Statement by the Chair

Dear Section Members,

The ASA 2012 Annual Meeting is rapidly approaching, which brings us closer to our landmark mini-conference – Crossing Boundaries, Workshopping Sexualities. The conference takes place over the two days prior to the start of ASA, on Wednesday (8/15) and Thursday (8/16). The registration for the conference has exceeded our wildest dreams, with over 200 participants scheduled to attend. I want to highlight some aspects of the conference:

First, we have two fantastic keynote panels. The session entitled “Sociology of Sexualities, Past, Present and Future,” features Mary Bernstein, Amin Ghaziani, and Jyoti Puri. The second keynote panel, entitled “Crossing Boundaries,” features Elizabeth Bernstein, Héctor Carrillo and Mignon Moore. Janice Irvine will also speak to conference attendants during lunch on Thursday. She will share her findings on the experiences of sexualities scholars in sociology, with a talk entitled, “Is Sexuality Research Dirty Work? Results of the Sexualities Section Survey.”

Second, each conference participant has been assigned to a thematic workgroup, such as “Sex Work/Trafficking” and “Social Movements.” The conference is designed so that workgroups will meet several times over Wednesday and Thursday to discuss relevant issues in their areas. Then, they will produce a series of programmatic “white papers” related to their topic areas. These papers will be posted on the Sexualities Section website.

In addition to the keynote panels and workgroups, we have works-in-progress panels and dissertation panels that highlight emerging sexualities scholarship from junior and senior scholars. Additional information about the conference program and location can be found at the link below.

Finally, I want to give a big thank you to everyone who is registered for the Sexualities Section. Currently, we have 450 members. Our goal is to surpass last year’s final count (503). If we hit over 500 members for three years in a row, we can consider starting an ASA-sponsored journal in the area of sexualities. So please consider encouraging your colleagues, students, and friends to register for the Sexualities Section so we will reach 500+ for a second year.

We have a great line up of ASA panels in Denver that fall mainly on Sunday, August 19th, as well as the roundtables and the business meeting. We hope to see you there!

This Section

In the last decade or so, the study of sexuality has emerged as a vibrant interdisciplinary field of social analysis. For many years, sexuality was approached as an individual, biological or psychological phenomena. Today, the idea of sexuality as a social fact or construction is the point of departure for much of the most exciting scholarship in the area...

Sections are an important mechanism for getting out information about our specialty area... Section status also affords a variety of institutional supports from the ASA, including funding for information dissemination and a guaranteed number of paper sessions at the annual conference.

In short, we believe it is in the best interests of the discipline of sociology to advance the sociological study of sexuality. One way to promote this goal is to support the... “Sociology of Sexualities” as an ASA section and to encourage you to join... when you renew your membership in the ASA.

Text written by Steve Seidman, Gil Zicklin, and Mark Hager

The Purpose

The purpose of the Section on the Sociology of Sexualities is to encourage, enhance and foster research, teaching and other professional activities in the sociology of sexuality, for the development of sociology and the benefit of society, through organized meetings, conferences, newsletters, publications, awards, and other means deemed appropriate by the Section Council.

The Section seeks to promote communication, collaboration, and consultation among scholars in sociology, the sociology of sexualities, and allied disciplines.

Newsletter Editorship Available!

The Sociology of Sexualities Section is seeking any interested volunteer to take over the position of newsletter editor, hopefully for several years. Under the most recent editor, SexualitiesNews has been published in two issues per calendar year (winter and summer). The editor maintains a close relationship with the Chair of the Sexualities Section, and has creative control over the format of the newsletter (which only comes out in electronic format).

If you are interested in being considered for the position, or have any questions, please contact Kristen Schilt (Section Chair) at kschilt@uchicago.edu, or Bayliss J. Camp (current newsletter editor) at bayliss.camp@csus.edu.
Sociology of Sexualities Section Awards Winners for 2012

2012 Simon-Gagnon Award

The Simon and Gagnon Award honors career contributions to the study of sexualities as represented by a body of work or a single book. This award commemorates decades of research and writing on sexualities by Professor William Simon (University of Houston) who died on July 21, 2000, and his longtime collaborator, Professor John Gagnon (SUNY-Stony Brook).

2012 Honoree: Judith Stacey, Professor of Social and Cultural Analysis and Professor of Sociology, New York University.

2012 Distinguished Book Award

The Section on Sexualities is pleased to announce the winner of this year’s Distinguished Book Award:

Martin P. Levine Memorial Dissertation Fellowship

The Martin Levine Memorial Dissertation Award was established to honor the memory of Martin Levine, who died of AIDS in 1993. It provides $3,000 to a graduate student (and $500 to an honorable mention) in the final stages of dissertation research and writing, who is working on those topics to which Levine devoted his career: 1) the sociology of sexualities, 2) the sociology of homosexuality, and 3) HIV/AIDS research. It is designed to help students complete their dissertations; the committee therefore evaluates dissertation proposals rather than completed work.

2012 Winner: Trevor Hoppe (University of Michigan) for “From Sickness to Badness: Enforcing Michigan HIV Law as a Site of Social Control.”

2012 Honorable Mention: Jeff Kosbie (Northwestern University) for “Legal Organizations, Legal Translation, and Contested LGBT Identities.”

Best Graduate Student Paper

This award is given to a paper authored by a student currently enrolled in a sociology graduate program. A paper may be coauthored by two or more students who would share the award (papers co-authored with faculty are not eligible). The Section on Sexualities is pleased to announce two awardees for this year’s prize:

2012 Co-Awardee: Kelsy Burke (University of Pittsburgh) for “Making ‘Bad’ Sex ‘Good’: Gender and Sexual Boundaries on Christian Sexuality Websites.”

Please join in congratulating all of the honorees at the annual reception,

Opening: Postdoctoral Scholar at Northwestern University

The IMPACT Program at Northwestern University is recruiting for a postdoctoral research position beginning in Summer, 2012. The position is supported by a three-year grant jointly directed by Brian Mustanski, Ph.D. (Director of the IMPACT Program), and Michele Ybarra, Ph.D. (President and Research Director of the Center for Innovative Public Health Research, CiPHR). This study seeks to develop and implement a novel text messaging-based HIV prevention program, designed specifically for adolescent gay and bisexual males. The Scholar will be responsible for: a) managing IRB protocols at Northwestern University; b) recruiting participants into qualitative focus groups, facilitating focus groups, and analyzing mixed-methods data; c) collaborating on the design and beta testing of the intervention; d) assisting with the pilot randomized controlled trial; and e) and participating in the dissemination of project findings. Dr. Mustanski will serve as the primary mentor with opportunities for interaction and collaboration with Dr. Ybarra and the broader investigative team.

The Scholar will join the IMPACT Program, based in the Dept. of Medical Social Sciences (MSS) in the Feinberg School of Medicine. The mission of the IMPACT Program is to conduct translational research that improves the health of the LGBT community and to develop the clinical research capacity of the community.

Completion of the doctorate prior to the start of the position is required. The candidate will have a doctorate in the social/behavioral/health sciences, academic interests in HIV prevention, LGBT health, and/or health communications, and strong qualitative research skills.

To apply: Applicants will be considered until the position is filled. Please Email a vita, two letters of recommendation, and cover letter explaining research experience and career goals relevant to the position, to:

Dr. Mustanski c/o Robin Morrissey (r-morrissey@northwestern.edu).

New LGBTI Research Blog – Social (In)Queery

http://socialinqueery.wordpress.com/

Section members CJ Pascoe (Colorado College), Tey Meadow (Princeton University), and Jane Ward (UC-Riverside), have begun a new website, Social (In)Queery. This collaborative project seeks to expand the range of solid, empirically informed, intellectual discourse on issues relevant to contemporary LGBTQI life. In the coming months, the site organizers plan to offer a range of commentary from some of the leading university-based researchers in the social sciences.

Also, calling for guest bloggers! Just submit your idea to:

http://socialinqueery.wordpress.com/want-to-contribute/

Kudos!

New Journal, Call for Submissions: TSQ: Transgender Studies Quarterly

General Editors Paisley Currah and Susan Stryker are pleased to announce that TSQ: Transgender Studies Quarterly will be published by Duke University Press, currently planned for launch in the first quarter of 2014. TSQ aims to be the journal of record for the interdisciplinary field of transgender studies, and to promote the widest possible range of perspectives on transgender phenomena broadly defined. Every issue of TSQ will be specially themed, and also contain regularly recurring features such as reviews, interviews, and opinion pieces.

We invite submissions of short pieces (250-1500 words) for the inaugural issue of TSQ: Transgender Studies Quarterly, “Postposttransexual: Terms for a 21st Century Transgender Studies.” Our intention is to showcase a wide range of viewpoints on the present state of the field by bringing together fresh thoughts and informed opinion about current concepts, key terms, recurring themes, familiar problems, and hot topics in the field. Each piece should have a title consisting of a single word or short phrase describing its content; the volume will be organized alphabetically by that title.

Articles may be written in the style of a mini-essay (as in Raymond Williams’ classic Keywords); as an encyclopedia-style article such as might be found on Wikipedia; as a capsule review of transgender-related developments in a particular field (archeology, musicology), geographical location, or topic (pornography, psychoanalysis). Creative interpretations of the required form are also welcome. Each article must address the topic under discussion in relation to some aspect of transgender studies or transgender phenomena.

To be considered for publication, please submit a one-paragraph proposal to tsgjournal@gmail.com, stating the term or concept you’d like to write on, the estimated length of the article, a brief indication of your approach or main idea, and a brief identification of yourself and your qualifications for addressing the topic. Inquiries are due by Sept. 4, 2012; submissions are due by Dec. 3, 2012, and final revisions will be due by March 4, 2013.

Call for Papers: Population Research and Policy Review

Special Issue on Population Issues Related to Sexual Minority Status

Population Research and Policy Review is seeking papers for a special issue that explores population issues relating to sexual minority status. Although population-related scholarship on LGBT (lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender) groups has been growing in recent years, information to date is still quite limited. Our intent with this special issue is to highlight empirical and theoretical manuscripts that make a novel contribution to scholarship in this area of study.

In particular, we are interested in papers that describe and investigate the demographic and socioeconomic characteristics of LGBT populations, as well as papers that explore how sexual minority status relates to health status, behaviors, mortality, and medical care use; family structure and interpersonal relationships; stigma, discrimination, and violence; and other population-related issues that readers of PRPR would find of interest.
Only completed papers will be considered, and all submitted papers will go through the standard peer review process for PRPR submissions. Papers may be empirical or theoretical in nature.

The call for papers will close on November 1, 2012; no papers received after that date will be considered for the special issue, although they will be received for possible publication in a regular issue.

For all inquiries, please contact the editors:
