News from the Chair

With just a month to go before we all meet in San Francisco, there is a lot to tell you about. We have an exciting program planned, some impressive award winners and the election results to announce, and a wonderful Mentoring Dinner to look forward to.

First, the program (see the full schedule below). As in the past, we will hold five sessions. Four of them will be on Monday August 18 (Section Day), and one on Tuesday August 19. On Monday we will hold the two open paper sessions, organized by Pam Herd and James Raymo, which focus on changes in life course transition timing and cohort differences. John Reynolds and Andrea Willson have organized the Roundtables for us. And our Matilda White Riley Distinguished Lecture will be given by last year’s winner, Gunhild Hagestad. Her work brings an important global dimension to aging research that will benefit us all. On Tuesday morning we will hold the fifth session. It was a surprise that ASA decided to schedule one of our sessions for the next day. This was our invited session, and it turned out that some of our very "A-list" speakers could not make it, since I had invited them for Monday (Section Day), not Tuesday. But fortunately they will all be able to do this session on aging and cohort change in major social institutions (Health, Religion, Criminal Justice, and the Family) next year in Chicago!

So on Tuesday morning we will hold a special session on Trends in Research on Aging and the Life Course — and take a look at our wonderful SALC Facebook group’s posts over the last year. We have also been asking members to send in "5 words or phrases that describe your research”, and we will present the results of this informal poll as well. This session should be an unexpected, but valuable opportunity for an open forum on the direction of research in our field. Many thanks to our program committee for their flexibility and resourcefulness!

Congratulations to all of our very distinguished award winners! Our Matilda White Riley Award Winner for 2014 is Kenneth Ferraro of Purdue University. Ken’s contributions to the field of health and aging are well-known to us all, and it is a tribute to our section that we have scholars of his reputation to recognize with our award. The Outstanding Publication Award this year will go to David Warner and Tyson Brown for their paper titled "Understanding how race/ethnicity and gender define age-trajectories of disability: An intersectionality approach". Our student paper award winner is Jonathan Horowitz at UNC Chapel Hill. His paper is titled “Doing less with more: Cohorts, education and civic participation in America.” Thank you, award committee members, job well done!

And congratulations to our election winners! Our new Chair-Elect will be Jeylan Mortimer of the University of Minnesota. Our new Council members will be Kristen Schultz Lee, and Jennifer Karas Montez, and our new Student representative will be Stacy Marlena Torres. Many thanks to all of you who agreed to run for office, it is a real sign of your public service and dedication to research in aging.

I know we are all looking forward to the Mentoring Award Dinner, that will be held on Monday evening at John’s Grill. Look for more information on obtaining tickets elsewhere in this newsletter. Janet Wilmoth and her committee are putting a great evening together for us!

Looking forward to seeing you all in San Francisco,
Ellen

These awardees will be recognized at the SALC business meeting in San Francisco on Monday, August 18th. Please join us to celebrate their accomplishments! Many thanks to the members of all committees for their careful deliberation and difficult choices.

Section Membership Drive

We all reap the benefits of section membership, through colleagueship, award and job announcements, networking opportunities, and much more. As you know, our section membership numbers are directly linked to the number of amazing paper sessions SALC is allocated for the following year’s annual meetings. Now is your chance to help grow our section for the benefit of all!

We are very close to our 2014 section membership goal. Every member counts! We invite you to please set a goal to recruit ONE new SALC member (student, faculty, colleague, etc.) before the San Francisco conference, and maybe even invite them to attend our famous Mentoring dinner. Then you can bask in their appreciation for introducing them to our great section. So, tell your colleagues and students about SALC today!

Books Needed for ASA Book Raffle

We are looking for book donations for the 2014 SALC book raffle. As many of you know, this is an important fundraiser for the section. While recent books are great, we also love having classics. We would also be happy to accept other donations, such as kindle book donations. Please email ailshire@usc.edu if you have a book (paper or electronic) that you can contribute or if you have questions about potential donations. We very much appreciate your support!

Jobs

The Department of Sociology at the University at Buffalo, SUNY, invites applications for a tenure track assistant professor of sociology position beginning in the fall 2015 term. Preference will be given to applicants with an active health-related research program whose other areas of scholarship complement existing department strengths in law and social policy (especially criminology), family and life course, urban sociology, or social inequalities. Applicants should have the PhD in Sociology in hand by the start date. The successful candidate will be expected to teach both undergraduate and graduate courses. They will also be enthusiastic about expanding the graduate curriculum in areas within sociology that are associated with health (broadly construed) and their particular areas of scholarship, eager to teach graduate courses in advanced methodologies (quantitative or qualitative) and mentor graduate students. Faculty are also expected to maintain an active research agenda and provide service at the department, University and discipline levels. Applicants must show strong potential for publications and external grant funding.

Interested applicants should submit a cover letter, contact information for 3 letters of reference, CV, and one writing sample via the University at Buffalo’s online system at www.UBJobs.buffalo.edu (or directly at www.ubjobs.buffalo.edu/applicants/Central?quickFind=57157). Inquiries should be sent to Mary Nell Trautner, Search Committee Chair, Department of Sociology, 430 Park Hall, University at Buffalo, Buffalo, NY 14260 (or trautner@buffalo.edu). Review of dossiers will begin September 10 and the search will continue until the position is filled.

The Department of Sociology has a research-active faculty, approximately 60 Master’s and PhD students, and requires 2/2 teaching load. Cross-disciplinary research opportunities are facilitated by close ties with faculty at the rapidly growing medical campus and Schools of Law, Public Health, Management, Nursing, Architecture and Planning, Engineering, and Social Work. Interdisciplinary research institutes, such as the Research Institute on Addictions and the Baldy Center for Law and Social Policy, offer additional opportunities for research collaborations. The University at Buffalo is a member of the American Association of Universities and has approximately 19,000 undergraduate and 10,000 graduate and professional students.

The University at Buffalo is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer (AA/EOE). The Department of Sociology is interested in identifying minority and women candidates and individuals with disabilities. Qualified individuals with a disability may request needed, reasonable accommodations to participate in the application process. No person, in whatever relationship with the University at Buffalo, will be subject to discrimination on the basis of age, creed, color, disability, national origin, race, religion, ethnicity, sex, sexual orientation, or marital or veteran status.

Changes in the Timing of Life Course Transitions in Young Adulthood: Taking Longer, Maybe Never
2:30 p.m. – 4:10 p.m.

This session will focus on changes -- primarily delays -- in the timing of critical life course transitions in young adulthood: completing education, entering the work force, establishing an independent household, marriage and childbearing. Papers may examine subgroup differences in life course transitions, how new life course patterns in the lives of young adults have arisen in response to social forces, and / or demonstrate their impact on social institutions.

Discussant: James M. Raymo, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Cohort Trends in Who Did and Did Not Delay Sex Until Marriage - Lawrence L. Wu, New York University; Steven P. Martin, Urban Institute; Paula England, New York University

Health and the Life Course
4:30 p.m.-6:10 p.m.

This session will focus on factors that influence health across the life course, including early-life exposures, the timing of events in the transition to adulthood, and planning for end of life. Papers employ new data and insights to evaluate long-standing questions in life course research such as cumulative influences on health, variation across age in the predictors of health outcomes, and the ways in which the sequencing of life course events shapes subsequent health outcomes.

What can Facebook and Social Media Tell Us about Trends in Aging and Life Course Research?
10:30am - 12:10pm

The Section on Aging and the Life Course has a lively Facebook page where members post links to articles in peer-reviewed journals, mainstream media, and new books. We will take a look at what has been posted over the past year, and then open the session up for audience discussion of the larger relationship between social media and aging and life course research.

Plenary Session. Social Class in Daily Life
Sat, August 16, 12:30 to 2:10pm

Social class divisions are powerful forces in American society: they influence the rituals of daily life, they cast a long shadow over the life course, and they are thrown into sharper relief in times of crisis. This panel shows a range of ways in which class divisions matter. Jay MacLeod, author of the classic work, Ain’t No Makin’ It, will make a rare appearance at an ASA meeting to discuss the impact of class on life chances over the life course. Linda Burton will share the results of a thirty-year ethnographic study of low-income mothers. Her study highlights the interweaving of race and class in their lives. Eric Klinenberg, drawing on recent data on the aftermath of Hurricane Sandy, will show how the experiences of this natural disaster varied by class. William Julius Wilson will be the discussant on this Saturday plenary session.

Organizer and Presider: Annette Lareau, University of Pennsylvania
Discussant: William Julius Wilson, Harvard University

Section on Medical Sociology Paper Session.
Health Inequality: Tracing Trends and Theorizing Processes
Mon, August 18, 10:30am to 12:10pm

In conjunction with the ASA 2014 meeting theme of examining growing economic inequality and its consequences for Americans, this session focuses on the unequal distribution of health and disease. It solicits papers that both trace trends in health inequalities over time, as well as theorize the mechanisms, pathways, and processes through which inequalities are produced and sustained. Papers utilizing qualitative, quantitative, and mixed methodologies are welcome. The session seeks to achieve a more refined and nuanced picture of health inequalities and also more theoretically informed understandings of where, how, and for whom they are consequential. In so doing the session will extend the capacity of sociological research and theory to contribute to greater health equity and justice.

Thematic Session. Grandparents Pitching in During Hard Times
Mon, August 18, 2:30 to 4:10pm

This thematic session focuses on how grandparents pitch in during hard times. The session focuses on how grandparents assist with childcare, finances, emotional needs, and custodial care. The papers analyze quantitative sources of data, including the HRS, the National Social Life, Health and Aging Project, and the US Census Bureau, and qualitative sources, such as a study of custodial grandparents and a study of non-custodial grandmothers. Together, the authors emphasize how the national picture changes over time with economic up and down turns, and how the personal picture changes when individual grandparents pitch in. What kinds of support do grandparents provide and what are the impacts on grandchildren, adult children, and the grandparents themselves? The papers pay careful attention to how the situation varies by marital status, economic status, education, race and other key stratifying variables. They show how and why grandparents pitch in during hard times and the consequences of their efforts.

Thematic Session. Extended and Intergenerational Relations in Hard Times
Tue, August 19, 8:30 to 10:10am

A central issue in 20th- and early 21st-century sociology has been the ways in which economic hardship affected individuals and families. Much of this scholarship has focused on the experiences of those living in poverty; however, the recent recession in the United States has sparked interest in the effects of this event for families across the socioeconomic spectrum. This thematic session will focus on the ways in which characteristics of families, including the structure of the extended kin network, family members' economic resources, marital status, gender, race, and position in the life course, shaped the ways in which they were affected by and responded to the recent economic downturn.

Understanding these processes is particularly important because families typically serve as the first line of defense for individuals facing hard times.
