactive workshop is geared toward current and prospective users of the Panel Study of Income Dynamics (PSID, psid.org), the world’s longest longitudinal household panel survey. It provides an overview of the general and content of PSID and its supplemental surveys (including the Child Development Supplement). The second half of the workshop includes a detailed walk-through of the PSID website, documentation, and data center as well as a question and answer session related to participant specific inquiries. The PSID has collected data on a wide range of sociologically relevant topics from a nationally representative sample of US families and their descendants since 1968. Content domains include employment, occupations, income, wealth, education, expenditures, health, aging, marriage, childbearing, child development, youth transitions, philanthropy, intergenerational relations, and numerous other topics.

357. Teaching Workshop. Teaching Ethnomethodology and Conversation Analysis Washington State Convention Center, Room 308, Level Three Session Organizer and Leader: Virginia Teas Gill, Illinois State University
Panelist: Angela Cora Garcia, Bentley University
This workshop will focus on strategies for teaching ethnomethodology and conversation analysis (EMCA). Two EMCA scholars who are known for the quality of their teaching will share useful exercises and assignments, strategies for engaging students, effective methods of assessment, and other resources for teaching EMCA to undergraduate and graduate students. This will be an interactive session; workshop attendees will be encouraged to reflect upon and share their own teaching strategies. Attendees will learn new practices for enhancing the effectiveness of their own teaching and ideas for creating new EMCA courses and for enhancing existing courses. The goals of the workshop are: (1) to articulate and share experiences of those who teach EMCA at the undergraduate and graduate levels, and to provide resources to those who would like to begin doing so; (2) to provide a forum for discussing the challenges of and strategies for introducing EMCA to students; and (3) to introduce specific resources related to course design, teaching methods, and assessment strategies in EMCA courses and modules/units within other courses.

This panel will feature prominent labor leaders from traditional unions as well as independent organizers and leaders of labor-oriented community-based organizations. They will be asked to speak on the multiple challenges facing organized labor in the United States and the prospects for the future, with particular attention to campaigns to increase the minimum wage and to organize low-wage workers. Another focus will be the status of recent alliances between mainstream labor unions on the one hand, and worker centers and community-based organizations on the other.

384. Thematic Session. Community Organizing as Movement Building: Reflections on a Field Transformed

Session Organizer: Janice Fine, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers
Panelists: Oona Chatterjee, Center for Popular Democracy
Alicia Garza, National Domestic Workers Alliance
Saket Soni, National Guest Workers Alliance and the New Orleans Worker Center for Racial Justice

Discussants: Mark R. Warren, University of Massachusetts-Boston
Jane McAlevey, City University of New York-Graduate Center

This panel brings together organizational leaders to reflect upon significant developments that have radically altered the field of community organizing. Old binaries have broken down. The conceptual boundary that once separated community and labor organizing has become less and less distinct. Community organizing groups, community-based worker organizations like worker centers and the national federations they have spawned and labor/community coalitions have emerged as central players in the new labor movement. Many of the most creative and effective economic justice campaigns of recent years have emerged from this space including fights for equitable and green economic development policies and community benefits agreements, living and minimum wages, paid sick days, fair scheduling, anti-wage theft, domestic workers’ bills of rights, along with a host of low wage worker organizing campaigns from janitors to homecare, taxi, restaurant, fast food, Walmart, construction, warehouse, carwash and farm workers. Traditionally understood as local, pragmatic and non-ideological, community organizing today is more and more coalitional, national and international in scope and ambition, idealistic, prophetic and explicit about integrating a racial and gender justice analysis into campaign analysis, strategy, tactics and messages. In an era where some of the most vibrant movements (immigration reform, Black Lives Matter, Gay Marriage, Fight for Fifteen) have been deeply intersectional, old arguments that view “identity” as pitted against “class” seem less and less relevant. Long hostile to electoral politics, more and more community organizing groups are embracing them, developing and refining their voter lists, mounting voter participation programs and in some cases, endorsing candidates and referenda questions and mobilizing to support them. Even modes of communication have shifted: organizations that were once largely unplugged from social media are now creating sophisticated cultural memes, campaigns and support bases through this medium. How are organizations thinking about building and exercising power? How are they participating in national policy-making and politics? What is the continuing relevance of Alinsky principles and practices? What is the possibility of institution-building and creating formal, dues-paying membership bases in an era when looser forms of affiliation and networks are emergent and associations of all kinds are thought to be in decline?

Session Organizer: Carol Heimer, Northwestern University
Are Essential Medicines a Right? Heinz Klug, Health, Environmental Inequalities, and Justice. David Pellow, University of California-Santa Barbara Rights Matter in Medical Research -- But Whose Rights and Which Ones? Carol Heimer, Northwestern University

Rights to health and healthcare are enshrined in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (Article 23; adopted by the UN in 1948), in the International Covenant on Economic, Social, and Cultural Rights (Article 12; adopted by the UN General Assembly in 1966), and in many national constitutions. The right to health has also inspired innumerable protests, marches, lawsuits, and letter-writing campaigns. Yet it is far from clear what these rights mean. For instance it is sometimes a right to health that is being asserted and at other times a right to healthcare. It is also unclear how these rights can be achieved in practice. Two stories can be told about the right to health – the first a story about why and how health became a right and the second about what is accomplished by conceiving it this way. These are questions about norm formation and institutionalization, but also about pluralistic legal systems, networks, social movements, organizations, inequality, and (not least) medicine.

In this panel we will ask when, where, and how that largely symbolic move – making health a right – has come to have practical consequences. Moreover, because the meaning of rights varies so much from one arena to another, we will also be asking what exactly has been accomplished by making health a right. At the start, making healthcare a right was for many surely less a practical move than a leap of faith. What then had to happen for a right to health to start to have some practical consequences? And how did the right to health get redefined in the process?

386. Thematic Session. Precarity and Polanyi: Transforming Labor, Citizenship and the Neoliberal State
Session Organizers: Rina Agarwala, Johns Hopkins University and Rachel Meyer, Harvard University
Presider: Rachel Meyer, Harvard University
Panelists: Michael Burawoy, University of California-Berkeley
Rina Agarwala, Johns Hopkins University
Ching Kwan Lee, University of California-Los Angeles
Nik Theodore, University of Illinois-Chicago

A large body of recent research documents the ways in which the world’s informal and precarious workers are developing novel approaches to organizing that aim to de-commodify their labor, restore their dignity, and address the challenges of working in poorly paid, insecure, and unregulated forms of employment. These innovative approaches have created new institutional forms, strategies, and tactics. In the process, informal/precarious workers are forging new alliances with community groups and social movements. They are redefining targets and labor movement goals, and reshaping how data on work is collected. Ultimately, they are altering the conversation about work in the 21st century. This thematic session will conceptualize these shifts as a turn toward politics and specifically toward the state. Drawing from case studies of worker centers, informal worker movements, immigrant labor activism, and alternative union formations in the Global South and North, this panel seeks to examine the implications of these mobilizations for politics, citizenship and the state. Is there a paradox to labor’s renewed focus on the state in the context of neoliberalism? Do informal/precarious workers hold the potential for reinvigorating citizenship? Do they hold the key to swinging the Polanyian pendulum away from market fundamentalism, or has the neoliberal context fundamentally changed the terrain, undermining these mobilizations’ potential for social change? In the contemporary era, what is the relationship between workplace-based versus state-centered movements for social change? How have these efforts to alter the language, rhetoric, and conversation of work and power affected workers’ livelihoods? And how do political mobilizations of informal/precarious workers play out differently at local, regional, national, and global scales?
387. Thematic Session. Social Movements and the 2016 Presidential Election
Session Organizer and Presider: Philip Klinkner, Hamilton College
Panelists: Christina Wolbrecht, University of Notre Dame
Daniel Schlozman, Johns Hopkins University
Christopher Sebastian Parker, University of Washington
Recent scholarship on political parties has pointed to the crucial role that movements and groups play in the composition and ideological direction of the parties. This panel will examine this research in light of the 2016 presidential election. In addition to discussing the role that various social movement actors played in the nomination process and ideological positioning in each party, the panel will also examine what impact the election results might have on various social movements.

388. Special Session. Punitive Policing, Mass Incarceration, and Community Responses
Session Organizer: Victor M. Rios, University of California-Santa Barbara President: Nancy Rodriguez, Arizona State University West
Panelists: Megan Lee Comfort, RTI International Hillary Potter, University of Colorado-Boulder
John Major Eason, Texas A&M University
Discussant: Alford A. Young, University of Michigan
What are the direct and collateral consequences of punitive policing and mass incarceration on marginalized communities in the United States? How do communities respond to punitive policing and mass incarceration? What does individual and mass mobilization against punitive policing and mass incarceration look like? In this session, participants will explore these issues in a variety of contexts and examine community responses to mass incarceration and the prison building boom.

389. ASA Rose Series Author Meets Critics Session.
A Pound of Flesh: Monetary Sanctions as a Permanent Punishment for Poor People (Russell Sage, 2016) by Alexes Harris
Session Organizer and Presider: Paul D. McLean, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers
Critics: Bruce Western, Harvard University
Mary Yu, Washington State Supreme Court
Dorothy Roberts, University of Pennsylvania Author: Alexes Harris, University of Washington
A Pound of Flesh documents the contemporary relationship between the United States’ systems of social control and inequality. Specifically, the book examines the expansion of and use of monetary sanctions as a criminal sentencing tool. Monetary sanctions are a type of criminal sentence imposed by state superior courts nationally, and include fines, fees, costs, interest, surcharges, and restitution. Until these debts are paid in full individuals remain under judicial supervision, subject to court summons, warrants, and jail stays. Given that the vast majority of people who receive felony convictions in the U.S. are disproportionately of color and poor, with minimal employment and income prospects post-conviction, the practice of imposing financial penalties cements people to lives of poverty and reinforces existing inequalities. This book interrogates the relationship between the U.S. criminal justice system and inequality by answering the following questions: What are monetary sanctions and how do they vary nationally? Why are they implemented, what is the legal intent? How might this sentencing practice vary by jurisdiction and why? What are the consequences of monetary sanctions to individuals convicted of crimes? To address these questions, the author relies on observational data of criminal sentencing and violation hearings, interviews with judges, prosecutors, defense attorneys, clerks, state legislators and defendants across five counties within Washington State, state-level legal statute and legislative documents, and automated court data.

393. Regional Spotlight. Sustainable, Just and Inclusive: Seattle’s Urban Food Systems
Washington State Convention Center, Room 619, Level
Six
Session Organizer: Lucy Jarosz, University of Washington
Presider: Dian Million, University of Washington
Panelists: Matthew McDermott, Tilth Farm Works
Lottie Cross, Clean Greens Farm and Market
Anthony Reyes, Seattle Youth Garden Works Farm Manager
Chris Curtis, U District Farmers Market
Charlotte Cote, University of Washington
This session examines how food production, processing and distribution within Seattle and the surrounding region incorporate environmental sustainability, inclusivity and justice by promoting urban farming and gardening, farmers markets and community gardens, and a variety of retail venues including farmers markets, food cooperatives, and community kitchens.

394. Departmental Management and Leadership
Workshop. Step-by-Step: Creating Inclusive Departments
Washington State Convention Center, Room 308, Level
Three
Session Organizer and Leader: Kris De Welde, Florida Gulf Coast University
Co-Leader: Andi Stepnick, Belmont University
This interactive workshop will offer participants an opportunity to evaluate their department’s level of inclusivity using an intersectional framework that attends to gender, sexual orientation, race/ethnicity, and other identity and social categories. Through small group discussions, participants will develop goals and action steps towards greater inclusivity, diversity, and equity within their departments.

395. Professional Development Workshop.
Reviewing Articles Effectively: Advice from the Journal Editors
Three
Session Organizer and Leader: Kathleen M. Blee, University of Pittsburgh
Panelists: Larry W. Isaac, Vanderbilt University
Holly J. McCallum, Vanderbilt University
Richard T. Serpe, Kent State University
Jan E. Stets, University of California-Riverside
A panel of editors will provide tips on writing an effective review for a sociological journal. This workshop is appropriate for a wide range of sociologists, from senior faculty seeking to improve their skills as a reviewer to graduate and undergraduate students who have not yet prepared an article review. There will be ample time for discussion and Q&A.

396. Policy and Research Workshop. What Investigators Should Know about Grant-Seeking from Private Foundations
Session Organizer and Leader: John W. Curtis, American Sociological Association
Panelists: Rhoda Freelon, Spencer Foundation
Vivian S. Louie, William T. Grant Foundation
James A. Wilson, Russell Sage Foundation Seeking external funding for social science research is an increasingly competitive process, and preparing a successful grant application can be a challenging and time-consuming exercise. In addition to the many government sources of funding, private foundations can also be an important source of financial support. It is important however, to recognize that foundations differ from government funding sources in their missions and funding priorities; foundations generally tend to have more constrained resources and target their funding for more specific purposes. In this session, program staff from three of the nation’s most prominent funders of social, educational, economic and policy research will discuss foundation priorities and grant-seeking. With extensive experience in evaluating proposals as part of the grant-making process, panelists will also discuss, from the perspective of a funding organization, what investigators should consider when writing a proposal.

397. Teaching Workshop. Re-imagining the Constitution
Washington State Convention Center, Room 305, Level
Three
Session Organizer and Leader: Judith Blau, Emeritus
Panelists: Louis Esparza, California State University-Los Angeles
Steven Larrimore Foy, University of Texas-Rio Grande Valley
Mark Frezzo, University of Mississippi
Davita Silfen Glasberg, University of Connecticut
Keri E. Iyall Smith, Suffolk University
Steven Panageotou, University of Tennessee-Knoxville
Susan C. Pearce, East Carolina University
The U.S. Constitution is almost unique, in that it only includes civil and political rights. Many other constitutions include human rights in the broader sense. As positive rights, they encompass social, economic, and cultural rights as well as civil and political rights, and some include environmental rights. Out of 194 State constitutions, for example, 72 include the right to a home or housing. 135 guarantee free provision of health care, and 169 ensure protections for children. During this year a group of sociologists, along with a few constitutional lawyers, have examined how the U.S. Constitution (specifically, the Bill of Rights) could be revised to include positive rights and protections. In this workshop, ten sociologists will each very briefly describe how they approached this project. Most of the session will be devoted to Q and A with the audience.

398. Visual Media Poster Session
Washington State Convention Center, Hall 4A, Level Four
Session Organizer: David B. Grusky, Stanford University
It’s not just posters anymore! The “Poster Session” is ASA’s new home for creative ways to present sociological research and ideas. It includes digital presentations, standard posters, and much more. It’s all good as long as its great sociology creatively presented. After checking out the presentations, don’t forget to vote for the winning one. Two awards will be given, one by a roving judge, and the other goes to the presentation with the most votes at the end of the session. Special bonus: Both awards announced on site at a closing party at the end of the session.

424. Thematic Session. Corporate Social Responsibility: Are Businesses Capable of Self-Regulation?
Session Organizer and Presider: Richard P. Appelbaum, University of California-Santa Barbara Panelists: Scott P. Novak
Robert J.S. Ross, Clark University
Jeff Hermanson, Workers United-SEIU
Richard P. Appelbaum, University of California-Santa Barbara
By the second decade of the 21st century the idea of Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) had been embraced as a standard practice by every major corporation. Today, 86 percent of Fortune Global 200 corporations have codes of conduct, and two-thirds report having updated their codes within the past three years. Firms routinely monitor their contract factories around the globe in an effort to uncover health, safety, and wage-and-hour violations, then report that such violations have been corrected. These efforts have provided excellent public relations for firms, but have they proven effective? During the past five years, thousands of workers have perished in factory fires and building collapses in factories in South Asia - factories that had been inspected and found to be compliant with CSR mandates. In this panel labor activists and academics examine the limitations of the corporate approach to self-regulation, and offer a way forward.
425. Thematic Session. Race and Social Movements: Which Way Forward?
Session Organizers: Daisy Isabel Verduzco Reyes, University of Connecticut and Zakiya T. Luna, University of California-Santa Barbara Panelists: Zakiya T. Luna, University of California-Santa Barbara
Daisy Isabel Verduzco Reyes, University of Connecticut
Belinda Robnett, University of California-Irvine
The Black Lives Matter movement punctuated the need to bring social movement and race scholars into conversation, who have mostly spoken past each other. How can theoretical positions in both literatures help us understand the role of race as an identity category and social structure in the mobilization process? How do racial categories become a site for political action? Papers in this session will address these questions and others that contribute to a lively dialogue on race and social movements.

426. Thematic Session. Science, Movements and Social Inequality
Session Organizer: Scott Frickel, Brown University
Presider: Steven Epstein, Northwestern University
Panelists: Ruha Benjamin, Princeton University
Catherine Bliss, University of California-San Francisco
Phil Brown, Northeastern University
Tom J. Waidzunas, Temple University
In contemporary society political conflict increasingly centers on claims of scientific fact or uncertainty and these “knowledge politics” often have visible, broad and contradictory consequences for social inequality and social change more generally. This thematic session will consider the ways in which politicizations of scientific knowledge inside and outside the academy specifically shape efforts by social movements to confront and reduce social inequality. Invited panelists will consider power relations within and across the science/society divide as they influence the organization of social protest and resistance and alter distributions of social advantage and disadvantage in five socially consequential domains: environmental justice, gender and sexualities, biology and race, genetics and disease, and alternative energy regimes. To date, scholars have paid insufficient attention to theorizing and studying the relationship between science, movements, and social inequality. Presentations on this panel will move these interconnections into the foreground.

427. Thematic Session. Transnational Feminism
Session Organizers: Gay W. Seidman, University of Wisconsin-Madison and Ruth Milkman, City University of New York Graduate Center
Presider: Myra Marx Ferree, University of Wisconsin
Panelists: Raka Ray, University of California-Berkeley

Millie Thayer, University of Massachusetts-Amherst
Discussant: Myra Marx Ferree, University of Wisconsin
As feminist movements have developed around the world, their concerns, strategies, and challenges have been shaped by both transnational ties and regional specificities. Panelists will discuss the dynamics of contemporary feminist politics in a variety of contexts, exploring critical issues facing movements in South Asia, the Middle East and Latin America.

428. Special Session. Creativity and Sociology
Washington State Convention Center, Room 201, Level Two Session Organizer: David Kyle, University of California-Davis
Presider: Peggy Levitt, Wellesley College
Panelists: John G. Dale, George Mason University
David Kyle, University of California-Davis
Richard Swedberg, Cornell University
Randall Collins, University of Pennsylvania
Dustin Maby, University of California-Davis
This session examines the past, present, and near future of “creativity” in American sociology, both as a research subject and as desiderata for sociologists’ identities within a “knowledge economy.” Special attention will be given to the economic and managerial dimensions of the topic, including how the discipline has been shaped in relation to prevalent business perspectives on creative labor and talent. As a discipline often and famously caught within the self-spun web of an alleged art/science dichotomy, the history of sociology’s relationship to “creativity” requires a brief history of the concept itself, a recent noun that gained academic significance only in the mid-20th Century Cold War institutions. How might sociology reengage with “creativity,” a construct it has largely avoided, even as we may reject its more common ideological treatments? Historical themes will be covered by David Kyle and John Dale’s paper, based on their book project, Inventing Creativity: The Rise and Fall of Creativeness During the Managerial Revolution. Addressing the challenge of new knowledge and theoretical innovation in sociology, Richard Swedberg’s paper will draw on insights from his recent book on (creative) theorizing, Theorizing in Social Science, is highly relevant, addressing the creativity challenge within the social sciences for over a century. Natasha Islkander’s work, Creative State, exemplifies sociological creativity. She will reflect on the other papers in the panel and develop her thoughts on the future of a “creative sociology.”

429. Teaching Workshop. Long Live the Lecture!
Session Organizer and Leader: Diane L. Pike, Augsburg College
Lecture bashing has been fashionable for decades, vilified as the dark sin of teaching whose antidote is active learning. At the same time, lecture remains the modal pedagogy in most classrooms. Practiced effectively (just like any other pedagogy), lecturing remains a potentially tremendous tool for enhancing learning. The purpose of this workshop is to make the case that the problem is not lecturing per se, but too much ineffective/weak/wrongly timed/sociologically uninformed lecturing defined as satisfactory by ourselves and others. The focus of our activity in this lecture/active learning workshop is to learn from the SoTL research, identify specific adoptable strategies, and using our sociological lens, help each other improve so that students may benefit.

The only sociology graduate program in North America with a unique mission to “provide sociological training primarily for nontraditional, female, minority and underprivileged students, though students from all backgrounds are welcomed.”

- Major areas of concentration include Global and Comparative Sociology, Social Stratification/Inequality, Sociology of Health and Illness, and Criminology
- A total of 54 (15 M.A. and 39 Ph.D.) students enrolled in Spring 2016
- Very diverse graduate student body
- Students with distinguished careers and life experiences (e.g., city manager; city police chief; attorney; adjunct and community college professors; university administrators; secondary/elementary school administrators, counselors and teachers; businessmen; talk show host; military personnel and reserves)
- Graduate students receive national scholarship honors and serve on American Sociological Association committees
- Graduate assistantships available for spring, summer and fall semesters
- Almost all eligible applications are awarded graduate assistantships
- 80% of our recent graduates work in higher education

- Graduate students publish peer-reviewed articles, books and book chapters
- Students have access to the combined resources of courses, faculty, libraries, labs, equipment, etc., in the Federation of North Texas Area Universities
- Ph.D. students can transfer up to 45 credit hours from other accredited institutions
- About 1/3 of our graduate students are male
- Students receive training in teaching and have ample opportunities to be teachers of record
- In 2015-16, the research-active sociology faculty published three books (including one by prestigious MIT Press), six book chapters and 20 journal articles
- Our faculty’s work appears in high-impact scholarly journals and are presented at international, national, and regional conferences
- Faculty receive national and international honors and awards
- Faculty are excellent teachers and devoted and caring mentors
- Faculty actively collaborate with students in publications and conference presentations
- Diverse faculty

TWU is the largest public university in the nation primarily for women. TWU is ranked in the top 10 nationally for diversity by U.S. News and World Report.

7:00 am Meetings

ASA Business Meeting – Sheraton Seattle Hotel, Ravenna Room A-B, Third Floor

The ASA Business Meeting is an opportunity for members of the Association to discuss important issues facing the discipline and profession. Members are encouraged to attend this meeting convened by the ASA President Ruth Milkman.

Summary reports on the Association and its key activities this year will be given by President Ruth Milkman, Secretary Mary Romero, and Executive Officer Sally T. Hillsman. The meeting concludes with the traditional transfer of the gavel, marking the transition of duties from President Ruth Milkman to incoming President Michèle Lamont.

This open forum is an opportunity for members to share their insights, reactions, and suggestions. Please consult the flyer in your convention tote bag for details on the Business Meeting agenda.

As noted in the May/June issue of Footnotes and the posting of meeting information on the ASA website, members seeking to present formal resolutions should be prepared to provide background materials on the issue to be discussed. Members who missed the July 13 submission deadline may bring their resolutions and supporting background documentation to the Meetings Information Desk on Level Four of the Washington State Convention Center by 3:00 pm on Monday, August 22.

458. Thematic Session. Sexuality and Social Change

Session Organizers: Patrick Ryan Grzanka, University of Tennessee and Emily S. Mann, University of South Carolina
Presider: Tom J. Waidzunas, Temple University
Panelists: Amin Ghaziani, University of British Columbia
Jyoti Puri, Simmons College
Jessica Fields, San Francisco State University
Georgiann Davis, University of Nevada-Las Vegas
Discussant: Tom J. Waidzunas, Temple University

Critics of neoliberalism have argued that the early years of the 21st century have been marked by largely symbolic victories for various social justice movements. Rather than transform the structures of social inequality, social movement politics and discourses have been coopted by conservative institutions that reconstitute equality and justice in the image of corporations and the global power elite. Tolerance, inclusion, and assimilation have displaced the approaches to radical social change advocated by various identity-based social movements, including critical race and ethnic, feminist, workers’ rights, disability, and LGBTQIA* activists. This panel explores the capacities of contemporary social movements to intervene in and disrupt the neoliberal policies and practices that engender, sustain, and exacerbate social inequality. The panel will foreground forms of marginalization and domination that are organized by/through sexuality and other intersecting forms of oppression. Accordingly, the panelists will explore the contradictory and shifting landscape of sexual, gender, racial, class, and national politics characterized by the uptake of homonormative subjectivities into the upper echelons of power structures in the U.S. and worldwide, as well as potential strategies for resistance that might produce meaningful social change in the cultural, institutional, historical, and spatial terrain of global sexual worlds.

459. Thematic Session. Social Protests in China

Session Organizer and Presider: Ching Kwan Lee, University of California-Los Angeles
Panelists: Eli David Friedman, Cornell University
Manjusha S. Nair, National University of Singapore
Guobin Yang, University of Pennsylvania
Discussant: Dingxin Zhao, University of Chicago

This panel examines the major types of social protest and their interaction with the Chinese authoritarian state. Analyzing the internal dynamics and political economy of labor, land and environmental protests, we ask: are these popular mobilizations instances of class formation? Do they insinuate new organizations and imaginations of Chinese citizenship? Are protests a force of social change in China? What do Chinese protests imply for theories of social movement and political sociology?
460. Special Session. The Integration of Immigrants in the United States: A National Research Council Report

Washington State Convention Center, Room 201, Level Two
Session Organizer and Presider: Mary C. Waters, Harvard University
Panelists: Richard D. Alba, City University of New York-Graduate Center
Nancy Foner, City University of New York-Hunter College and Graduate Center
Cecilia Menjivar, University of Kansas
Discussant: Min Zhou, Nanyang Technologica University

This panel will present some findings from a National Research Council of the National Academy of Science panel on immigrant integration. The interdisciplinary panel completed its work from January 2014 to October 2015. The committee was charged with (1) summarizing what we know about how immigrants are integrating into American society; (2) discussing what the implications of this knowledge are for informing various policy options; and, (3) identifying any important gaps in our existing knowledge and data availability. We explored the evidence on immigrant integration in the following domains: residential location, education, employment, earnings, occupation, poverty, citizenship (naturalization), voting, electoral representation, language, religion, crime, intermarriage, fertility, family structure, health and life expectancy. Immigrant integration is defined as the opportunities for immigrants and their descendants to achieve their goals in a society through participation in major social institutions, as well as to gain social acceptance. Greater integration implies parity of critical life chances with the native-born American majority. Integration may happen because immigrants change once they get here, or because native born Americans change in response to immigration. The process of integration takes time and we measure it both in terms of time since arrival for the immigrants themselves—the first generation, as well as by comparing across generations, tracing the integration of the children of the immigrants—the second generation and the grandchildren of the immigrants—the third generation.

462. Policy and Research Workshop. How to Write a Successful Proposal for the Fund for the Advancement of the Discipline (FAD)
Leader: John W. Curtis, American Sociological Association
Panelists: Elizabeth Hordge-Freeman, University of South Florida
Shiri Noy, University of Wyoming
Eran Shor, McGill University

The Fund for the Advancement of the Discipline (FAD) program is jointly supported by the American Sociological Association and the National Science Foundation. The goal of the FAD program is to advance the discipline of sociology by funding small (up to $8,000), groundbreaking research initiatives and innovative research conferences. The ASA FAD PI and program manager will give an overview of the program, including its history and what to expect from the funding application and review processes. Three recent award recipients make up the panel and will discuss how they wrote their proposals, what was emphasized, how they built the argument that their research or conference would advance the discipline, and how they incorporated evaluations received from the FAD committee. The purpose of this workshop is to encourage applications, especially from scholars in the early stages of their careers and those in departments without extensive research support. Workshop attendees are encouraged to bring questions regarding their own proposals and about the program more broadly.

491. Thematic Session. Rethinking Civil Rights Movement Outcomes

Session Organizer: Belinda Robnett, University of California-Irvine
Panelists: Douglas McAdam, Stanford University
John Skrentny, University of California-San Diego
Belinda Robnett, University of California-Irvine
Discussant: David S. Meyer, University of California-Irvine

What has been the long-term social, political and economic impact of the U.S. Civil Rights Movement on American society? How did the movement’s successes shape national political party agendas; facilitate or hamper the political efficacy of post-civil rights movement organizations; and, influence public policies and private sector practices that shape economic and social equality outcomes? Drawing on their research, four panelists will address these issues. The panelists include Doug McAdam, whose recent book (with Karina Kloos), Deeply Divided, illuminates the ways in which, in the aftermath of the movement, race shaped political party polarization between democrats and republicans and undercut public policy aimed at the poor. Another panelist is John Skrentny. His book, After Civil Rights: Racial Realism in the New American Workplace, argues that Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 that prohibits workplace discrimination, leads to a “color-blind” approach to hiring with negative consequences for non-white employees. He proposes a race-aware approach, instead. Finally, Belinda Robnett’s research for her book in progress, Surviving Success: Black Political Organizations in “Post-Racial” America, 1970 to 2008, chronicles how, in the aftermath of the civil rights movement, political and cultural racial-ethnic discourses that emphasize colorblindness and diversity have undercut the efficacy of the NAACP and the SCLC, and by extension Black progress. Aldon Morris, author of the Origins of the Civil Rights Movement, will serve as the discussant.

Washington State Convention Center, Room 303, Level Three

Session Organizer: Ruth Milkman, City University of New York-Graduate Center
Presider: Jennifer L. Romich, University of Washington
Panelists: Eileen Appelbaum, Center for Economic and Policy Research
Janet Gornick, City University of New York-Graduate Center
Heidi I. Hartmann, Institute for Women’s Policy Research
Ellen Bravo, Family Values at Work

In the 21st century three states have passed legislation creating paid family leave programs, and political momentum in support of such programs is growing in other states as well as at the federal level. This session, which includes leading experts and policymakers, will discuss the nature and impact of the new programs, the political dynamics that led to their creation, as well as the prospects for their extension to additional states and to the nation in the coming years.

493. Special Session. Sociology of Community Gardens

Session Organizer and Presider: Sofya Aptekar, University of Massachusetts-Boston

Men’s Search for Home in Black and Latino Community Gardens in South Los Angeles. Pierrette Hondagneu-Sotelo, University of Southern California

What is “New” about Growing Food in the City? A Historical Perspective on Urban Cultivation in New Orleans. Yuki Kato, Georgetown University

We Are Not Weeds! Planned Shrinkage, Broken Windows, and Gentrification in the Community Gardens of East New York. Justin Sean Myers, Marist College

With the growing trendiness of urban agriculture, community gardens are gaining visibility in the public consciousness, often imagined as spaces of feel-good, get-your-hands-dirty, community-building oases amidst gritty and conflictual cities or atomizing suburbs. But while community gardens can provide respite and an alternative to prevailing social relations, they are inextricably part of neighborhoods and social structures around them. Whether sharing a piece of land or neighboring small plots, community gardeners reinvent their relationship to the natural and social environment, negotiate norms, perform and challenge social roles, and grapple with power structures within and beyond their gardens. Sociologists are well positioned to explore the workings of community gardens in a way that sheds light on central sociological questions, from the formation of solidarity and community, to microdynamics of social reproduction and inequality, to successes and challenges of social movements. Yet, sociologists lag behind geographers and anthropologists in seizing the opportunity to study community gardens. In this session, we bring together sociologists who study community gardens from a diversity of perspectives, beginning the conversation on the unique contributions of sociology to the study of community gardens – and the contribution that such a study can make to sociological subfields ranging from social movements to race and ethnicity to urban and community sociology. The session promises to provide a stimulating mix of original research and theoretical discussion that would push the study of community gardens in new and exciting directions.
494. Special Session. Teaching On-line: Is the Movement in Higher Education Toward Online Teaching Right for Sociology?
Washington State Convention Center, Room 201, Level Two
Session Organizer: Barbara Jane Risman, University of Illinois-Chicago
Presider: Suzanne S. Hudd, Quinnipiac University
Panelists: David B. Grusky, Stanford University
Melinda Jo Messineo, Ball State University
Jay R. Howard, Butler University
Discussant: Theodore C. Wagenaar, Miami University
There has been a great deal of controversy about the effectiveness and value of on-line teaching, using MOOC’s in the classroom, flipped and hybrid classes. In this panel, we will explore the costs and benefits at the classroom level, and the impact of new technologies on the academy as well.

495. Special Session. Visual Sociology and Inequality
Session Organizer: David Charles Schalliol, St. Olaf College
Panelists: Douglas Harper, Duquesne University
David Charles Schalliol, St. Olaf College
Julia Yezbick, Harvard University
Despite the dominance of visual investigation of the social world, serious attempts to interpret the visual research techniques of photography and filmmaking are surprisingly rare, and rigorous attempts to visually represent the social world are rarer still. This panel draws together the creators of innovative visual sociological projects, each of whom have produced work where inequality is foregrounded as an object of study. The panel pursues the distinctive possibilities of visually directed ethnography from the freight trains of the Western United States to the dance halls of Detroit.

Session Organizer: Mary Romero, Arizona State University
Presider: Joanna Perez, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign
Critics: Marta Maria Maldonado, Oregon State University
Manuel Barajas, California State University-Sacramento
Nadia Y. Flores-Yeffal, Texas Tech University
Author: Leisy Janet Abrego, University of California-Los Angeles

497. Regional Spotlight. The Changing City: Housing, Residential Mobility, and Neighborhood Stratification in Seattle
Session Organizers: Kyle Crowder and Tim Thomas, University of Washington
Presider: Tim Thomas, University of Washington
Panelists: Brenda Anibarro, Seattle Office of Civil Rights
Cindi Barker, City Neighborhood Council
Catherine Benotto, Seattle Planning Commission
Jon Grant, Seattle Housing Affordability and Livability Agenda Committee
Matthew Hall, Cornell University
With some of the fastest growing housing costs in the nation, Seattle’s recent trends in local economic and housing development raise vital questions about the structural transitions and social inequalities that come with a rapidly changing city. What social, economic, and political forces drive differential changes in affordability across the city’s neighborhoods? How do changes in affordability affect patterns of residential mobility and neighborhood change? What is the impact of these patterns on access to jobs and other opportunities? To what extent do these changes differentially impact members of various economic and ethno-racial groups within the city? And what do these rapid changes tell about the future of social inequality of American metros?

498. Policy and Research Workshop. What You Need to Know about the New “Common Rule” (sponsored by COPE)
Session Organizer and Leader: Thomas L. Van Valey, Western Michigan University
Co-Leaders: John M. Kennedy, Indiana University
Sally T. Hillsman, American Sociological Association
The proposed changes to the Common Rule that were recently announced, if implemented as proposed, appear to substantially reduce the amount of oversight that will be required for social and behavioral research. In addition, the proposed changes to the Common Rule will undoubtedly call for changes in the ASA’s Code of Ethics. The ASA Code is currently being reviewed by a subcommittee of the ASA’s Committee on Professional Ethics, and in the next year, this subcommittee will propose changes to the ASA Code to update it. In this workshop, a panel consisting of members of the subcommittee, along with experts on the federal regulations and IRB operations, will discuss the implications of the proposed changes to the Common Rule and the ASA Code and the implications they will have for sociological research.

499. Teaching Workshop. Teaching Introductory Sociology for New Instructors
Session Organizer and Leader: Nancy A. Greenwood, Indiana University Kokomo
Co-Leader: Stephanie Medley-Rath, Indiana University Kokomo
The goal of this workshop is to help new instructors who are teaching introductory sociology or other first-year courses explore ways of designing and adapting a course to better fit with program goals and to help them design activities and readings which enable students to meet

Course learning goals. We will also present ideas for discussion from the SoTL literature about core content, variation in types of readings, and best practices for this course. Participants are encouraged to share and bring issues or questions they would like to discuss. We would also like participants to share their own list of core concepts and readings used or to be used in their classes.

“The role of parents of children with disabilities in disability rights activism has provoked some contention. Some scholarship positions parents as vibrant, path-blazing advocates who fight selflessly for the rights and needs of their children (Blum 2007; Jones 2010). Other work, however, characterizes parents as a barrier to social change, especially insofar as they often espouse models of disability rooted in tragedy, medical narratives, and paternalism. For example, historian Kathleen Jones (1998) shows the ways in which mothers in the early twentieth accepted the pathologization of their children in the hopes of normalizing them and enhancing their own status as “good mothers.” Anthropologist Gail Lansman (2009) similarly shows that in the modern era mothers still largely judge their value as mothers (and/or feel judged by others) in terms of the normalization and successful adaptation of their disabled children which inhibits the formation of disability pride and resistance

Panelists: Meredith R. Bergey, University of Virginia

Jenny L. Davis, James Madison University

PJ McGann, University of Michigan

This invited session addresses the conference theme of “rereading social movements” by bringing together a range of scholars analyzing the formation, development, and transformation of social movements addressing psychiatry. Psychiatry has long been the focus of a great deal of social movement activity, with a wide range of problems identified by social movement actors, and a wide range of tactics and strategies adopted to seek out varied remedies for those problems. Social movements have developed critiquing the scope and form of psychiatric treatments, formal institutions built around psychiatry, and even the notion of mental illness itself. Some social movements have formed around a critique of specific diagnostic categories and have sought depathologization, while others have sought recognition through the development of new diagnostic categories. Social movements focused on psychiatry thus provide fruitful terrain for examining the changing nature and range of a specific subset of social movement activity. Panelists will examine both longstanding issues in the study of psychiatry and social movements, as well as new developments, via their analysis of a range of specific cases, including social movements coalescing around aspects of Post Traumatic Stress Disorder, Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder, Body Integrity Identity Disorder, and Gender Dysphoria.

529. Thematic Session. Social Movements and the News Media

Session Organizer: Edwin Amenta, University of California-Irvine

Presider: Neal Caren, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill

Panelists: Edwin Amenta, University of California-Irvine

Kenneth (Andy) Andrews, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill

Jennifer Earl, University of Arizona

Myra Marx Ferree, University of Wisconsin

This session will address the influence of movements on the news media and vice versa, including old media, such as print media and television, as well as new media, such as through the Internet, Twitter, and other more decentralized electronic media. Some of the questions to be addressed potentially include under which conditions do movements receive coverage and coverage that is substantive or favorable in other ways in mainstream news media? What is the relationship between old media and new media? How have the possibilities for movements gaining attention changed with the decline of print newspapers and news magazines and the loss of centrality in television networks and rise of new forms of media? The session will be run as a “Koppel-style” session with a moderator and panelists answering questions circulated in advance.

533. Professional Development Workshop. Negotiating an Activist Identity as a Disabilities Scholar
Sheraton Seattle Hotel, Madrona Room, Second Floor
Session Organizer, Presider, and Leader: Robyn Lewis Brown, University of Kentucky
Panelist: Alexandra Catherine Hayes Nowakowski, Florida State University
Activism played a key role in the development of disability studies and remains an important topic within the discipline. For many scholars, however, balancing activist and academic identities presents unique challenges. This panel of junior scholars will candidly discuss these challenges, as well as the opportunities that come from pursuing them.

534. Teaching Workshop. Teaching the Sociology of Law
Session Organizer and Leader: Mikaila Mariel Lemonik Arthur, Rhode Island College
Co-Leaders: Michael Friedson, University of Wisconsin-Whitewater
Yvonne Zylan, Hamilton College
Laura Spitz, Cornell University
This workshop brings together presenters from a diverse set of instructional settings in a conversation about innovative approaches to teaching the sociology of law. Panelists will address topics including the sociology of law classroom as a venue for understanding race and other forms of social inequality in the United States; approaches to utilizing case law materials in the sociology of law classroom; and ways to make the legal system come alive for students with diverse professional interests. Participants will leave the workshop with both new ideas about conceptualizing sociology of law courses and specific examples of activities to enliven their coursework. The workshop will include a broader discussion in which participants can share their own experiences and strategies relevant to the sociology of law classroom.

558. Thematic Session. Silos or Synergies? Can Transnational Social Movements Connect across Issues?
Session Organizer: Peter B. Evans, University of California-Berkeley and Brown University
Third-wave Marketization and the Dilemmas of the Contemporary Countermovement. Michael Burawoy, University of California-Berkeley Power Shift? Transnational Commodity Chain Activism and the Fate of Fossil Fuels. David M. Ciplet, University of Colorado-Boulder
Strategies for Exploiting Comparative Political Advantage and Complementarities among Transnational Social Movements. Peter B. Evans, University of California-Berkeley and Brown University
Discussant: Nitsan Chorev, Brown University
Transnational mobilization is now part of global politics, but whether transnational movements can have a consequential impact on global policies and institutions remains an open question. This session explores one key challenge for transnational social movements: how do they relate to each other? Are they likely to operate in “silos,” each movement pursuing its own issue by itself? Or, can they develop synergies — cross-issue connections and alliances that will expand their leverage? Naomi Klein argues in This Changes Everything (2014:7) that “the climate crisis could form the basis of a powerful mass movement, one that would weave all of these seemingly disparate issues into a coherent narrative.” Her argument implies that the transnational environmental movement can provide a master narrative around which other movements can coalesce. In contrast, Michael Burawoy is skeptical that movements can coalesce sufficiently to shift global power structures, suggesting instead (2010:312) that what he calls “third wave marketization” destroys the very ground upon which a ‘counter-movement’ could be built. The presentations in this panel will look at the “eco-system” of transnational social movements from four different vantage points building a composite contribution to the debate on the potential of transnational social movements as agents for changing power dynamics.

559. Thematic Session. Strikes and Labor Politics in Comparative Perspective
Session Organizers: Eli David Friedman, Cornell University
Steven H. Lopez, The Ohio State University
Chris Rhomberg, Fordham University
Participation of Industry Strikes in Southern China: Emotion, Social Norm, and Rationality. Gaochao He, Sun Yat-Sen University
Resisting Precarity: A Cross National Analysis of Fast Food Worker Organizing. Lucas Franco, University of Minnesota
This panel will re-assess theories of the strike and worker activism from a global perspective. In particular, we are interested in explaining the surprising convergence of increased extra-legal strike activity in both the global North and South. Additionally, the panel will look at the relationship between worker activism and democratization, both within the workplace and more broadly in the political sphere.

560. Thematic Session. The Immigrant Rights Movement, Ten Years after the 2006 Marches
Session Organizer and Presider: Kim Voss, University of California-Berkeley
Panelist: Maria Elena Durazo, American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations
The Dreamers are Dead, Long live the Dreamers: From ‘Exceptional’ to ‘Ordinary’ Immigrant Rights Activism. Walter Nicholls, University of California-Irvine; Justus L. Uitermark, Erasmus University Rotterdam; Sander van Haperen, University of Amsterdam Organized Labor and Immigrant Organizing: Finding Common Ground. Shannon Marie Gleeson, Cornell University
The Role of Contentious Politics in Shaping the Behavior of Legislators on Immigration Policy. Chris Zepeda-Millan, UC Berkeley; Sophia Wallace, State University of New Jersey-Rutgers
Discussant: Veronica Terrigue, University of California- Santa Cruz
In spring 2006 millions of protestors took to the streets in cities and towns across the United States to demand immigrant rights. This thematic panel will examine the movement today, assessing the trajectories of different streams of the movement, including youth activism and the alliance with organized labor. It will also take up the vexed question of how the movement has shaped the behavior of policymakers over the past decade.
561. Special Session. Rethinking Slavery
Session Organizer: Monica Prasad, Northwestern University
Presider: Orlando Patterson, Harvard University
Panelists: Martin Ruef, Duke University
       Crystal Marie Fleming, State University of New York-Stony Brook
       Walter Johnson, Harvard University
Recent work on slavery is posing a challenge to theories of the origins of industrial capitalism, showing capitalism's dependence not only on the profits generated by slavery but also on many of the methods and techniques developed for managing slaves. This panel aims to establish how this newer work on slavery challenges or reaffirms older scholarship on slavery and on capitalism.

Washington State Convention Center, Room 619, Level Six
Session Organizers: Celeste M. Watkins-Hayes, Northwestern University and Van C. Tran, Columbia University Authors: Jennifer Lee, University of California-Irvine

564. Regional Spotlight. Wages and Labor in Seattle: $15 Per Hour Movement
Washington State Convention Center, Room 618, Level Six
Session Organizer: Michael William McCann, University of Washington
Presider: Jennifer L. Romich, University of Washington
Panelists: Jonathan Rosenblum, Activist
       Sarah Cherin, United Food and Commercial Workers Local 21
       Gerald Hankerson, NAACP and Mainstreet Alliance
In November, 2013, the small suburban city of SeaTac passed Proposition 1, authorizing a $15 minimum wage policy phased in over several years; after surviving a lawsuit filed by business groups, the policy went into effect in January, 2014. Six months later, the Seattle City Council expanded a similar $15 minimum wage policy. The victories in the Puget Sound catalyzed a proliferating array of campaigns to raise the minimum wage in cities and states around the nation as well as at the national level. This panel will reflect on the lessons that can be learned from the struggles by a broad coalition of labor unions, community partners, and elected officials around a host of issues concerning low wage workers' rights in the years following the Occupy movement, both in Seattle and beyond.

565. Policy and Research Workshop. Using the Wisconsin Longitudinal Study-CANCELLED

566. Teaching Workshop. Teaching Quantitative Literacy and Reasoning in the Social Sciences

Panelists: Esther Isabelle Wilder, City University of New York-Lehman College
       Jill Bouma, Berea College
       Kate Susan Wolfe, City University of New York-Hostos Community College
This teaching workshop will explore ways to integrate quantitative literacy and quantitative reasoning (QR/QL) into assignments, classes, progressive learning structures, departments, and campuses. Panelists will discuss areas of expertise including curriculum mapping; QR/QL in an urban, diverse community college; assessing student perceptions of their own QR/QL abilities; and factors that promote QR skills and ways to promote QR through the curriculum.

ASA Minority Fellowship Program Fellows

The following 81 current and former MFP Fellows are participating in this year’s Annual Meeting Program. ASA and the 2016 Program Committee are pleased to highlight professional activities of these Fellows. The ASA Minority Fellowship Program (MFP), in operation since 1974, has been a significant factor in recruiting members of under-represented minority groups into sociology. MFP Fellows continue to make important and lasting contributions to the growth of the discipline. The Association takes great satisfaction in acknowledging this form of professional activity.

ASA Honors Program Students

The following 38 undergraduate sociology students were accepted into the ASA Honors Program for 2016. This program requires nearly a week of participation in professional events held at the Annual Meeting. Students receive full credit for participation only after completion of the program on August 23rd.

ASA and the 2016 Program Committee are pleased to highlight these students’ introduction to the profession of sociology. The Honors Program has a 40-year history of involving sociology students in the ASA Annual Meeting. As always, this year’s students are wearing gold ribbons showing their Honors Program affiliation. Please welcome them to their first national conference in the discipline!

SUBJECT INDEX
(Numbers refer to session numbers in the Program Schedule.)
For roundtable sessions, table numbers are given after the session number (for example, the tenth table on session 350 will have “350-10” in this index).
The following list of 94 keywords was compiled by the 2016 Program Committee. As persons submitted their papers, they were given the opportunity to self-select keywords that described the content of those papers.
