Job 17984: Faculty Appointment on China and Climate Change

Date Position is Available: Fall 2023
Application Deadline:
Listing Active: 5/31/2022 to 6/30/2022
Institution: Stanford University
Department: Freeman Spogli Institute of International Studies
Region: West
Title: Faculty Appointment on China and Climate Change
Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Full Professor, Academic Positions: Full Professor
Tenure/Tenure Track: Tenured
Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Environmental Sociology, Global and Transnational Sociology
Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:

Stanford University invites applications for a joint appointment as a continuing-term senior fellow and tenured faculty at the associate or full professor level in the broad area of China and Climate Change. The focus of the search is open. We are searching for creative and innovative scholars with an established record of outstanding policy-relevant research and education around the topics of China and climate change. We invite candidates from a broad range of disciplines to apply.

This joint hire is part of a broader effort by Stanford University in building the new Doerr School of Sustainability. The appointment from this search will be made jointly in the Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies and in the Doerr School of Sustainability, which will begin operating in the 2022-2023 academic year.

Candidates must have a PhD in a field relevant to climate change, expertise on China, an excellent record of scholarly, policy-relevant research, a dedication to teaching, and a demonstrated commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. Application packages should be submitted online and include the following documents: 1) a curriculum vitae; 2) a research statement (up to 3 pages); 3) a diversity statement that demonstrates the applicant’s commitment and potential to contribute to Stanford’s goals of diversity, equity, and inclusion through personal experience or perspective, scholarship, teaching, or service (1 page); 4) a statement of teaching interests (1 page); and 5) a cover letter. Review of applications will begin upon receipt and continue until the position is filled. All are welcome to apply.

Stanford University deeply appreciates the value of a diverse, equitable, and inclusive community, and defines diversity broadly to include (among other things) diversity of genders, races and ethnicities, cultures, physical and learning differences, sexual orientations and identities, veteran status, and work and life experiences. Stanford is an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by law. Stanford welcomes applications from all who would bring additional dimensions to the University’s research, teaching and clinical missions.

Employer Description:

The Stanford Doerr School of Sustainability is the first new school Stanford has formed in more than 70 years, representing the historic nature of this effort. The school arose through ideas from faculty, students, staff, and alumni who sought ways of amplifying Stanford's impact on urgent climate and sustainability challenges both on our campus and in our teaching and research.

Job 17983: Full-Time Lecturer Position

Date Position is Available: Fall 2022
Application Deadline:
Listing Active: 5/31/2022 to 6/30/2022

Institution: University of Pennsylvania
Department: School of Social Policy & Practice
Region: Northeast
Title: Full-Time Lecturer Position
Tenure/Tenure Track:
Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Social Welfare/Social Work

Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:

The University of Pennsylvania School of Social Policy & Practice invites applications for the position of full-time lecturer beginning in Fall 2022. This appointment will be for one academic year; there is the possibility that the appointment may be renewed twice for a total of three years, contingent upon a satisfactory performance review after each year. We seek experienced and motivated applicants who are interested in teaching and contributing to the Master of Social Work Program

DUTIES/RESPONSIBILITIES: The position will be a full-time, nine-month academic support staff appointment. The primary goal of this position is to enhance the School’s teaching capacity in core foundational and advanced social work courses, including two-semester foundation and advanced clinical courses, American Racism and Social Work Practice, Human Behavior in the Social Environment, History and Philosophy of Social Work and Social Welfare, and Mental Health Diagnostics.

Candidates for the position will be expected to maintain a combination of teaching and service responsibilities equivalent to eight courses per year. In addition to teaching, other responsibilities include contributing to MSW curricular issues, including curriculum sequence meetings and assisting with the Council on Social Work Education (CSWE) self-study and reaccreditation process. Individuals in this position will report to the MSW Program Faculty Director.

QUALIFICATIONS: We seek applicants with demonstrated commitment to excellence in social work education and practice and to the pursuit of social justice, equity, and inclusion. The successful candidate will have at a minimum a master’s degree from a CSWE-accredited school of social work. A doctoral degree in social work is preferred. Additional qualifications are as follow: 1) at least 5 years of post-MSW practice experience, including practice in agency-based contexts with diverse populations; 2) at least 2 years of social work supervisory experience; 3) a minimum of 3 years of teaching experience, preferably in practice; 4) strong teaching evaluations; 5) demonstrated expertise in at least one practice area; 6) demonstrated leadership in the field; and 7) strong recommendations.

How to Apply: In order to apply, please submit a detailed curriculum vitae, recent prior teaching evaluations (within the last 3 years), names and contact information for three references, and a cover letter describing courses you would like to teach, your educational and professional background, and how your teaching contributes to excellence in social work education and practice and to the pursuit of social justice, equity, and inclusion to Malitta Engstrom at malitta@sp2.upenn.edu.

Job Description:
The Department of Environmental and Global Health in the College of Public Health and Health Professions at the University of Florida is recruiting a tenure-track faculty member at the Assistant/Associate/Full Professor level. Ideally, the candidate will be engaged in research on understanding the health consequences of exposure to multiple stressors (environmental and social) on vulnerable populations. Areas of particular research interest include: how social determinants interact with environmental exposures to impact health outcomes; defining molecular (e.g. immune and epigenetic biomarkers) and/or social drivers of adverse health outcomes; linking exposure measurements in environmental, occupational and global health settings with spatial and field epidemiology to identify at risk populations. Research in these areas underscores the Department’s commitment to social justice and environmental health. Candidates who have expertise in implementing sustainable approaches to reduce health burdens and build community resilience are also encouraged to apply. Highly productive candidates demonstrating a strong track record of publication and extramural funding may be considered at the level of Associate Professor or Professor.

In addition to research, the successful candidate will be expected to contribute to the teaching mission of the Department including participation in graduate and undergraduate level courses such as Environmental Health Concepts in Public Health, Sustainability and Health Equity in the Built Environment, and Global Public Health.

This is a 1.0 FTE, 12-month, tenure-track position expected to start Summer/Fall 2022.

Job 17977: Visiting Assistant Professor in Peace and Conflict Studies

Date Position is Available: Fall 2022
Application Deadline:
Listing Active: 5/24/2022 to 6/23/2022
Institution: Colgate University
Department: Peace and Conflict Studies Program
Region: Northeast
Title: Visiting Assistant Professor in Peace and Conflict Studies
Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Assistant Professor
Tenure/Tenure Track: Not Tenure Track
Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Open to All Specialty Areas
Salary Range: $70,000 - $79,999
Submission Link:
Job Description:
The Peace and Conflict Studies (PCON) program at Colgate University seeks a visiting assistant professor for a one-year appointment beginning fall semester 2022. The Peace and Conflict Studies program focuses on developing critical understandings of organized violence in all its forms (physical, structural, symbolic, etc.) and how such violence has shaped the world both historically and in the present. The program will consider candidates with training in any disciplinary or interdisciplinary field, and welcomes candidates with any regional specialization, including those whose work focuses on transnational phenomena. Candidates are particularly encouraged to apply if their work engages with marginalized perspectives, spaces, theories, and/or methodologies. All prospective candidates should highlight the ways in which their intellectual interests and teaching competencies are able to situate their empirical research, theoretical engagement, and utilization of critical methodologies (reflective, collaborative, or otherwise) within a broader understanding of global and historical trends in peace and conflict.

The holder of this position will be able to make teaching contributions at all levels of the program’s curriculum so long as they are consistent with the candidate’s training and the program’s needs. In addition to making contributions to our introductory curriculum (“PCON 111: Introduction to Peace and Conflict Studies” and “PCON 218: Practices of Peace and Conflict – War in Lived Experience”), the successful candidate may also contribute to program electives, senior seminars, and the university’s Liberal Arts Core Curriculum. The annual teaching requirement for Colgate faculty is five courses, typically distributed over two semesters as either a 3/2 or 2/3 load. The successful candidate will also have the opportunity to contribute to program activities, including lectures, workshops, and events to support faculty scholarship and student engagement. The successful candidate will have a doctorate in hand or will complete the doctorate by the start of the semester.

Founded in 1970, the Peace and Conflict Studies program is one of the oldest such programs at a secular institution in the United States. As one of the top majors at Colgate University and its most popular interdisciplinary program, Peace and Conflict Studies attracts dynamic students and faculty from across the institution. The program emphasizes engaged and critical intellectual activity that combines theory and practice towards understanding some of the most important historical and contemporary global challenges. For more information on the Peace and Conflict Studies program’s curriculum, faculty, and activities, please consult https://www.colgate.edu/pcon.

Colgate University is a vibrant, residential liberal arts university situated in central New York State. Its faculty practice excellence in teaching, scholarship, and service.

It is the policy of Colgate University not to discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment on the basis of their race, color, creed, religion, age, sex, pregnancy, national origin, marital status, disability, protected Veteran status, sexual orientation and gender identity and expression, genetic information, victims of domestic violence and stalking, familial status, and all other categories covered by law. Colgate University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. Candidates from historically underrepresented groups, women, persons with disabilities, and protected veterans are encouraged to apply.

Prospective candidates should submit (1) a letter of application, (2) a curriculum vitae, (3) a writing sample of no more than thirty pages (published or unpublished), and (4) the names of three referees who may be contacted at a later stage in the selection process. Candidates should describe in their cover letter how their approach to teaching will support the university’s commitment to diversity and inclusion. Applications should be submitted through https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/21807. Review of applications will begin on June 13, and continue until the position is filled. Interviews will be conducted via Zoom in mid- to late-June.

Applicants with dual-career considerations can find postings of other employment opportunities at Colgate and at other institutions of higher education in upstate New York at https://upstate-ny.hercjobs.org/.

Job Description:

Visiting Assistant Professor of Sociology (Criminology/Crime)

Whitman College

The Sociology Department at Whitman College is seeking candidates for a one-year position with expertise in criminology and/or crime/law/deviance, at the rank of visiting assistant professor, beginning August 2022. Ability to teach courses in social statistics is highly desired. Additional expertise in other areas is welcome. A Ph.D. is required.

The teaching load is five courses over two semesters. The successful candidate will offer courses in crime and delinquency, criminology, or related areas; the year-long senior thesis sequence (which is one-fifth of the teaching load); and other courses in the candidates’ areas of expertise, including social statistics if possible.

Located in the beautiful Walla Walla Valley of Eastern Washington, Whitman College is an undergraduate institution with some 500 staff and faculty serving roughly 1,500 students from the local region and across the globe. Our six-person sociology department is committed to cultivating a diverse learning community. Applicants should explain how their classroom will serve to create and sustain an inclusive learning environment. This statement can be included in the cover letter or the teaching statement. In their cover letter, candidates should address their interest in working at a liberal arts college with undergraduates, majors as well as non-majors, at all levels of instruction.

To apply, go https://apptrkr.com/3084143. The online application will prompt you to share the following required materials: a letter of application; curriculum vitae; statement of teaching philosophy; evidence of demonstrated or potential excellence in undergraduate instruction; and contact information for three references.

Review of applications will begin on June 7, 2022 and continue until the position is filled.

Whitman College is building a diverse academic community and especially encourages applications from women, members of historically underrepresented minority groups, persons with disabilities, and others who would bring additional dimensions to the college's learning environment. Whitman College is an EEO employer. For additional information about Whitman College and the Walla Walla area, see http://www.whitman.edu and http://www.wallawalla.org. Salary Range: $40,000 - $49,999
Job Description:

Research Fellow (f/m/d)

The WZB Berlin Social Science Center, research unit Global Sociology, is seeking to appoint

One Research Fellow (f/m/x)

Within the framework of the Cluster of Excellence “Contestations of the Liberal Script” (SCRIPTS). The position entails fulltime (39 hours/week) employment for three years, starting preferably on 01 August 2022 (subject to approval).

We are hiring a post-doctoral research fellow to join the project “Varieties of Diversity Script,” led by Prof. Yasemin Soysal (WZB), Prof. Gülay Çağlar (Freie Universität), and Prof. Kathrin Zippel (Freie Universität). Theoretically, the project investigates the relationship and tensions between equality, meritocracy, and diversity. Empirically, it aims to identify and map cross-national diffusion and patterns of diversity scripts as conveyed in universities’ official websites and documents, complemented by in-depth case studies of selected universities. We are seeking applicants with research interests in global diffusion of ideas and institutions, higher education, science, meritocracy, and diversity.

The position is embedded within the Global Sociology unit (led by Yasemin Soysal) at the WZB Berlin Social Science Center, which is a publicly financed research institution that conducts theory-based and problem-oriented social science research (http://www.wzb.eu/en). The Global Sociology research unit is also part of the Cluster of Excellence “Contestations of the Liberal Scripts” (SCRIPTS), which analyses the contemporary controversies about the liberal order from a historical, global, and comparative perspective (http://www.scripts-berlin.eu).

Your tasks

- Contributing conceptually and empirically to the interdisciplinary study of global processes of the diffusion of models and standards
- Designing and implementing quantitative and comparative analyses in this field
- Taking responsibility for designing and conducting analyses of the data scraped from university webpages
• Publishing empirically grounded research, partly together with Professors Soysal, Çaglar, and Zippel, preferably in international, peer-reviewed journals
• Collaborating in designing and drafting research proposals for further funding

Your profile

• A doctoral degree in Sociology or a related social science discipline with knowledge of or interest in one or more of the following (interdisciplinary) research areas: science and knowledge society, higher education, the diffusion of ideas and institutions, and globalization
• Profound knowledge and experience of quantitative methods and computational social sciences
• Competence in data visualization and presentation tools (e.g. R, Python, etc.)
• Competence in compilation of reports for non-academic audience and media outlets
• Competence in data and team management, as well as organizational and communication skills
• Excellent command of written and spoken English, and preferably an additional language (Urdu, Turkish, German, etc.)

Our offer

• Remuneration in accordance with EG 13 TVöD Bund (in accordance with German Wage Agreement for Public Service)
• A well-equipped workplace in the centre of Berlin
• An international, cooperative, and diversified working environment
• Integration into the scientific community in the form of colloquia and conferences, and the possibility to teach courses at universities in Berlin
• Research support by student assistants, funding for conference travels, and opportunities for professional development
• Flexible working hours
• We promote a good work-life balance, and our engagement has been certified by audit workandfamily and the European Commission’s Human Resources Strategy for Researchers (HRS4R)
• Comprehensive program for continuous professional development and further qualification, in the own discipline and beyond
• Cafeteria with modern recreation rooms
• Discounted VBB company ticket

Equally well-qualified applicants with disabilities will be given preference. We value diversity and welcome all applications regardless of gender, nationality, ethnic or social origin, religion, disability, age, or sexual orientation. The WZB explicitly encourages women and persons with a migrant background to apply.

If you have any questions, please contact Lina Hayek at lina.hayek@wzb.eu.

Please send us your online application in English (consisting of a letter of motivation, including a detailed description of how your background, expertise, and experiences fit with the advertised position; a curriculum vitae; a list of publications; a writing sample; copies of relevant certificates; and your PhD certificate – the doctoral thesis is expected to have been at least submitted by the start of the position) by no later than 09 June 2022.

Salary Range: Negotiable
Submission Link:

Job Description:

Are you committed to advancing sociology as a science and profession? Would you enjoy conceptualizing and organizing professional development opportunities for sociologists in all sectors, conducting research on the discipline, and supporting sociology departments? Are you good at working collaboratively with teams to develop and implement programmatic initiatives? Are you a detail oriented, effective, and experienced leader who is ready to embark on a new challenge in a dynamic and fast-paced environment? If so, the American Sociological Association (ASA) invites you to apply to become the Director of Research, Professional Development, and Academic Affairs (RPA).

ASA has a membership of about 10,000 sociologists who are scholars, teachers, and practitioners. Our office is in Washington, D.C., but staff is working 100% remotely at present. The return to office plan (tentatively to begin at the end of June) includes a COVID-19 vaccination policy and flexibility for remote work. A fully remote arrangement may be considered for this position. Additionally, this position could be filled on an ongoing employment basis or as a two-year temporary position.

Essential Functions:

- Identify innovative opportunities for the association to support the teaching, research, practice, and professional development of sociologists; develop and implement a strategic portfolio of relevant initiatives.
- Develop and produce ASA’s full complement of virtual professional development programming including webinars, graduate student seminars, “Ask Me Anything” sessions, and more.
- Oversee the strategic direction and management of the Department Affiliates Program, the Program Reviewers and Consultants group, the undergraduate honors program, TRAILS (ASA’s online peer-reviewed library of teaching resources), the Howery Teaching Enhancement Fund and the Annual Meeting Travel Fund.
- Support and facilitate professional and career development of various communities of sociologists including high school teachers, community college faculty, retirees, students, people working in practice settings, and contingent faculty, among others.
- Oversee the association’s portfolio of research about the discipline and lead organizational research efforts.
- Liaise with relevant committees and task forces.
- Manage relevant website content.
- Work with the Communications Department to develop and distribute information regarding research on the discipline, professional development, and academic affairs through channels such as newsletters and social media.
- Manage a substantial departmental operating budget.
- Respond to relevant requests for assistance from members and staff.
- Serve as a member of the staff leadership team and the staff sociologists team.
- Manage additional responsibilities as assigned by the Executive Director.

Reporting Structure: Reports to the Executive Director; Supervises Assistant Director for RPA, Senior Research Associate, and RPA Assistant.

Job Classification: Exempt

Preferred Qualifications: It is important to note that these qualifications are preferred. We recognize that there are several professional profiles that could be well suited to this position. Should your profile vary in some ways from the qualifications listed and you think you can be successful in this endeavor, please do not hesitate to apply.

- PhD in sociology or closely related discipline.
- A commitment to serving the discipline by supporting sociologists in teaching and learning, research, practice, and professional development across the broad range of employment sectors and institution types where they are employed.
- Demonstrated leadership, management, and administrative abilities.
- Exemplary writing, editing, and verbal communication skills.
- Familiarity with quantitative and qualitative research methodologies.
- Strong work ethic.
- Ability to organize, prioritize and move forward on simultaneous initiatives across a broad portfolio.
- Organizational savvy, ability to work independently and in collaboration with teams, excellent interpersonal skills.

Compensation: Salary is competitive and commensurate with experience. A full benefits package is provided to all ASA staff members.

To apply: Please submit a substantive cover letter and a resume to Nancy Kidd, ASA Executive Director, at nkidd@asanet.org. Your letter should indicate if you are applying for an ongoing position or a two-year temporary post. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Preferred start date August 1.

Employer Description:

ASA does not tolerate any forms of discrimination based on age, gender, race, socioeconomic status and socioeconomic origins, ethnicity, national origin, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, disability, health conditions, political affiliation, marital status, domestic status, parent status, or any other applicable basis proscribed by law. We prioritize cultivating an inclusive workplace where collaboration and creativity are encouraged and employees excel based on merit and job performance. ASA is an equal opportunity employer.

Job 17966: Instructional Professor in Community Studies and Experiential Learning Coordinator

Date Position is Available: Fall 2022

Application Deadline:
Listing Active: 5/9/2022 to 6/8/2022

Institution: University of Chicago
Department: Social Sciences Collegiate Division
Region: Midwest

Title: Instructional Professor in Community Studies and Experiential Learning Coordinator
Position/Rank: Academic Positions: All, Sociological Practice/Applied/Other: Program Manager, Sociological Practice/Applied/Other: Other
Tenure/Tenure Track: Not Tenure Track

Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:
The Social Sciences Collegiate Division at the University of Chicago is now accepting applications for a full-time Instructional Professor who will teach in the Environmental and Urban Studies major and develop the Program on Global Environment’s offerings in community studies, experiential learning, and engaged research. The appointment is renewable, with an initial term of at least two years, beginning September 1, 2022. Appointment at the rank of Assistant, Associate, and full Instructional Professor will be considered based on the candidate’s experience. The position is year-round: teaching will be scheduled during the autumn, winter, and spring quarter of the academic year, but all other responsibilities will continue throughout the calendar year.

The Instructional Professor will teach an annual load of four courses in urban, community, and environmental studies. The courses shall introduce the field’s disciplinary methods and applications and provide students with opportunities for engaged research and experiential learning. Included in these courses will be one regular offering in engaged urban-environmental research and various capstone courses that engage community partners and align with Chicago Studies focus areas. In addition to teaching, the Instructional Professor will develop and coordinate the Program on Global Environment’s experiential learning offerings, which include practicum courses, capstone projects, internships, engaged research, and opportunities for community-based learning. The Instructional Professor will develop partnerships, both locally and internationally, with community groups, nonprofit organizations, and government entities in order to build and deliver opportunities for internships, course-based research, and community-based learning. In Chicago Studies, the Instructional Professor will contribute to the program’s development of curricular and co-curricular pathways, drawn from collaborations with campus partners, designed to advance students’ academic and professional growth. The Instructional Professor will also develop experiential learning curricula for University-affiliated field learning sites beyond Chicago, including the University's International Centers in Paris and Hong Kong. Depending on program needs, the Instructional Professor may be assigned to teach additional courses or advise BA theses to maintain a full-time workload.

The terms and conditions of employment for this position are covered by a collective bargaining agreement between the Service Employees International Union (SEIU) and the University.

The position requires either a Ph.D. in the social sciences, Urban Planning and Design, Environmental Studies, Public Policy, Social Work, or a related discipline, or a graduate degree and professional credentials in a relevant field. Also required are experience with applied or experiential curricula in a college or university setting; a record of scholarship on or professional experience working with governmental and community organizations; and experience developing programming in higher education, government, non-profits, or the private sector.

To apply for the position, candidates must submit an application through the University of Chicago's Interfolio jobs board at https://apply.interfolio.com/106497 and upload the following: 1) a curriculum vitae; 2) a letter of interest; 3) one sample of scholarly or professional writing; 4) three letters of reference; 5) a proposed syllabus for an engaged research course focusing on urban environments, Chicago, or community partners; and 6) titles and descriptions of two other proposed courses.

The review of applications will begin on June 3, 2022, and continue until the position is filled or the search is closed.

Position contingent upon budget approval.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement

We seek a diverse pool of applicants who wish to join an academic community that places the highest value on rigorous inquiry and encourages diverse perspectives, experiences, groups of individuals, and ideas to inform and stimulate intellectual challenge, engagement, and exchange. Job Description:

Harvard University, Professor Robert Sampson in the Department of Sociology is seeking a predoctoral fellow in the social sciences who will focus on research involving crime, criminal justice, urban inequality, and social change over the life course. The fellow will support and collaborate on all aspects of an ongoing study, the Project on Human Development in Chicago Neighborhoods (PHDCN+). For more information on the project click . The successful candidate will assist with data cleaning and analysis, organize research meetings, help in the construction of pilot survey instruments and data collection, edit documents, write reports, and contribute to research papers. The fellow will also receive mentoring from faculty and post docs within a tight-knit research community and have access to a broad range of activities at Harvard.

This position is based in the Sociology Department in the Faculty of Arts and Sciences at Harvard University in Cambridge, MA. Although a full-time position is available, a commitment between 50% and full time will be considered. The desired starting date is summer or fall 2022. Appointment terms for Fellows are for one year with the potential for a second-year renewal. Preference will be given to applicants who have availability to work for two years.

Responsibilities include:

• Prepare literature reviews, background research, and other content for grant proposals and academic papers
• Conduct statistical analyses of data using Stata and R
• Assist with survey data collection by preparing online survey instruments, facilitating survey recruitment, and processing survey data
• Potential involvement in qualitative interviews
• Editing of draft chapters and papers
• Interacting with the IRB and writing updates/modifications
• Draft project and grant reports, research briefs, and other project documents
• Manage research meetings and convenings of researchers

Qualifications

Required
• Bachelor’s or Master’s Degree in Sociology, Public Policy, Economics, or related field
• Outstanding organizational and time management skills
• Prior experience as a research assistant or fellow in the social sciences
• Distinguished academic record
• Significant interest in the study of crime, the criminal justice system, urban inequality, and life course research
• Strong written, editorial, and oral communication skills

Preferred
• Proficiency programming in Stata and R
• Experience using Adobe InDesign and graphic software for visualizing research results
• Experience with citation management software

Salary is competitive and commensurate with experience and is benefits eligible. Applicants should submit: (1) a complete vita, (2) a cover letter of interest that highlights relevant research experience, writing skills, data management, and project experience, (3) an excerpt from an academic writing sample (no more than 5 pages in length) and (4) names and contact information of up to three persons who can serve as references. Letters are not required in initial applications.

Materials submitted by regular mail or email will not be accepted. Review of applications will begin May 15 and continue until the position is filled.

Salary Range: $60,000 - $69,999
Job Description:

Postdoc / Research Scientist (m/f/div) Positions
Max Planck Institute for Demographic Research (MPIDR)

Application Deadline: May 18th, 2022

We welcome applications from researchers working in fertility or family demography, economic and labor demography, or population health. Successful candidates will have the opportunity to develop their own research agenda, collaborate throughout and beyond the MPIDR, and supervise PhD students. We are seeking creative, self-driven, collaborative scholars with strong communication skills. Your PhD can be in any area that provided you with the necessary skills for high-quality demographic research; recent recruits have had PhDs in demography, sociology, economics, epidemiology, statistics, and anthropology. Fit with the research agenda of the population health, labor demography, or fertility teams is one criterion that will be evaluated.

We provide a stimulating research-oriented community, an excellent infrastructure, and opportunities to work with exciting datasets, including linked survey-register data that combine demographic, behavioral, and genetic information. The successful applicant will be offered a contract for up to four years with remuneration commensurate to experience (starting from approximately 57,000 euro gross per year for researchers who have just completed their PhD, up to approximately 71,000 euro gross per year for more senior scientists), based on the salary structure of the German public sector (öffentlicher Dienst, TVöD Bund). An extension after positive evaluation is possible. It is expected that successful applicants will be in residence at the MPIDR. Support for relocation costs is available.

Please apply online and include

1. Letter of interest that indicates whether you are applying to the fertility, population health, or labor demography team (one page)
2. Research statement (one page)
3. Curriculum vitae that highlights up to three of the most important publications
4. Contact information for up to three academic referees

In order to receive full consideration, please apply by May 18th, 2022. The first round of interviews is between May 30th and June 1st. We expect candidates to start in 2022 but the exact starting date is flexible. Applicants should have completed their doctoral degree; however, PhD students who expect to obtain their degree in 2022 may apply. For inquiries about the positions, please contact Mikko Myrskylä at myrskyla@demogr.mpg.de.
The Max Planck Society is committed to increasing the number of individuals with disabilities in its workforce and therefore encourages applications from such qualified individuals. Furthermore, the Max Planck Society seeks to increase the number of women in those areas where they are underrepresented and therefore explicitly encourages women to apply. Max Planck Institutes have an established record of world-class, foundational research in the sciences, technology, social sciences, and the humanities. They offer a unique environment that combines the best aspects of an academic setting and a research laboratory.

Employer Description:

The Max Planck Institute for Demographic Research (MPIfMR) is seeking to appoint two to three full-time post-doctoral researchers to join the Laboratory of Population Health, the Research Group on Labor Demography, or the Laboratory of Fertility and Well-Being.

The MPIfMR is one of the leading demographic research centers in the world. It is part of the Max Planck Society, a network of 86 institutes that form Germany's premier basic research organization.

Job Description:

We are recruiting a Senior Research Fellow or Research Fellow to work independently and as a key member of a committed team. The role is part of Dr Philippa Tomczak's prestigious £1.3m, five year European Research Council Starting Grant RECEDE: 'REGulating Criminal justice DETention: glocal prospects for improving health and safety in detention and society' (2022 – 2027).

Primary duties include the development of social/criminological theory, particularly processual approaches (assemblages, actor-network theory); analysis and collection of data from documents, interviews and hopefully ethnographic observation within and across detention settings; writing (first) authored publications for peer-reviewed journals across academic disciplines; and contributing to the development of funding proposals.

Strong theoretical and writing abilities are essential and all candidates must already hold a PhD (awarded, not subject to major revisions).

This project benefits from proximity to Dr Tomczak's seven year UKRI Future Leaders Fellowship (2020 – 2024) and international prisonerHEALTH research group, along with its location within the School of Sociology and Social Policy.

This is a full-time post (36.25 hours), fixed term for 4 years. Part-time applications will be considered for candidates wishing to work a minimum of 29 hours per week, please indicate preferred hours in your application.

Interview date: Tuesday 7th June 2022

People from Black, Asian and minority ethnic backgrounds are encouraged to apply as the School is determined to provide an inclusive environment for staff and students.

Informal enquiries may be addressed to Philippa Tomczak, email philippa.tomczak@nottingham.ac.uk. Please note that applications sent directly to this email address will not be accepted.

For successful international applicants, we provide financial support for your visa and the immigration health surcharge, plus an interest-free loan to help cover the cost of immigration-related expenses for any dependents accompanying you to the UK. Job 17956: Visiting Assistant Professor in Sociology

Application Deadline:
Listing Active: 5/5/2022 to 6/3/2022
Institution: University of Richmond
Department: Dept. of Sociology & Anthropology
Region: Southeast
Title: Visiting Assistant Professor in Sociology
Position/Rank: Academic Positions: Assistant Professor
Salary Range: Negotiable

Job Description:

The Department of Sociology and Anthropology in the School of Arts and Sciences at the University of Richmond invites applications for a full-time visiting assistant professor position in Sociology to begin August 2022. This is a non-tenure track appointment, annually renewable for up to three years, contingent upon performance, budget, and continued need. The teaching load is six courses for the academic year. We seek applicants whose specializations complement those of existing faculty members in sociology and who are able teach Introduction to Sociology, Gender and Sexuality, Quantitative Research Methods, as well as courses in their area of expertise. The successful candidate will hold a Ph.D. in Sociology in addition to demonstrated teaching excellence with a strong commitment to pedagogy that values diversity and inclusivity.

The University of Richmond is a private university located just a short drive from downtown Richmond, Virginia. Through its five schools and wide array of campus programming, the University combines the best qualities of a small liberal arts college and a large university. With approximately 4,000 students, an 8:1 student-faculty ratio, and more than 90% of traditional undergraduate students living on campus, the University is remarkably student-centered, focused on preparing students "to live lives of purpose, thoughtful inquiry, and responsible leadership in a global and pluralistic society."

Applicants should apply online at http://jobs.richmond.edu or by contacting Dr. Matthew Oware, Professor of Sociology at moware@richmond.edu and submit a curriculum vitae, cover letter, and teaching statement. The teaching statement should articulate the candidate's teaching philosophy, interests, and future professional development goals as well as involvement in and commitment to inclusive pedagogy. Candidates for this position may be asked, at a later date, to provide transcripts and the names and contact information for three references who will be asked to submit letters of recommendation. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Questions about the position should be addressed to the Chair of the Search Committee, Dr. Matthew Oware, Professor of Sociology (moware@richmond.edu).

Employer Description:
The University of Richmond is committed to developing a diverse workforce and student body, and to modeling an inclusive campus community which values the expression of difference in ways that promote excellence in teaching, learning, personal development, and institutional success. Our academic community strongly encourages applications that are in keeping with this commitment. For more information on the department and its programs, please see https://socanth.richmond.edu/.

Tenure/Tenure Track: Not Tenure Track
Special Program and Areas of Faculty Expertise: Global and Transnational Sociology
Salary Range: $50,000 - $59,999
Job Description:

Position Description
The Global Studies Program at the University of Tennessee-Knoxville invites applications for a Postdoctoral Teaching & Research Fellow in Global Studies, beginning August 1, 2022 and renewable for a second year (contingent on funding). The Fellow will be expected to teach a 2:3 load of courses (and 3:3 in the second year), which will include teaching (or co-teaching) two sections per semester (fall and spring) of Introduction to Global Studies as well as an upper division undergraduate class in their area of expertise; assist with Global Studies programmatic work; and maintain a productive research agenda. Close mentoring of teaching and scholarship will be provided by a faculty member in the Global Studies program. Applicants are asked to identify a global scholar at UT as a potential mentor and with whom they commit to collaborating on a research and writing project (see https://sociology.utk.edu/globalstudies/faculty.php). This is a full-time 9-month position. Salary is $55,000 for two semesters, paid over twelve months, plus benefits.

We are interested in candidates who can contribute to the further growth of the Global Studies program. The program has about 50 undergraduate majors among 3 concentrations (politics & economy; society & culture; and language, politics & culture) and 10 to 15 minors. It attracts many more students to its courses and events. A new Graduate Certificate in Global Studies is launching this year. Experience living, working, studying, or researching in other parts of the world and/or with globally diverse populations in the US is desirable. The Global Studies program (and the Department of Sociology which administers it) offer a supportive and collegial atmosphere in which scholars make a variety of important contributions to academic research, teaching, and public sociology.

To apply, please submit the following: a cover letter (in which you should also include a paragraph or two outlining your commitment to diversity and inclusion and identify a potential mentor), CV, academic writing sample, teaching statement (or address in cover letter), syllabus of 1 course you have taught and/or intend to teach, and contact information for three references. Review of applications will begin May 10 and continue until the position is filled. For more information on the program, please see https://globalstudies.utk.edu/.

Qualifications
A PhD in a relevant social science or humanities discipline is required at the time of appointment.
Applicants must have completed all requirements for their doctoral degree by August 1, 2022

Application Instructions

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement
All qualified applicants will receive equal consideration for employment and admission without regard to race, color, national origin, religion, sex, pregnancy, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity, age, physical or mental disability, genetics, veteran status, or any other characteristic protected by federal or state law. In accordance with the requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, the University of Tennessee affirmatively states that it does not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, or disability in its education programs and activities, and this policy extends to employment by the university. Inquiries and charges of violation of Title VI (race, color, and national origin), Title IX (sex), Section 504 (disability), the ADA (disability), the Age Discrimination in Employment Act (age), sexual orientation, or veteran status should be directed to the Office of Equity and Diversity, 1840 Melrose Avenue, Knoxville, TN 37996-3560, telephone 865-974-2498. Requests for accommodation of a disability should be directed to the ADA Coordinator at the Office of Equity and Diversity.

Employer Description:
UT has about 23,000 undergraduates and 6,000 graduate students and is located within easy driving distance to Asheville, Nashville, Atlanta, and the Great Smoky Mountains. The City of Knoxville is a hidden gem in a beautiful area of the country with a mild climate, cost of living 15 percent below the national average, easy access to miles of inland waterways and urban mountain bike trails, state and national parks, and a blend of convenient rural and urban living settings, including a walkable downtown, varied nightlife, and eclectic restaurants.

Job Description:
The Initiative for Data-Driven Social Science (DDSS) invites applications for a Postdoctoral Research Associate.

Requirements
Applicants must have (or expect to have) a PhD (open to social sciences, statistics, or computer science) and their work must fall at the technical forefront of quantitative social science.

In addition to innovation, candidates will be evaluated on their potential to create public goods and to contribute to the building of a multidisciplinary community. This could be through the dissemination of research, participation in the DDSS working groups, and serving as a role model for scholarly and professional excellence.

Responsibilities
The Postdoctoral Research Associate will be able to spend 50% of their time on independent research. For the other 50%, they will be required to offer occasional consultation to the DDSS working groups and ongoing participation in the DDSS community.

Application Requirements
1. Cover letter
2. C.V.
3. 1-2 research papers
4. 1-2 page research statement, specifying research interests and example training workshops candidate could offer
5. Names of two persons who can provide letters of reference upon request

The position is offered for 1 year, with the possibility of renewal, contingent upon funding and satisfactory performance. The appointment will be through the Princeton School of Public and International Affairs. This position is subject to the University's background check policy.

We at the School of Public and International Affairs believe that it is vital to cultivate an environment that embraces and promotes diversity, equity and inclusion - fundamental to the success of our mission.

Employer Description:
The mission of the DDSS is to support significant innovation in data-, and computationally-intensive social science research at Princeton University, facilitating impactful multidisciplinary work across the social sciences.

FACULTY VACANCY ANNOUNCEMENT
Queens College’s Department of Sociology and the SEEK program are seeking a full-time Lecturer. This position is set to start in Fall 2022.

Responsibilities include: the successful development and teaching of courses, administration of our academic programs, student advising, online course development and deployment, student advising, extracurricular program development, and the creation of research publications and other original scholarly content.

The Sociology department at Queens College has a large, research-active faculty that places a premium on high quality scholarship with real-world applications, and we support a public sociology that emphasizes broad dissemination of findings in highly regarded academic outlets as well as to lay audiences and popular media.

Our undergraduate and graduate curriculum is unusual in its strong emphasis on quantitative analysis and research methods. We seek to emphasize these skills even more strongly in our recently developed minor in Data Analytics and our MA program in Data Analytics and Applied Social Research (http://qcbigdata.com).

Our rigorous MA curriculum prepares graduates for promising careers in a variety of fields—including market research, public opinion research, program assessment, educational assessment, policy analysis, market research, and academic research—or to pursue doctoral work in competitive PhD programs. Our program emphasizes advanced analytic skills, including data handling, manipulation, interpretation, and analysis. We also emphasize research process, preparing students to conduct independent projects using a variety of research methods and designs. We offer five concentrations, all sharing the basic core of data analytics and applied research: Applied Social Research, Market Research, Program Evaluation and Policy Analysis, Media and Marketing, and Data Science (“Big Data”).

This position will be a joint appointment with the Queens College SEEK program. Launched in 1966, by the New York State Legislature, The Percy Ellis Sutton SEEK Program is designed to reach qualified high school graduates who might not attend college otherwise. The program starts during the summer, with intensive workshops for all matriculating first-year students. During their first semester, SEEK Program participants are organized into learning communities—groups who take at least three courses together and develop their own informal support network. Supplemental instruction covers all first-year classes and some upper-level courses; free tutoring is available.

SEEK Student centers such as: The Learning Center (D112), The Writing Center (D113), and The Computer and IT Lab (D308) are also available to support students’ academic development during their entire undergraduate college career. Staff counselors help students apply for financial aid and address personal, social, and career issues.

Please note: Until further notice, this is a hybrid position, eligible to work remotely and work in the office. This position is currently located in Queens.

The title of Lecturer at the City University of New York is a “tenure-bearing (certificate of continuous employment) title used for full-time members of the faculty who are hired to teach and perform faculty functions, but do not have a research commitment” (PSC CUNY Contract, Article 11, section 11.1: https://psc-cuny.org/contract/article-11-classification-titles).

QUALIFICATIONS
Ph.D. degree in area(s) of experience, or equivalent demonstrated experience in teaching, curricular development, research, and advising first generation college students. Preferred qualifications are:
- a demonstrable interest and record in teaching, research, advising, and academic program administration and development, preferably at an institution serving a diverse student body, including first-generation students;
- experience teaching undergraduate courses (both online and in-person);
- experience in academic program direction and administration, undergraduate student advising, nondegree educational programming, student recruitment, internal assessment, extracurricular activity organization, and a record of workplace leadership;
- experience in both sociology and applied social science research;
- a record teaching introductory sociology, research methodology, race and ethnicity, sociology of education, and/or other classes fielded by our department; and
- research and/or teaching expertise in areas of sociology including: race and ethnicity, diversity, gender, sociology of higher education, and research methodology.

COMPENSATION
CUNY offers faculty a competitive compensation and benefits package covering health insurance, pension and retirement benefits, paid parental leave, and savings programs. We also provide mentoring and support for research, scholarship, and publication as part of our commitment to ongoing faculty professional development.

HOW TO APPLY
From our job posting system, select “Apply Now,” create or log in to an account, and provide the requested information. If you are viewing this posting from outside our system, access the employment page on our web site and search for this vacancy using the Job ID provided 23455.

Candidates should provide a:
A recent CV with information on education, work experience, research, teaching, advising, program administration, and other professional skills and experience.
A cover letter describing the candidate, their intellectual interests, their past work, and any other pertinent information
Up to two writing samples that demonstrate the candidate’s scholarly work
A teaching portfolio with a statement of teaching philosophy, past syllabi, student and peer evaluations, and examples of original instructional materials
The contact information and affiliations of three referees. Selected finalists will be asked to provide three letters of reference.

CUNY Job Posting: Faculty

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY
CUNY encourages people with disabilities, minorities, veterans and women to apply. At CUNY, Italian Americans are also included among our protected groups. Applicants and employees will not be discriminated against on the basis of any legally protected category, including sexual orientation or gender identity. EEO/AA/Vet/Disability Employer.

Employer Description:
Often referred to as “the jewel of the CUNY system,” Queens College is a place of contrasts: An urban school in a suburban setting, where a large and diverse student body receives personalized attention. This formula has made us one of New York’s premier educational institutions.

With a mission to prepare students to become leading citizens of an increasingly global society, we offer a rigorous education in the liberal arts and sciences under the guidance of a faculty dedicated to both teaching and research. Our liberal arts, science, and pre-professional programs earn us high rankings in prestigious college guides such as The Princeton Review America’s Best Value Colleges. Our students graduate with the ability to think critically, address complex problems, explore various cultures, use modern technologies and information resources, and have won prominence in many fields.

How to Apply

Submit a cover letter and CV. The letter should address your specific interest in the position and outline your training and experience directly related to it.

Summary

The Stone Center for Inequality Dynamics (CID) at the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research (ISR) invites applications for a full-time position of Research Data Analyst.

We are looking for a team member with advanced Stata programming skills, solid training in statistics/econometrics, experience working with large datasets, and interest in economic and social inequality. Although you may work on several research projects simultaneously, we expect that you will be most intensively involved in a new large-scale project that aims to estimate wealth and its intergenerational persistence across the entire United States. This project is based on an existing collaboration with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). Because U.S. citizenship is required in order to access IRS microdata, U.S. citizenship is a requirement for this position. Furthermore, candidates will need to pass federal security clearances to access these data and successfully execute the responsibilities of this position.

We seek to recruit and retain a diverse workforce as a reflection of our commitment to serve the diverse people of Michigan, to maintain the excellence of the university, and to ground our research in varied disciplines, perspectives, and ways of knowing and learning.

Responsibilities

- Data manipulation
  - Write, test, document, and execute code that cleans, combines, and carries out complex manipulations of data available in large datasets or relational databases (in particular but not only from administrative sources)
  - Help determine the content, universe, and availability and comparability over time of variables with limited or imperfect metadata, and document the findings

- Estimation of models and descriptive statistics
  - Write, test, document, and execute code that produces massive quantities of descriptive quantities and compiles them into well organized datasets
  - Write, test, document, and execute code that estimates sophisticated quantitative models and compiles the results into well organized datasets

- Reproducibility and Documentation
  - Help develop and maintain archiving systems for code, documentation and results, which ensure full reproducibility of the latter
  - Write short internal documents summarizing the results of analyses and the rationale for methodological decisions

- Data distribution and visualization
  - Contribute to a collaboration with an external vendor for the development of browser-based applications that provide public access to information and graphs

Required Qualifications

- Bachelor’s degree in social science, computer science, statistics, data science or related field
• At least three years of relevant experience (at least one year of experience is required to be considered at the Intermediate level)
• Advanced skills writing Stata code (do files)
• Experience identifying and solving data problems in large datasets
• Ability to work successfully in a team environment, excellent interpersonal skills, and excellent verbal and written communication skills
• Self-directed, highly organized and systematic, and highly attentive to detail

Desired Qualifications
• Master’s degree in social science, computer science, statistics, data science or related field
• Solid training in statistics / econometrics
• Experience writing Stata programs (ado files, Mata functions) and using Stata to manage highly complex data, carry out sophisticated data manipulations, and estimate statistical models
• Basic knowledge of Linux (in particular, of the commands used to manipulate files and directories)
• Intermediate to advanced SQL programming skills
• Working knowledge of other statistical packages like Python, SAS or R

Underfill Statement
Based on candidate qualifications, the position may be underfilled Intermediate. Salary would be commensurate with skills and experience.

Additional Information
Institute for Social Research job openings are posted for a minimum of fourteen (14) calendar days. This opening may be removed from posting boards and filled any time after the minimum posting period has ended. Salary is dependent upon qualifications and experience of the selected candidate.

Benefits at the University of Michigan
In addition to a career filled with purpose and opportunity, The University of Michigan offers a comprehensive benefits package to help you stay well, protect yourself and your family, and plan for a secure future. Benefits include:

• Generous time off
• A retirement plan that provides two-for-one matching contributions with immediate vesting
• Many choices for comprehensive health and dental insurance
• Life insurance
• Long-term disability coverage
• Flexible spending accounts for healthcare and dependent care expenses
