Job 17077: Managing Director, Economic Security, Mobility, and Equity

Date Position is Available: Summer 2021
Application Deadline:
Listing Active: 7/30/2021 to 9/28/2021
Institution: Institute for Women's Policy Research
Department: Research
Region: Northeast
Title: Managing Director, Economic Security, Mobility, and Equity
Position/Rank: Sociological Practice/Applied/Other: Director, Sociological Practice/Applied/Other: Program Manager, Sociological Practice/Applied/Other: Researcher
Salary Range: $130,000 - $139,999

Job Description:

WE ARE:
The Institute for Women’s Policy Research (IWPR) is the nation’s preeminent think tank committed to achieving economic equity for women and eliminating structural and institutional barriers to women’s full participation in the workforce and society.

IWPR’s mission is to build knowledge and evidence to support policies that help grow women’s economic power and influence in society, close inequality gaps, and improve the economic security and well-being of girls, women, and families. We generate the ideas that build power and economic equity for all women.

Statement on Racial Equity and Intersectionality
At IWPR, we believe social and economic mobility in the United States is determined and influenced by race, ethnicity, class, gender identity, sexual orientation, and other markers of difference. In working to achieve economic equity and to better understand the experiences of all women in the workforce and in society, we use both racial equity and intersectional frameworks in our research and analysis to help generate strategies and solutions that are grounded in the economic realities of women and families.

We also prioritize building an inclusive and welcoming work environment that values the diverse perspectives and experiences of all staff.

POSITION OVERVIEW:
IWPR seeks a full-time Managing Director for its Economic Security, Mobility and Equity team, to manage its research and efforts focused on building the long-term economic security working women, their families and communities.

Specifically, the Managing Director will lead a dynamic team of researchers and advocates committed to producing high quality research and policy analysis on issues related to workforce development and the future of work; employment and earnings; income security and equitable workplace policies; economic mobility and advancement for women and younger workers in the labor market; and childcare and the care economy.

The Managing Director will oversee IWPR’s currently-funded work in key areas and fundraise to support new research as well as policy and outreach initiatives. They will also develop a strategic plan and vision for the program, identify opportunities to leverage IWPR’s work and research in the field and with key stakeholders, and help position IWPR as a go-to source for policymakers, advocates, and others seeking to build the long-term economic security and well-being of women and families.

The ideal candidate is a dynamic, forward-thinking, experienced, and collaborative leader. They are a trained economist, trained social scientist and/or possess deep knowledge and experience working on issues related to building women’s long-term economic security and well-being. They also have experience with translating high-level research for broad audiences through op-eds, blogs, reports, briefing papers, or other similar mediums. They are a proven fundraiser with a strong interest in the intersections of research, policy, and practice.

They are also adept at building relationships with community partners, national experts, and funders; have experience directing large-scale projects; and have expertise on reproductive health and justice. They will also be detail-oriented, efficient, highly organized, and a strong writer and public speaker. They will hold a strong commitment to gender and racial equity and be driven to generate power and agency for marginalized communities through policy and practice.

This position is based in Washington, DC and is full-time, exempt. The Managing Director, Economic Security, Mobility, and Equity reports to the Vice President of Research.

Duties and Responsibilities:

Strategy, Vision, and Leadership

- Develop a programmatic strategy and implement a cohesive research and policy program focused on building the long-term economic security and well-being of working women, their families and communities;
- Identify and assess emerging research gaps in the field and potential innovations and opportunities for IWPR;
- Represent IWPR at high-level convenings, conferences and meetings; and
- Nurture and expand existing funding relationships and cultivate new sources.

Research Experience

- Ability to perform advanced, complex quantitative data analysis of large datasets and trends, utilizing econometric, network science and/or other statistical methods, including creating data visuals; developing, programing, and fielding online surveys; and conducting interviews and focus groups;
- Familiarity and experience conducting research and/or policy analysis on issues related to poverty and income inequality, the wealth gap, the wage gap and pay equity, women’s and family economic security, quality jobs, and/or educational equity and access;
• Experience with multivariate statistical methods, survey research and/or qualitative research and design and analysis;
• Experience using and integrating racial equity and intersectional frameworks and analysis in research study designs, written reports, and briefs; and
• Ability to write high quality working papers, reports and presentations based on the data work and analysis.

Program and Research Management
• Strong program and project management skills, and ability to manage multiple deadlines and competing demands;
• Ability to oversee the overall execution of IWPR research projects and publications including major reports, briefs, government testimony, regulatory comments, data analysis, infographics and other visuals focused on race, ethnicity, and the economy;
• Experience managing junior and mid-level level research and program staff;
• Fundraise and manage donor relationships including writing proposals and grant reports;
• Work with communications staff to initiate policy campaigns and efforts on key issues and priorities;
• Coordinate research content and report releases with the other IWPR programs and units; and
• Organize convenings, symposia, and roundtables with national leaders, scholars, and practitioners and other key stakeholders on issues related to race, ethnicity, gender and the economy

Other Professional and Personal Qualities
• Excellent written and verbal communications skills, including presentation skills;
• A strong existing network—the candidate will be known and respected in the progressive research community, bringing existing relationships that will facilitate expansion of our research and policy work;
• Proven track record of effectively interacting with diverse stakeholders including executives, researchers, practitioners, policy and advocacy organizations, public officials, and Boards of Directors;
• Superior problem-solving, managerial, and interpersonal skills;
• Ability to work strategically and collaboratively across the organization;
• Effective, versatile, and action oriented; and
• Ability to work well under pressure with tight deadlines and multiple priorities.

Education and Experience
7+ years related experience managing high-level projects and programs. A PhD or equivalent experience/expertise in a related field (e.g., economics, sociology, political science, public policy, law etc.) is required.

Salary
This position is classified as a Researcher V position in IWPR's compensation program. Job Description:
The Department of Comparative Human Development at the University of Chicago invites applications for a tenure-track position at the rank of assistant professor. We seek a sociologist working in one or more of the following areas: aging and life-course; migration; culture; gender and sexuality; religion; youth; health and medicine; race and ethnicity; or areas that complement the current strengths of the faculty. We are especially interested in scholars who deal with these topics from a life course perspective.

The Department of Comparative Human Development at the University of Chicago is an interdisciplinary department founded in 1940 whose faculty includes anthropologists, biologists, linguists, psychologists, sociologists, and methodologists whose theories and methods cross individual social sciences. Research in the department explores the social, cultural, psychological, and biological processes of change that vary across time, between individuals, between societies and cultures, and between species. Please see our website, https://humdev.uchicago.edu.

Review of applications will begin on September 1, 2021. Applications must be submitted online through the University of Chicago's Interfolio website at http://apply.interfolio.com/91208. Salary Range: Negotiable
Submission Link: http://apply.interfolio.com/90590

Job Description:

The Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University invites applications for a faculty position in "cyber and security" to begin in July 2022. We are seeking applicants whose research focuses on various aspects of the intersection between cyber technologies and human security. Research of interest includes, but is not limited to, topics such as the impact of algorithm-based surveillance on marginalized communities, the strategic manipulation of cyber information for geopolitical gain, the intersection between social media and surveillance, the implications of autonomous weapon systems and drone warfare, and the development of offensive and defensive cyber weaponry.

This faculty position will involve a joint appointment between the Watson Institute and a relevant tenure-granting disciplinary department at Brown. We are seeking applicants who have both proven technical expertise and the ability to engage existing areas of strength in the Watson Institute. We welcome applicants with doctoral degrees from all relevant disciplines, including STEM fields (e.g., Computer Science, Applied Mathematics) and the social sciences (e.g., Sociology, Economics, Political Science, Anthropology, History, Africana Studies). The Watson Institute is especially interested in qualified candidates who can contribute through their research, teaching, and service to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

Candidates at all ranks are welcome. A successful senior candidate must have an outstanding record of scholarly achievement, a proven record of successful research funding, and a demonstrated commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching and advising. A successful junior candidate must be engaged in a research program with the potential to influence their field, and a strong commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching and advising.

Junior candidates must have completed the PhD by the time of appointment. Review of applications will begin November 22, 2021, but applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

All candidates should submit: 1) a cover letter describing research completed and planned, 2) a curriculum vitae, 3) a short writing sample, and 4) a teaching statement. We ask that in both the cover letter and teaching statement, the candidate describe how their work fosters inclusive learning and diversity.

Senior candidates should include the names of five references whom the search committee can contact at an appropriate time. The list of references can be submitted via the "additional documents" field in Interfolio.

Junior candidates should have three letters of reference and their official graduate transcript uploaded to Interfolio at the time of the application. The confidential recommendation letters should be uploaded to Interfolio by the referee.

Employer Description:
Brown University is committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive academic global community; as an EEO/AA employer, Brown considers applicants for employment without regard to, and does not discriminate on the basis of, gender, race, protected veteran status, disability, or any other legally protected status.

Job Description:

The Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University invites applications for a tenured, senior position (associate or full professor) in the field of Human Rights. We are seeking a scholar of human rights whose work may include -- but is not limited to -- topics such as indigenous rights, civil rights for marginalized communities, gender rights and sexual violence, freedom of expression and assembly, rights to asylum from persecution and conflict, rights to due process, labor rights, environmental rights, rights to basic standards of living and healthcare, domestic and international human rights instruments and institutions, peacebuilding, and transitional justice. We are open to scholars working on domestic or international settings. This new faculty position, to begin in July 2022, stems from a broader initiative at the Watson Institute anchored in our burgeoning Center for Human Rights and Humanitarian Studies.

The faculty position will involve a joint appointment between the Watson Institute and a relevant tenure-granting disciplinary department at Brown. Such departments include Africana Studies, Sociology, Anthropology, Political Science, History, and Economics. Across all possible disciplines, we seek a theoretically innovative scholar with demonstrated success in conducting empirical research. We are especially interested in qualified candidates who can contribute through their research, teaching, and service to the diversity and excellence of the academic community.

The Departments of Human Development and Sociology and The Program in Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies (WGSS) at Washington State University invite applications for a nine-month, full-time, permanent tenure-track position in Black Families and Health Equity at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin August 16, 2022. Candidates should have a research focus on health equity in and related to Black families that seeks to address structural barriers and conditions. The conception of health for this interdisciplinary position is intentionally flexible, including physical, mental, and social-emotional health. Research and teaching interests may include, but are not limited to expertise in areas such as reproductive justice, sexual and reproductive health (SRH), care work, family health, feminist/queer kinship, or health across the lifespan, among others. We especially welcome applications from scholars taking intersectional and qualitative approaches.

The position will have a single tenure home in either Human Development or Sociology and carry affiliate status in WGSS. The position, located on the Pullman campus, is part of a WSU faculty cluster hire initiative in the scholarship and teaching about racism and social inequality, with a focus in this cycle on health inequities and health justice. The university is particularly interested in hiring scholars whose research is deeply connected to communities, as a means to build on our strong tradition of engaged and applied scholarship at WSU.

As a public research university, WSU is committed to its land-grant heritage, its formal Memorandum of Understanding with Native American tribes in the region, and a tradition of service to society. We encourage applications from individuals who identify as members of traditionally underrepresented groups, including but not limited to African American or Black, Asian American, First Nations, Indigenous, Native American, and Latinx populations. We are committed to the retention of new faculty and as such the successful candidate will be provided with a faculty mentor within the home unit, benefit from peer/mutual mentoring opportunities, and have access to university programs such as the External Mentor Program.

RESPONSIBILITIES

The successful candidate will be expected to pursue an active research agenda leading to publication and involving community engagement and possible extramural funding. They will be expected, as part of a regular load of two courses per semester, to teach undergraduate and graduate courses related to structural racism and inequalities, family, and health in their home unit; to teach courses in race, health, and qualitative methods in WGSS; and to mentor undergraduate and graduate students. Additionally, the successful candidate will be expected to engage in service at the unit, department, university, and professional levels.

QUALIFICATIONS

Required

A PhD in Human Development, Sociology, Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies, or a closely related field is required prior to appointment start date. The successful candidate must demonstrate evidence of expertise in the study of Black families, structural racism, and health justice, broadly conceived, and demonstrate commitment to campus diversity, equity, and inclusion efforts. Candidates must be able to teach undergraduate and graduate-level courses related to health, race, and family, and be able to mentor students at all levels.

Preferred

The ideal candidate will demonstrate a record of, or strong potential for, taking an intersectional and interdisciplinary approach in their scholarship; will possess a research program that enhances the strengths of WGSS and either the Department of Human Development or the Department of Sociology; will have experience in teaching and mentoring effectiveness; and will supply a record of effort in or commitment to collaboratively creating a more equitable society and world.

APPLICATION PROCESS

To apply, visit https://www.wsujobs.com, select your appropriate employment status, and search for R-1854. Complete the online application and be prepared to upload:

1. A detailed application letter addressing each of the required and preferred qualifications, including evidence of or potential for teaching and mentoring effectiveness.
2. A current curriculum vitae.
3. A one-page statement addressing commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion.
4. A chapter, article, or writing sample, preferably less than thirty pages.
5. The names and email addresses of three individuals who have agreed to serve as references. Letters will be requested at a later time.

We will begin accepting applications on July 19, 2021. Review of applications will begin September 15, and the position will remain open until filled. Please direct inquiries via email to Dr. Pamela Thoma,
Search Committee Chair, at pthoma@wsu.edu.

Employer Description:

WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY

Founded in 1890, WSU is a comprehensive land-grant university with teaching, research, and extension missions, and one of two research universities in Washington State. WSU is organized into ten academic colleges, the Honors College, and the Graduate School. It has an enrollment of more than 28,000 undergraduate and graduate students on six campuses (Pullman, Spokane, Tri-Cities, Vancouver, Everett, and Global) with approximately 20,000 students located on the Pullman campus. WSU ranks among the top 60 public research universities and is a Carnegie I, Doctoral/Research Extensive University. WSU strongly values diversity among its faculty, staff, and students and seeks to ensure a welcoming community for all. LIFE ON THE PALOUSE

Pullman offers a friendly, small-town atmosphere with a high quality of life and connected community. Located 80 miles south of metropolitan Spokane, Pullman is also a quick drive away from the scenic Idaho panhandle and Moscow Mountain. The rolling hills of the Palouse offer a wide range of outdoor activities and a true four-season climate. The area provides ample opportunity to enjoy the cultural and academic hub of both Washington State University and the University of Idaho, in the neighboring town of Moscow, Idaho. Additionally, Pullman has an excellent public school system and was recently ranked by Bloomberg Business as the best small town in Washington to raise children. Job 17060: Stephen O. Murray Scholar in Residence

Date Position is Available: Spring 2022

Application Deadline:
Listing Active: 7/27/2021 to 8/26/2021

Institution: Michigan State University
Department: James Madison College
Region: Midwest
Title: Stephen O. Murray Scholar in Residence
Position/Rank: Fellowships/Post-docs: Other, Academic Positions: Lecturer, Academic Positions: Other
Tenure/Tenure Track: Not Applicable
Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Race, Class and Gender
Salary Range: Negotiable
Submission Link:

Job Description:

James Madison College, the undergraduate residential college with a focus on public and international affairs at Michigan State University, invites applications for the inaugural Stephen O. Murray Scholar-in-Residence. The award is made possible by a generous endowment made by Dr. Keelung Hong in honor of his partner, the scholar Steven O. Murray, who was also a graduate of James Madison College. The Scholar-in-Residence will teach and/or lecture at James Madison College and Michigan State University while also conducting research, using the Stephen O. Murray Archival Collection as well as other collections in the MSU Libraries. Murray Scholars are expected to give lectures and/or a short course and undertake research projects on Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay, Transgender and Queer + (LBGTQ+) issues, which may include a rich variety of inter- and cross-disciplinary topics. In addition, the selected Murray Scholar is expected to be in residence at JMC/MSU for some part of spring 2022 semester, to take part in the intellectual life of the community, and to play an active role in mentoring students.

Duration: The duration of the award will be arranged depending upon the availability and interests of the selected scholar and the needs of the college. The award period could range from a short-term visit of 1-3 weeks to a longer-term visit during the spring 2022 semester.

Qualifications/Eligibility:

Applicants should be working in fields related to LBGTQ+ studies, with a history of or interest in pursuing inter- or cross-disciplinary work and using the Stephen O. Murray Collection. The college is particularly interested in scholars whose work takes up issues of intersectionality.

International applicants must hold or be eligible for appropriate U.S. visa to be eligible to visit MSU's campus and receive the financial support available for Murray Scholars.

Application and Review Process:

Application must include a cover letter detailing their interests and expertise as well as the theme for any lectures or course to be offered, a CV, a research proposal, teaching materials (if appropriate), and names/contact information for three references. Selection committee may choose to interview candidates to evaluate their lecturing/teaching potential.

After review of the candidates, the selection committee will submit their recommendations to the Dean who will make the final decision on the selection.

Financial Considerations: Murray Scholars will be awarded an honorarium to be determined based on the seniority of the candidate and the duration of the visit as well as activities to be undertaken. The College will also provide support for travel to/from MSU’s campus, on-campus or other available lodging arrangements, and meal and incidental expenses support. Additionally, Murray Scholars may be eligible for research support, including student assistance, course materials and other related expenditures to fulfill the teaching, public presentations, and research responsibilities they have negotiated with the College.

Application materials: Please forward all materials to Katie Dyjach – dyjachk@msu.edu. Review of applications will begin on September 15, 2021. MSU is committed to achieving excellence through cultural diversity. The university actively encourages applications and/or nominations of women, persons of color, veterans, and persons with disabilities.

Job Description:

Assistant Professor – Management of Organizations – Haas School of Business

University of California, Berkeley

The Haas School of Business at the University of California, Berkeley invites applications for a tenure-track faculty position in the Management of Organizations group with an expected start date of July 1, 2022.

The Management of Organizations group seeks to hire an individual with expertise in the micro or macro side of management and/or organizational behavior. We are open to a wide range of theoretical traditions and methodological approaches but are especially interested in individuals whose work uncovers novel insights about the psychological or sociological mechanisms that drive behavior in organizations. We are especially enthusiastic about candidates who would contribute to Diversity, Inclusion, Equity, and Belonging.

Diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging are core values of UC Berkeley and the Haas School of Business. Our excellence can only be fully realized by faculty, students, and staff who share our commitment to these values. Successful candidates for our faculty positions will demonstrate evidence of a commitment to equity and inclusion through their research, teaching, and/or service. Examples of our commitment to diversity are available at https://haas.berkeley.edu/diversity/. We ask that all applicants include a Statement of Contributions to Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, and Belonging with their application package. For a guide to writing this statement, please visit https://haas.berkeley.edu/wp-content/uploads/Haas-Faculty-Recruitment-Diversity-Statement-Guide-2022.pdf. Information about how these statements will be evaluated can be found at https://ofew.berkeley.edu/recruitment/contributions-diversity/rubric-assessing-candidate-contributions-diversity-equity-and-belonging.

Berkeley Haas is committed to addressing the family needs of faculty, including dual career couples and single parents. We are also interested in candidates who have had non-traditional career paths or who have taken time off for family reasons, or who have achieved excellence in careers outside academia. For information about potential relocation to Berkeley, or career needs of accompanying partners and spouses, please visit: http://ofew.berkeley.edu/new-faculty.

Basic qualifications: Applicants must have a PhD (or equivalent international degree) or enrolled in a PhD (or equivalent international degree) granting program at the time of application.

Preferred qualifications: We are especially interested in applicants with a PhD in Management, Organizational Behavior, Psychology, Sociology or in other closely related fields. We prefer applicants who currently have a PhD or who have advanced to PhD candidacy and will complete the doctoral degree or equivalent degree within six months of the start date.

For more information and to apply: https://apptrkr.com/2379385

Applications will be accepted through September 1, 2021.

All letters will be treated as confidential per University of California policy and California state law. Please refer potential referees, including when letters are provided via a third party (i.e., dossier service or career center), to the UC Berkeley statement of confidentiality (http://apo.berkeley.edu/evaluall.html) prior to submitting their letters.

The University of California is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, age or protected veteran status. Date Position is Available: Winter 2021
Application Deadline: 7/26/2021 to 8/25/2021
Listing Active: 7/26/2021 to 8/25/2021
Institution: Georgetown University
Department: Center for Social Justice
Region: Northeast
Title: Director of Engaged Scholarship & Pedagogy (and Assistant Research Professor)
Position/Rank: Sociological Practice/Applied/Other: Director, Sociological Practice/Applied/Other: Researcher, Academic Positions: Assistant Professor
Tenure/Tenure Track: Not Tenure Track
Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Open to All Specialty Areas, Open to All Specialty Areas
Salary Range: $80,000 - $89,999

Job Description:

The Center for Social Justice (CSJ) at Georgetown University invites applications for a Director of Engaged Scholarship and Pedagogy to oversee and lead the CSJ’s research and teaching pillars of work. The Director works directly with a diverse faculty and staff to envision and implement community-based research projects and deepen social justice-oriented pedagogies throughout the University. The Director serves on the Center’s leadership team and has a visible and vocal presence on campus supporting the Center’s commitment to engaged scholarship and pedagogies for social change.

The Director is expected to develop and maintain their own research agenda, too. The successful candidate will hold an appointment as an Assistant Research Professor for a 3-year renewable term based on a continued excellent record of research activity, including scholarly, peer-reviewed publications and presentations at academic conferences.

The position reports to CSJ’s Executive Director and CSJ’s Faculty & Research Director. Responsibilities of the position include, but are not limited to:

- Leading and overseeing community-engaged and social justice-based research activities of the Center for Social Justice, including consulting with faculty, staff, students, and community partners regarding potential research opportunities; initiating and/or facilitating academic-community partnerships using participatory approaches; and serving as the CSJ liaison to the University’s research units.
- Advising students pursuing community-based research opportunities, including preparing students for community-based research projects and facilitating the process for CSJ’s undergraduate research fellowships.
- Identifying and applying to research grants in consultation with faculty, staff, students, and community partners.
- Overseeing the Center’s portfolio of innovative and inclusive teaching and learning programming for faculty and students.
- Acting as a consultant, partner, critical friend, and pedagogical specialist to Georgetown faculty learning and utilizing pedagogies for social change, social justice-infused methods, and other forms of engaged teaching and learning.
- Overseeing the “Research and Teaching” pillars of the Center for Social Justice, which includes direct supervision of 3 full-time professional team members who utilize diverse, engaged pedagogies for social change, including immersion, dialogue, and community-based learning.

The successful candidate will have earned a Ph.D. (or be within a year of doing so) and demonstrate a strong record of – and commitment to – community-engaged scholarship, advocacy-based research, pedagogies for social change and / or mission-driven higher education research. The candidate will have a commitment to diversity, inclusion, and justice work in their career with plans to stay current in these commitments. Strong candidates will bring experience designing and developing teaching and learning materials that centralize social change and practical experience with community-engaged research projects.

Employer Description:

As a part of the country’s oldest Catholic and Jesuit university, the Center for Social Justice (CSJ) animates Georgetown University’s Jesuit values and mission through its work in research, teaching, and service. Georgetown University maintains a mission to educate people to be reflective lifelong learners and responsible and active participants in civic life and service to others and consistent with the university’s Catholic and Jesuit identity and its institutional commitment to pursuing justice and the common good.

Job 17057: Tenured Full Professor

Date Position is Available: Fall 2022

Application Deadline:
- Listing Active: 7/26/2021 to 8/25/2021

Institution: Georgetown University

Department: Sociology

Region: Southeast

Title: Tenured Full Professor

Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Full Professor

Tenure/Tenure Track: Tenured

Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Open to All Specialty Areas

Salary Range: Negotiable

Submissions Link: https://apply.interfolio.com/91087

Job Description:

The Department of Sociology at Georgetown University invites applications for a tenured full professor. The successful candidate will also serve as chair of the Department of Sociology upon appointment for at least one renewable three-year term. The department has strengths in urban sociology, cultural sociology, and race and ethnicity, however, areas of specialization are open to any area of sociology for this appointment. Faculty in the sociology department are committed to teaching and scholarship that supports a range of research methods, theoretical approaches, and substantive areas. The department affirms its commitment to diversity, equity, and social justice through a wide array of teaching, educational events, and its own organizational practices.

The next chair will be an established scholar who can continue to build on the record for scholarly and instructional excellence that the department has established since its inception, while also being strategic about the department’s opportunities for future growth and development. The qualifications of the candidate should be consistent with a tenured appointment at the level of full professor, with a Ph.D. in sociology or a related field. We seek a scholar and administrative leader committed to supporting innovative research and scholarship, engaged learning, and community outreach and service. The chair should be supportive of partnerships and collaborative work both inside and outside the college and university, and willing to work to facilitate inter-unit collaborations with the Department of Sociology and its faculty.

The chair is responsible for providing leadership and oversight of the department’s academic programs and budgets. The chair will also work with the department’s administrative manager to ensure a workplace that is supportive of faculty, staff, and students. In fulfilling these responsibilities, the chair will work in close collaboration with department faculty, department staff, and the college dean. The ideal candidate will help create an environment of collaboration, transparency, and shared governance. The new chair will also lead university efforts to expand the size and reach of the department. Candidates should expect to describe their potential contributions to diversity and inclusion at Georgetown. Additionally, candidates should demonstrate how their work fits into the university’s tradition of placing people in the service of others and the institutional legacy of “cura personalis” (care of the whole person).

Founded in 1789, Georgetown University is the nation’s oldest Catholic and Jesuit university. Today, Georgetown is a major international, student-centered research university of 17,000 students that embodies a commitment to intellectual openness, as well as justice and the common good. The Department of Sociology draws engaged students from across the U.S. and the undergraduate program is growing. Our majors earn a Bachelor of Science in the liberal arts from Georgetown College and develop research skills through the completion of independent research projects. The Department of Sociology is an active contributor to Georgetown University’s broader mission. Our faculty includes research-active scholars with a deep commitment to high-quality, undergraduate-focused instruction. Faculty members have won awards for both their teaching and research, and are actively engaged in efforts to bring sociological insight to public discourse and policy debates. Faculty in the department are also connected to the robust interdisciplinary research and education initiatives on the Georgetown campus (the Georgetown Environment Initiative, the Global Health Initiative, the Georgetown Initiative on Tech & Society, the Gender Justice Initiative, the Racial Justice Institute, and the Prisons and Justice Initiative). The Chair will play a key role in ensuring the department features in campus-wide research and educational initiatives.

To apply, please visit https://apply.interfolio.com/91087 to submit (1) a cover letter describing your professional experience, including your research and interests; (2) a curriculum vitae (CV); (3) names and contact information for three references who will provide letters upon request from the search committee. We actively seek to create a diverse and inclusive departmental culture. Candidates are welcome to share a separate statement that outlines the ways that they hope to contribute to enriching the diversity of perspectives and people at Georgetown. Review of applications will begin September 15, 2021 and will continue until the position is filled. The appointment begins with the fall term of 2022 with an anticipated start date of August 2022. If you have any questions about the position, please contact Corey D. Fields at corey.fields@georgetown.edu.

Employer Description:

Georgetown University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer fully dedicated to achieving a diverse faculty and staff. Job 17055: Tenure track positions in Work & Organization Studies at MIT Sloan School of Management

Date Position is Available: Fall 2022
Application Deadline:
Listing Active: 7/26/2021 to 9/24/2021
Institution: MIT Sloan School of Management
Department: Work and Organization Studies
Region: Northeast
Title: Tenure track positions in Work & Organization Studies at MIT Sloan School of Management
Position/Rank: Open
Tenure/Tenure Track: Tenured
Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Organizations, Formal and Complex , Work and Labor Markets
Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:
The Work and Organization Studies (WOS) group at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) Sloan School has been authorized to hire tenure track faculty members to start July 1, 2022, or soon thereafter, as possible, whose teaching and research focus on work, employment, and organizational issues. The rank is open and both junior and senior candidates will be considered.

Faculty responsibilities include teaching courses related to Work and Organization Studies. WOS has current teaching needs in courses on organizational processes, power and influence, as well as courses on work and employment issues.

The WOS faculty is interdisciplinary and the new hire’s background is open and might include Sociology, Organizational Behavior, Industrial Relations, Social Psychology, Political Science, or Economics. Candidates must possess, or be close to completion of, a Ph.D. in one of these, or another closely related field, at the start of employment.

WOS builds on the traditions of Organization Studies and the Institute for Work and Employment Research and has Ph.D. programs in both areas. We are open to a variety of styles of research (quantitative, ethnographic, field based, and lab based). (For more information about our group, go to: https://mitsloan.mit.edu/faculty/academic-groups/work-and-organization-studies/about-us). The WOS group is part of the Behavioral and Policy Sciences Area, one of three major academic areas at Sloan. We encourage multidisciplinary work with colleagues in other parts of the School, and several members of the group are also members of other groups/units in the School (Communication, Economic Sociology, Technological Innovation, Entrepreneurship, and Strategy Management, System Dynamics, Global Economics and Management, and Information Technology).

Please submit applications electronically at http://apply.interfolio.com/91034 providing a cover letter outlining interests and experience, a current CV, and one or two papers that indicate your research focus and capabilities. Applicants should also arrange for three letters of recommendation to be submitted via this link. Applications will be reviewed as received but are due no later than September 10, 2021.

MIT is an equal opportunity employer committed to building a culturally diverse and pluralistic intellectual community and strongly encourages applications from women and minorities.

Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:

Assistant, Associate, or Full Professor Position
Labor and Employment Law
ILR School, Cornell University

Cornell University’s School of Industrial and Labor Relations (ILR) invites applications to fill a tenure-track/tenured faculty position (at the assistant, associate or full professor level) in Labor and Employment Law, to begin August 2022. The ILR School is looking for candidates who can support our growing diverse student body through advising and inclusive teaching approaches. This is a tenure-track or tenured position at a rank fitting with the candidate’s record of accomplishments. Candidates should have a record of high-quality research published in leading academic journals, or the potential for such research publications. Candidates should also have the ability to teach effectively to both undergraduates and graduate students on the Cornell Ithaca campus.

At the time of appointment, applicants must have completed a J.D. and/or a Ph.D. in law, labor relations, sociology, political science, or other related disciplines. We especially welcome candidates who are able to teach the undergraduate and graduate-level course requirement on U.S. Labor and Employment Law (covering primarily the NLRA and employment discrimination law). Faculty elective courses, as well as faculty research agendas, are based on their expertise and interests, which may include labor law, employment discrimination, wage and hour, health and safety, international labor law, and other areas related to labor and employment law.

The ILR School (www.ilr.cornell.edu) is the world’s leading college focused on work, employment, and labor issues. Our faculty come from a number of disciplinary backgrounds and study a broad range of issues related to labor, employment, and organizations. Cornell University is committed to supporting the work-life balance of its faculty.

We seek applicants whose record in research, teaching or service has prepared them to contribute to Cornell’s historical commitment to diversity.

To be considered, please apply via Academic Jobs Online at https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/18974. Interested candidates should submit a cover letter, vita, statements explaining research and teaching capabilities, diversity and inclusion statement, and three reference letters. Applications from women and minority candidates are strongly encouraged.

Review of applications will begin on September 1, 2021 and continue until the position is filled. Inquiries about this position should be directed to Professor Risa Lieberwitz at RLL5@cornell.edu

Diversity and Inclusion are a part of Cornell University’s heritage. We are a recognized employer and educator valuing AA/EEO, Protected Veterans, and Individuals with Disabilities.

Job Description:

The Department of Sociology in the Faculty of Arts at the University of British Columbia (Vancouver) invites applications for a tenure-stream faculty position at the rank of Assistant Professor beginning July 1, 2022. The substantive area of specialization for this position is the Sociology of Migration.

An ideal candidate will have a demonstrated record of excellence in research and teaching and will help to strengthen our global reputation. We expect applicants to have a Ph.D. in sociology at the time of appointment but applicants who have progressed to the point where completion of the Ph.D. is imminent and who demonstrate clear and superior promise of excellence in research will also be considered. For information about the Department, visit: http://sociology.ubc.ca/.

Application materials are to be submitted online at the following link: https://sociology.ubc.ca/news/assistant-professor-tenure-track-sociology-of-migration/

Review of applications will begin on September 14, 2021. This position is subject to final budgetary approval. Salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Equity and diversity are essential to academic excellence. The department is committed to facilitating an open and diverse community of faculty, students, and staff that fosters the inclusion of voices that have been marginalized on any grounds enumerated under the B.C. Human Rights Code, including sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, racialization, disability, political belief, religion, marital or family status, age, and/or status as a First Nation, Métis, Inuit, or Indigenous person. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Given uncertainty caused by the global COVID-19 pandemic, applicants must be prepared to conduct interviews remotely if circumstances require. A successful applicant may be asked to consider an offer with a deadline without having been able to make an in-person visit to campus should travel or other restrictions apply.

Employer Description:
The University of British Columbia is a globally-acclaimed institution that ranks among the top 30 universities in the world. We rank in the top two Sociology departments in Canada. The university is situated in Vancouver, which is routinely included in lists of the top five most livable cities in the world. It is renowned for its mild year-round climate, innovative urban design, emphasis on the environment and sustainability, extensive cultural and cosmopolitan offerings, ethnic diversity, and spectacular natural beauty set among the coastal mountains and the Pacific Ocean. The UBC Vancouver campus is on the traditional, unceded territory of the Musqueam people.

Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Public Policy
Salary Range: Negotiable
Submission Link: https://apply.interfolio.com/90621

Job Description:
The Harris School of Public Policy invites applications for an Assistant Instructional Professor in Public Policy Studies, a dynamic, multidisciplinary major grounded in the social sciences, with substantial inputs from economics, sociology, political science, and law, among other disciplines. The hire will be expected to contribute to the Public Policy Studies major by developing coursework that contributes to the Public Policy Studies core and elective curriculum, mentoring individual undergraduate theses, assisting in program administration, and building learning experiences that engage students with relevant professional communities. Preference will be given to candidates who demonstrate a desire and ability to teach Policy Implementation, a key component of our core curriculum—particularly those candidates with scholarly expertise in the sociology of organizations and/or program or policy implementation expertise. In addition, preference will be given to candidates with experience related to teaching undergraduate practicum courses (courses that involve student field research in service of a government or community-based client). Candidates with expertise in a substantive policy area, including but not limited to health policy and education are particularly welcome.

The position will be a two-year, renewable appointment to begin on or after September 1, 2021. The successful candidate will have a PhD or terminal degree in the social sciences or law and a proven record of teaching excellence and mentoring in at least one field relevant to public policy. A track record of research publications or practitioner experience are also highly desired. Applicants must have a completed Ph.D. by the start date and teaching experience. The Assistant Instructional Professor will teach 4-6 courses per academic year, depending on non-classroom responsibilities.

We seek a diverse pool of applicants who wish to join an academic community that places the highest value on rigorous inquiry and encourages diverse perspectives, experiences, groups of individuals, and ideas to inform and stimulate intellectual challenge, engagement, and exchange. Job Description:

The University Center for Human Values at Princeton University invites applications for Laurance S. Rockefeller Visiting Faculty Fellowships for the academic year 2022-23. Fellows devote an academic year in residence at Princeton to research and writing about topics involving human values in public and private life. This full-time visiting program is open to scholars in all disciplines provided their research plans qualify. In recent years fellows have been drawn from fields including philosophy, political theory, literature, history, classics, economics, and law, but this list is not meant to be exhaustive.

Fellows are expected to reside in or around Princeton, or demonstrate to the program’s satisfaction the ability to be on campus on a daily basis and on short notice in order to fulfill responsibilities relating to in-person participation. Fellows are expected to be active contributors to the intellectual life of the Center. This includes participating in a weekly seminar attended by fellows and Center faculty to discuss work in progress and in various other seminars, colloquia and lectures sponsored by the Center. Fellows enjoy access to Firestone Library and to a wide range of activities throughout the University.

Candidates must have a doctorate or equivalent professional degree and a strong record of research publications appropriate to their career stage. Typically Fellows hold faculty positions at other universities or colleges; in exceptional cases we consider applications from independent scholars when there is a high level of scholarly achievement. This is not a postdoctoral fellowship program and we do not generally consider candidates who will have held the Ph.D. for less than two years at the time of appointment.

The fellowship period extends from September 1 to July 1. Fellows normally receive stipends of up to one-half their academic-year salaries (subject to a minimum and maximum set each fall). Ordinarily their home institutions provide a portion of their salaries in addition to all benefits, although this is not a requirement for appointment. Stipends for independent scholars will not exceed the maximum for fellows holding appointments elsewhere. The main considerations in the evaluation of applications are the following: The significance of the proposed research and its relevance to the purposes of the University Center for Human Values (see http://uchv.princeton.edu/ for more information); The quality of a candidate’s previous research and the contribution the candidate is likely to make in the future through teaching and writing; The likelihood that the research would benefit from being conducted in the University Center environment. HOW TO APPLY: Candidates must submit an online application at https://www.princeton.edu/acad-positions/position/20741. The following materials will be required: 1. A curriculum vitae; 2. A scholarly paper (of no more than about 12,000 words) written in the past three years; 3. A statement (of no more than 1,500 words) describing the proposed research project and including a brief working title for the project; and 4. Contact information for three referees, including at least one who was not a graduate advisor. Referrees will be contacted directly with instructions for uploading letters of reference. These materials must be submitted online by the application deadline of Monday, November 1, 2021, 11:59 p.m. ET. We do not accept application materials by any other method. The selection committee begins reviewing applications immediately and incomplete applications may be at a disadvantage. Decisions are expected to be announced in March 2022. Princeton University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law.

Employer Description:

Established in 1990 through the generosity of Laurance S. Rockefeller ’32, the University Center for Human Values fosters ongoing inquiry into important ethical issues in private and public life and supports teaching, research, and discussion of ethics and human values throughout the curriculum and across the disciplines at Princeton University.

Today, the Center is the hub of a lively and exciting community that brings together Princeton faculty members, graduate students, undergraduates, visiting faculty fellows and other visitors. The Center is home to a growing number of faculty members with teaching and research interests in various aspects of human values, most of whom are jointly appointed in their disciplines. It sponsors a series of Freshman Seminars. The undergraduate certificate program in Values and Public Life defines a pathway through the curriculum for students interested in developing a focus of human values. We sponsor an array of activities, from specialized seminars and lectures to large campus events, aimed to stimulate and inform members of the Center and of the greater campus community. And we support research on human values by Princeton faculty members, graduate students and undergraduates. Through all of these activities the Center strives to provide the larger community with the space and resources to reflect systematically about fundamental questions of value—how we should understand our moral identities, how we should treat each other, and how we should try to shape our world.

Job 17041: Assistant, Associate, or Full Professor in HR Studies and Organizational Behavior

Cornell’s ILR School invites applicants for two tenure-track faculty positions, one for a person with expertise in macro-OB/organization theory, and the other for a person with expertise in human resource studies. The departments are looking for candidates who can support our growing diverse student body through advising and inclusive teaching approaches. These are tenure track positions at a rank fitting with the candidates’ record of accomplishments. Candidates should have a record of high-quality research published in top tier refereed outlets as well as the ability to teach effectively to both undergraduates and graduate students on the Cornell Ithaca campus. We will consider applicants at all ranks for each position, but will give preference to senior scholars (associate or full) for the macro-OB position in the Department of Organizational Behavior, while junior scholars will be given preference for the HR position in the HR Studies Department.

The ILR School prizes excellence in both research and teaching. Successful candidates at the senior level position will demonstrate both experience in teaching and a strong record of publishing in management or relevant disciplinary journals, and those at the junior level will be expected to demonstrate some teaching experience as well as high research potential through publications, awards and other forms of scholarship recognition. Junior-level applicants must have completed their Ph.D. prior to the start of their appointment. We seek applicants whose record in research, teaching or service has prepared them to contribute to Cornell’s historical commitment to diversity.

We are a leading institution of applied social sciences focusing on work, employment, and labor policy issues in the U.S. and internationally. The School offers undergraduate and graduate education as well as career-long learning for professionals, and is comprised of six departments (including Labor Relations, History and Law, International Comparative Labor, Economics and Statistics, in addition to OB and HR) that operate in a highly collaborative and collegial environment. The Departments of Organizational Behavior and Human Resources are part of a rich intellectual environment for management scholars at Cornell, with strong ties to the Sociology and Psychology Departments and the SC Johnson College of Business.

To be considered for the Organizational Behavior position, please apply via Academic Jobs Online at https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/18951. To be considered for the Human Resource Studies position, please apply via Academic Jobs Online at https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/18950. Interested candidates should submit a cover letter, vita, research statement, teaching statement, diversity and inclusion statement, writing sample, and three reference letters. Applications from women and minority candidates are strongly encouraged. The submission deadline for application materials is October 1, 2021. This position has a planned start date of August 2022.

Questions about these positions should be directed to Professors Pam Tolbert (pst3@cornell.edu), Diane Burton (burton@cornell.edu), Ben A. Rissing (rissing@cornell.edu), or JR Keller (jrkeller@cornell.edu).

The ILR School is also recruiting in the Department of Labor Relations, History and Employment Law.

Diversity and Inclusion are a part of Cornell University’s heritage. We are a recognized employer and educator valuing AA/EEO, Protected Veterans, and Individuals with Disabilities.

Job Description:

Villanova University. The Department of Sociology and Criminology invites applications for a tenure-track in Criminology at the rank of assistant professor to begin in August 2022. We seek candidates whose research, teaching and/or service has prepared them to contribute to our commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion and support the University’s mission, especially regarding community service and social justice. Primary teaching responsibility will be in the Criminology program and consist of 5 undergraduate courses per academic year (3/2 load with a semester-long sabbatical after a positive third-year review). Note, the successful candidate will be expected to regularly teach a research methods course. Our new colleague will have a demonstrated commitment to promoting diversity, inclusion, and multicultural competence in an educational environment. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Criminology or Sociology by the time of appointment.

Preferred Qualifications: Candidates for this position should pursue an active research agenda leading to high-quality publications. They should also demonstrate a commitment to effective teaching at the undergraduate level. We seek scholars that focus on one or more of the following areas: queer criminology, gender violence, political violence/terrorism, cyber-criminality/digital surveillance, comparative criminology, and gun violence.

Duties and Responsibilities: Teaching duties include a 3-2 teaching load for the first three years, which typically requires two course preparations per semester. After a successful Third Year Review, a one-semester sabbatical at full pay is available in the fourth year and the 3-2 teaching load may be continued for another three years, contingent on a successful and promising record of scholarship, teaching, and service.

Special Message to Applicants: Applicants must apply online at https://jobs.villanova.edu/. The online application should include a letter indicating interests and suitability for the position, statement of research interests, evidence of teaching effectiveness, curriculum vitae, unofficial academic transcripts, and three letters of recommendation. Review of applications begins August 23 and continues until the position is filled.

The Department of Sociology, Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Copenhagen invites applications for a three-year fixed-term postdoc position starting on 1 February 2022 or as soon as possible thereafter.

This is a unique opportunity to join a research team that will conduct a large-scale study of the social class mobility of siblings born over most of the 20th century in more than 10 countries. The research project "Social Class Mobility in Comparative Perspective: Bringing Siblings In" (SIBMOB) is hiring a postdoc who will play a crucial role in contributing to the project's empirical analyses. These analyses revolve around examining the class mobility experiences of siblings from different families by applying new methods to survey and administrative data. The team is located in a family-friendly work environment at the Department of Sociology, University of Copenhagen.

Job Description:
The Department of Sociology, Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Copenhagen invites applications for a three-year fixed-term postdoc position starting on 1 February 2022 or as soon as possible thereafter.

This is a unique opportunity to join a research team that will conduct a large-scale study of the social class mobility of siblings born over most of the 20th century in more than 10 countries. The research project "Social Class Mobility in Comparative Perspective: Bringing Siblings In" (SIBMOB) is hiring a postdoc who will play a crucial role in contributing to the project's empirical analyses. These analyses revolve around examining the class mobility experiences of siblings from different families by applying new methods to survey and administrative data. The team is located in a family-friendly work environment at the Department of Sociology, University of Copenhagen.

Qualifications
Applicants should hold a PhD degree, or be close to defending it, within the social sciences (e.g., sociology or economics) or related fields. Applicants should have obtained their PhD degree in 2016 or later. Applicants must (i) possess advanced quantitative methods skills and (ii) have experience in working with large-scale administrative or similar census data. Experience in the field of social mobility and inequality is an advantage but not a requirement. Proficiency in written Danish, Norwegian, or Swedish is an advantage but not a requirement.

Job Description
SIBMOB, which is funded by the European Research Council, has two objectives: (i) to develop a new methodological approach to characterize the social class mobility of siblings, and (ii) to apply this approach in an empirical study of more than 10 countries. The main role of the postdoc is to contribute to the empirical part of the project, especially the analyses for Denmark, which will be based on Danish administrative data (available from Statistics Denmark) and the Danish Twin Registry. The postdoc will assume the primary responsibility for the empirical part focusing on Denmark, including literature review, data compilation, preparation, and analysis, and drafting manuscripts for journal articles/book chapters.

SIBMOB is a collaborative project, and the postdoc will be part of a research team which, in addition to the PI in charge of the SIBMOB project (Associate Professor Kristian Bernt Karlson), includes a postdoc and a research assistant. The candidate is expected to work both independently and in collaboration with the research team to break new ground in the study of social class mobility, with the overall ambition of advancing our understanding of why some countries are more socially mobile than other countries. The project runs from 2021 through 2026 and is located at the Department of Sociology, University of Copenhagen. The candidate is also expected to be part of the academic life of the department and will be part of the research group Welfare, Inequality, and Mobility.

The postdoc position is a full-time research position and does not involve any teaching obligations.

For further information, including more details on the SIBMOB project, please contact project PI Associate Professor Kristian Bernt Karlson (kbk@soc.ku.dk).

Terms of Employment
Further information on qualification requirements as postdoc can be found in the Memorandum on Job Structure for Academic Staff at Danish Universities 2019 here: https://employment.ku.dk/faculty/criteria-for-recognising-merit/dokumenter/Ministerial_Order_no._1443_of_11_December_2019_on_Job_Structure_for_Academic_Staff_at_Universities.pdf

- Terms of appointment and salary is in accordance with the Danish Confederation of Professional Associations (Akademikerne).
- The salary range starts at DKK 34,899.55 per month + a 17.1% contribution to the pension scheme. It is possible to negotiate salary supplements on an annual basis.

Job Description:
The Josef Korbel School of International Studies at the University of Denver is seeking candidates for four new tenure-line faculty positions. A brief summary of each position is as follows:

Microeconomics for Public Policy – Assistant Professor, Tenure Track
The Josef Korbel School of International Studies and the Douglas and Mary Scrivner Institute of Public Policy at the University of Denver seek candidates with teaching and research interests that apply microeconomic perspectives and methods to contemporary public policy issues such as public finance and budgeting, social policy, urban (or rural) economics and policy, economic development, or environmental and natural resource policy. Applicants with a PhD in any relevant social science discipline will be considered. We are especially interested in candidates equipped to teach cost-benefit analysis and other forms of economic and policy analysis at the graduate and undergraduate levels.

International Security and Democratic Governance (two Assistant Professor positions)
The Josef Korbel School of International Studies at the University of Denver is seeking candidates for two Assistant Professor positions: one in Peace and Security and a second in Democratic Governance. We seek an Assistant Professor in the area of Peace and Security, broadly understood, including both traditional and emerging issues, applying any appropriate methodology, at any level of analysis. The successful candidate will teach and shape core courses in our International Security MA program, providing an opportunity to help fashion a forward-looking and innovative approach to the field.
We also seek an Assistant Professor trained in any relevant social science field, focused on Democratic Governance, broadly understood, and/or its alternatives. Possible research interests include the dynamics of democratization, democratic erosion and autocratization, the role of information and the media, identity in processes of inclusion and exclusion, and the relative efficacy of democracies in addressing challenges such as inequality, development, climate change, corruption, migration, or economic or political crises.

Environmental Sustainability – Associate or Full Tenure-Line Professor
We seek a scholar, trained in any relevant discipline or interdisciplinary program, with a prominent research profile in environmental sustainability, broadly understood. The appointment will be at the Associate or Full Professor rank, with tenure. The successful candidate will contribute to teaching in our undergraduate, certificate and MA programs in sustainability and have the opportunity to play a leading role in developing our emerging “Sustainability Initiative,” including fundraising, enhancing our research programming, and engaging with communities outside the university.

Complete job descriptions, including required and preferred qualifications and salary ranges for each position can be found through the University of Denver’s online application system. Dean, College of Social Sciences
Job No: 501613
Work Type: Management (MPP)
Location: Fresno
Categories: MPP, At-Will, Full Time, Student Services
Dean, College of Social Sciences
(Administrator IV)

Compensation and Benefits

Salary is competitive and negotiable depending on the strength of qualifications. This is a CSU Management Personnel Plan (MPP) position.

The CSU system provides a comprehensive benefit package that includes medical, dental and vision plans, membership in the California Public Employees Retirement System (CalPERS), sick and vacation time, and 14 paid holidays a year. Eligible employees are also able to participate in the fee waiver education program. A summary of benefit information can be found at <http://fresnostate.edu/adminserv/hr/benefits/documents/2020%20Benefits%20Summary%20represented%20and%20non-represented.pdf>.

Position Summary

The Dean of the College of Social Sciences is a member of the Provost’s Leadership Team and reports to the Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs and is the chief academic and administrative officer for the College. Additionally, the Dean serves as the intellectual leader of the College, facilitating a positive environment for teaching, scholarship, creative activity, and service to the University and the community. The Dean is responsible for the quality and integrity of academic programs; managing the human and fiscal resources and academic programs; and is an advocate for student and faculty learning and teaching opportunities, as well as supporting the professional development of staff.

The Dean is the primary spokesperson for the College on campus and in the community; and serves as a chief advocate for the College and its faculty, staff, and students. The Dean works in collaboration with other Deans and the senior administration to promote and support the best interest of the College. In addition, the Dean partners with University Advancement in continuing efforts to foster and maintain relationships with alumni and donors.

As a minority-serving institution, Fresno State embraces diversity and inclusion, and is highly focused on student success. The Dean is responsible for developing and implementing strategies that enhance the learning environment and address the needs of first-generation students. In addition, the Dean will create an environment that welcomes transfer, DACA, veteran, and international students. The Dean will also lead the College in advancing academic excellence through the use of innovative instructional technology and striking the appropriate balance between in person and online learning. The Dean is expected to embrace and seize this unparalleled opportunity.

Opportunities and Challenges

The successful candidate will be expected to address the following opportunities and challenges:

• Reimagining a unified vision for the College of Social Sciences responsive to current challenges facing higher education, while continuing to embrace creative thinking, academic excellence, and student success;
• Continue to identify new relationships and enhance existing collaborations with key external stakeholders within the region through partnership and active engagement;
• Further cultivating a culture of collegial teamwork across the College;
• Expand existing and identify new revenue streams for the College to fund new programs, promote faculty development, and student support;
• Continue to advance a teaching and learning environment that encourages interdisciplinary collaboration across the College and University;
• Leading the College in exploring opportunities to promote student access, scholarship and creative activity, and engagement with faculty;
• Fostering and strengthening academic programs that will prepare students to be successful in achieving their career aspirations.
Qualities and Attributes

The successful candidate will possess a distinguished record of leadership and academic service, experience building relationships external to the University and College, and a dynamic vision for the future of the College. In addition, the candidate must value shared governance, transparency, and a high level of engagement with faculty, staff, and students. The successful candidate will be a strategic and energetic leader who embraces the mission of the College and a student-centered education philosophy. The candidate will also possess:

- The ability to serve as a visible, approachable and inspirational leader who welcomes collaboration with all internal and external stakeholders;
- An intellectual curiosity about all academic disciplines represented in the College;
- Strong advocacy skills;
- The commitment to fostering a culture that is welcoming and accepting of individuals from diverse socioeconomic, gender, and ethnic backgrounds; a dedication to supporting and strengthening the University’s commitment to advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion;
- Exceptional listening and communication skills;
- A willingness to actively engage with undergraduate and graduate students, alumni, and the greater Central Valley community;
- Experience in fundraising and engaging faculty in these endeavors;
- Proven experience managing during times of crises and navigating complex institutional priorities during times of fiscal constraint.
- The ability to articulate the importance of social sciences as a social good to the University and the broader community.
- Disposition to lead and unite the College’s faculty, staff, and students at a time of social and political polarization.
- A strong sense of cultural awareness and emotional intelligence.

Required Qualifications

The next Dean of the College of Social Sciences will be a visionary and entrepreneurial academic administrator who is passionate about Fresno State’s commitment to student success. Leading candidates will possess:

- An earned doctorate from an accredited institution and a successful record of teaching, scholarly achievement, and service sufficient to merit appointment as full professor in one of the College’s disciplines;
- A successful record of academic administrative leadership and experience at the department level or above;
- Knowledge of and experience in developing and managing budgets;
- Proven experience managing personnel issues;
- Experience with program evaluation and strategic planning;
- Knowledge of enrollment management and student success and retention;
- A commitment to shared governance and an open, collegial management style;
- Experience with student abroad programs;
- A commitment to promoting interdisciplinary collaborations;

The College

The mission of the College of Social Sciences (COSS) is to seek and impart knowledge of the human social experience in all its diversity in order to educate students and benefit humanity. COSS seeks to instill a concern for human values and civic responsibility and to provide substantial knowledge drawn from the social sciences. Such values and knowledge will help students respond effectively to many challenges and opportunities.

As students advance in their knowledge of societies and cultures, including their own, they learn communication skills and gain valuable understanding of people from different backgrounds. Global awareness, together with an appreciation of relationships between society and nature, is a fundamental aspect of learning in the social sciences. The College teaches students to think clearly, critically, and analytically that will allow students to engage and solve complex social problems. The College also fosters respect for human diversity and a sense of responsibility for preparing students to adapt both wisely and resourcefully in our ever-changing world. As a leader in liberal arts education, COSS provides excellent preparation for a wide range of careers in academia, government, business, and many other venues in the public and private sectors.

The College of Social Sciences offers a broad and exciting range of majors, minors, and certificates to its 3659 undergraduate, 92 graduate, and 21 credential students. The College has an operating budget of approximately $12M and consists of ten departments: Africana Studies, Anthropology, Chicano & Latin American Studies, Child & Family Science, Criminology, Geography, History, Political Science, Sociology and Women’s, Gender & Sexuality Studies.

The College’s degree programs are designed to develop essential skills necessary to adapt to a constantly changing world and to provide leadership for the new millennium. Students majoring in the Social Sciences can learn through practical experience by conducting archeological fieldwork, interning in social science research labs, engaging in sociological and criminological data analysis, and geographic information tracking by working in the student computing labs.
Cultural diversity is learned by projects in the African American and Chicano Research Centers or by participating in performing groups such as the folkloric dance group Los Danzantes de Aztlan. Others observe Fresno city and county board meetings, attend lectures by visiting professors, take field trips to the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank or the Museum of Tolerance, or learn about non-profit organization management through community service. Students that graduate with a Social Science background leave with the knowledge needed for their careers and a broader understanding of the world. Students interested in criminology, the largest major at Fresno State, have an opportunity to learn about the criminal justice system, victim services, and allied professions.

COSS is home to approximately 84 full-time and 111 part-time faculty. They are experienced and dedicated faculty who hold doctorates from many prestigious universities. Some bring years of experience in professional careers they now teach about. They take pride in providing students with a high-quality education and opportunities to engage in research.

COSS faculty collectively have a considerable publication record, are prolific in grant writing, and engage in collaborative endeavors with many institutions within the Central Valley. Additionally, they teach an extensive array or courses, attend national and international conferences, mentor students for honors programs, perform both solo and collaborative research, and participate in shared governance of the College and University. COSS faculty are known for employing High Impact Practices in their courses, and for engaging in extensive advising of their students.

COSS faculty are actively engaged in conducting research with peers from other disciplines across campus and externally, with private, public, and non-profit organizations. A few examples include the Criminology Department’s working with local courts and state prisons; the Political Science Department’s Institute for Leadership and Public Policy conducting election surveys of the San Joaquin Valley; and the Sociology Department’s collaboration with the city gathering community input data on police reform. University-wide, COSS faculty work closely with faculty from other colleges, including past collaborations with the College of Science & Mathematics and the Jordan School of Agricultural Sciences and Technology conducting research on urban water usage and its impacts on biodiversity in the Fresno/Clovis metropolitan area, and doing statistical analysis for department research projects around campus.

With respect to grant writing, COSS faculty have been awarded numerous grants from the U.S. Department of Education, the National Science Foundation, and other federal agencies. These grants have enabled faculty to increase student achievement, provide study-abroad opportunities, plan site visits to locations across the state for research and education, award scholarships, as well as furthering the research and scholarship goals of the faculty.

It is important to mention that the College of Social Sciences will play a critical role in the recently adopted change to California State University (CSU) system’s general education requirement. In August 2020, Governor Newsom signed AB1460 (Weber) into law requiring CSU 23 campuses to add a 3-unit Ethnic Studies course to the graduation requirement for those graduating in Academic Year 2024-2025.

Deadline & Application Instructions

Applications received by August 26, 2021 will be given full consideration by the search committee. Applications received after that date will be forwarded at the request of the Hiring Manager and/or search committee.

Please click “Apply Now” to complete the employment application for California State University, Fresno. Interested applicants must complete the application and attach the following: 1) their most recent resume/vitae, 2) a cover letter that addresses their specific qualifications and interest, and 3) contact information for three professional references.

Equal Employment Opportunity Information

California State University, Fresno is committed to maintaining and implementing employment policies and procedures in compliance with applicable state and federal equal employment opportunity laws and regulations. Executive Orders 1096 and 1097 prohibit discrimination, harassment, and retaliation on the basis of a protected status: race, color, religion, national origin, ancestry, age, sex (including gender identity), sexual orientation, marital status, pregnancy, mental disability, physical disability, medical condition and covered veteran status. Fresno State’s commitment to diversity informs our efforts in recruitment, hiring, and retention. We are proud to be an affirmative action and equal opportunity employer.

Supplemental Information

Following a conditional offer of employment, a background check (including a criminal records check) must be completed satisfactorily before any candidate may start work with the California State University, Fresno. Failure to satisfactorily complete the background check may result in the withdrawal of the offer of employment. Current employees who are offered positions on campus will be required to undergo a background check for any position where a background check is required by law or that Fresno State has identified as sensitive.

The person holding this position is considered a "mandated reporter" under the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act and is required to comply with the requirements set forth in CSU Executive Order 1083 as a condition of employment.

This position may be a "designated position" under the California State University's Conflict of Interest Code. This will require the filing of a Statement of Economic Interest on an annual basis and the completion of training within six (6) months of assuming office and every two (2) years thereafter.

Fresno State is a tobacco-free, smoke-free and vapor-free campus.

Job Description:

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF ANTHROPOLOGY AND SOCIOLOGY

Kalamazoo College invites applications for a tenure track position beginning in Fall 2022 at the assistant professor level in the Anthropology and Sociology Department. We invite applications from sociologists or geographers with expertise in survey research methods. Area of research is open, but an international focus is desired. As a truly joint department, all courses offered blur disciplinary boundaries.

The successful candidate will have demonstrated a high aptitude for and interest in undergraduate teaching, including contributing to the College’s “Shared Passages” core curriculum (first-year, sophomore, and senior seminars), a commitment to the liberal arts, and a desire to involve undergraduates in scholarship both in and out of the classroom. Ph.D. in Sociology, Geography, or a related discipline (or evidence it will be completed by September 1, 2022) is required.

We encourage applications from candidates whose intellectual and pedagogical approaches are effective in attracting and retaining students from historically underrepresented groups. The successful applicant will demonstrate a strong commitment to working with students, faculty and staff from diverse social, cultural, and economic backgrounds. Salary is competitive and consistent with level of experience. Kalamazoo College is on the trimester system and the teaching load is two courses per trimester.

Completed applications received by October 1, 2021 will receive full consideration, with later applications reviewed as needed until the position is filled. Submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, detailed statement of teaching philosophy and goals, description of scholarly interests, a diversity and inclusion statement, and undergraduate and graduate transcripts (unofficial acceptable) in PDF format to AnsoSearch@kzoo.edu with subject line last name, first name. For more information about the College, see our home page at www.kzoo.edu and department web site at https://anso.kzoo.edu/. Kalamazoo College encourages candidates who will contribute to the cultural diversity of the College to apply and to identify themselves if they wish. Equal Opportunity Employer.

Employer Description:
Kalamazoo College is a nationally known liberal arts college of approximately 1,450 students. The academic calendar includes three ten-week teaching terms with a month-long December break. The college offers an undergraduate experience that weaves a tradition of liberal arts curriculum into domestic and international educational experiences. Kalamazoo College is a member of the Posse Program and home of the Arcus Center for Social Justice Leadership. The campus is located in a diverse and vibrant city in southwestern Michigan, midway between Chicago and Detroit, and is the home of the Kalamazoo Promise. The Kalamazoo area encompasses a community of 335,000, which supports several college and university campuses along with numerous civic arts and cultural associations. Thirty-five miles from Lake Michigan, the area offers many opportunities for outdoor activities.

Job Description:

Dean of the School of Justice, Safety and Military Science

Eastern Kentucky University, located just 27 miles south of Lexington in Richmond, KY, seeks an entrepreneurial and visionary leader who will play the central role in shaping the success, growth, and future of the College of Justice, Safety, and Military Science (CJSMS). The Dean will provide innovative, collaborative, and flexible leadership for this re-imagined College, including the delivery, assessment, and review of all programs and courses; supervision of all faculty and staff; budget management; and administering college policies and procedures.

THE POSITION

Reporting to the Senior Vice President and Provost, the Dean serves as the chief administrative officer of CJSMS in all matters concerning academic affairs, faculty affairs, and student affairs. Working with faculty, staff, administration, and external constituents, the Dean will be a unifier of people and programs and will understand the importance of bringing balance and connectivity between the theoretical and applied disciplines housed within the College. The new Dean will take full advantage of significant opportunities to develop professional partnerships and will aggressively seek internships, grants and contracts that advance student learning and research within the disciplines. While non-traditional candidates will be considered, a PhD or terminal degree in a discipline represented in CJSMS is strongly desired. Tenure at the rank of associate or full professor is preferred. For full details of the position see the leadership profile.

PROCEDURE FOR NOMINATIONS AND APPLICATIONS

To receive full consideration, complete application materials should be submitted no later than August 27, 2021.

Application materials must include a letter of interest, which responds directly to the Opportunities and Expectations for Leadership and Experience and Personal Qualities sections listed in the Leadership Profile; a curriculum vitae, and the names, addresses, telephone numbers, and email addresses of five references (indicate your professional relationship with each). George Mason University’s Department of Criminology, Law and Society (CLS) invites applicants for a full-time Term Assistant Professor to start January 10, 2022. The Criminology, Law and Society department and Mason as an institution have a strong commitment to the achievement of excellence and diversity among our faculty and staff, and value being an equal opportunity employer. We strongly encourage candidates who will enrich Mason’s academic and culturally inclusive environment to apply.

About the Department:
George Mason University is the largest public research university in the state of Virginia and has one of the nation’s most diverse student populations. The Department of Criminology, Law and Society is a multidisciplinary unit located on the Fairfax, Va. campus that offers degrees at the bachelor’s, master’s and doctoral levels. The undergraduate program has concentrations in law and society, criminal justice, and homeland security, and a minor in intelligence studies. The department embraces a wide range of scholarship and pedagogy that contribute to the goals of a fairer, more socially just, and more effective criminal justice system. More information on the department and its course offerings is available at http://cls.gmu.edu/.

About the Position:
The initial one-year contract includes benefits and is renewable. Annual compensation for this 9-month position is competitive and depends on qualifications. Summer teaching opportunities with additional pay may be available but are not guaranteed. This is not a tenure-track position and does not require research responsibilities.

Teaching Responsibilities:
The instructor will teach eight courses per nine-month academic year (four per semester). The department’s greatest teaching needs and most desired areas of expertise include: intelligence analysis; social inequality and crime; and writing-intensive instruction.

- Required Qualifications:
  - Master’s or J.D. degree in a relevant field;
  - Demonstrated teaching experience.

- Preferred Qualifications:
  - Ph.D. or relevant professional experience;
  - A record of teaching in one or more of the following areas: intelligence analysis, social inequality and crime, and writing-intensive instruction.

Special Instructions to Applicants:
For full consideration, applicants must apply for position number F552Az at https://jobs.gmu.edu/; complete and submit the online application; and upload a cover letter and CV. In addition, applicants should name three people in their cover letter who can provide a letter of reference if requested by the search committee.

Review of applications will begin after September 1, 2021, and will continue until the position is filled. Inquiries about the position can be addressed to the search committee chair, Dr. Christopher Koper, at ckoper2@gmu.edu.

George Mason University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer, committed to promoting inclusion and equity in its community. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, age, disability or veteran status, or any characteristic protected by law.
